"A BREAKFAST TABLE BLESSING"

Be present at our table Lord,
Bless us all and those abroad.

Make us Christ-like and good,
Accept our thanks for this food.

May we be strong in every way,
To meet the trials of this day.

Though our burdens be great or small,
Wilt Thou help us bear them all.

May we always listen to what you say,
And ever be humble, when we pray. Amen.

Anniversary Yearbook Honors Mrs. Horn

The Roanoke County Woman's Club dedicated its 1963-64 yearbook to Mrs. Herman L. Horn yesterday at its 40th anniversary luncheon at Conehurst.

Mrs. Horn is a former president of the club and now heads the Blue Ridge District of the state federation. Mrs. J. B. Baker, second vice president and yearbook chairman, made the presentation, citing Mrs. Horn as having "all the qualities of the ideal clubwoman . every phase of community, civic and church activity."

Mrs. Baker quoted "Beatitudes of a Leader" and said they exemplified Mrs. Horn's service to

Teacher Wears a High-Grade Cast

It was autograph day at Mt. Pleasant Elementary School in Roanoke County foday. Mrs. Annie B. Stiff, principal, gave pupils with high grades the privilege of autographing a cast on her right leg. She has the cast because she slipped in a hall at the school last week and broke her knee cap. "It's fashionable to autograph casts," Mrs. Stiff commented on her decision to give the pupils the honor. The autographers are first graders Diana Camper, Kathy Henley and Mike Miller.

Split-T Worked for Woman Coach

"We tried to work from the Split-T," she said with a chuckle. "Sometimes we worked from the I formation and the single wing."

This was Mrs. Annie B. Stiff talking; the first woman football coach in Roanoke County, and probably the first in Virginia.

She is now principal of Mount Pleasant School and has retired from coaching youngsters for a number of years.

Mrs. Stiff also was a basketball coach of note 12 years ago when she was principal of William Byrd Junior High School. Her teams competed yearly in the "Y" League and won the championship trophy four out of the six years that she coached.

Her football teams didn't do so well, she readily admits, although the ex-coach insists she didn't go into coaching to win.

Mrs. Stiff
In 1947 her first team, a 110-pound squad called the Terriers of William Byrd High won four games and tied two in an eight game schedule. Not bad for a beginner.

Getting back to basic gridiron strategy, Mrs. Stiff modestly says her older school children taught her the fundamentals of football.

"Our T got a little bit squared when we used it," she quipped.

"I was more concerned with character. I wanted our boys to know how to follow the rules, submit gracefully to defeat and to refrain from crowing if we won."

She was a law unto herself.

"I wouldn't let the boys play if they didn't have an average of C or better in school," she said emphatically.

Brains Came First in Sports

As usual the brain power behind the athletic talent came first. Her boys had to think, which is probably why most of her teams (basketball) were successful.

How did competing coaches feel about the success? The men didn't like it, Mrs. Stiff laughs, adding "men don't like to lose to women."

* *

Mrs. Stiff dropped from the coaching ranks. As she put it, "I retired 12 years ago from active male sports."

She quit for several reasons. First and foremost, she wanted to devote more time to education, her life's work for almost 40 years.

Second, she said, "I feel there are better places to spend money than on athletics."

This doesn't mean she is against athletics as such, but she is against over-emphasis. Sports are character building, she insists.

"Youngsters who would most likely never make a competitive team will learn a great deal from sandlot sports," she commented.

A A

Despite her long retirement and her definite opinions on athletics, Mrs. Stiff conceded that coaching can be rewarding.

"You get a great deal of satisfaction from seeing some little lump of flesh come alive and develop a soul," she said.

All of which proves that Mrs. Annie B. Stiff, the first woman football coach in Roanoke County, feels the same way about youngsters as 99.9 per cent of all the male coaches in the same county.

Requirements 'Stiff' for Players

"I was very, very strict about meeting the age and weight requirements. I am still concerned about that," she said, referring to a practice among some sandlot coaches to recruit and play boys above the age and weight limits.

* *

"Age brings a certain toughness to the muscles.

A 15-year-old boy who weighs 90 pounds is 30 per cent stronger than a 12-year-old boy who weighs the same. It's just not right for the two to play together."

Mrs. Stiff coached football from 1945 to 1950 and started a four-team league in Vinton for boys 13 and under. The league was called the Vinton Community League and consisted of about 60 boys. It was coached by students from the high school and men in the community, and was started to give small boys in Vinton a chance to play football.

Several of her charges went on to play college football, Mrs. Stiff says. A couple of her footballers obtained scholarships and are now dentists in Roanoke. But college athletics didn't interest her too much.

Beware 'Socialism,' Mrs. Barger Warns

INDEPENDENCE — A Grayson County group was warned of the dangers of "socialism" under the Kennedy administration, and told to shun Democratic candidates who are conservative locally and liberal nationally at a Republican rally here Saturday.

The speaker, Mrs. Hazel K. Barger of Roanoke, national GOP committeewoman, spoke to about 1,000 persons, after a barbecue at the Independence High School.

"Four more years of the Kennedy administration and the Kennedy policies," Mrs. Barger said, "would take us too fardown the road to socialism for us to turn back."

Sen. Landreth is unopposed for re-election to the state Senate.

Also at the rally were these candidates for Grayson County Board of Supervisors: Clarence T. Goodson, Oldtown; Gynn Parsons, Elk Creek; David M. Mallory, Providence; and Glenn Halsey, Wilson.

She also told her listeners to beware of Democratic candi-dates who posed as conserva-tives in local elections, but support liberal national Democratic efforts.

The Republican party has more candidates running for office this year than ever before.

Mrs. Barger said, even though this is an off-year election. Everywhere she goes, Mrs. Barger said, she finds great en-thusiasm for the Republican party.

She urged women to get out

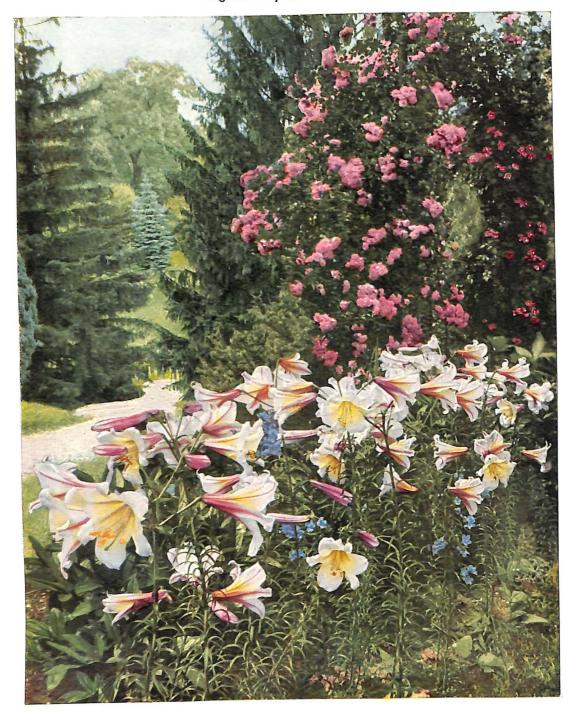

She urged women to get out the vote, reminding her audience that women represent a majority of the electorate.

Lilies for Virgina Gardens

A. G. Smith, Jr., Associate Horticulturist

INTRODUCTION

This bulletin is addressed to the average gardener who may find time and space for a few lilies. It is hoped that such a gardener will select species or varieties suited to the conditions of his garden as well as to his taste.

Some lilies thrive with little or no care, while others are more difficult to manage. Still others require almost constant nursing. The hard-to-grow kinds might be left to those who specialize in lilies.

No attempt has been made to cover the whole subject of lily culture. Those who desire more detailed information may refer to a list of publications which will be sent upon request. These have been used as references in the preparation of this bulletin.

The beauty and grace of the lily should give this flower a distinctive place in the garden; yet, with all its loveliness it has had a career of many ups and downs. From time to time, the discovery and introduction of new species greatly stimulated the planting of lilies; but as the demand increased, bulbs of poor quality or those which were diseased flooded the market. Failure always followed the use of diseased bulbs and each failure led to a loss of interest in lilies.

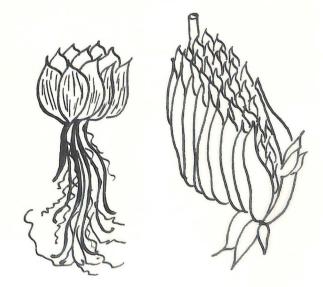

STRUCTURE

All lilies produce true bulbs, but unlike daffodil bulbs they are not held tightly together by thin outer scales. When a lily bulb dries, the scales become flabby and loose.

The scales are modified leaves which store food for new growth. The solid base of the bulb is itself a very short stem upon which scales and buds develop, while the roots are formed at the bottom.

All lily bulbs flower once and perish. With most species a new bulb grows from the one which bloomed. Other species, called rhizomatous, have a branching, perennial rootstock on which new bulbs are formed. In the stoloniferous species, one or more bulbs develop at the end of the underground stems. However, with all of these the bottom roots are produced from the base in the same manner. These roots anchor and feed the plant. They should be protected as much as possible from drving or injury when the bulbs are transplanted. The bulb is dependent on the bottom roots to keep it growing from year to year.

Another type of root system is developed by many species. These secondary (annual) roots appear above the bulb on the new stem. They die when the top growth dies. The stem roots feed the stem and flowers while the basal roots nourish the new bulb.

LEFT

L. humboldtii, a form intermediate between the round and rhizomatous types.

Lilies vary in the arrangement of foliage. All flowers have six petallike sections. The flowers may be trumpet, bell, or cup shaped. They may be drooping, horizontal, or erect.

REPRODUCTION

Under favorable conditions nearly all lilies set seed. Propagation from seed offers the best method of preventing the mosaic disease. If possible, sow the seed as soon as they are ripe. If they cannot be planted then, they may be kept until spring. They may be started in a greenhouse, a coldframe, or, with less chance of success, in an outside seed-bed.

Drainage is of first importance throughout the life of the lily. Before the seed are planted, see that the flat or box or bed is provided with ample coarse material underneath to prevent standing water at the roots.

Fine peat or leaf mold should be mixed with the soil. Proportions will vary. The important point is to make a mixture which cannot bake or stay too close and wet. If the seed-bed can be sterilized with boiling water or by other means, it will help to control insects, diseases, and weeds. Sow the seed, one to a place an inch or more apart. Cover to a depth of about one-half inch. Keep the seed-bed moist, but avoid excessive watering.

seeds of philippine lilies planted in the V.P.I. greenhouses in late fall were ready to be transplanted to benches in February and were planted in the field about June 1. Many of these developed one to three blooms per plant by late August. The next year as many by late August. The next year as many as 26 blooms were produced on a plant.

Most lily seed germinate quickly, the young leaves appearing above ground. In the case of a few, a tiny bulb is formed below the surface and growth apformed below the next season.

PROPAGATION BY OTHER MEANS

Bulbils are small bulbs which form on the stem above ground on tiger lilies and a few others. These may be planted in the border or in a seed row as soon as they mature.

Lilies are propagated also from the individual scales. If only a few scales are to be taken, it is best to do this just after the plant has finished blooming, without lifting the bulb. If the entire bulb is to be divided, then it might pay to wait until the leaves and stem die.

Plant the scales one to two inches deep with the base down. Wet soil may rot them. Protect from heavy rain.

Lilies are also multiplied by natural division of the bulbs, which may be divided without cutting.

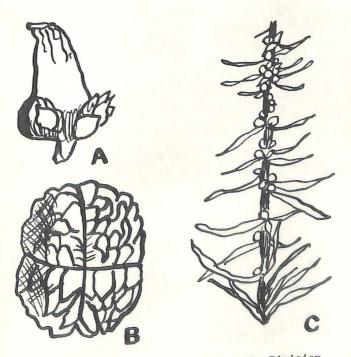

WHERE TO PLANT

Lilies like a little shade, but too much will cause excessive height. It is not necessary to plant lilies in masses. Even one lily, with a suitable background, will present a beautiful picture. When shrubs are used for background, ample space should be left for good air drainage.

In the words of Macfie, an English author, "A great deal has been written about soils in which lilies will grow; and it must be admitted that a great deal of it can be dismissed as exaggerated nonsense."

The most important points to be considered are soil drainage (not surface run off) and a soil in good mechanical condition. The soil around the roots must drain quickly after snow, rain, or heavy watering. It is claimed by some that the easiest place to make lilies grow is on a ditch bank. The term "swamp lily" is misleading. Although this fine lily requires more moisture than others, it will die in standing water.

Humus (decayed organic matter) is essential if the soil is to release the surplus water, yet hold enough moisture for normal growth.

PROPAGATION: A. Bulblets on scale. B. Division of bulb. C. Bulbils on stem. (Adapted from Griffiths and Slate)

HOW TO PLANT

Plant with the idea of leaving the lilies in the same place for many years. Such a plan calls for the use of some long-lasting plant food. A little bonemeal and potash may be thoroughly worked into the soil before planting. Superphosphate may be used instead of bonemeal. These fertilizers will be needed deep down where the basal roots grow. Let the soil settle before planting.

Avoid the use of excessive nitrogen. It is safer not to use any chemical nitrogen directly around lilies. Let the nitrogen be supplied through old, thoroughly rotted compost or manure. These materials are especially needed for the upper soil where the stem roots grow.

It is a mistake to attempt soil preparation by digging deep holes. Remember that these will fill with water. Provide some outlet for the water which might stand at the roots.

Many writers claim that in general the European lilies tolerate lime. This may be accepted as true provided the soil is very rich in humus where lime is used. As a matter of fact, if enough old compost is used, the pH of the soil may be forgotten. A pH of 6.0 to 6.5 is thought to be about right.

About 1937, Madonna lilies were injured or killed throughout Virginia by applications of lime. This treatment had been recommended in an article published by a widely read newspaper.

The old practice of placing clean sand under and around the bulb is a good one as a means of reducing bulb rots.

No fixed rule can be given for the depth of planting. Lilies may go deeper in sandy soil than in clay loam. The table on page 5 suggests depths for sixteen different species and varieties.

WHAT TO PLANT

Most authorities agree that the lilies listed in the table on page 5 are relatively easy to grow, so it is suggested that the beginner start with some of these.

Imported bulbs without basal roots are not as good as home-grown ones with roots, if both are sound and free from disease. It may take two years for a rootless bulb to develop new basal roots and bloom. Mosiac disease cannot be detected in the bulb.

A good lily bulb has been described as one which is true to name, sound, plump, free from diseases and insects, and with live roots.

Great progress has been made in recent years in the development of new hybrid lilies. Aided by the outstanding work at several research institutions, commercial bulb farms on the west coast and in other sections have started their own breeding programs for the development of vigorous hybrids.

The amateur may derive more pleasure from his garden lilies if he does not take too seriously the matter of correct names of the hybrids. Agreement on some is never reached even among professionals.

Consult local dealers when you are ready to buy bulbs. Look for advertisements of lily growers in magazines. Deal with firms of known reliability.

WHEN TO PLANT

The time of planting bulbs will vary with the source of supply. Madonna lilies should be planted in August or early September; others as soon as the foliage matures or as soon as shipped bulbs come.

It is a good rule never to move or disturb a lily if it is doing well.

DISEASES AND PESTS

The prevention of diseases is important in the cultivation of lilies. Mosaic is the most important disease. Mosaic is the most important disease. It is because of mosaic, more than anyothing else, that lilies have been thing else, that lilies have been classified as difficult to grow.

Since mosaic is not usually transmitted through the seed, the simplest method of avoiding it is to raise the lilies from seed whenever this is possible.

MOSAIC is caused by a virus in the plants. It does not live in the soil or in dead plant tissue. Symptoms of the disease are:

- 1. Leaves show a mottling of light and dark green.
- 2. Growth is checked and the leaves die from the ground upward.
- 3. The flower stems have crooked necks.

Control:

Mosaic cannot be checked by any spray or treatment. Grow lilies from seed or get clean bulbs.

BOTRYTIS blight is a fungus which may damage or kill the foliage of lilies and that of other bulbs. It may be identified by:

- 1. Small, round or irregular orangered spots.
- 2. In severe cases the spots run together and kill the leaves.

Boytrytis lives over winter in the form of small fruiting bodies which later produce spores. The fungus does not attack the bulb.

Control:

- 1. Clean-up borders in fall.
- 2. Spray lilies with bordeaux mix-ture in April and May.

MICE and other rodents may eat the bulbs. Poison baits are difficult to use in a neighborhood of children, pets, and birds. It is safer to make a cylinder of 4-inch mesh wire for each lily bulb. A piece of the wire 12 x 18 inches will make a basket a little over 5 inches in diameter. Leave the top open and just above the ground.

Rodent damage may be reduced to some extent by encasing each bulb in sharp gravel of sandstone or granite. Plant as deeply as the conditions permit.

A GUIDE TO THE

VIRGINIA TECH

CAMPUS

BLACKSBURG, VIRGINIA

The Campus At VIRGINIA TECH

HOW TO GET HERE

Virginia Tech is located at Blacksburg, Va., 2,100 feet above sea level in the Appalachian Mountains, eight miles north of Christiansburg and forty miles southwest of Roanoke. The campus may be reached by automobile on U. S. Route 460. A branch line of the Norfolk & Western Railway connects Blacksburg with the main line at Christiansburg. Passengers with only hand-carried baggage should purchase tickets to Christiansburg and then use a taxi to Blacksburg, since passenger service is no longer offered on the branch line. Students with more baggage than can be carried by hand should purchase their tickets to Blacksburg, however, so that their baggage may be checked clear through. Bus service is maintained between Roanoke, Va., and Bluefield, W. Va. There is a landing field for airplanes approximately one mile south of the campus. Eastern, Piedmont, and American Airlines serve Roanoke, 40 miles from Blacksburg.

THE COLLEGE GROUNDS

The campus at Blacksburg covers approximately 2,300 acres. Of this about 300 acres are included in the campus proper with the remainder given over the purposes of the airport, college farm, experimental plats, and orchards. In addition to this, the college has 600 acres of farming land under long-term lease and owns approximately 1,300 acres of nearby mountain land and mineral rights on approximately 1,300 other acres.

PRINCIPAL CAMPUS BUILDINGS The physical plant of the college includes 80 principal buildings, 60 structures of lesser importance, and 45 residences for professors and other employees. 40 residences for professors and other employees, with the principal buildings are 25 auditoriums seating more than 50 persons. Burruss Hall auditorium seats more than 3,000.

Burruss Hall, the administration building, contains le following offices. (First floor) the following offices: (First floor) Admissions, cashier Chief Accountant IRM Tabulation Begistrar, ier, Chief Accountant, IBM Tabulating, Registrar, Treasurer: (Second floor) Rusiness Manager Dormi Treasurer; (Second floor)

Carol M. Newman Library

The Carol M. Newman Library has facilities for 1,000 students at a time and is modern in every respect. In the library, as of June 30, 1961, were 256,-831 cataloged volumes and 977,164 pamphlets and unbound issues of periodicals. Approximately 2,700 periodicals are received by the library. About 31,347 books are also available on microcards.

Dormitories

Dormitories at Tech can comfortably accommodate about 3,400 students in two-man rooms. Two new dormitories (Dorms No. 1 and 2) housing a total of 500 students are expected to be ready for occupancy by the fall of 1962.

Athletic Facilities

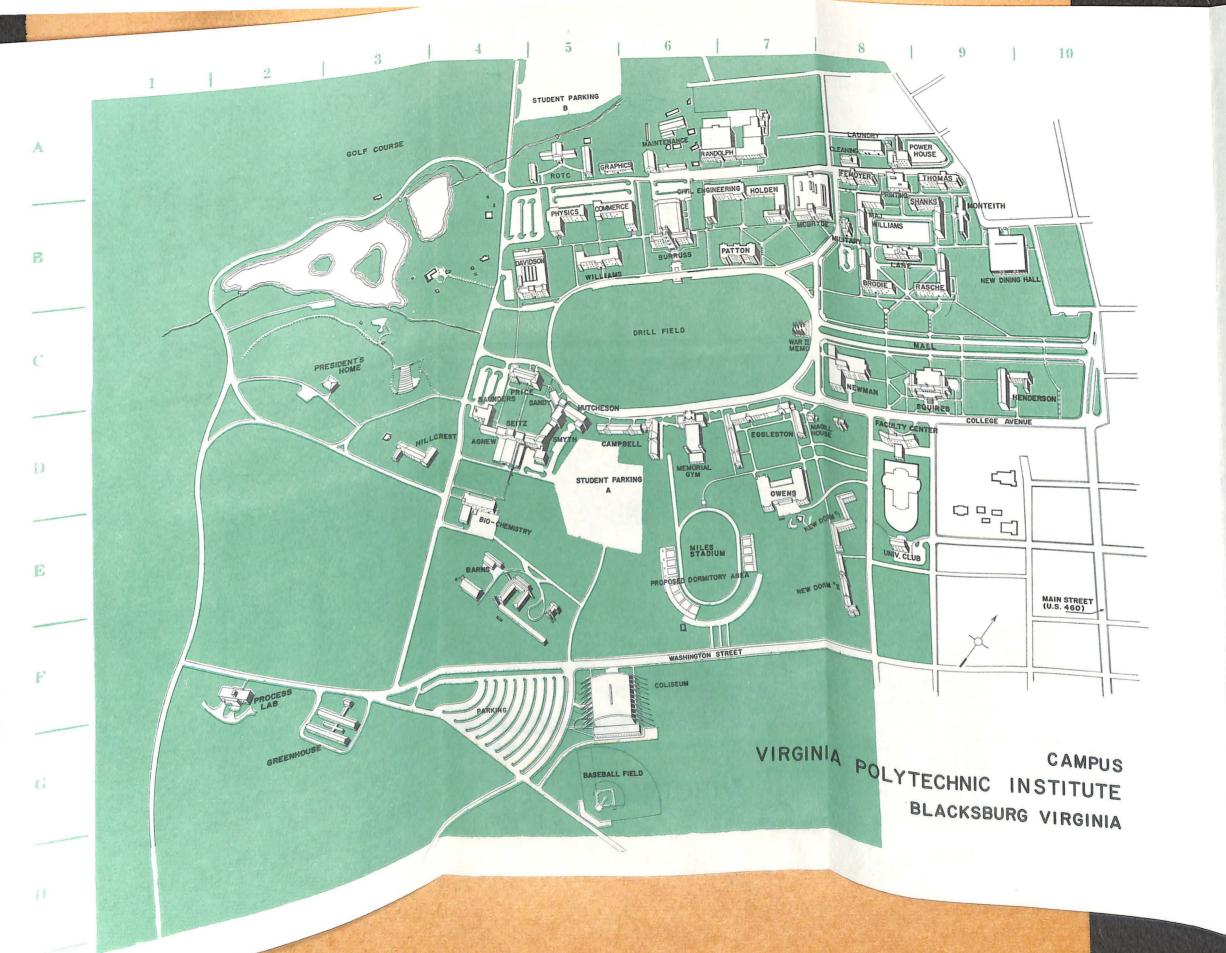

The athletic program of the college includes a wide range of varsity, freshman, and intramural competition. Facilities include the Memorial Gym and indoor swimming pool, Miles Stadium (football and track), a baseball field, tennis courts, a nine-hole golf course, bowling alleys, and various practice fields. A new Coliseum, seating more than 9,000 is scheduled for completion in 1962.

Squires Hall

Squires Hall, the student activities building, contains the office of the Director of Student Affairs and Dean of Civilian Students, the campus bookstore and snack shops, bowling alleys, barber shop, ballroom, YMCA offices and chapel, office of the Director of Religious Activities, lounges, offices of campus publications, the radio station, and rooms for student organizations.

Henderson Infirmary

The college maintains an infirmary on a 24-hour basis for students who become sick. The infirmary is in the students who become sick. is in the charge of the college health officer with a staff of professional nurses. No medical service is provided part-time students.

Mrs. Kathleen P. Mills

Roanoker On CD Committee

A Roanoke woman — Mrs. Kathleen P. Mills—has been named one of the eight members of the Community and Family Services Committee for the U.S. Civil Defense Council during 1964.

Mrs. Mills is secretarial as-the U.S. Civil Defense Council during 1964.

Mrs. Mills is secretarial assistant to J. Robert Thomas, Roanoke City civil defense coordinator. She was appointed by J. Herbert Simpson, president of the U.S. Civil Defense Council, to represent Region 2 on the committee.

The region includes the seven states of Virginia, West Virginia, Ohio, Kentucky, Delaware, Maryland and Pennsylvania. Richard C. Wilson of Madison, Wis., is committee chairman.

Mrs. Mills says she understands the committee's activities will be especially directed at adult education and home preparedness phases of the national civil defense program.

Last Friday, Mrs. Mills was elected secretary-treasurer of the Virginia Civil Defense Association at a meeting in Richmond.

Come from sea and plain and moun-tain,
Kindred are we, Fair Vir-gin-ia's Loy-al daughters, Blest may we be.
Come with thoughts with love o'er flowing;
Will-ing hands and spir-its flowing; And with joy passes knowing,
Each friend to see. Each friend to see.

Shine our spir-it of de-vo-tion, In this world of need. Hand in hand a band of wom-en, On ward we lead. Formed are we a federation, For the home and state and nation; Mother heart for all cre-a-tion, True in word and deed. True in word and deed.

May sweet fel-low-ship attend us
All thru each day, Zeal in-spire and faith defend us,
Thus do we pray.
Let us see a wrong to right it,
Let us evil know to fight it;
Where the path is dark, God light it,
With bright-est ray. With bright-est ray.

Forum Topic 'Family Finance'

By LYNNE S. BILLINGS
Times Women's Writer
A forum discussion on "Facing Finances Today and Tomorrow" held at the Hotel Roanoke Thursday was attended by approximately 300 women from Southwest Vir-

The forum was presented by the Blue Ridge District of the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs in cooperation with the First National Exchange Bank of Virginia. About 30 clubs were represented.

The Women heard David B. Ayres Jr. talk about "Tax Cut—Fact or Fancy" and Bev C. Mullins discuss "Financial Planning for Estates" during the morning session in the Shenandoah Room.

Dr. Perry F. Kendig, president of Roanoke College, addressed the group on "Financing College Education Today and Tomorrow" after a luncheon in the ballroom.

Mr. Ayres, a partner in the firm of Alexander Grant and Company, certified public accountants, traced the prog-ress of the tax cut bill through Congress since it was introduced in January, 1963, by the late President John Kennedy.

His remarks related to the tax cut bill in its present form. Mr. Ayres explained that the bill, now in a conference committee composed of members of the House of Representatives and the Senate, is still subject to change. He said that while there will be a reduction in withholding taxes and tax rates, there are some provisions in the bill that will actually increase taxes.

The tax cuts will affect chiefly the lower and upper income brackets, said Mr. Ayres. The middle income brackets are less favored.

The reduction in the withholding tax will exceed the real tax cut, said Mr. Ayres. "Next April 15, you had better have cash to pay taxes," he told the women.

The three primary objectives in the financial planning of an estate are to provide for the orderly administration of our estate, to keep taxes and expenses to a minimum and to provide for competent management of our estate to insure the future financial security of our family, Mr. Mullins told the group.

Mr. Mullins is a trust officer at the First National Exchange Bank. He said that in order to carry out these three objectives, a properly drawn will is a necessity. You should seek the advice of an attorney and other business advisors the said advisers, he said.

By taking advantage of the so called "marital deduc-tion" permitted by the tax laws alled "marital deduc-

By taking advantage of the so called "marital deduction" permitted by the tax laws and by use of trusts, considerable saving in taxes can be accomplished, he said.

"In the future no well-qualified student should be denied higher education because of lack of funds," Dr. Kendig told his audience, "so be of good cheer."

He contrasted the cost of his college years at Franklin and Marshall College, 1928-32, with the cost of four years' education there now. The cost has increased four and a half times.

He said that almost certainly college costs will increase further. The amount of student aid, of all types, will also increase, said Dr. Kendig.

Boy Scout Speaks For Women's Group

He is a member of Troop 23 at Belmont Methodist Church.

The group met with Mrs. Lucy Solaski and also heard a talk by Mrs. Hester Newcomb on her recent trip to Europe.

The department will meet with Mrs. Hazel K. Barger March 23.

A nominating committee for the department has been ap-pointed: Mrs. Solaski, Mrs. Newcomb and Mrs. Pearl Bradley.

PLEDGE TO THE FLAG

I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation, under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

COLLECT FOR CLUBWOMEN

Keep us, O God, from pettiness; let us be large in thought, in word, in deed.

Let us be done with fault-finding and leave off self-seeking.

May we put away all pretense and meet each other face to face, without self-pity and without prejudice.

May we never be hasty in judgment and always generous.

Let us take time for all things; make us to grow calm, serene, gentle.

Teach us to put into action our better impulses, straight forward and unafraid.

Grant that we may realize that it is the little things that create differences, that in the big things of life we are at one.

And may we strive to touch and to know the great common human heart of us all, and, oh Lord God, let us forget not to be kind!

PLEDGE TO THE FLAG

I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation, under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

COLLECT FOR CLUBWOMEN

Keep us, O God, from pettiness; let us be large in thought, in word, in deed.

Let us be done with fault-finding and leave off self-seeking.

May we put away all pretense and meet each other face to face, without self-pity and without prejudice.

May we never be hasty in judgment and always generous.

Let us take time for all things; make us to grow calm, serene, gentle.

Teach us to put into action our better impulses, straight forward and unafraid.

Grant that we may realize that it is the little things that create differences, that in the big things of life we are at one.

And may we strive to touch and to know the great common human heart of us all, and, oh Lord God, let us forget not to be kind!

-Mary Stewart.

Blacksburg Woman Branches Out

If Family Says 'Go,' Mother Scores Again!

By SYDNEY VAN LEAR

By SYDNEY VAN LEAR
Times Women's Writer
Everyone benefits from club work in the Boone family. This is because the Boone family approves of Mother's activities. If they didn't, Mrs. Boone wouldn't be president-elect of the Blue Ridge District of the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs.
Each step along the way has called forth votes from now 9-year-old Janice to 18-year-old Diana, a freshman at Radford College. James F. Boone, who is treasurer for Virginia Tech, is "co-pilot" and chief confidant for his popular wife, advising in such worthwhile efforts as the Safety Council for which she is Blacksburg chairman.
For four years she was VFWC safety chairman for the state, and right now she is finishing out a two-year term as state resolutions chairman. And, on state level a clubwoman spends a lot of time away from the home fires.

Invariably, Mrs. Boone says, her family has balked at the idea of her not accepting a new post. She, often hesitant because of time involved, has been encouraged with a "Mother, you meet so many interesting people." The children's endorsement she finds lends strength to her feeling that a mother nowadays owes it to her family to keep well informed. "Women really do have a job nowadays," adding, "instead of channeling their efforts in a narrow vein, they must themselves keep growing."

The dark-eyed brunette with magnetic personality doesn't have to express verbal interests in other people. It is obvious in her appraisals of situations and in her accomplishments along the way since her her appraisals of situations and in her accomplishments along the way since her Junior Woman's Club debut.

She strongly advises junior work in preparation for senior club work. The newly elected district head wouldn't take anything for the friends she made along the way, many of whom were already senior members before she "graduated" into the group several years ago. Becoming a sengroup several years ago. Becoming a sen-ior club member is not essential, she says—except for individual benefit to the

"All too often a woman of 35 will consider herself through in club work," not wanting to go on to an affiliation with older women. These, she says, often return in a few years, finding a void in life after years of active club work.

As to what a club offers a young woman, Mrs. Boone says she has seen many 22- or 23-year-olds with no particular purpose turn into truly valuable citizens. She mentions the benefits to the individual who turns her interests toward the various facets of club work.

Most junior and senior clubs are divided into departments such as fine arts, public affairs, garden or home life. The departments meet once a month in addition to regular club meetings. She feels that a young woman is bound to emerge with more social grace after association with others with varied interests.

The Blacksburg Woman's Club, of which Mrs. Boone is immediate past president, is comprised of 99 members. The home life department is the most thriving segment of this club. And, members are proud to recall that the Blacksburg Art Association grew out of the club.

Prior to being elected president of the district, Mrs. Boone was second vice president, and before that, secretary. She has served four years at state level.

Home base for this vivacious mother of three is their quarters on the VPI campus—the grounds of which supply a lake for fishing, a baseball field for 13-year-old Jim and a plot for vegetables. On the latter score, Mrs. Boone managed to find time to preserve 400 quarts of canned goods last summer.

She'd rather be a good mother than a good clubwoman, but somehow the two seem compatible for the time being.

Now, Bede has been our Club's President for one successful year (1965-164) - and, no doubt, would serve another, if she could see her way clear. But she and her handsome husband, Everett Floyd Jones, have their orders to leave and go WEST. So, we give them our love and blessings, and wish them the very best.

They both will be greatly missed, when they leave our community. But they are wise to take advantage of a wonderful opportunity.

No doubt, they'll sing all along the way - "CALIFORNIA HERE WE COME," and will stop awhile to sightsee and play. They will become active in many organizations, for all they have to do is - just to smile and wink their eye, and they'll get plenty of cooperation.

Bade and Everett both have many talents, which will be used wisely, no doubt, in order to succeed.

The new president of the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs last night asked the Federation to work for conservation of natural and human resources during her two-year administration.

Mrs. Alvah E. Riggins of Tabb specifically asked the VFWC's nearly 25,000 members to seek the conservation of the Great Dismal Swamp so that it can be made into a state

"RIGHT NOW bulldozers are in there turning the swamp into more farm land which we don't need and which will just lie idle," she said.

"The swamp is a gold mine. But Virginia has never recognized it," Mrs. Riggins continued.

The swamp, she said, represents one of the most primitive areas still in existence in its animal and plant life. "It breaks my heart to see it destroyed."
She urged the women to seek

COLLECT FOR CLUBWOMEN

Keep us, Oh God, from pettiness; let us be large in thought, in word, in deed.

Let us be done with faultfinding, and leave off self-seeking.

May we put away all pretense and meet each other face to face — without self-pity and without prejudice.

May we never be hasty in judgment and always generous.

Let us take time for all things; make us to grow calm, serene, gentle.

Teach us to put into action our better impulses straightforward, and unafraid.

Grant that we may realize it is the little things that create differences, that in the big things of life we are at one.

And may we strive to touch and to know the great common human heart of us all, and Oh. Lord God, let us forget not to be kind.

-Mary Stewart

STANDING RULES

Admission to all sessions will be by badge only.

BALANCE

Site-seeking industries analyze towns carefully before selecting a new plant site . . . weigh each town's advantages and disadvantages against others under consideration . . . put the towns "in the balance", so to speak.

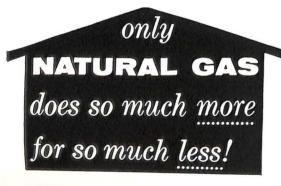

That's why the first step in your community's industrial development effort is to determine what it has and what it needs to be more attractive to new industries.

Our Project Decision stresses such self-evaluation. It's continuing competitive analysis helps show a community how it would tip the scales if under examination by industry . . . helps get it started on a self-improvement program. Project Decision also provides tangible help in the form of a shell building like that built and sold in Abingdon, Virginia, the first town to qualify, and like buildings recently awarded Princeton and Pulaski. Self-evaluation and concrete aid — that's what happens when Project Decision weighs a town in the balance. It's a successful approach to industrial development and community improvement in the area we serve.

Mary Washington College

The Fine Arts Center contains three separate buildings connected by arcades: Jessie Ball duPont Hall, Gari Melchers Hall, and John Garland Pollard Hall.

Iessie Ball duPont Hall—The central building of the group constituting the Fine Arts Center is named in honor of Mrs. Alfred I. duPont of Wilmington, Delaware, and Ditchley, Virginia, in recognition of her interest in and generosity to the College and the fact that she is a close living relation of Mary Ball Washington, for whom the College is Gari Melchers Hall-The south building is named in honor of the late Gari Melchers, internationally known artist, whose home, "Belmont," across the river at Falmouth, is now a museum under the trusteeship of the College. Melchers Hall is devoted to such arts as painting, sculpture, and ceramics, and contains class rooms, studios, kilns, offices, and workrooms.

From Your Editors . . .

Your editors and the communications chairmen from the eight districts of the Federation wish to thank each and every one of the club women who have contributed to the magazine. Without your help the magazine would not be possible. We sincerely hope that you have been pleased with the issues during this administration and that you will give the same cooperation to the staff for the coming year.

Thank you for the opportunity of sharing your clubs honors and achievements with the magazine.

John Garland Pollard Hall-The north building, named in honor of the late John Garland Pollard, Governor of Virginia, attorney-general, college professor, and patron of the arts, is devoted exclusively to music. It contains studios for individual instruction, band practice room, choral practice room, record library, listening rooms, and offices.

Mary Washington is the woman's college of the University of Virginia and is an integral part of the university system. One of the few state-aided liberal arts colleges for women in the country, Mary Washington, with a present enrollment of 1,762, draws students from most of the states in the nation.

Although Thomas Jefferson founded the University of Virginia in 1819, it was not until 1891 that efforts were begun to provide coeducation at the University or to set up a coordinate college for women; and it was not until 1944 that Mary Washington College, originally established as a state teachers college in 1908, was designated as the woman's college of the University. Since that time it has expanded and placed increasing emphasis on its liberal arts offerings.

Located halfway between Washington and Richmond and some 70 miles east of the University in Charlottesville, the 381-acre campus includes the famous Marye's Heights and the historic Brompton estate—now the home of the Chancellor—and overlooks the city of Fredericksburg and the Rappahannock River. The entire campus area was included in the Confederate's main line of defense Lee during both the first and second battles of Fredericksburg.

The College offers courses leading to the Bachelor of Arts degree with major programs in fifteen academic fields and such interdepartmental majors as Ameri-

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Theme: Federation Progress Through Individual Participation

"Look, then, into thy heart and write." If you will indulge your president in this her last message to you she will write about that which is deepest in her thoughts and closest to her heart at this time.

There are many things that light up the horizon as she approaches the conclusion of an interesting and rewarding experience. She thinks of the golden opportunities that have escaped her but immediately this is erased by the thoughts of the many precious hours each club member has given to make this administration move along, couched in harmony. You have respected the opinions of others and have met graciously the many challenges with receptive minds and willing hands.

Many interesting speakers who will appear on your convention program are featured in this issue of the CLUB WOMAN. We are honored and privileged to have Mrs. Dexter Otis Arnold. president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs on this program. A warm welcome awaits her in Virginia.

Your president is looking forward with pleasure to seeing each of you on April 14th in Richmond.

Message from Junior Director

Dear Juniors.

Can you believe that our 1964 Convention is only a matter of days away and that our two years of working together is nearly over? It seems only yesterday that we pledged our best efforts for the "Physical, Mental and Emotional Development of American Youth" and your recently filed reports indicate that many long hours were spent working toward this common goal.

I hope you are planning to be with us in Richmond April 14-16 for Convention. The Southside Juniors, with Mrs. Fred Swearingen, Jr. and Mrs. Jack Easterling as co-chairmen of arrangements, have done everything they could to make your visit pleasant and comfort-

The Junior business session will convene promptly at 10 a.m. on April 14. At this time you will elect the Junior secretary-treasurer and adopt a state project for the next administration. The district Junior Directors will participate in a panel discussion designed to give them an opportunity to air the problems and accomplishments they have encountered during their term of office. We hope the Senior executive committee will complete their business agenda in time to join us for this meeting.

Again the Junior banquet and Junior night program will be combined and open to the entire convention delegation. A very fine speaker has been secured for us and our Junior awards will be

It is hard for me to find words to express just how much my association with you has meant to me. I have boasted proudly of your outstanding accomplishments and have cherished your friendship and your loyalty. I can only say thank you for giving me this opportunity to know and love so many of you; to share in your problems and your successes; and to enjoy the many wonderful experiences that have come my way these past two years. May the years ahead be good ones for our Junior organization!

With Junior love, BETTY P. WATSON appointment!

VIRGINIA FEDERATION WELCOMES . . .

Mrs. Dexter Otis Arnold of Concord, New Hampshire, and Washington, D. C. is the youngest president in the history of the General Federation.

Beginning her club work as an usher, then serving as Secretary, Vice-President, First Vice-President and President of the Concord Club, membership 500, she moved on to service in the New Hampshire Federation where she served in many capacities prior to her term as President of the New Hampshire Federation.

She served the GFWC as Recording Secretary, Third Vice-President, Second Vice-President and First Vice-President before her election to the leadership of the GFWC.

Daughter of a clergyman, Mrs. Arnold reveals her deep religious faith in her daily life and in her concern for her fellow men. She has a deep concern in the problems of the aging and has served on many committees, both state and national, dealing with these problems.

She has one of the largest collections of paneled wheat pressed glass in the United States. She collects both clear and milk glass. In addition, she has more than 200 pieces of old sandwich moon and star glass.

Married to Dr. Dexter Otis Arnold, Superintendent of Schools in Saugerties, N. Y., Mrs. Arnold feels that "home is my special attraction. I do my own housework, make my own clothes as well as many of my hats. The smartest thing I ever did was to marry Dexter Arnold."

As President of the GFWC many honors have been offered to her. Most recent honors include: Distinguished Service Award from the Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation; National Farm-City Award; Legion of Honor-Chapel of the Four Chaplains; Order of the Rose; Delta Gamma Fraternity; Judge, 1963 Miss America Pageant; Director, New York World's Fair Corporation, 1964-1965.

Operation Research

The Buckroe Juniors, in co-operation with the Hampton Fire Department, has started a safety program called "Operation Rescue."

We are all aware of the many people who would not be able to leave their homes quickly in the event of fire or some other disaster, due to the fact that they are non-ambulatory, bedridden or blind. We suggested to the Fire Marshal that a special identifying sticker be placed on their front door and also on their bedroom window. If a fire is reported at one of these homes, the firemen are trained to spot these luminous emblems and know immediately there is a person inside who requires special consideration. They would then look for the bedroom window, with the second sticker, and give that room their immediate attention. We believe many lives, that otherwise may be lost, can be spared through this program.

As this goes to press, the Buckroe Juniors will have contacted over 200 local civic associations, doctors, ministers and other women's clubs. They urge the support of all these organizations by starting this same project in their local communities. This program also applies to those post-operative patients who may only have need of the emblem through their recuperation period.

The emblem is only 23/4 inches in diameter and is very inconspicuous except to the trained eye of a fireman or rescue worker. It has no printed words—only a fireman's helmet, ladder and hose nozzle

Special recognition should go to Mrs. Roy Leitz (Nancy), Chairman of "Operation Rescue" for her untiring effort in this project. You may contact Nancy at 20 Bedford Court, Hampton, Virginia, for information you may need to start "Operation Rescue" in your community.

Woman's Club Celebrates 50th Birthday At Banquet

Pulaski Woman's Club celebrated its 50th Anniversary Monday night with a banquet in the clubhouse, when past presidents were honored and Miss Eva Vaughn reminisced and several of the past presidents added information of interest.

"Highlights of 50 Years of Progress," was the title of Miss Vaughn's talk, and she stated the club organized in 1913, was the first local civic club with its purpose, the betterment of the public schools.

Through the years the club's interest has centered around schools, hospital and community. International service has been added since World War II.

Achievements of the Woman's Club have included the circulation of a petition for a bond issue for a new high school, which passed. The building now houses Central Elementary School. In the early years donations were made to the firemen, child welfare, baseball park, General Chemical Hospital. Also, school nurses, draperies and stage curtain for Jefferson Elementary School. Typewriters were purchased for the newly installed business department at the high school.

During the depression the members made gallons of hot soup and dozens of sandwiches for the schools, which was the beginning of the school hot lunch began working for a clubhouse and purchased the R. R. Moore property on Washington Avenue in 1936 which was used until 1940 when the present clubhouse on 4th Street was completed.

The Woman's club was instrumental in organizing and sponsoring the Junior Woman's Club in 1931 and the Madeline Harman Woman's Club in 1948.

Past Presidents honored, who attended with years of office listed were: Mrs. John S. Draper, first president, 1913-1914; Mrs. Hensel Eckman, 1920-'22; Mrs. William S. Gilmer, 1923-'24; Mrs. F. L. Hiltzheimer, 1931-'33; Mrs. K. V. Brugh, 1933-'35; Mrs. Harry Hall, 1937-'39; Mrs. H. T. Hiltzheimer, 1943; Mrs. W. E. Knapp, 1943-'45; Mrs. B. K. Hall, 1947-'49.

Mrs. O. H. Meredith, 1953-1955; Mrs. Ballard Groseclose 1955-'57; Mrs. Addie Merrimee, 1957-'59; Mrs. Roswell Seagle, 1959-'61; Mrs. Granville Bageant, Asheboro, N. C., 1961-'62; Mrs. A. J. Scheff, 1962-'63.

The honored guests were presented corsages on behalf of the club.

Other past presidents who sent messages of regret, were read to the group. They included, Mrs. George A. Cheves, Mrs. C. A. Duncan, Mrs. W. B. Allison, Mrs. J. C. Harman, and Mrs. W. R. Garland.

A lavish buffet supper was served by Mrs. Ferd Harvey, Mrs. George Umansky and members of the social committee.

The clubhouse was decorated with lovely floral arrangements, including yellow roses, white lilac and chrysanthemums in various fall colors. The speakers table was centered with a beautifully decorated four tiered birthday cake with gold candles in the shape of the number

Workshop In Respiratory Diseases

A very instructive workshop in res- berculosis and Health Associations in Corners, Virginia, before an audience of 57 delegates and members of many of clubs, as well as representatives of Tupiratory diseases was held in November both Virginia and Maryland. The cities at the First Christian Church, Seven of Alexandria and Richmond, and the counties of Arlington, Fairfax and Prince William in Virginia and Prince Georges Northern Virginia's federated women's in Maryland were represented at the 1963 Fall Respiratory Disease Workshop.

Mrs. James B. Roberts, Northern District President, presided over the threehour session co-sponsored by the local Tuberculosis and Health Associations and the Northern District. Mrs. Roberts presented details relative to certain health awards offered in conjunction with the Virginia Federation's support of the Tuberculosis Eradication Program.

Presentation of the program's highly qualified speakers was very capably undertaken by the First Vice President of the Virginia Tuberculosis Association, Mrs. J. York Welborn. Among the speakers heard at the 1963 workshop were Dr. Richard E. DeButts, affiliated with Fairfax County TB Association; Dr. James P. Mann, Alexandria-Arlington TB Association; Mr. W. W. Wendt, Director of the Virginia Tuberculosis Association; Mr. Donald Green of the Information and Education Office, Division of Air Pollution, Public Health Department, and Mr. E. R. tion or officers—it serves merely as a control center, directing volunteers-and it desperately needs the support of compassionate people.

The Princess Anne-Virginia Beach Clubs are supporting the work of Contact 100%, but in this project there is still much to be done and many volunteers are needed to carry out the work. These two clubs have found that one of the greatest needs in the convalescent homes in this area are religious services. The physical needs are well taken care of, but their spiritual and mental needs are lacking. The volunteers have found that these people do not want to be entertained, necessarily, they want a moment of an interested visitor's time; they delight in the chatter and energetic enthusiasm of the children and love music and the joy of singing. In addition, the volunteers realize that they must not disappoint the patients or shut-ins, for such as these must not have cause to think they are forgotten.

The club members have found their efforts repaid a dozen times over, just seeing the smile on the face of a shut-in.

If other clubs in the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs are interested in this project "Contact," you may write either of the two clubs mentioned in this article and they will be pleased to send additional information.

A Phase of Art

The Annandale Woman's Club selected as its primary project for the year the Dorothy Farnham Feuer Memorial Scholarship Fund. Club members were interested in supporting a phase of the arts which was in greater need of financial aid than some of the better known in this field. Delving into the subject produced a challenging and worthwhile project to which the Annandale clubwomen might enthusiastically devote their efforts. The express purpose of the Dorothy Farnham Feuer Memorial Scholarship is to promote the musical development of string instrument students in the Northern Virginia area.

To their knowledge, the Annandale Woman's Club is the first of the Northern District federated organizations to adopt this particular scholarship as their special project. Club members feel that the Dorothy Farnham Feuer Memorial Scholarship exemplifies the over-all goal of the Virginia Federation—"to contribute to the civic, cultural, educational and social welfare of the community."

Shortly after the death of Mrs. Feuer in September 1963, the scholarship fund was established by the Fairfax County

Brandon Offers "Our Opportunities"

The Brandon Woman's Club of Richmond mixed business with pleasure when they had a covered dish supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thatcher Wood, Jeanne (Mrs. Wood) being chairman of the Ways and Means Committee. Members and husbands were charged $1.00 admission and each member contributed a delectable covered dish. The good food plus good fellowship fostered hopes for another get-together in the spring. A profit of $31.51 from the party was used for federation supported scholarships.

The major philanthropic work of the Brandon Woman's Club is with the Crippled Children's Hospital in Richmond. The club has charge of the library in the hospital and members work voluntarily in their spare hours cataloging, checking and taking books through the wards to the children. The Club's major fund drive, therefore, is tied into this interest in the children. A check is given each year directly to the hospital to be used as it sees fit.

This year's theme is "Our Opportunities." It is with this thought in mind that each member is charged with raising at least $5.00 by using her individual talents, hobbies and opportunities to fill a small "hobby sock." Very attractive socks were made by the Fine Arts Committee, composed of Mrs. Richard Dyerle, chairman, Mrs. Thatcher Wood, Miss Leonora McDonald, Mrs. Woodrow Paris, Mrs. George Talcott and Mrs. James Hargroves, president of the Club. The socks were made of blue denim, Pinked, stitched in white and on each a blue felt angel with white wings and a red sequin heart appliqued. The angel depicts the angel of the Lord watching Over the little children and is a constant reminder to members that "there but for the grace of God go I-or my child or my friend's child." Each sock held a little verse.

"These little socks will hold pennies and dollars

To help those children in braces and collars."

An ingenious poster was made to gauge receipts from the socks. A large sock thermometer records progress and things are getting hotter every month. Members bring anything from cakes, cookies and candy to homemade breads, jellies, jams and other edibles to sell to $260.00 and hopes it will even go over their fellow (or sister) members. Some the top, or that is to say "over the cuff." play bridge at 25¢ a corner. The Ware Juniors have pledged a donation from their proceeds from the Gloucester Inboard Regatta toward the newly organized Little League Teams.

The Bon Air Juniors donated money toward Camp Baker, a summer camp, for retarded children, to be used for camp equipment and books for the library. A group of club members visited Eastern State Hospital to deliver clothes to the Patients there as part of Operation Clothes Closet. Each month members make cookies and donate paperback books for Mc-Guire Veterans Hospital.

Money raised through donations at a Polio clinic sponsored by the Highland Springs Juniors helped to purchase a hearing aid for a 16 year old South Richmond girl. The fact that her family was unable to purchase this aid meant that her education would be limited. Volunteer Service Bureau put the club in contact with the Hard of Hearing Division of the Public Schools who in turn referred the girl to the club. With the assistance of the Medical College of Virginia Hearing Center, the girl was fitted with a hearing aid and taught to use it effectively. The club also presented a $25 donation to the M.C.V. Miss Windsor Junior Woman's Club

The Windsor Junior Woman's Club held their annual Fashion Show at the Windsor High School auditorium. The fashions and models were from Rose Hall of Lynnhaven.

This year the big attraction was the

"Miss Windsor Junior Woman's Club," beauty pageant. Miss Meliasa Sawyer of Windsor was crowned with top honors. Meliasa is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joel E. Edwards of Isle of Wight.

There were 14 pretty girls from Windsor and Smithfield High Schools competing in the contest. Other top contestants, first runner up Miss Peggy Grissom, second runner up Miss Shirley Jean Holland, third runner up Miss Nina Sadler, fourth runner up Miss Connie Nelms, and Miss Stoup was voted Miss Congenialty.

Miss Peggy Beale the Homecoming Queen at Windsor High School crowned Miss Sawyer as "Miss Windsor Junior Woman's Club."

The contestants were judged on talent, personality, poise, bathing suits, street clothes and evening gowns. The judges were Dr. E. B. Catten, Jr., of Smithfield, Mr. Curtis Holland of Holland, and Mrs. Charles A. Carter of Portsmouth. Mr. John Spivey was the master of cere-

The evening was a great success for the Windsor Juniors.

A donation from the profit of 400 pounds of pecans sold by the Alexandria Junior Woman's Club will go to the Virginia Treatment Center.

By far the largest and most successful of the annual projects is the Embassy Tour and Tea. Tickets are sold to the public and club members serve as hostesses at each embassy. All arrangements for the Tour are made by the club chairman and her committee. Profits from this year's tour were $2900 divided equally between Hopkins House, a Negro Settlement House in Alexandria, and the local School for Handicapped Children.

The Santa Claus Shop is the annual Christmas project. In cooperation with the Alexandria Welfare Council, they distributed toys to 1700 children who otherwise would have had no Christmas. The club contributed $500.00 worth of toys for pre-teen boys in 1963, and next year will have charge of collecting and sorting all used toys from the community.

BRISTOL WOMAN'S CLUB TAKES PLACE OF LEADERSHIP . . . Mr. Robert Croft, Executive Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, Bristol, Virginia conversing with Mrs. Howard Hengerer, (center) 2nd Vice President and Mrs. George Dickert 1st Vice President of the Bristol Woman's Club. Mr. Croft presented an interesting program to the newly organized Senior Club in suggesting various projects and needs in their community, thus aiding the club in making their club's plans in community improvements for the coming year. The club joined the Federation last June with a total of 38 charter members.

4-H Clubs Foundation of Washington, D. C., was their featured speaker recently when a children's book exhibit and a reception honoring teachers was held. They were most fortunate in having Alden Aaroe, WRVA radio personality, show his slides of Hawaii, "Our 50th State," with a running commentary. This was truly an educational experience. This club continues to show much interest in youth, both on a local and state level. This year they chose to sponsor a young girl at the Lynchburg Training School, they have awarded a Massanetta Music Camp scholarship, sponsored a vacation story-telling hour for young children, a program on bicycle safety for school children, and many other projects. These ladies truly believe that the key to a good club is a varied number of activities in which each clubwoman can choose her favorite project.

24 HOUR SERVICE

The Sebrell Woman's Club in Southside District has also exerted much effort in the field of education this club year. One of their most rewarding projects has been the sponsoring of socials at regular intervals for the youth of the community, and how they enjoy this! They have worked well with other civic organizations in maintaining a community center and work faithfully on operating the concession stand during the ball season for the benefit of the community center. Working with the Ruritan Club they have helped with the Oral Polio Vaccine Program, have helped promote a bloodmobile bank, help sponsor a TB X-Ray Clinic, and many other community projects.

The Narrows Junior Woman's Club held a Christmas party for the girl which they sponsor at the Virginia School for Deaf and Blind and presented her with many gifts of clothing.

The Richlands Intermediate Woman's

THE VIRGINIA CLUB WOMAN

Club had as their guest speaker at their January meeting, Mrs. Willetta Scott Breedlove, teacher of the special education class sponsored by the Richland's Intermediate Woman's Club. The class covers the blind, the deaf, the crippled, and children who have speech defects, cerebral palsy, brain damage, and are slow learners. The class which is held at Richland's Elementary School contains fifteen children. Only sixteen are allowed in this type of class. Their school day is shorter than that for the regular school.

The children fall into either the educable group or the trainable group. All of the present group is in the educable group, and they are taught reading, history, science, arithmetic, spelling, writing, physical education and crafts. They are allowed to go bowling every Friday morning, accompanied by members of the Junior Woman's Club.

Most of the present class is around the age of twelve, and a senior program for them by the time they reach the age of sixteen is in the planning stage for Tazewell County. In a senior program they will go to school for half a day and have on-the-job training during the other half. Others may go through a rehabilitation program and job training at the Woodrow Wilson Rehabilitation Center at Fishersville.

It was brought to the attention of the Welfare Chairman that school books were needed for some of the children in the Windsor Elementary School. The books were purchased by the Windsor Juniors and placed in the classrooms to be used for children who did not have books.

Mrs. Vernon Compton and Miss Mary Kirby, members of Pearisburg Woman's Club are on the board of the new Town Library. They and other members of the Club have worked very hard collecting funds for books, helping the librarian to select, order, catalog, and ready books for use, and even serving as assistant to the librarian.

Education Department, of Bon Air in an effort to give special attention to all new teachers in our area schools, wrote letters of welcome and pledges of cooperation to each teacher, a total of fiftyone. To celebrate "Teacher Appreciation Week," faculty teas were given at three local schools. Each teacher was presented with an individual gift, and it was announced that the club was offering three scholarships in the amount of $72.00 to qualifying teachers to be used for summer school study, no restrictions were made as to subject or school attended.

"Do you Know" is the title of a national television program where young contestants are asked questions on a specific book they have read previously. The Thomas Jefferson Juniors are encouraging their children between the ages of nine and twelve to read the weekly book and test their knowledge as the program is aired. This club has awarded a $300. scholarship in the field of health to a Medical College of Virginia student. They also donated books and pamphlets from their president's file to the library of the West End Community Center. Three books were donated to local high schools by the Thomas Jefferson Juniors in observance of National Book Week.

The King and Queen Junior Woman's Club presented an English award to the senior showing the most improvement in English in each of their county's two high schools. Plans have been made by this club to give two scholarships of $100. each to the most deserving senior in each of these high schools. The money may be used in the field of the winners' choice.

The weekly story hour of the Bon Air Juniors at the Hazen Memorial Library, a project begun last year, has been continued. Pre-school children attend one morning each week for stories and games.

The Pamunkey Juniors contributed $150. to the library of Lee-Davis High School. The money was used by the librarian to purchase new books. The club also contributed $10. to a book fair at a local elementary school. Club members appeared before the local School Board and Board of Supervisors and urged them to participate in the new educational television channel.

Monacan Juniors again did the planning and contacting of speakers for a Career Week program in an area Junior high school. The club contributed a scholarship to a student at Douglas Freeman High School.

The King and Queen Junior Woman's Club donated $100. to York Academy, a new private grade school in their county. The donations covered the cost of tile for the floor of three classrooms. The teachers at the schools decided that tile was their most pressing need. Husbands of club members laid the tile at night. The classrooms were quieter, brighter, and easier to clean through the club donation and their husbands' efforts.

The Education Dept. of the Ashland Junior Woman's Club sent letters to all

The Education Committee of the West-hampton Junior Woman's Club is in the process of redecorating one of the teachers' lounges at the Pinchbeck Elementary School.

A Marionette Show, "Alice in Wonderland" was held on March 6, 1964, at the Spotsylvania High School, at 8 p.m. This show was the main money making project for the year. The proceeds went for the C. Melvin Snow Scholarship, which the Spotsylvania Juniors award each year to the outstanding graduate at the Spotsylvania High School. This is also their Junior State Project.

A benefit Spring Ball was held on April 11, by the Alexandria Juniors, for the Mary Jean Barnett scholarship. This is a $100.00 scholarship given to a graduate of Alexandria's George Washington High School, who plans to enter the teaching profession. The Twin Bridges Marriott Ball Room provided a lavish background for dancing, with music furnished by the Gene Barton Quintet. Mrs. Barton is a club member.

Deadline date for all fifteen Northern District Junior clubs to submit their entries in the district education contest was February 15. Entries could be duplicates of the Westhampton Award entries of the clubs. A large silver trophy will be presented to the winning club at the Spring District meeting. Judges for the contest are the following: Mrs. Edmund D. Campbell, President of the Greater Washington Educational Television Association; Earl C. Funderburk, Superintendent of the Fairfax County Schools; and Representative Charles H. Wilson, (Dem.) of California. They will meet on March 2 with contest chairmen Mrs. Robert Allen and Mrs. George Lutz, and with Mrs. Claude R. Muse, Northern District Junior Director, to make their decision.

Battle High School. Both girls were in desperate need of clothing and financial aid. One student, a junior and one a senior are both honor students and very active in extra curricular activities. Used clothing was collected, as well as the purchase of new shoes. The department sold Christmas Candy in order to aid these girls financially. Working with the School's Guidance Counselor, the department has aimed at helping the girls with their individual problems. The senior is now planning to attend a local college with the aid of a scholarship.

Local teachers were honored during National Education Week by the Education Department placing gala decorated boxes of apples in the Teacher's Lounges of the local schools. They were received with much enthusiasm.

On November 15th a Luncheon and Fashion Show was held at the Bristol Country Club followed that evening by a Fashion Show Dinner. The theme "Berries In The Snow" was carried out in the decorations. Members acted as models, with the accent being on holiday clothes. This is an annual project, as the proceeds are used in furnishing a Scholarship Fund to a worthy senior girl, rotating between the two local high schools. This scholarship is to be used in anyway to help a young girl achieve higher education.

Fine Arts

The Bon Air Junior Woman's Club is holding monthly art exhibits at the Hazen Memorial Library, the special club project. The exhibit changes each month. Many works of adults, children and high school students in the area are on display. A six weeks course in art for elementary school students in the community will be taught by a club member. A clothes line exhibit will end the series.

The Westhampton Juniors held a puppet show for all the children of members. There were hand puppets, string marionettes, and the club's own Raggedy Ann and Raggedy Andy—the live dolls—to entertain the small guests.

The Ware Juniors had as their guest speaker at one meeting Mrs. B. A. Cockran, who spoke on the art of drying flowers and the decorative use of arrangements.

The Pamunkey Juniors were guests of the Pamunkey Woman's Club for a Fashion Show and Fine Arts Exhibit.

Twenty-five members of the Westhampton Junior Woman's Club met at the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts for an afternoon tea and tour of "The World of Shakespeare" Elizabethan exhibition. Foreign Students in the area were invited and all toured the special exhibit and then the permanent collections.

The Monacan Juniors also visited the Va. Museum and heard a lecture on 17th, 18th, and 19th Century Art.

The Ashland Juniors are planning a spring trip to this museum as well as a trip to Barksdale Theatre, and a visit to a local artist studio.

A $25 savings bond was presented along with a plaque to an outstanding art student at Hermitage High School by the Monacan Juniors.

One of the most interesting projects of the Fine Arts Department of the Bristol Juniors is Art Corner at each club meeting. Each month they have a different idea, such as antique music, paintings, old books, etc.

They have collected magazines throughout the year distributing them to local Hospitals, Nursing Homes and Homes for the Mental Retarded. They, also, have worked with the local YWCA in promoting art classes, and have worked with the Community Concerts.

The department, as well as the entire club, were hostesses for Federation Day of the Highland Art & Craft Festival at the historic Martha Washington Inn, Abingdon, Virginia. They presented Mr. John Allen Maxwell, noted artist of New York City, as guest speaker. After the

Home Life

More than 100 of the 110 members of the Woman's Club of Bon Air have been "doers, not sitters," this year. Through classes offered by the Home Life Department they have learned advanced sewing and tailoring, crewel embroidery, how to make handbags and cover shoes, knitting, how to refinish furniture, how to make hats and how to improve themselves; a course ranging from exercises and weight control through posture, make-up and color coordination.

Our Gourmet meets once a month and a different phase of cooking and food preparation is featured at each meeting with recipes for all. In Dec. this group entertained their husbands with a covered dish dinner. The group truly proved their name with a buffet table that was a delight to the eye and a pleasurable experience for the most particular palate. The guests of honor were two foreign exchange students, Marguerite Elliot of Scotland, and Stefen Enquist of Sweden. The delightful young people gave interesting talks about their countries and were the hit of the evening along with the food. The entire affair was so successful we hope to make it an annual event

The Welfare Department of Buckroe Iuniors has adopted, as its annual Easter project, baskets for the children of the Virginia State School for the Deaf and Blind located in Hampton. This project was undertaken, for the first time last year and brought a great deal of enjoyment to the children and the members of our club. The merchants, in our area, are of great help in providing us with many of the items to fill the baskets and this year, one merchant is donating fifty baskets with the grass. There are approximately 100 children, at the school, below the age of twelve years. We hope to continue this project each year.

Another annual project of the Welfare Department of Buckroe Juniors has been our Christmas Party for a section of men at Kecoughtan Veterans Adminismen at Actual housy time of the year, only a project of this type can give you the true Christmas spirit—that of helping others—not a penny spent, only two hours of our time. Also, we helped Christmas become a reality for a family of seven, who without our help, would have not understood why Santa didn't come. We provided food, clothing, toys and shoes for each member of the family.

The Brambleton Junior Woman's Club heard a talk by Dr. Alexander McCausland who explained the causes, affects and treatment of allergies.

In the January newsletter from the Blacksburg Woman's Club was included an excellent report from their Health Chairman, Mrs. C. F. Manges. The letter reported that 16 public eating places in the town of Blacksburg did not participate in the Chest X-ray campaign for food handlers and that 38 of the 393 food handlers x-rayed showed signs of needing further attention. Food handlers on the VPI campus were among those checked. Mrs. Mangus urged all club women to have an x-ray and a pap test and to insist that workers in the homes be checked, including grandparents and baby sitters.

This newsletter also urged members to contact members of the Virginia General Assembly to support such health needs as 300 more Public Health nurses, 20 more general clinics, air polution protection and legislation and the need for additional funds for State Vocation Rehabilitation.

February is the month annually designated for the National Heart Association's drive to raise further funds for their multi-lateral program of research, education and public service. The resolutions adopted by the VFWC in April of 1963 were read and discussed at a meeting of the Pamunkey Junior Woman's Club. Members were urged to contact their representatives in the General Assembly concerning these resolutions.

In this year of the General Assembly the Westhampton Juniors are very government-minded. They visited a court in action and sessions of the General Assembly. Also 35 members wrote their congressman protesting the sale of firearms by mail. Letters were written on behalf of the club to members of the General Assembly concerning the VFWC resolution which deals with motor vehicle drivers' records. A "humerous" skit on the do's and don't's of good citizens was presented at one club meeting.

The Monacan Juniors went to Washington the first of April to visit the Capital, the White House, and other Points of interest. Several foreign students went as guests of the club.

The Ware Juniors pitched in to do their part during the "Clean Up Gloucester" Week when they cleaned up three miles of highway. At a club meeting their guest speaker was the Common-Wealth Attorney of Gloucester, who discussed the growth of population, the government, and the officials of the county.

The Ginter Park Juniors held a study group on the VFWC resolutions led by Mrs. Garland Harwood, state legislation chairman. Following the study, members attended a session of the General Assembly.

The Public Affairs department of the Bon Air Juniors presented a Christmas Program for members and their children. Each child brought gifts for three foster children sponsored by the club.

The main concern of the Bristol Juniors has been safe driving. They have promoted seat belts, and good driving practices by discussion and handing out Pamphlets.

SANDSTON JUNIORS STRETCH—Dollars that is, in a mile of dollars program to raise funds for the Sandston Library. Juniors taped together dollar donations to make a Mile of Dollars. Here Betty Taylor and Margaret Allen prepare for the day's work.

One member served the Bristol Chapter of the Mental Health Association as chairman of its Bell-Ringer March with all members volunteering their time in making a house to house canvass of the city. This drive is the only source of funds to carry on the fight against mental illness locally.

Mrs. Lloyd Hansen (Phyllis) and Mrs. Richard Avery (Bea) sat out to find how the Buckroe Juniors could encourage the people of the Buckroe-Fox Hill Communities to vote. They visited the office of the City of Hampton Registrar and were informed there were hundreds of persons who pay their poll taxes, but who were not registered. They, then, decided to compile lists of these persons. Each member of the club was given a list and was asked to phone each person to inform him that he must register to vote. Not knowing what reception she would receive, each member began making her calls. The reception was overwhelming. Many persons were not aware of the fact that they must register, many did not know the place or time to register and many had not taken the time to take care of this important matter. There were many persons who were already registered voters, however, who were newcomers to these two precincts. The committee will have, as this goes to press, checked the registrars books again to see how many of the persons again to actually did register. We feel, by the reception we received, that at least 90% of these persons will register and then go to the polls to vote.

Veteran Affairs

Thomas Jefferson Woman's Club has very fine attendance of its members this year, the programs have been varied and most interesting. Much interest has been shown in the Hat-Making classes—look for the products at the meetings-also the Bridge classes, these classes generate a friendly atmosphere. A project of this club is the library at McGuires Veterans Hospital. $50.00 was spent for books requested by the patients and many new books were given by members.

The Colonial Place Woman's Club of the Tidewater District can be proud of Mrs. E. H. Shumate, a club member who was awarded a silver pin from the Veterans Administration, for 2500 hours of continuous volunteer service to the VAVS program. Among the clubs who donated funds and volunteer services to the Veterans Hospital for entertainment and parties during the winter are Ocean Park Woman's Club, Hampton Woman's Club. Colonial Place Woman's Club and the Woman's Club of Hilton Village.

Clubs in the district reporting sponsored parties for the veterans were the Woman's Club of Roanoke and the Salem Junior Woman's Club.

The Blacksburg Woman's Club is assisting their Juniors in the collection of stamps for the Veterans Stamp Project.

Safety

For the price of one night in the Alexandria Hospital, you can purchase four safety belts for your car. Fastened seat belts not only reduce injuries and fatalities, but they have a tranquilizing effect on your children. These were highlights of a talk at the Alexandria Junior Woman's Club February meeting by Safety Chairman Mrs. William S. Taylor.

A Fredericksburg Rescue Squad Member talked to the Junior Woman's Club of Spotsylvania, on "Accidents in the Home and on the Highway."

The Thomas Jefferson Juniors are encouraging the use of seat belts for children in the family automobile. They are also conducting a safety poster contest for their children. The posters will be displayed in store windows, thus attracting other children and teaching them good safety habits. Winners will be awarded prizes.

At a recent club meeting of the Petersburg Juniors a quiz on "Safe Driving" was held. They're proud to say all the girls came through with flying colors.

The Petersburg Juniors have issued an invitation to the area Women's Clubs to see a movie entitled, "Broken Glass." This is an informative movie on seat belt research.

Ways And Means

One of the most stimulating Ways and Means projects ever to receive the support of federated clubwomen is probably the "Time and Service Auction" conducted by the Arlington Junior Woman's Club.

This well-planned fund-raising idea mushroomed into one of the most thought-provoking, fun-filled and moneyminded projects undertaken by one of our Northern District clubs.

The special committee, appointed to guide the gals to their ultimate goal, contacted each member to determine the amount of time and/or type of service she was willing to contribute. At a mock auction conducted at the group's February meeting, each of the services, material items or time allotments donated by a member was auctioned off to other interested clubwomen.

The success of the "Time and Service Auction" was dependent upon the enthusiasm of the membership and the club member's interest in the two organizations designated to receive the proceeds from this club project. The Arlington Juniors are obviously well endowed with a better than average portion of both enthusiasm and interest because the cleverly devised Ways and Means plan worked into a most successful fund-raising accomplishment.

Among the items offered for auction by the highly active feminine contingent were 5 hours of baby sitting, two lemon meringue pies, a platter of party sandwiches, dress hemming, needlework, typing, etc. Probably nowhere in the realm of federated clubwomen did so many enjoy so much this pleasant means of making money for such worthy causes. Funds collected were donated to the CARE Self-Help Program and toward the purchase of material with which club members plan to make hospital gowns for the medical ship HOPE.

The main project of the Yorktown Woman's Club for the past two years has been the Community Center. This year, together with the York High School PTA, they will sponsor a Winter Carnival. The club will be in charge of the cafeteria. This event proved very successful last year and for all who participated their reward was fun, fellowship and a nice profit for the Community Center. This year entertainment will be in progress throughout the afternoon and evening, plus booths, games and a cake walk.

The Valentine dinner-dance-fashion show of the Woman's Club of Roanoke held at the Roanoke Country Club was a tremendous success. Funds realized from this project will be used to help support the many local. State and Federation projects.

The Salem Junior Woman's Club realized $98.00 from their bridge party. Seventy-five of which was presented to the Virginia Society for Crippled Children and Adults for a campership at Camp Easter Seal. This club also held a successful rummage sale.

A new twist to the art of fund-raising is always welcomed by members of federated clubs so the delightful scheme presented to club members by the Ways and Means Committee of Springfield's Crestwood Woman's Club, was attacked with enthusiasm to spare.

A "fattening of funds" was the natural goal and the means of accomplishment came through a stack of crisp one dollar bills and a batch of suggestions on how to make each of the dollars grow. One of the "green" items was handed to each club member who, in turn, agreed to find a way to individually and personally make her particular "green" grow like all green things should.

Among the many and varied ways in which Crestwood club members managed to make a single dollar multiply many times were such devious means as: selling Christmas cards, handmade articles, baked goods, Christmas gift items, decorated waste baskets, doll clothes, etc. Some of the women offered individual services at which they were adept, such as typing, hemming dresses, making alterations, catering, entertaining and many

This interesting and fun-filled moneymaking system was branded by club members as a pleasant way to accumulate the money to continue their favorite welfare and community projects.

What college boy doesn't enjoy eating cookies, brownies, or his own birthday cake? Realizing this need, the Ashland Juniors sent letters to parents of Randolph-Macon College students asking them if they would like to treat their sons with a "touch of home?" The response was tremendous since the parents Were told that proceeds would maintain the St. James the Less School for Retarded children. Club members sup-Port this school and also read stories, play games, and serve refreshments to these pupils. The teaching and guidance is under the fine leadership of Mrs. Nellie Coates.

The Caroline County Juniors increased their treasury by $200 when they held a bazaar, sweet sale and spaghetti supper in their county.

The Essex Juniors sponsored their annual Halloween Carnival. Mrs. M. P. Ball was chairman of this fourth annual event which provides a $100 scholarship to a deserving county student. Through 100% club participation members provide a safe and sane outlet for youngsters' Halloween energies.

The Richmond County Juniors held a hat sale and made box lunches for a 4-H meeting for their money-making Projects. In addition, the club's February dance will benefit the Heart Fund when

In these days of box cake mixes and speed, the Highland Springs Juniors found that a little extra time spent at home cooking from "scratch" paid off in big dividends. The old-fashioned bake sale can't come too often so club members held their second Bake Sale of the year in February.

A"do-it-yourself" theme inspired the Monacan Juniors to dream up many ways to make $10 each for the club's philanthropic work. Girls chose such methods as knitting hats and collars, making Poodle bottle covers, doing alterations and making dresses, baking goodies of all sorts, setting hair, and even selling an old sofa.

The Ware Juniors are hard at work on their second Annual Inboard Regatta to be held June 29th on the York River. Last year a crowd of 1,000 gathered on the beach to watch some of the country's top boats and drivers. Food is sold half the proceeds are contributed to that by the club and a good time is had by all. The regatta is again sponsored by the Gloucester Yacht Club, Inc. and the Ware Juniors and is an official American Power Boat Regatta.

The Monacan Junior Woman's Club members and their guests enjoyed a bridge party and fashion show of spring clothes to benefit their philanthropic

The Westhampton Juniors also held a benefit card party and fashion show with ten club girls doing the modeling. The models looked their best as they modeled the latest summer fashions in brilliant new colors.

The Waynesboro Juniors sponsored the Waynesboro Players, a newly formed cultural club, in the production of Phoebe and Henry Ephron's play, "Take Her, She's Mine" on February 21 and 22. Some of the club members participated in this play which provided entertainment as well as adding dividends to the club's treasury.

Hopewell Woman's Club Enjoys "Tasting"

The big event which takes place in Hopewell and which brings out practically all of the 200 members of the Hopewell Woman's Club is when the annual "Tasting supper" takes place. This supper is truly held in the tradition This support is day, and are tradition of the "Old South," and everyone must or the bring a dish of meat, vegetable, a salad, or dessert of the period of the theme. Not only did these women thoroughly enjoy preparing and eating, but the entertainment was fabulous! The Virginia Charmers and Virginia Craftsmen of Richmond provided the entertainment, when they presented the Civil War in song. Mrs. Miller Rosengren, permanent chairman of the McLean, Virginia House and Garden Tour, has announced that the fourth annual tour will take place on Thursday, May 7, 11 a.m.-5 p.m. and will benefit the McLean Boys' Club, a branch of the Boys' Club of America.

Six outstanding houses and estates in McLean will be open for the Tour which will be by bus.

This Tour is sponsored by Mothers of McLean Boys' Club members, members of local Garden Clubs and the McLean Woman's Club. The flower arrangements in the houses will be provided by Garden Clubs and the Garden Section of the Mc-Lean Woman's Club.

There are six hundred and forty-five members of the Boys' Club, whose ages range from seven to seventeen years. The activities of the Club include football, basketball, baseball, bowling and ice skating.

Welfare

The Madeline Harman Woman's Club of Pulaski prepared several Christmas baskets for the needy in their community and dressed many dolls for the Salvation Army to be presented to children for Santa.

THE WOMAN'S CLUB OF CHURCHLAND, Chesapeake, Virginia, sponsors this Choral Group with membership drawn from the club, together with other interested women of the Western Branch District. The group is directed by Mrs. Harry A. Stewart and is made up of working and professional women and housewives, many of them mothers of small children, who love music and love to sing. They were organized in early 1961 and have met regularly since, to sing for their own entertainment as well as for many civic, social and church organizations in the area.

State Library Offers New Film Service

The Virginia State Library has a new service, available through the libraries of the State, which should be of interest to the local chapters or groups of the V.F.W.C.

The Library now has available for loan a collection of educational and recreational films. These films cover a wide variety of topics, ranging from Adolescence, Africa, Animals, and Art through the Family, Music, Nature Study, and Personnel Management to Space, Travel, U.S. History, and Virginia. They vary in length from 10 to 80 minutes. Most of them are intended for adult use. At the present time there are about 450 titles in the collection, and more are being added each month.

These films are available through the libraries of the State for use by groups in various communities. Any group may borrow the films free of charge through a library in its area (except loans are not made to or through school libraries). There is no charge for the films except the return postage. Loans are not made to individuals, or through libraries open less than twenty hours a week.

A catalog has been issued which gives a brief description of each film and has an index by subject. Copies have been sent to every eligible public library in the State and to a number of college and special libraries.

Many clubs and other organizations will Want to make use of these films in their programs, and the State Library hopes that many will take advantage of this

Parliamentary Questions and Answers

MRS. ROY D. WHITLOCK, Registered Parliamentarian Parliamentarian, VFWC, 3909 Chamberlayne Avenue, Richmond 27, Virginia

Editor's Note: This column will continue to be a feature of the Virginia Club Woman for the remaining issues of this administration. Your questions are invited and desired. Simply send your question to Mrs. Whitlock. Any specific subject desired will be highlighted.

Question: A chairman will not call the committee together for a meeting. May the president call the committee to-

Answer: No. The president may not call the committee together for a meeting —only the chairman may do that: but if the chairman is absent, neglects, or refuses to call a meeting of the committee, then a meeting can be called by any two members of the committee. (R.O.R., p. 212.) Every member should be notified of the time and place of the meeting by the two members calling the committee meeting.

Ouestion: Since the bylaws make our president a member ex-officio of all standing and special committees, does she have the same rights as other committee members?

Answer: When president is made exofficio a member of all standing and special committees, it is evidently the intention of the chapter to permit her to attend all meetings of the committees and not to require her to attend. There is no distinction between the president and other members of the committee, except that she is not counted as a member in arriving at a quorum. As an ex-officio member she may vote, make motions, debate, etc. She has all the rights of a committee member, but not the obligation of attendance. The vice president may not attend when the president is absent, for the rights of an ex-officio member come by virtue of the office. (R.O.R., p. 210.)

Question: Who prepares the resolutions upon a committee's recommendations? Answer: "The committee should never leave to others the responsibility of preparing resolutions to carry out their recommendations but should consider this as one of their most important duties." (R.O.R., p. 215, lines 13-16.)

2. McGuire Veterans Hospital, Richmond, and 3. Veterans Administration Hospital, Salem, Virginia.

In order for all clubs in the state to have a share in helping to meet the need for volunteer service at our Veterans Hospitals, I have grouped districts to work with the Veterans Hospital located nearest them.

It is necessary to have a Veterans Division Chairman in each of the three districts where we have a Veterans Hospital. Namely: Tidewater, Lee and Blue Ridge Districts.

I have requested clubs in Tidewater, Southside and Alice Kyle Districts to work with Veterans Administration Center at Kecoughtan, Virginia. Mrs. Nolan S. Cutler, 5800 Huntington Ave., Newport News, Virginia, is Chairman of Veterans Division for Tidewater District. I have asked Cutler to serve as Coordinator of Volunteer Service for these three districts. She will work directly with Mrs. W. Elmo Walker, Chairman of Public Affairs, P. O. Box 98, Suffolk, in South-side District, and with Mrs. William Page Williams, Chairman of Veterans Affairs, Brookneal, Virginia, in Alice Kyle District. Mrs. Cutler will send each district chairman enough copies of a Veterans needs list and recommended services for each Junior and Senior local club chairman to have a copy. It will be the duty of the district chairman to send or give her respective local club chairmen a copy of this list. If a local club does not have a Public Affairs or Veterans Chairman the list should be given to the club president requesting her to appoint a chairman and urging her to bring the needs list to the attention of the club.

Clubs in Blue Ridge, Southwestern and Shenandoah Districts will be grouped together to work for Veterans Administration Hospital in Salem, Virginia. Mrs. Harrison M. StClair, 817 Yorkshire Street, Salem, is Blue Ridge District Chairman of Veterans Affairs. She will serve as Coordinator of Volunteer Service for these three districts. Mrs. StClair will work with Mrs. W. B. Leslie, District Chairman of Lee District and Northern District will be grouped together to work for McGuire Veterans Hospital in Richmond.

A Creed For Club Presidents MRS. DEXTER OTIS ARNOLD

President

General Federation of Women's Clubs

My task is leading the women who have elected me and interpreting the meaning of Federation to them.

To this assignment, I pray, that I may bring honesty, integrity, and respect for the members I serve.

The truth to me shall be precious and I will share it with others for truth is the wealth of freedom. I will strive to set aside prejudice as I spend hours working at my tasks, for prejudice is a whip that scars the mind.

My loyalty shall be to the organization, but I pray that I may bring compassionate understanding of the importance of the organization to the peaceful and faithful pursuits of the people who dwell in this place.

Whatever talent I have, I will give to using faithfully for the community as a whole. I will be concerned with the events of the day and, at evening when that day is done, I will seek tomorrow and hope to find in it the reward of yesterday.

The booklet HOW TO HOLD YOUR CONSERVATION MEETING has been so popular that it has gone to press for the second printing and is planning a third printing.

The publication was written primarily as an aid to the conservation committee leader in a women's club but would make a wonderful program for a joint meeting with men's clubs. For instance, such subjects as these are included "Your Town and Its Water Supply," "Planting New Trees," "Helping Youth Groups," and "Conservation Needed in Our Schools." Any of these plans may be adapted to local needs and situations.

Copies of "How to Hold Your Conservation Meeting" may be obtained FREE from the Forest Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C.

Litter is a National Problem . . .

Litter is a national problem and is being fought by hundreds of federated clubs, civic clubs, federal and state government agencies, farm organizations, religious and educational associations, and business and industrial groups.

When we read statistics showing that more than fifty million dollars are spent annually to clean primary highways; two and one-half million dollars are allotted to the U. S. Forest Service for sanitation and removal of trash from national forests; and that litter-caused fires represent a loss of more than twenty-two million dollars in just one year we begin to realize that clubwomen have a unique opportunity for eliminating litter from waterways, forests and wilderness areas as well as in their own communities.

Every clubwoman who drives along our highways should feel a responsibility for some of the litter that is seen there. Every time she sees litter she must remember that this rubbish causes polluted streams, polluted air, and polluted recreation sites and that she must do her share to eliminate the eyesores that mar the natural scenic beauty of the country.

Because of the Community Improvement Program, clubwomen have had an added incentive to cleaning up their own towns. Thousands of clubs have participated in the program; new City Beautiful Councils have been organized and old ones revived. Individuals began keeping their own yards and those of their clubhouses litter free and then they felt justified in asking that an anti-litter program be followed in their own communities.

Business firms were encouraged to improve their properties and to tear down unsightly buildings. Special attention was given to areas behind stores and in alleys, around filling stations, dairy bars, trailer courts, and drive-in theatres.

Laurance Rockefeller, Chairman of Outdoor Recreation, Resource Review Commission, has said: "With more and more Americans becoming aware of their outdoor heritage, it has become imperative that conservation and sportsmen groups continue their work and support in the anti-litter effort. It is vital to us all."

Buy—Hold—Promote U. S. Savings Bonds

There are many reasons why Space Crafts 'stay up' which we layment may not understand. However, we do understand the need for continued research in this field. To get a craft 'up and stay up' there must be 1.5 million pound thrust . . . this is beyond the unscientific mind to comprehend . . . so scientists and workmen are needed for this great work of the future.

William H. Neal, U. S. Savings Bonds Director, says: "The number of pieces of Series E Bonds sold is the highest for 17 years for this period. The $100 and $200 denominations are the highest since the War Bond days of World War II. There are a number of factors to produce these results among which must certainly be included, the work of your organizations."

Women's organizations have been a great force in the success of the Freedom Bond Drive just finished. So again may we be in front of the parade giving leadership to family thrift during this club season. I recommend to you "Ladies First" a message about family thrift—available from the U. S. Savings Bonds Division, Treasury Department, Washington, D. C.

Let It Never Be Said . . .

Are you a registered voter?

Are all eligible members of your family registered?

Are your friends and neighbors registered voters?

Do you use the privilege of voting? With primaries about to begin in so many states, make sure that you use the precious freedom our forefathers fought to give us—the right to vote.

It is our duty to encourage everyone to exercise his franchise and to appreciate the right of choice which we have inherited.

Take an active part in your community. Encourage registration, participation and voting. Let us all work NOW to "Get out the vote."

THE VIRGINIA CLUB WOMAN

The Wisdom of the Past

Greek Amphora c. 550 B.C.

When Xenophon spoke these words, more than 2,000 years ago, he appealed to that spirit of individual responsibility that made the Greek character and nation among the most admired in all history.

With that spirit, the army of Xenophon marched to a seemingly impossible victory. With that spirit, men and nations have marched to greatness since the world began.

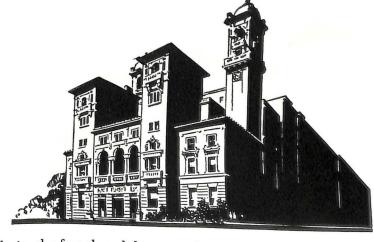

Our own nation won its freedom and built its strength as a nation of leaders. When we lose this spirit of independence, when we surrender our individual responsibilities to an expanding government, when we ignore the erosion of our personal liberties — then we sap our strength as a nation, and endanger the freedom of generations yet to come.

Let us accept the challenge of Xenophon. Let us all be leaders.

Living Shrine Planned by VFWC

BLACKSBURG - Fifty-two acres of land at Valley Forge has been allotted the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Richard Wilem, Congressional Medal of Honor chairman, reported on the Virginia plans at the closing session Wednesday of the Board of Directors, Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs, meeting at Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

The Congressional Medal of Honor Grove will commemorate the 3,154 medal of honor winners. Each state, Puerto Rico and the District of Columbia will have one acre. The grove will be a national shrine and a building is planned in the center of the grove to house the winners' deeds.

A plaque will be placed on each separate acre and will bear the names of medal of honor winners from that state.

The decoration represents the nation's highest award. The President of the United States presents the decoration in the name of Congress. Congress first authorized the medal for the Navy in 1861, and for the Army in 1862.

Only one woman has ever received the award. She was Mary Walker, a Civil War surgeon. The only civilian to receive the medal was Charles Lindbergh for his nonstop flight over the Atlantic.

Overwork, Money, Cause Club Dropouts

Thirty-five-year-old dropouts are one of the greatest problems facing women's clubs today, Mrs. Thomas H. Caffrey, third vice president of the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs said today.

Mrs. Caffrey, director of the junior women's clubs, noted, however, that most of the so-called dropouts, those that fail to continue club work, are lucky they "haven't fallen out before that time."

Speaking to a morning session of junior clubwomen of the Blue Ridge District meet-ing at the Williamson Road Church of the Brethren, Mrs. Caffrey declared the overwork of these members is one of the to quit.

"Dropouts are often the most active workers in the clubs and are worn out physically and financially by the time their junior work is finished," she explained.

primary reasons they decide

Mrs. Thomas Caffrey of Richmond, left, presents an "Operation Little Bells" bracelet to Mrs. Hampton W. Thomas, junior director from Roanoke. The bracelets will be sold to support school buildings in Mexico.

"It's unfair to expect a husband to shoulder the financial responsibility for his wife's club venture."

Mrs. Caffrey suggested that each club raise expenditure allotments for those members expected, as part of their offi-cial duties, to attend meetings, travel or provide materials.

"The junior club is a training ground for federation work," Mrs. Caffrey said.
"When a member is lost in transition, all of this prepara-tion goes with her."

She cited another dropout reason: an 'of age' junior of-ten doesn't feel acquained with the projects of a senior club; and her children are of an age

During the meeting, Mrs. Caffrey and Mrs. Hampton W. Thomas, third vice president of the Blue Ridge District, announced future plans for the federation project, "Operation Little Bells."

The first duty of a woman's club member, she pointed out, is to influence public opinion, and the new administration is placing emphasis on the conservation of human and natural resources.

Clubwomen Rally To Cause Of Being Politically Informed

By Mary Bland Armistead World-News Women's Editor

In this election year, and at a time when women are asked to assume more active participation in politics, local organizations have piloted their members' thinking towards preserving the right to vote and in seeing that more in the community exercise that right.

They have solicited guest speakers to add impetus to the plea that everyone exercise his voting privilege. There have been panel discussions on current issues. There has been active recruiting among the clubs to assure help at the polls.

In general, there has been a concerted effort to see that local club members join in the growing readiness of women everywhere to take their place in politics.

A typical rallying cry has been expressed by an active Roanoke clubwoman: "After the election has come and gone and the results are tallied, many of us will wish we had given an extra hour or made an extra phone call or contacted an extra potential voter."

The League of Women Voters led off in early fall activities to increase the registration of women voters in the valley. It promoted Women Voters Week during Sept. 13-19 and members made hundreds of phone calls urging potential voters to register before the Oct. 3 deadline.

The drive was headed by Mrs. Robert Stone Jr., League president, who said: "Virginia's shameful record of low voting among women could be made a proud record if each woman who voted in 1960 got a non-voter to register and vote in 1964."

She has been backed by Mrs. Hazel K. Barger, national Republican committeewoman, who has spoken frequently to groups seeking an experienced voice on women's place in governmental affairs.

Her major plea has been to round up the 61,286 eligible voters in the city and county who, she says, failed to vote in 1960.

"It is safe to say the majority of these non-voters were women," she has said.

Influence, wisdom and power are "God-given assets of women which enable them to share in preserving our heritage," she told the Roanoke County Woman's Club age," she told the Roanoke County Woman's Club.

She stressed that, like it or not, each person is in politics "since politics controls every phase of our life today."

Mrs. Barger has spoken also to the Valley Junior Woman's Club, where she became an honorary member, and discussed "Woman's Place in Politics" for the October meeting of the Brambleton Junior Woman's Club.

The Junior Woman's Club of Roanoke has been among the more active organizations also. Mrs. James King Jr., president, says one of the club's prerequisites for membership is that all members be registered voters. Points are given yearly for all who vote on the local, state or national level and such merit points are necessary to maintain good standing in the

The group arranged a special evening meeting recently so that Rep. Richard H. Poff could speak and had the president of the League of Women Voters as speaker for its citizenship and international relations department.

It will provide baby sitting facilities for mothers while they are voting.

Functions of political parties at the local level were outlined for this month's meeting of the Junior League of Roanoke, Inc. by Julian Rutherfoord, chairman of the city Democratic committee, and Harry Hewitt, GOP city chairman.

All of these recognition that void active interest

Mrs. William Root, right, president of the Roanoke Valley Junior Woman's Club presents an honorary membership to Mrs. Hazel Barger, Republican national committeewoman, following Mrs. Barger's talk to the club.

Members are urged repeatedly to register, Mrs. James L. Trinkle, president, says, and new members and transfers are given information on the process.

Miss Peggy Burnett, a Washington lawyer and former member of the Junior League, made a special trip to Roanoke to discuss women's rights as she outlined them in a speech before the platform committee of the recent Republican National Convention.

All of these special programs have stemmed from the recognition that women's clubs can be leaders in the creation of active interest in political matters and responsibilities.

Do You Really Know the Candidates?

You may wish to check on such points as these in regard to any candidate:

Is he a man with a conscience? Or does he make statements or take positions at the expense of conscience?

Is he a strong leader, able to make intelligent decisions under pressure? Or is he so indecisive that he evades important issues?

Does he show by past performance that he has administrative ability? Or does he merely say he has?

Do his advisers advocate realistic improvements? Or would their proposals, however well-intentioned, run the risk of making a bad situation worse?

Does he show imagination and initiative without being foolhardy or reckless?

Would he maintain sane fiscal standards which meet essential needs without opening the door to inflation, waste, graft or corruption.

Would he, as the elected guardian of the people's rights, uphold established law? Or is he inclined to be a law unto himself?

Would he put the welfare of the people before his own party, business or organization?

Does he indulge in generalities, dreams or grandoise plans? Or does he get down to specifics?

Does he have the courage to insist on necessary but unpopular measures for the general welfare? Or does he follow the line of least resistance, telling people what they want to hear?

Does he strike you as an opportunist intent only on the next election? Or is he a statesman whose vision embraces the next generation?

There were three small elephant figurines on the window ledge and Mrs. Hazel K. Barger's granddaughter, Melinda, was using them to cut teeth, a practice which highly pleased Mrs. Barger.

The Comeback Will Be Fast

Melinda extracted one of the elephants from her mouth and wandered over to a stack of Christmas cards which Mrs. Barger hadn't had time to put away yet. She picked out a couple—one from Pat and Dick Nixon and another from Gov. and Mrs. Nelson Rockefeller. The selection pleased Mrs. Barger. A man got the impression, though, that if Melinda, in some strange way, had picked out a Christmas card from Adlai Stevenson, it would have been all right with her grandmother.

In case somebody missed the elephants and the Christmas cards, there was a book on the sofa. It was Robert J. Donovan's "Future of the Republican Party."

Over the past couple of months there have been some joking and some serious references to the subject of Mr. Donovan's book.

Mr. Donovan aside, the jokes aside, the results of last November aside, Mrs. Barger remains perfectly cheerful about the future of the Republican Party. "We're going to come back surprisingly fast," she said.

She remains cheerful despite some less than cheery things she has been hearing from some Republicans, notably some in Roanoke and some in Lynchburg. They have been saying that Mrs. Barger was cool to Sen. Goldwater, possibly very cold to National Chairman Dean Burch and that she ought to think like other Republicans in the state think.

Mrs. Barger said she does think like most of the other Republicans in the state. "It's not coming from the rank and file Republican groups," she said. "It's not a majority of the people. It's a minority group."

Mrs. Barger is off this week to a meeting of the national committee in Chicago and she doesn't leave with any alarmed feeling about what some Repiblicans have been saying.

Resign?—In an Elephant's Eye

Mrs. Barger apparently does not alarm easily and if it were proper to apply the old political description of "war horse" to a lady, Mrs. Barger would be the lady to whom it should apply.

The sentiments expressed about Mrs. Barger and her feelings toward Goldwater and Burch are something new, she said, but not especially alarming. 'I have never had an enemy that I knew of in this state until this campaign," she said.

The people who think Mrs. Barger hasn't done right have suggested that maybe she ought to resign. This isn't likely. Not when Mrs. Hazel K. Barger, a lady with a lot of elephants, says of politics:

"I think it's the most important thing. Next to my religion, I don't think anything's as important as politics.'

Teacher Says Patience Needed in Art Studies

Children often are afraid to study art, Mrs. Marie Hoal, art teacher at Lee Junior High School, told the Williamson Road Woman's Club last night.

But their fears frequently disappear, she said, when they discover some talent for drawing and painting. She said teachers should have patience and perserverance in helping pupils.

"All talented people don't always like art," she commented.

Mrs. Hoal showed pictures and craft work done by her pupils and pointed out that art

VIRGINIA STATE FEDERATION SONG

Come from sea and plain and mountain Kindred are we,

Fair Virginia's loyal daughters, Blest may we be.

Come with thoughts with love o'erflowing,
Willing hands and spirits glowing,
And with joy that passes knowing,
Each friend to see!

Shine our spirit of devotion,
In this world of need;
Hand in hand, a band of women,
Onward we lead,
Formed are we, a federation,
For the home, and state and nation;
Mother heart for all creation,
True in word and deed.

May sweet fellowship attend us!
All through each day
Zeal inspire and faith defend us,
Thus do we pray.
Let us see a wrong to right it,
Let us evil know to fight it,
Where the path is dark, God light it
With brightest ray.

PLEDGE TO THE FLAG

I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation, under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

COLLECT FOR CLUB WOMEN

Keep us, O God, from pettiness; let us be large in thought, in word, in deed.

Let us be done with fault-finding and leave off self-seeking.

May we put away all pretense and meet each other face to face, without self-pity and without prejudice.

May we never be hasty in judgment and always generous.

Let us take time for all things; make us to grow calm, serene, gentle.

Teach us to put into action our better impulses, straight forward and unafraid.

Grant that we may realize that it is the little things that create differences, that in the big things of life we are at one.

And may we strive to touch and to know the great common human heart of us all, and, oh Lord God, let us forget not to be kind!

Roanoke Club Shares National Educational Prize

By Mary Bland Armistead World-News Women's Editor

The Brambleton Junior Woman's Club of Roanoke and the Appalachia Woman's Club of Appalachia were winners of national awards of $500 each today for outstanding work in aid to education.

Presentations were made during the second day of the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs convention at Hotel Roanoke.

The awards are in the name of the General Federation of Women's Clubs and the Shell Oil Co. education program and were made by Thomas F. Martin, sales supervisor of the company's Richmond district.

The Brambleton club won among cities of 10,000 or over; the Appalachia group for communities of under 10,000.

The local club was declared winner for sponsoring a special class for emotionally disturbed children within the Roanoke school system; for providing nursing scholarships and for conducting a driver improvement program.

To meet the special needs of the emotionally disturbed child, the group has financed and provided volunteer teacheraides for an "opportunity class" which started in September, 1964 and has provided special instruction in reading, writing, language, arithmetic, spelling and social studies.

Since then, the club has contributed $3,200 to underwrite the teacher's salary and is working for an additional $3,000 to support the project for another year.

In other activities contributing to winning the national prize, the club has provided a $150 nursing scholarship to a deserving high school senior; conducted a monthly safety program on television and has successfully sponsored a driver improvement school in conjunction with the city courts.

Last night, at the traditional Alice Kyle banquet, named for the late Mrs. James R. Kyle of Lynchburg who founded the federation, Dr. Carl S. Winters of the General Motors Corp. lecture staff, was keynote speaker on "Americanism." He declared Americans should emphasize what's right about the country instead of pointing to the nation's faults.

America's greatness, he said, is in its economic system, natural resources and ideals of freedom. Boosting of these is important now, he declared, because "after 40 years of trying another system, Russia has started to introduce capitalistic methods in its society."

its society."

Mrs. Richard R. Groves of Syria, president of the federation's northern district, received the state extension award for the greatest number of new clubs joining and the greatest percentage of membership increase.

Today, the convention divided for three breakfasts with Dr. Kenneth Baker of the department of dramatic art and speech at Hollins College addressing a session sponsored by the fine arts department of the federation.

Later, Mrs. Alvah E. Riggins, state president of Hampton, conducted a lengthy business session highlighted by awards and resolutions and a talk by Dorman L. Miller, assistant to the general manager of the Appalachian Power Co., Roanoke.

His comments dealt with the "Bemiss Outdoor Recreation Study Commission Report," topic of one of eight resolutions passed by the body. It approved an amendment

It approved an amendment to the Virginia Seed Law to establish control of sales of flower seeds; an amendment to the same law concerning misleading pictorial repre-

Also approved, after a brief debate, was the federation's support of a study of a voter indentification system in view of the fact that, as the resolution states, "there is no mandatory and uniform system in the Commonwealth . . . for the positive identification of qualified voters at the polls."

By unanimous vote, the delegates voiced disapproval of regrooving of tires after it was explained that "regrooving" is not the same as "retreading." Delegates also passed a resolution to repeal the federal excise tax on leather goods, jewelry, cosmetics and other items which, the proposal termed a "war" tax "not originally proposed a n d legislated to become permanent."

And finally, it resolved to seek support of legislation in the 1966 General Assembly to make it mandatory for doctors and hospitals to report cases of suspected child abuse. The legislation would also include a provision for immunity for those reporting the cases from civil or criminal liability, the resolution stated.

Among the throngs at the hotel is Miss Ekaterina Scvortzoll of Uruguay who won the Dorothea Buck Latin-American Fellowship Award this year. She spoke briefly.

Breaking for luncheon today, again in groups for public affairs, education and home life, the delegates heard talks by Ernest H. Dervishian, Richmond attorney; Dr. Woodrow W. Wilkerson, superintendent of public instruction, Virginia Department of Education; and the Rev. Lewis E. Bates, pastor of Vinton Baptist Church.

A fashion show and tea this afternoon, presented by Heironimus of Roanoke, was to provide a break in convention routine and after this evening's banquet honoring junior officers, "The Late Show" will be presented by members of junior clubs.

Area winners in the federation's crafts competition were among many announced during the day. Mrs. J. M. Gollehon of Radford won in the handwork division; Miss Vashti Howard, Radford, winner for knitting and crocheting;

Mrs. Thomas Flynn, Covington, embroidery; Mrs. Frank Jackson, Pulaski, overglaze; Mrs. William McGill, Roanoke, decorations.

WOMEN CITED FOR COMMUNITY IMPROVEMENT

Tale Of Town's Depression Recovery Is Featured

By Mary Bland Armistead World-News Women's Editor

After nearly three days of attention to fine arts, public affairs, education and scholarship awards, the Virginia Federation of Warren's Clubs eration of Women's Clubs closed its 58th convention here with emphasis on community improvement.

And it heard the bright story of Grafton, W.Va., a town of less than 7,000 that cracked economically and culturally with the closing of its main industry, a china company, and came back to win second place in a national community improvement competition.

Mrs. William Fisher told the story as she has told it many times since the mountain community's mighty effort to survive attracted widespread attention.

Backing her narrative, and stressing the scope of women as leaders in any such endeavor, Mrs. Wilbert Stitzenberger, of Arlington, director of the General Federation of Women's Clubs CIP, declared "clubwomen are the catalyst for any project for civic improvement"

TRAIL OF THE SWAMP FOX

In the annals of formal military history, Marion's brigade might seem to be a joke. The men came and went as the need for them arose. They supplied their own horses, guns and food. They were ill equipped, often hungry.

But they were no joke. Armed and in the saddle at a moment's notice, they attacked often, took hundreds of prisoners, then melted into the country-side. Through the derivest days of the Baraket. side. Through the darkest days of the Revolution. they kept the British off balance-and made communications in the Carolinas a virtual impossibility. To British General Tarleton, the wily Marion became "the old Swamp fox." And to Tarleton's vastly superior army, those ragged raiders seemed "everywhere at once." Through the swamps and woods of the Carolinas, Marion and his men blazed a new road to freedom. Turning adverse odds into victory. Keeping the torch of liberty aflame.

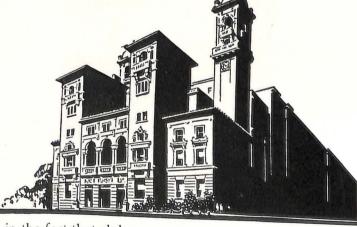

The road to freedom is seldom a highroad, with bands playing and flags flying. It is more often a rough way, unmapped, through darkness and danger. It has not been the way of ease and expediency, but the way of individual initiative and determination, that has paved our long American Road to Freedom.

Hungry Mother State Park

Route 16, three miles from Marion in Smyth County, is an outstanding mountain recreational area. Covering 2,139 acres, this park has elevations reaching 3,300 feet. There is a 108-acre lake with a shore line of six miles which is well stocked with game fish. The facilities include a large sand beach, modern bathhouse, parking areas and three picnic areas with shelters as well as a tent and trailer camping area located in a wooded section close to the bathing beach.

The legend of Hungry Mother Park takes many forms but the one generally accepted in Southwest Virginia has all the earmarks of being the true story.

The story goes that a raiding party of Shawnee Indians crossed the mountains and desolated several settlements on New River. Among the persons killed was the husband of Molly Marley, and following the custom of the tribe, the woman Hungry Mother Park, located on State and her baby were carried off by the raiding party to their base, which, as far as can be ascertained, was in Tazewell County. ferences have been held with your President and other members of the Executive Committee to try to determine ways in which the VIRGINIA CLUB WOMAN might better serve our Federation.

Several new columns have been introduced. One will feature material from the General Federation of Women's Clubs in an attempt to give explanations and background information about current Projects. Another, Here's An Idea, will present unusual programs, service projects or fund-raising plans that clubs have successfully used and are willing to share with other clubs. A third, Things That Count, will deal with club ethics and parliamentary procedure.

Theme: "Come now, let us reason together." Isaiah 1:18

Spring is such a beautiful season. It is also a very fine time to take stock of ourselves and of our clubs. Do you feel you've had a successful club year? Did your reports surprise you? I'm sure they did for I'm still amazed at your accomplishments. I'm amazed and so pleased at your involvement in so many worthwhile things. Have you any idea how many lives we touch and help through our Federation? Federation is truly Enrichment. Enrichment to each of us who participate and enrichment to the countless numbers we reach through our activities. In this troubled world we can be a source of strength and help and an influence for good.

Speaking of influence, please remember this is perhaps our greatest contribution. Through our clubs this influence can really be felt. There isn't anything worthwhile that clubwomen can't accomplish if they try. With our influence and our minds made up we can really move Virginia forward.

It is now time to start concentrating on our project, "The Great Dismal Swamp." If this great and historic area is to become a state park, we must get busy. Club presidents, please see that your members are fully informed about this project. Let your local papers, radio and television stations know of your interest. This is very important as news about the swamp is now being released from our state communications chairman, Mrs. Mike Sarig, to all papers in Virginia. We need your local support. Editors publish news that is of interest to you.

Our headquarters fund is growing slowly but plans for headquarters are moving along nicely. I am looking forward to discussing these plans with you at Convention. If you have not made a contribution to headquarters please do so, or, if you have already contributed and can give more, send in your check. Convention is such an exciting time. We, of course, want this Convention to be an outstanding one and I believe it will be. This issue of the magazine is giving you a quick preview of coming events. All we need is your presence to make it complete.

Before I close let me remind you again of the GFWC project, "The Congressional Medal of Honor Grove." Our state chairman, Mrs. Richard T. Do you acknowledge the recognition which has come to your club through the election or appointment of a member as a state officer or chairman?

AND

When a "VIP" (very important person) is invited to your club, are you always ready to receive her; to have a hostess to greet her and introduce her to your membership until the program is ready to begin?

Many of our clubs fall short on common courtesy!

Some of our officers, chairmen or guests have arrived to find no one to greet them and they are left standing, all alone, while the President or program chairman attends to the details of her

Be mindful of the little things which leave a lasting impression of your club. Read pages 22 and 23 of the VFWC Yearbook and page 9 of the Junior Handbook for courtesies extended to guests of your club.

While at a seated dinner meeting, protocol demands that the top ranking Federation officer be seated to the right of the club president who is always the official hostess. Top ranking officers and chairmen from State and District then alternate from right to left in order of their official office.

Head tables should not be too large in number. Ranking guests may be seated at special tables in front of the head table.

Junior Director's Message

Dear Juniors,

You're great! I'm so proud of your accomplishments. Truly your action speaks louder than my words, therefore my message is the following news from you. . . .

Home Life

The Ashland Juniors held their annual sewing contest in March, in cooperation with the Ashland Woman's Club.

The Monacan Junior Woman's Club held a group study activity to explain the world's living religions of which there are eleven. District officers, area club presidents and Religion Chairmen of junior clubs were invited to attend.

The Highland Park Juniors will present an Easter Sunrise Service for the third year. Members will make posters and contact area churches and organizations.

The Junior Woman's Club of Fairfax County held a Foreign Dish Dinner in February. Each member was required to make a foreign main dish, salad, rolls, or dessert. No mixes were allowed.

Public Affairs

The Powhatan Juniors receive at each meeting mimeographed copies of current articles which will help each member give a little more thought to the standards and morals good citizens should obtain.

The Hilton Juniors gave a Valentine's Party at Kecoughtan Veteran's Hospital. They also recently accepted sponsorship of the Warwick Keyette Club.

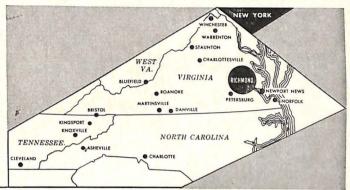

The Thomas Jefferson Juniors initiated a Public Issues Program for the 1964-1965 club year. The highlight of this endeavor was a course entitled "Freedom vs Communism," which was held for the Lee District members of President's Council.

The Newport News Juniors are sponsoring an essay contest in the Newport News elementary schools. A speaker on "Democracy vs Communism" is speaking in each school.

Fine Arts

Ashland Juniors sponsored a series of art classes for adults and the Bon Air Juniors are giving art classes to children in their community.

The Suburban Juniors had a program GFWC Junior Project for the Florence Crittenden Home with a Norfolk artist lecturing and showing slides on "Contemporary Art and the Old Masters." Each month the club brings some form of the arts to the home as well as supplies.

The Hilton Junior Woman's Club and the Hilton Seniors co-sponsored a Dinner Theater Party with food furnished by the members.

Each member of the Ware Juniors brought an original Christmas "idea" to the December meeting. Members now have an abundance of original decorations which may some day be heirlooms. Clubs they sponsor and the Keyettes

The GFWC Junior Projects are receiving aid from several clubs. The Ashland Juniors have sold 36 bracelets in cooperation with "Operation Little Bells," and the Monacan Juniors have sold $77.70 worth of bracelets.

The Junior Woman's Club of Fairfax County saves old stockings for several area Girl Scout Troops who have volunteered to use the hose to make stuffed dolls for PROJECT HOPE.

The Norfolk Juniors have distributed 221/2 dozen bracelets to the Keyette

Junior State Project

The Home Department of the Petersburg Juniors has undertaken the project of establishing a "Code of Ethics" for teen-agers of the community.

The Fairfax Juniors received 125 cases of tooth paste and 4,500 Jr. Lactona tooth brushes. These were donated to the club and have been presented to the Fairfax County Health Center for treating the underprivileged children of the county.

The Alexandria Juniors have set up a $150 fund for the use of the Alexandria Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court. The fund is for needy children with whom Judge Pancoast has contact through the court.

The Monacan Juniors and the Ashland Juniors are sponsoring Driver Refresher Courses in cooperation with the Richmond Area Safety Council and the Jaycees.

The Ginter Park Juniors were made aware of the "Dangers Around Us" and were instructed in safety precautions at a recent meeting, while the Thomas Jefferson Juniors held a safety program to which all junior primary teachers from

Education

The Portsmouth Junior's Follies money is being used to provide a $300 scholarship for a local student with the balance benefiting the International Zoo. The Alexandria Junior Woman's Club held its annual Valentine Ball to benefit the Mary Jean Barnett Scholarship Fund. The $100 scholarship is presented each year to a graduating senior who is planning to enter the teaching profession.

The Surry Junior Woman's Club has taken as its general project for the year the Surry County Educational Foundation. The Club's goal is to pay the tuition of at least one child in Surry County Academy for the school year.

Public Welfare

The Norfolk Junior Woman's Club has voted to back their "Abused Child" project for the next two years. Several meetings have been held at which times the problem was described to the club members and they were instructed as to how to go about planning a course of action to draft a Battered Child bill to be presented to the next session of the Virginia General Assembly.

The bill would require that physicians report suspected cases of child abuse to the proper local authorities for investigation.

Presidents and representatives of the Women's Clubs of Norfolk and other organizations attended the meetings and have indicated their support of the Norfolk Junior's project. They are asking the support of all the women's clubs and junior clubs in Virginia.

The "Hot Lunch" program at Grace Arents School in Richmond received a donation from the TJ Juniors to provide lunches for two children for an entire year.

Ways and Means

In order to accomplish any of the projects reported in the above news the Juniors need to raise money. This they do by various ways and means.

The Surry Juniors held a Bingo Party which netted them $250.

The Wythe Club had an Antique Show and sold baked goods.

The Ashland Juniors found that exams made the boys at Randolph-Macon College mighty hungry; consequently, the members were kept busy baking cakes the public schools were invited along and brownies which were sold to the students. The new members of their club held a highly successful rummage

The Monacan, Bon Air and Suburban Juniors are planning Fashion Shows.

Speech by Mrs. Richard T. Wilem, Project Chairman

When I was asked by Mrs. Riggins to serve as chairman of this project I never dreamed that it would turn into such a wonderful and interesting challenge. I have spent many hours pouring over government publications, talking with interested individuals and searching through the records at our Mariners Museum. The results have been fruitful —I have been able to get together a booklet containing the names of the Virginia men who were recipients of the Medal of Honor. These records go back to the inception of the Medal in the year 1861. Also contained in this booklet are the Citations of their deeds.

In October, I had the opportunity to visit Valley Forge and see the property that will be the Congressional Medal of Honor Grove. We drove along a winding road that led us to the Freedom Foundations Building. Here we were briefed as to the purpose of the Foundation and taken on a guided tour through the building. When we reached the solarium and looked out over the majestic rolling hills, we saw the small grove of evergreens which had been planted by the Boy Scouts. This was the beginning of the Grove.

Just a few days before we visited the Foundation, the Congressional Medal of Honor Winners had been present at the dedication of the Grove. Mrs. Hazebroock, GFWC President, was also present and she said it was a most inspiring sight. Money raised at this dedication is to be used for the perpetual care of the Grove.

The Grove, which shall be a living memorial to these men, will contain formal gardens dedicated to America's heroes. Winding paths will connect each of the 52 acres with their memorials to the men who have been accorded our nation's highest recognition for valor. Here living trees will be marked with suitable placques bearing the names of these Medal of Honor recipients. An appro-Priate building will be built to house the records of these valiant men along with the history of all other American decorations. No place in these United States is there a memorial to these men, our country's greatest heroes, who, by acts of bravery above and beyond the call of duty, have distinguished themselves by their gallantry and intrepidity.

The Medal of Honor was not the idea of any one American. Like most of the ideas which have flowered into institutions and practices in our nation, it was the result of group thought and action.

Senator J. W. Grimes of Iowa, took the lead, as Chairman of the Senate Naval Committee. He introduced a bill into Congress to create a Navy Medal. It was passed by both Houses and approved by President Abraham Lincoln on December 21, 1861.

Action on the Army Medal was started 2 months later, when Senator Henry Wilson of Massachusetts, introduced a Senate resolution providing for presentation of "medals of honor" to enlisted men of the Army and Voluntary Forces who "shall most distinguish themselves by their gallantry in action, and other soldier-like Lincoln's approval made this resolution law on July 12, 1862. It was amended on March 3, 1863 to include officers as well as enlisted men.

Both Medals have been changed several times since their beginning. Today, the Army Medal of Honor is a bronze five-pointed star, resting on a laurel wreath enameled in green, while on each ray of the star is a green oak leaf. The center has the head of Minerva in a circle bearing the words "United States of America." It hangs from a bar surmounted by an American Eagle, bearing the word "Valor." The reverse side of the bar is engraved with the words "The Congress to ——" followed by the name of the recipient. In the event of a second award, and there were several, a bronze

The Medal of Honor Grove As I walked alone through the quiet woods,

I marveled at what I saw, The handwork of God was everywhere, Beauty-without a flaw. Trees that have stood for hundreds of years Are standing still today, Waiting to cast their shadows So soft, so cool, so gray. Waiting to cast their shadows On a traveler tired and worn, Offering their splendid solace To those who have come to mourn. For on each of these trees there is a placaue That bears a hero's name,

Who answered when his country called Who gave no thought to fame. These men were the bravest of the brave,

They risked their lives and limbs. To keep this beloved country of ours Free from oppressors' whims. Many a brave man lost his life,

And many more were maimed, While helping to protect this land. While keeping lit-the Flame. The Flame of Freedom—it must burn bright

For all who love this land, This land that was won by sweat and tears And gnarled and calloused hands.

Be ever wary and always alert To dangers that lurk close by, The Flame of Freedom must ever burn bright And Freedom must be our cry!

Let not the deeds of these heroic men Be forgotten in so fast an age, But keep them alive in this Honor Grove Along with our great Heritage.

MRS. E. PARKER BROWN Dean of Departments 920 South Fairfax Street Alexandria

In the August, 1964, issue of THE VIRGINIA CLUB WOMAN, vour department and division chairmen outlined for you the aims and objectives of the Virginia Federation for this administration heeding the admonition of our President, Mrs. Alvah E. Riggins, to: "Come now, let us reason together. . . . " about conservation of human and natural resources.

As you complete the first year guided by these objectives, you are no doubt thinking now in your club of the remaining year and how every clubwoman in Virginia can relate more effectively to this program. Your chairmen have all been so encouraged by the outstanding reports of your activities that they have restated the goals in each department and division emphasizing a new approach to challenge you to even greater accomplishments this coming year. These objectives are set forth now to guide you as you plan your programs and projects for the coming club year.

As you have heard so often, our publications are our chief means of communication and if your club is changing officers this spring, BE SURE the State Year Book, the August, 1964, VIRGINIA CLUB WOMAN, the General Federation "Diamond Jubilee of Service for Freedom and Growth" booklets for each department, and all pertinent local materials are given to your successors! New officers, ASK your predecessors for these ma-

The restated objectives that follow implement the basic objectives and incor-Porate ideas from the General Federation Program. In addition, the bulletin sent from headquarters the first of each month to each club president will carry timely reminders or suggestions relating to the work of the various departments. The subsequent issues of THE VIRGINIA CLUB WOMAN will have articles that will elaborate on the various fields of endeavor covered by our Federation themes. Club President, you are the lifeline on which We depend to bring this vital information to the attention of the members of your club! Words on paper can do nothing, but ideas in the minds and hearts of clubwomen who care, can accomplish miracles.

Membership and Institutes

MRS. CHARLES H. PEERY. III Box 565, Tazewell

Perhaps you have no problems—your club or district doesn't need new members, all members remain forever, do wonderful club work, and never grow bored and drop out. Congratulations! And, would you tell us how you do it?

However, if you find you do have membership problems, refer to your August, 1964, issue of THE CLUB WOMAN, to refresh your thinking in this field.

General Federation asks that each club hold all its present members and gain at least one new member and Mrs. Hasebroock, GFWC President, requests "each member to acquaint two friends who are non-members." On a State level, we are asked to hold all our clubs and to gain five new clubs, during this administration.

More women than ever before are eagerly seeking ways in which they can be more active participants in world affairs because they realize our free way of life depends on their efforts. Our Federation is ready to welcome these women and to guide them in their search for ways to serve. Federation brings a richer life to every woman because membership in The General Federation of Women's Clubs is GROWTH THROUGH SERV-

If you can't make them see the light, Planning; and Mrs. Alvah E. Riggins, then make them feel the heat. That was President, VFWC. Del. William P. Kellam's advice to club-Swamp when they find themselves facing unsympathetic governors, lieutenant governors and legislators. Del. Kellam was one of half-dozen panelists for the meeting of the President's Council of Tidewater District, Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs, in the clubhouse of the Ocean Park Woman's Club. Other panelists were Fred Heutte, director of Norfolk Botanical Gardens; Russell W. Hatchett, Virginia Beach city manager; Howard McPherson, Chesapeake mayor; Durwood S. "Petersburg Juniors Are On the Air"

On September 1, 1964, the Petersburg Juniors took to the air. The club was given time on a local radio station through the courtesy of the Post Information office at Fort Lee, Virginia.

The programs presented were devoted to educating the community on the various projects of the club. The program, an interview type program with the publicity chairman and historian as the hostesses, was done entirely by club members.

The ground work for the entire series was laid during the first program when the president was interviewed on the history of the club and the state and general federations. The first vice-president later described state projects and the second vice-president told of the GFWC Projects. An entire program was devoted to the main club project, the Petersburg Dental Clinic for Indigent Children. Other programs featured the department chairmen describing the work of their Particular groups. Special guests taking part on programs were Mrs. T. H. Caffrey, VFWC Junior Director, and representatives of the other clubs in the area: Hopewell Juniors, Colonial Heights Juniors, Colonial Heights Woman's Club, Petersburg Woman's Club and the Cock-

oak leaf cluster is worn on the ribbon.

The Navy Medal of Honor is a bronze star tipped with trefoils, each ray contains sprays of laurel and oak. In the center, within a circle of 34 stars, representing the number of states in 1862, is Minerva, personifying the United States, repulsing "Discord." The Navy Medal hangs from its ribbon by an anchor.

Unlike lesser awards, the Medal of Honor is not pinned on the chest, but is hung around the neck on a light blue ribbon, studded with 13 white stars, or more often is signified by a modest light-blue cloth bar. On civilian clothes the Medal is represented by a lapel rosette of light-blue silk with 13 stars.

Any way you look at it, when viewing a Medal of Honor Winner, you are looking at one of the bravest men you'll ever see. He who possesses the Medal of Honor is the holder of the highest military award for bravery that can be given to any individual in America.

It is to illuminate the place in history which belongs only to the winners of the Medal of Honor that this grove will be dedicated.

During the Civil War 2,438 Medals were awarded, of which 900 were cancelled by an act of Congress in 1916. Twenty-one Virginians were recipients of this award. Incidently, more Medals of Honor have been awarded for battles fought on Virginia soil than any other place in the world.

Whenever our country has called, Virginians-dedicated to the cause of freedom, have donned the uniform of our armed forces and taken their places on the battlegrounds from Bunker Hill in 1775 to Viet Nam today. Of the 50 million veterans, only 3,209 have received the Medal of Honor, 60 of whom were Virginians. These valiant men have received this award for bravery in battles of the Civil War, Indian Wars, Spanish-American, China Relief Expedition (or Boxer Rebellion), Philippine Insurrection, Mexican Campaign, Haitian Campaign, World Wars I and II and the Korean War.

I ask that we, the women of Virginia, answer too. As wives, mothers and daughters, we have, in times of war and conflict stood steadfastly behind our men, and now we should, as conscientious Americans, help to provide a fitting memorial to those valiant men, who, in conflict with the enemy, have distinguished themselves conspicuously by gallantry and intrepidity at the risk of their lives above and beyond the call of duty and to keep ever alive the records of their bravery and sacrificial devotion to duty. This Medal of Honor Grove will serve as an inspiration to all who are privileged to visit it. In this day and time, I feel that it is of the utmost importance that our citizens, both young and old, should be acquainted with the acts of these heroic men.

"Let not the deeds of these heroic men Be forgotten in so fast an age But keep them alive in this Honor Grove Along with our great Heritage."

How can YOU help? Every VFWC Clubwoman is urged to join in this project. Hold a Memorial Tea. Introduce your Medal of Honor Recipient to your community. Use this opportunity to explain the purpose of the Grove. A Loyalty Day Dinner or Dance following your Tea would be quite successful as the public will by then be well acquainted with this project.

We are asking that each club contribute as much as they can in order that Virginia may take her rightful place in this Project. ONLY YOU can assure the success of the Congressional Medal of Honor Grove. We are counting on your willing support and generous assistance.

The Wythe Jr. Woman's Club has made arrangements to have the booklet, "Medal of Honor Recipients of Virginia," printed. A copy of this booklet will be sent to each club that makes a contribution to the Grove. We will try to have a few extra copies at the Convention that will be available for a nominal fee with proceeds to be donated to the Congressional Medal of Honor Grove.

Education Department

Mrs. J. B. Roberts 109 Crestview Drive Fairfax

"Federation is Education,
Emancipation, for every nation.
Federation will bring a free world,
The kind the Lord intended it to be . . ."

These familiar words are part of the GFWC song "To Strengthen the Arm of Liberty," and even though they are just lyrics, they point up the fact that education permeates every field of interest and endeavor in our federation. GFWC was founded seventy-five years ago for two main purposes, adult education and community improvement, and these are still the goals of the four major divisions of the education department:

1. Continuing (Adult) Education and ESO. Education cannot stop with the acceptance of a diploma, for new developments in our world are so numerous and so rapid, that we must continue our studies in order to be informed citizens making intelligent decisions. Promote adult education courses in your communities. In your clubs have programs that instruct, workshops, forums, study and discussion groups. ESO is GFWC's own adult education program. Encourage your club members to participate in this effort to "Enlighten Your Own Pathway". Write to GFWC for free pamphlet on ESO.

2. Library Services. "Libraries are for everyone and therein lies their real value" President Johnson. Working to establish and expand library facilities is part of the heritage of clubwomen. Continue your assistance to libraries and work to improve inadequate facilities, equipment, and supply of books. Study the actions of library administrative agencies to see the manner in which funds provided are used for growth and extension of library services. Help focus public attention and consideration on libraries by celebrating Children's Book Week (November), and National Library Week (April 25-May 1, 1965, and April 17-23,

3. Public Education and Literacy.

A. The dropout problem. Statistics indicate that non-graduates of high school total one million each year, and this rate is increasing. Dropouts lead to

Warrenton Woman's Club Promotes Adult Education

With the opening of a two and onehalf million dollar Faquier High School in Warrenton in September 1963 the members of the Warrenton Woman's Club began to investigate the possibility of establishing a program of adult education.

After conducting a community survey to determine public interest the Education Committee chairman Adele Elson formally requested the school board to approve an Adult Education Program. The club then worked with the principal of the high school and arrangements were made for registration in September, 1964. All publicity and registration work was handled by the club. Over 160 persons were enrolled in the art, typing and shorthand classes offered first semester and February, 1965 saw the addition of industrial arts and foreign languages to the program.

Help prevent dropouts by working with very young "disadvantaged" children (underprivileged children who are later handicapped in school because of their limited background) through "Operation Mother Goose." This is a plan whereby clubs set up nurseries for the main purpose of arranging learning experience for these children. Write to GFWC for further information.

B. Illiteracy. 10% of the U.S. population over 25 years of age are functional illiterates. Work to remove this blight.

C. Organize Teacher Aid Programs. Shower some special attention upon teachers when you celebrate National Education Week in November.

D. Work with youth groups to help combat juvenile delinquency and promote good citizenship.

E. Education for Safety. This is a new study and research undertaking of GFWC. Organize a workshop for studying the state and local highway budget, and the state's need for enforcement and engineering on the roads. New safety measures may lead to reduction of our soaring highway accident rate.

Family life in the Space Age is undergoing many changes. To meet the challenges of the era, the spiritual and human needs of the individual must be reevaluated, with special emphasis on family unity. As important as parent-child relationships are to family unity, the relationship of parents and their children to the older generation is equally important

Stress the importance of home-life education. Plan programs on such subjects as "How to Keep Up-to-Date on the Younger Generation," "New Techniques in Home Crafts," "How to Stress Morality in the Home," and "How to Plan for Old Age." We, as clubwomen, can play a very important part in consumer education by keeping informed! Take time to read a label, write a letter of praise or complaint of the product to the manufacturer or retailer. Managing homes and family finance is a business—a woman's business. Know the FIVE "B's"—Budgeting, Building, Buying, Banking and Borrowing—they are the key words to an understanding of fiscal matters.

Religious beliefs cannot be imposed from without. Rather, they are developed from within. If a clubwoman has faith in herself—faith reaffirmed by reading and devotion—she will find the road to Freedom and Growth in her home, her community and her nation easier to find and follow.

Support National Bible Week in October. Sponsor religious plays and programs of a religious nature. Present reviews on current religious books. Have the local public librarian set up displays of good religious books.

Blacksburg Woman's Club Entertains International Guests

The Blacksburg Woman's Club, in recognition of United Nations Day in October, had about 25 international guests -women from various foreign countries who now live in Blacksburg either as students at Virginia Tech or wives of students or faculty members at the school -at their October meeting when a program on International Relations was presented by the club's International Relations Department. The history of the United Nations was given with particular emphasis on the part women have played in the UN.

In order to promote Freedom and Growth by continually striving for a healthy citizenry through adequate health programs, the Virginia Federation in cooperation with the Virginia Council on Health and Medical Care will conduct a Health Forum in each District during the coming club year.

A Virginia Council staff member will meet with District Presidents and District Health Chairmen to help plan these Forums and give assistance in inviting speakers, making arrangements and publicizing the Forums. The topics are almost unlimited and should be tailored to each District. The Forums, hopefully, may be opened to the general public.

The programs are meant to provide what you want in your District, but in no way limit the health activities of your club. In order to focus attention on local health needs and improve health and medical care, every club is again urged to have a Health Chairman.

Virginia clubwomen have left no health area untouched; what one club didn't accomplish, another did. These outstanding efforts have made each community healthier!

Crash Program on Cancer

The Junior and Senior Woman's Clubs of Lee District in the Metropolitan Richmond area in cooperation with the City of Richmond Health Department and the American Cancer Society had a "Crash Program" on Cervical Cancer the week of January 25-29. This program was held in 70 locations with 21 clubs participating.

A film entitled "Time and Two Women" was shown to approximately 28,000 people during this period. It is hoped that by the end of February at least 30,000 people will have seen it.

By popular demand, the mental health scrapbook contest will be reinstated for 1965-66. Scrapbooks will be in two categories-adult's and children's-may be on any subject, must be limited to approximately 11" by 13" size, and will be given to the state hospital chosen by the donor club after local, district, and state level judging. The very simple rules will be published later, but you may wish to start making books now. This is a fun project—both for those making the books and those who receive them as a gift of love and concern!

Continue, please, your efforts to cover the seven points in the VFWC Mental Health Division 1964-66 objectives. They are published in the August, 1964, issue of THE VIRGINIA CLUBWOMAN. Step up your activity in "Operation Clothes Closet" by collecting clean used clothing in good condition and giving it to the state hospital of your choice. Legislative Division

Mrs. G. Kenneth Miller 8111 Larcom Lane, Richmond

This coming year will be a legislative year. It will be a time when members of the VFWC can accomplish great things for their communities and state. The Legislative Division of the Federation can be the channel of the greatest influence that clubwomen can exhibit. Why? Because the Federation is 24,000 women strong! If we are active, registered voters; if we study the needs of our communities and state and show an intelligent interest in them, legislators will listen to us. But, we must be informed, and we must contact our legislators to let them know that we are. Therefore, our objectives are:

- 1. Every club should have a Legislative chairman who will keep the members informed on resolutions adopted by the VFWC. Sponsor a legislative workshop.
- 2. Every club member should be a registered, active, and informed voter.

- 3. Have elected public officials speak to your club. Question them intelligently; let them know the Federation's position.
- 4. Promote the objectives of the VFWC legislative program in your community whenever possible by radio, press, TV, and open meetings.
- 5. Encourage an intelligent interest in election of public officials.
- 6. Contact members of the General Assembly before they leave in January, asking their support of specific VFWC resolutions (as found in the State year-
- 7. Study the needs of your community and state. If you feel something is needed on a state-wide level, have your club adopt a resolution and send it to the Resolutions Committee before January 15.
- 8. As a group or individually, attend as many sessions of the General Assembly as possible. Your state chairman will be delighted to greet you at the Capitol.

Be interested in what your government is doing. Be interested, individually, in who is running for public office. Be concerned with proposed legislation. This is the only way we can preserve our heritage of good government.

Welfare Objectives

MRS. CHARLES P. STOWELL 7651 Yarmouth Drive Richmond

Our General Federation asks us, as individual clubwomen, to volunteer the time and effort needed to build and strengthen our communities and through them our nation.

Giant steps have been taken, during the past year, toward the realization of a Virginia Vocational Technical Training school program. A State Board of Technical Education has been formed and the project is under way. In 1963, the VFWC passed a resolution endorsing and supporting vocational and technical education. Let us follow this through for the education of a youth today will keep him off welfare rolls tomorrow.

are exerting much time and effort. The best tool is the one labeled "I Care." Welfare officials, Juvenile Court judges and youth workers agree that the constructive interest and guidance of adults is the principal deterrant to crime by young people. Where this interest and guidance is lacking in the home, it must be provided by responsible adult citizens in order to prevent juvenile delinquency and the waste of human resources which follows. How are you saying: "I care"?

What goes on in Welfare? Some of our citizens wanted to see for themselves and visited forty-one welfare clients with Department case-workers. This Citizens Visitation program could be an eyeopener to clubwomen throughout the state, and could suggest a multitude of ways in which clubs, large and small are delight of the children in the listening

Study the conditions in your community in the light of VFWC Resolutions found in the Year Book, and urge appropriate action. Many of these relate to Welfare, and in an election year with a session of the General Assembly coming up-now is the time to get things done!

This was a completely new experience for the group and many problems were encountered. Participants had "mike fright." They were left on the air with nothing more to say and didn't know how to get off, but they soon learned to "stretch" or ad lib. The programs were done from a remote location and one time they found themselves locked out of the booth and had to make a mad dash to the main station, but in true tradition, went on as scheduled.

Comments concerning the series of programs were all favorable. They closed on January 5, 1965, with a review, or, in radio terminology, they wrapped them up as they started, with the club president.

There is no doubt now in the minds of the Petersburg Juniors-people in their area know who they are and what they're doing!

The Eastern Shore Woman's Club, spearheaded by Mrs. Fugua recently conducted an enthusiastic drive to collect materials for the U. S. Navy's Project Handclasp. A hand-operated sewing machine, in excellent condition, was donated by Mrs. C. Langford of Franklin, Virginia.

The sewing machine, plus other materials collected, were transported by Col. H. R. Routzong, Commanding Officer of the U. S. Air Force facility on the Eastern Shore, and Sgt. Godby. The sewing machine was then transported by the East Coast Director of Project Handclasp, Commander Schlierf, to Guantanamo on a recent trip to the Caribbean. At Guan-

Three Chopt Club Sponsors Sunday School Classes For Retarded Children

An unusual project is one started by the 22 members of the Three Chopt Woman's Club of Lee District with Mrs. H. C. Brownson as chairman. An interdenominational Sunday School Class for Retarded Children is being held each Sunday under the sponsorship of the

Mrs. Sadie Longest, an experienced teacher of retarded children, teaches the class without compensation and club members volunteer help on different Sundays. The class enables the parents of the children to attend their own church together.

The club has enlisted other volunteer help with this project and members of Senior Scout Troop No. 48 and of the FTA club from Douglas Freeman High School are assisting.

The Richmond Area Association for Mentally Retarded Children has given their support to the project. It is the first school of this kind to be established in Henrico County.

Olde Towne Woman's Club has a new project, "Patterning." They are helping children in the Brain Damaged Children's Program in Alexandria to learn to use muscles in such activities as crawling. Members work in pairs and each member is required to give two hours one day a month on this project.

Fine Arts

The Riparian Woman's Club of Emporia featured "Music of America" during their January meeting. The program, presented in the form of an old album, described the traditional music of our country from Colonial days to the present and closed with the selection "Goodnight, Ladies."

The Farmville Woman's Club sponsored an Antique Show as a fund-raising project. Members were on hand to describe and give some historic information about the various unusual items and collections on exhibit.

The Lynchburg Juniors' Teacher Aide Program is assured the schools of their area for another year, thanks to $5,000 profit on their show, "Li'l Abner."

"Getting To Know You" has been the theme of the newly organized Junior Woman's Club of Cumberland County. With membership from all over the county, many girls became acquainted for the first time through club membership. These girls took a theater trip to The Virginia Museum theater and sold over $230 in Camp Easter Seal Christmas Cards as well as including a campership in their budget.

Farmville Juniors' held a Junior Miss Farmville contest with their winner, Sandra Eddins, going on to be a finalist in the Junior Miss Virginia contest. The Farmville Juniors also sponsored a Speech and Hearing test again for local school children.

The Surrender Grounds at Appomattox Court House will be the scene of much activity during the Commemoration Ceremonies on April 9, 1965. Members of the Appomattox Woman's Club and the Appomattox Junior Woman's Club, dressed in colonial costumes, will serve as hostesses on this occasion.

Mrs. Michael Dewey, president of the Buckroe Beach Woman's Club, was a guest on Alice Brewer White's television show. In discussing club projects and accomplishments, Mrs. Dewey stressed conservation, what it means locally, and how the club works with other organizations in the preservation of the beach. She also discussed the Great Dismal Swamp and plans for conservation there. The Buckroe Beach club was selected by Mrs. White as one doig particularly outstanding work in their community.

The Woman's Club of Seaford believes in everyone in the community working together so they decided to have a Community Bazaar. This involved Boy and Girl Scout troop exhibits, handicraft, church booths Home Demonstration club displays, as well as club members arts, crafts, and handwork.

Health

The Powhatan Juniors helped promote the blood mobile in the county by making posters, phone calls, and working at the bloodmobile.

Roanoke County and City Junior Women's Clubs combined efforts for the Mother's March for the March of Dimes Campaign, while the Ashland Juniors assisted in the Heart Fund Drive and the Alexandria Juniors participated in soliciting donations for Children's Hospital.

The TJ Juniors, in association with the American Cancer Society, co-sponsored the showing of cancer films in the Richmond area. A film on cancer was shown and trusts. at recent meetings of the Ashland and Suburban Juniors.

The Monacan Junior Woman's Club has been earnestly working at the Richmond Nursing Home in the rehabilitation program and the Bon Airs are planning a visit to Eastern State Hospital to see their "adopted patient."

A member of the Suburban Club is instructing patients in the Ghent Arms Nursing Home to sketch with crayon. The Ginter Park girls will maintain a bed at the new Sheltering Arms Hospital for one year. The Newport News Juniors gave parties at Veterans Hospital and Eastern State.

Schools for handicapped children receive their share of the juniors time and talents. The Suburban Juniors gave Christmas, Valentine, and Easter parties for the children of the pre-school Tidewater Association for Hearing Impaired Children, while the Ashland Juniors continue to devote much time to the St. James the Less School for retarded children.

The Portsmouth Club is doing volunteer work for the Cystic Fibrosis Clinic.

The programming I've tackled, "for free," in days of yore,

And anxiously wondered will we have twenty-five or ninety-four?

Will the speaker please them? Oh, I pray that she comes!

(politely!) "dumb?"

I've e'en been "THE PRESIDENT," much corsaged; ah me,

I'm sure I've "poured" hundreds of gallons of tea,

Written miles of agenda, signed too many papers,

Put up with the "Characters" and an of their capers.

towels, jewelry and cake,

Toted "White Elephants" and "Rummage" until my back did ache!

I've attended many classes, many tickets I've bought,

FRANCES CAFFREY, Junior Director I've made many friendships (and some that are not!)

> Tommorrow's a Meeting: shall I stay home or go?

Shall I wait for the Spring or plough through the snow?

To stay would be easy; I'm older, more plump and more gray.

But I'll go — 'cause I'm sure when my next "Dues" I pay

In my good "basic dress' and proverbial "pearls"

I'll hope for more years to be one of "the girls."

We don't mean a physical exam for every member (although that's not a bad idea either). We do refer to that good group structure which helps the club to accomplish its purposes and aids club members in growing in democratic leadership. SOME FACTS ABOUT THE GREAT DISMAL SWAMP

LOCATION: In the Eastern Shore section of Virginia. Seven hundred and fifty miles of flora and wildlife unlike any other place in the entire nation. In area, about the size of Rhode Island, lying 40% in Norfolk and Nasemond counties of Virginia and 60% in Currituck, Camden, Gates, Perquimans and Pasquotank counties of North Carolina.

HOW GREAT DISMAL DIFFERS FROM CONVENTIONAL SWAMP: A conventional swamp should be lower than the surrounding land, have streams of water running into it, poor drainage and little water running out --Great Dismal Swamp is on a hillside, at least 20 feet above sea level; seven good sized rivers flow out, water seems to rise from the spongy floor and supplies its oval-shaped lake.

Conventional swamps are characterized by a combination of darkness, moisture and heat providing conditions for rapid decay of organic matter -- Great Dismal Swamp is both moist and warm but there is little bacterial decay. There are fewer mosquitos than found in the conventional swamp.

Since Great Dismal is on the North-South Iso-Thelmal Line, many of the plants and animals found there are not found further north nor south for example, the cotton mouth mocassin and Spanish moss are found throughout the South and in Great Dismal but no further north.

Its dense population of deer, bobcat and racoons, dense areas of trees are not usual for the conventional swamp though it does have also many of the typical swamp trees such as juniper and cypress.

It is considered by many as one of the most unique natural wonders of the world though much of it lies still unexplored.

FORMATION: The Great Dismal Swamp is a geological wonder, only 6,000 years old, though it took millions of years to form. In the Pliocene Period, glaciers formed around the earth's poles and great quantities of water from the ocean rose, leaving the oceans more shallow and the continental shelves exposed beyond present lines. As the climate warmed, ice melted and the water retreated to the oceans.

Four glacial periods followed during which time marine fossil deposits were left when the Swamp basin was covered with water. The Great Dismal Swamp sea floor was formed during the last of these periods which lasted about 2,000,000 years. Six thousand years ago as the continental shelf sank for the last time, the ocean receded and left a bench where the Dismal Swamp now rests.

CLIMATM: Annual rainfall about 52 inches. No great extremes in climate.

WILDLIF: Black bear -- largest and most fierce of Dismal Swamp's wildlife. Once in great abundance, now about 10-12 are killed each year but they are usually not seen by tourists. Deer, wildcat, racoon are also found in abundance. At one time there were panthers, wolves, wild cattle, wild hogs and wild goats in the Swamp but they are no longer there. Also found in the Swamp are opossum, cottontail, marsh hare, four species of squirrels and gray fox. Those most conspicuous for their absence are: skunk, ground-hog, chipmunk and red fox.

Reptiles -- in the poisonous group, copperhead, rattlesnake and cotton-mouth mocassin. But mostly in abundance are the harmless variety such as, milk snake, hognosed snake, black racer, green snake, southern water snake, etc.

Fish -- bluefish, striped bass, killifishes, perch, catfish, bream, pike, pickerel, sunfish, sole and darters. The first three, as well as eels, are not true inhabitants of swamp water but are found in the waters emptying into Albermarle Sound and Chesapeake Bay.

PLANT LIFE: Plant life in Great Dismal can be divided into groups -- Dry Forest (around the outer edges and higher dry areas); Green Sea (named by Col. William Byrd and located near southern end) consisting of green cane growing as high as 15 feet; Main section of Swamp where trees dominate and where sedges and grasses cover the marshes and where some areas are so remote they have never been explored.

Trees and plants found in southern United States reach their northern limit in the Great Dismal Swamp -- long leaf pines, cotton gum, the atamasco lily, French mulberry, Spanish moss, etc. The same is true of plantlife common to the North.

Trees -- Chiefly juniper, cypress and black gum. Gums are most abundant near Lake Drummond and in the heart of the Swamp. The lake itself is encircled by enormous maples and junipers, some places several feet in diameter and almost 100 feet high. Other trees found in the Swamp are: wild tulip, holly, sweet bay, autumn ash, willow oak, blue beach, black willow, pine, black adder, etc.

Vines which are characteristic to the Swamp are mainly -- catbriers, Virginia creeper, yellow jasmine, supple jack, woodbine, crossvine, honeysuckel, etc.

Wildflowers are found in abundance, in every color. Some of the more popular ones are: blood root, trumpet, Virginia blue bell, cardinal flower, hepatica, Solomon's plume, honeycups, marsh marigold, swamp buttercup, bee balm, Queen Anne's lace, etc.

In Cedar Swamp, by far the most dismal sector, though the name Dismal Swamp is considered by most well-acquainted with this area as a misnomer, there are majestic white cedars covered with mistletoe and and Spanish moss. This is an unexcelled sanctuary for many forms of wildlife.

 $\overline{\text{HISTORY}}$: Dismal Swamp's history links it with such great names as George Washington, Col. William Byrd II and Commodore Peary.

As early as the 18th Century, Col. Byrd was one of the first to visit the Swamp and in 1728 led a band of surveyors into it to run a dividing line south of Lake Drummond between Virginia and North Carolina but did not find Lake Drummond on this trip.

Deep Creek is a small prosperous rural village at the eastern entrance to Dismal Swamp and supposedly got its name in 1736 when George Washington, on a trip into the Swamp, crossed a small creek, fell in and in an er said: "My, what a deep creek!"

In 1787, the Virginia Assembly passed acts for the construction of the Swamp Canal and digging began between 1790 and 93 at Deep Creek. In 1795, the first coach and wagon road from Portsmouth to Deep Creek was completed. The period of the canal's building and the following 30 years marked a period of golden prosperity at Deep Creek.

The Canal was partially completed in 1805, providing limited access by water from Old Lebanon to Deep Creek. Three years earlier a stage road had been completed along the bank and today this roadbed serves for Rt. 17, known as the George Washington Highway. By 1828, the Canal was completed, enlarged and opened to fairly sizeable boats.

After the War of 1812, lumber business interests were affected by British interference with ocean travel and their raids on Norfolk-Portsmouth harbours -- however, demand for Dismal Swamp timber gradually climbed back to normal and reached a peak in 1830. Between 1830 and 1859, the Dismal Swamp Canal enjoyed its most prosperious period.

In 1859, the Albemarle-Chesapeake Canal opened and proved an almost fatal blow to Dismal Swamp Canal. The beginning of the Civil Var marked the turning point in Deek Creek history, for during the war, with numbers of small skirmishes around the Canal and lack of proper maintenance, it was left little more than a drainage ditch at the war's end. This caused it to lie unused for the next 25 years.

Between 1896 and 1899, the Canal was completely rebuilt and deepened to 10 feet. During the 20th Century, Canal commerce declined and finally in 1929, the U.S. Government took it over and made it part of the Inland Materway, now under supervision of the Army Engineers.

Deep Creek, one of the first communities in the state to take advantage of state support for their school system and which built its first school immediately after the laws were introduced into the Virginia Assembly in 1845, continues to thrive as a rural community. Deep Creek has two most active civic organizations -- The Ruritans and the Woman's Club.

Bylaws VIRGINIA FEDERATION OF WOMEN'S CLUBS

ARTICLE I - - NAME

This organization shall be known as the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs.

ARTICLE II - - OBJECT

The object of this organization shall be to bring into closer unity the Women's Clubs of Virginia, in order to promote through their common interests the civic, cultural, educational and social welfare of the State.

ARTICLE III - - MEMBERSHIP

Section 1. Membership

(a) Any club, city or county Federation, not a secret organization, having for its object any work that is non-sectarian, non-partisan political, and whose purpose is germane to the work of this federation may be eligible to membership.

(b) Each club desiring membership in this federation shall make application through the chairman of Club Extension, accompanied by a copy of its constitution, the entrance fee and per capita dues.

(c) Other State and National organizations of women may affiliate at the discretion of the Executive Committee. Members of affiliated organizations shall have the privilege of attending meetings but not of voting.

(d) When a club or a combination of federated clubs is organized under a new name, it shall submit its revised constitution for approval and shall pay dues as before, but shall not be required to pay another imitiation fee.

(e) The consent of the Virginia Federation President, the three V.F.W.C. Vice-Presidents, V.F.W.C. Treasurer, V.F.W.C. Recording Secretary and the President of the respective District shall be required to entitle a club to membership in this Federation. The vote of the required Executive Committee members may be taken by mail.

(f) All clubs in a city or county Federation must hold membership in the

(f) All clubs in a city or county Federation must hold membership in the State Federation.

(g) Any club or organization that should be actively and openly disloyal to the declared policy, purpose, or ideals of the Federation may be dropped from membership by a two-thirds vote of the Executivé Committee, provided the club or organization be informed of the proposed action, and the cause thereof, and with the privilege of being heard in its own defense prior to such action.

Section 2. Junior Clubs

(a) Junior clubs shall consist of groups of young women over sixteen and under thirty—five years of age. They shall pay equal dues and have equal representation as senior clubs in the Federation. Junior clubs may have a sponsor organization which shall be a senior club holding membership in the Virginia Federation.

(b) Contact Chairman: Junior Clubs having a sponsoring organization, shall have a Contact Chairman, who shall be a member of the sponsor organization and shall be appointed by mutual agreement. The Contact Chairman shall serve as a friend, counselor and guide. She shall attend all meetings, if possible, but shall not vote. She may speak to the question when the President or presiding officer or any member asks for an expression of her opinion.

- (c) The State Junior organization shall have as its presiding officer the Director of Junior Clubs who shall be elected according to Article IV, Section 2, of the Constitution. The Junior organization shall elect a Secretary-Treasurer who shall hold and disburse on order of the Junior Executive Committee per capita funds received from the State Treasurer, and who shall likewise receive and disburse, on order of said Committee, funds received on behalf of any junior State Project and who shall be bonded for the faithful discharge of her duties, with premium paid from the Junior treasury, and she shall render a report at the Convention, which report shall be incorporated with that of the State Treasurer in the Yearbook. The Junior Director and Junior officers shall be elected for a term of two years and may not succeed themselves in office. Junior Chairmen shall be appointed for a term of one year.
- (d) There shall be a Junior Executive Committee composed of the Director of Junior Clubs, the Secretary-Treasurer, the District Junior Directors and the Junior Editor of "The Virginia Club Woman". This committee shall meet upon the call of the Director of Junior Clubs or upon written request of any three members thereof. The quorum shall be three members representing three districts.

Section 1. Officers

The officers of the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs shall consist of a President, a First Vice-President, a Second Vice-President, a Third Vice-President, who shall be the Director of Junior Clubs, a Recording Secretary, and a Treasurer.

Section 2. Eligibility

No member shall hold office who is not a member of a club holding direct membership in the Federation. No member shall serve on the Executive Committee for more than twelve consecutive years. The Third Vice-President, Director of Junior Clubs, shall be a member of a Junior Woman's Club. No two officers shall be from the same city or town and consideration shall be given to all geographical areas of the State so as to avoid concentration of leadership, and to ensure, so far as feasible, that Federation leadership shall be spread over the state. This provision shall not apply to the Third Vice-President.

Section 3. Term

The term of office shall be two years and shall begin at the adjournment of the annual meeting. No officer shall serve more than two consecutive years in the same office, except the Treasurer, who may be elected for two additional consecutive years.

Section 4. Vacancies

(a) In case of a vacancy in the office of President of the Virginia Federation, the First Vice-President shall accede to the office and shall serve until the close of the administration.

(b) Vacancies occuring in other offices shall be filled by the Executive Committee for the unexpired term. In the event of a vacancy in the office of Third Vice-President, the Executive Committee shall receive and consider any recommendations of the Junior Executive Committee to fill such vacancy.

(c) Any member filling a vacancy in office shall be eligible to reelection provided that she shall have served no more than one half of the term.

Section 5. Duties
(a) The duties of the President shall be to serve as chief executive officer of the Virginia Federation and ex-officio as a member of all departments, divisions, and committees, with the exception of the nominating committee; to serve as official representative of the Federation and to designate other necessary representation;

to authorize necessary expenditures within the budget and approve all bills for payment;

to exercise full authority over Headquarters, and its staff, in cooperation with the Executive Committee; to supervise plans for extending, unifying, and rendering more effective the work of the Virginia Federation; and to approve all programs of work and supervise the activities of standing and special committees.

The President shall be the representative of the Virginia Federation at all meetings of the General Federation. (b) The First Vice-President, in the absence of the President, shall perform the duties of the President. She shall be the Dean of Departments and Divisions and shall preside at all meetings of the combined groups.

(c) The Second Vice-President, in the absence of the President, and the First Vice-President, shall perform the duties of the President. She shall with the help of the Vice-Presidents of each district, be in charge of Club Extension. (d) The Third Vice-President, Director of Junior Clubs, shall serve as liaison officer between the Junior clubs and the Federation and shall promote and stimulate the objectives of the Federation among the junior clubs. She shall appoint the Junior Editor of "The Virginia Club Woman" subject to confirmation by the Junior Executive Committee and the President of the Virginia Federation.

(e) The Recording Secretary shall keep a record of the proceedings of the annual meeting of the Federation and of all meetings of the Board of Directors and of the Executive Committee. She shall file all minutes and reports for the use of the Historian in compiling her two-year History at the Und of an administration. The Secretary shall, with the help of the President, compile annually, within two months after the annual meeting, the Yearbook.

(f) The duties of the treasurer shall be to collect and hold all monies belonging to the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs with the exception of those referred to in Article XV, or received by it on account of any of its projects or promotions, with the exception of those referred to in Article III, Section 2c, and shall deposit them in some reliable bank; to pay the allotment for the publication of "The Virginia Club Woman" to the Editor, whose financial responsibilities shall be as prescribed in Article XV;

to pay to the Treasurer of the General Federation of Women's Clubs the per capita dues of the clubs of the State Federation at the required time;

to disburse Federation funds only upon an order signed by the President, Chairman of the Budget and Finance Committee and member incurring the obligation; to secure bond for the faithful discharge of her duties, the amount of the bond to be decided by the Budget and Finance Committee, with premium paid by the Federation; to pay all outstanding obligations and close her books within thirty days of the annual convention's closing, after which they shall be audited by a Certified Public Accountant whose fee shall be paid by the Federation, which auditor's report shall be published in the Yearbook for the succeeding year and rendered to the next annual Convention; to advance $5,000, upon the installation of her successor to open an account to cover the period between the annual meeting and the final transfer of funds at the end of the fiscal year; and to deliver to her successor all funds, vouchers, books and papers of the Federation in her custody, together with auditor's report within sixty days of the annual convention in even numbered years.

(g) There shall be no salaried officers. Necessary and authorized expenses incurred by officers and chairmen in the service of the Federation may be refunded from the treasury. All officers contracting bills shall forward them itemized and with vouchers attached, to the Chairman of the Budget and Finance Committee.

(h) Officers, District Presidents, chairmen of departments and divisions, and chairmen of standing committees shall be required to report in writing at the annual meeting, and at such other times as the President may request.

ARTICLE V -- NOMINATIONS AND ELECTIONS

Section 1. Nominations for all officers of the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs, except the Third Vice-President, Director of Juniors, shall be made by a Nominating Committee. This committee shall be composed of one member from each district, elected in accordance with Article XII, Section 4 of the Bylaws, a junior member elected by the Junior Executive Committee at least four months prior to the Convention at which officers are elected, and one member elected by the Executive Committee of the Federation at least four months prior to the annual meeting. The member elected by the Executive Committee shall be chairman with full power to preside over, discuss, and guide all deliberations of said committee. She shall have a voice in the deliberations of the committee.

Section 2. Nominations for the Third Vice-President, Director of Junior Clubs, shall be made by a nominating committee consisting of a junior member from each district elected by the junior delegates in attendance at the District meeting, and one member elected by the Junior Executive Committee who shall be chairman. When the Juniors have agreed upon the nominee for Third Vice-President, Director of Junior Clubs, her name shall be forwarded to the Chairman of the V.F.W.C. Nominating Committee for placing on the slate of Federation officers to be elected.

Section 3. Nominations for all offices may be made from the floor at the time when the report of the Nominating Committee is presented. This report shall be made during the first morning session of the Convention.

Section 4. No member may be nominated whose consent to serve, if elected, has not been secured.

Section 5. The regular election of officers of the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs shall take place at the Annual Meeting in even numbered years. The election shall be by ballot, during the morning of the last day of the Convention. A majority of votes cast shall constitute an election.

ARTICLE VI -- DEPARTMENTS, DIVISIONS AND STANDING COMMITTEES

Section 1. Departments and Divisions shall conform, as far as deemed advisable, to those of the General Federation.

Section 2. There shall be the following standing committees; Budget and Finance, Historical, Resolutions, Revision, Credentials, Dorothea Buck Fellowship and Mary Macon McGuire Student Loan.

Section 3. Chairmen of Departments, Divisions, and Standing Committees shall conduct the work appropriate to their respective departments, divisions and committees in accordance with a plan approved by the President and no work shall be undertaken without her approval. State Chairmen shall have, as their associates, the district chairmen of the corresponding departments or divisions.

Section 4. The Editor of "The Virginia Club Woman", Chairmen of Departments, Divisions, and Standing Committees shall be appointed for a term of one year. No member shall be appointed to the same position for more than two terms.

Section 5. The Budget and Finance Committee shall be composed of the President, the Three Vice-Presidents, the Treasurer, and one other appointed by the President who shall be chairman. It shall be the duty of the Budget and Finance Committee to prepare a budget which shall be submitted to the Executive Committee for adoption, to supervise investments and to see that expenditures are kept within the budget. The Chairman of the Budget and Finance Committee shall cosign expense vouchers.

Section 6. The Historian shall serve as an Historical Committee of one, with access to all records of the Recording Secretary.

Section 7. The Credentials committee shall be composed of the Treasurer, the chairman, and one other appointed by the President. The Parliamentarian shall be an ex-officio member without vote.

Section 8. The Mary Macon McGuire Student Loan Committee shall be composed of three members. Two of these shall be appointed by the President. One of these shall be chairman. The third member shall be the retiring chairman of the committee for the previous administration. This committee shall be responsible for administering the funds of this Loan according to the Standing Rules for Mary Macon McGuire Student Loan. It shall be responsible for keeping the President and the Treasurer advised of all loans paid and outstanding.

Section 9. The Dorothea Buck Fellowship Committee shall be composed of three members. Two of the se shall be appointed by the President, one of whom shall be chairman. The third member shall be the retiring chairman of the committee. This committee shall be responsible for administering the funds of the Dorothea Buck Fellowship according to the Standing Rules for the Fellowship and with the approval of the Executive Committee. It shall be responsible for keeping the President and the Treasurer advised of all applications and awards.

Section 10. The Resolutions Committee shall be composed of five persons appointed by the President, one of whom shall be designated as chairman. Standing Rules on Resolutions shall govern the procedure for receiving and presenting resolutions.

Section 11. The Revisions Committee shall be composed of five persons appointed by the President, one of whom shall be designated as chairman. It shall be the duty of this committee to review the Bylaws and Standing Rules and to propose necessary changes. The Revision Committee shall consider amendments suggested by the Board of Directors, the Executive Committee, a District, or two or more clubs. Such proposals shall be submitted to the Revision Committee not later than January 15.

Section 12. There shall be a committee on program for Annual Meeting composed of the President of the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs, the Third Vice-President, Director of Junior Clubs, and the Convention Chairman. Additional members may be added to the Committee at the discretion of the President and the Committee. This Committee shall plan all programs for the Annual Convention. The report of the Program Committee when adopted shall constitute the Order of Business for the Annual Convention.

ARTICLE VII -- BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Section 1. Officers, District Presidents, chairmen of Departments, Divisions and standing and special committees with the exception of the nominating committee, the Editor of "The Virginia Club Woman", the Junior Editor, the Junior District Directors, the Junior Secretary-Treasurer, the Past Presidents of the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs, the Presidents of city and county federations, and club presidents or their vice-presidents shall constitute a Board of Directors which shall transact all business of the Federation between annual meetings, subject to its direction. The registration fee for the Board meeting shall be $2.00 except that visitors who attend only one day may pay a registration fee of $1.00, which funds shall be applied to the expenses of the meeting.

COLLECT FOR CLUBWOMEN

Keep us, Oh God, from pettiness; let us be large in thought, in word, in deed.

Let us be done with faultfinding, and leave off self-seeking.

May we put away all pretense and meet each other face to face — without self-pity and without prejudice.

May we never be hasty in judgment and always generous.

Let us take time for all things; make us to grow calm, serene, gentle.

Teach us to put into action our better impulses straightforward, and unafraid.

Grant that we may realize it is the little things that create differences, that in the big things of life we are at one.

And may we strive to touch and to know the great common human heart of us all, and Oh, Lord God, let us forget not to be kind.

-Mary Stewart

STANDING RULES

Admission to all sessions will be by badge only.

No Delegate shall represent more than one organization nor be entitled to more than one vote.

No proxy shall be allowed.

When addressing the Chair, a delegate or a visitor shall first give her name and that of her club.

All motions must be written, signed and sent to the Recording Secretary immediately upon presentation.

All resolutions shall be referred to the Committee on Resolutions and may not be presented to the Convention or debated until reported to the assembly by the Committee on Resolutions.

Debate shall be limited to two minutes; time shall be extended only by unanimous vote of the House.

Members will not be allowed to enter the Convention Hall while a speaker is addressing the Convention or during the time a vote is being counted. Doors will be opened before and after each address and before and after debate.

An information desk is maintained for the convenience of the delegates and visitors and lost and found items will be handled there.

Sessions will begin promptly at the time announced.

Members are requested to be in the hall at the appointed hour and to remain through sessions.

Club presidents or delegates are asked to take home paintings, contest entries and other exhibits.

By Mary Bland Armistead World-News Women's Editor

After nearly three days of attention to fine arts, public affairs, education and scholarship awards, the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs closed its 58th convention here with emphasis on community improvement.

And it heard the bright story of Grafton, W.Va., a town of less than 7,000 that cracked economically and culturally with the closing of its main industry, a china company, and came back to win second place in a national community improvement competition.

Mrs. William Fisher told the story as she has told it many times since the mountain community's mighty effort to survive attracted widespread at-

Mrs. Stitzenberger, who joined the GFWC staff three years ago, said the Grafton story is "a good example of what can be done in a de-pressed area" and reminded the convention that their federation, in cooperation with the Sears Foundation for Community Improvement, has been a "pacesetter" for widespread improvement programs which, she said, "have become popular from the Federal Government down to Cub Scouts."

Federation Is to Meet In Late April

The Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs will hold its 58th annual convention April 27, 28 and 29 at Hotel Roanoke.

The opening session will feature reports of state officers and district presidents, and that evening at the Alice Kyle banquet, Dr. Carl S. Winters will give the keynote address on "Americanism."

Three simultaneous breakfasts will open the second day's meetings followed by a business session with Dorman L. Miller, assistant to the general manager of Appalachian Power Company, speaking on "Bemiss Outdoor Recreation Study Commission report."

Luncheon speakers for that day will be Ernest H. Dervishian, Dr. Woodrow W. Wilkerson of the Virginia Department of Education, and the Rev. Lewis E. Bates giving talks before the public affairs, education and home life groups, respectively.

Later, Heironimus of Roanoke will give a tea and fashion show for delegates.

Highlighting the evening program April 28 will be the appearance of the WISE (Women's International Speakers from Embassies) who will take the a u dience "Around the World in 80 Minutes." Paticipants are to be Mrs. Constante V. Batoon, wife of the consul general of the Philippine Embassy; Mrs. William I. Groble, wife of the press counselor of the South American Embassy; Mrs. Antero Vartia, wife of the press and information counselor of the Embassy of Finland; and Mrs. Toetie Seokirman, wife of the commercial counselor of the Indonesian Embassy.

On the final day of the convention Mrs. William Fisher of Grafton, W.Va., will speak at a "Community Improvement Luncheon" and give the history of her city's work in that area.

Grafton, W.Va., was a second place winner in the 1964 Community Improvementt Program.

Mrs. Virginia Stitzenberger, director of the program for the General Federation of Women's Clubs, will speak on its general aspects and its importance to every community.

18th ANNUAL REPORT

MURRAY D. LINCOLN Chairman of the Board

HAROLD S. MINER President

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

This is the 18th Annual Report of a temporary organization founded in 1945. Its job, and its existence, were to end with the recovery of Europe from the devastation of World War II.

Variously described as magnificent, fabulous, miraculous, Europe's recovery has long since been accomplished. And, indeed, except for relatively small remaining areas of need, CARE has long since closed out its programs on that continent.

But the effects of war are never limited to the time and the place in which it is fought. The shock waves it sets in motion do not stop when the guns go silent. As they sweep across the earth, empires crumble, traditions fall, old ideas die, new ones are born.

In our time, the first World War launched such a revolution, and World War II released forces that to this day are reshaping life on our planet.

Tens of millions of men in Africa, in Asia, in Latin America clamor for admission to the 20th Century. They cry out for freedom from the bondage of hunger, ignorance and disease.

CARE donors who had responded to the earlier calls for help from Europe have not been deaf to the later cries. They, then, in the real sense, made the decision that CARE must go on.

FRANK L. GOFFIO

TO THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS

A salute to U.S. Public Law 480 on its tenth anniversary seems to me to be the first order of business in CARE's 18th Annual Report.

By its enactment, vast stores of America's farm abundance were released as a weapon in a global war on hunger. That is why in the single year covered by this Report, CARE was able to deliver more than one billion pounds of food to 35,000,000 men, women and children in 33 countries.

The decade of PL 480 has witnessed a great cooperative achievement. The record redounds to the lasting credit of Congress, the Department of Agriculture, the Agency for International Development and Food for Peace, which administered the law to such tremendous effect.

As a voluntary agency entrusted with the distribution of more than four billion pounds of food for overseas aid during these ten years, CARE is proud of its role in the undertaking.

Behind all this, as behind the whole CARE story itself, stand the American people, who have given steady evidence of their conviction that some part of our national plenty and strength should be shared with the deprived, the undernourished, the struggling peoples of the world.

The fiscal year that ended June 30, 1964, was another period in which they matched this conviction with action. Their contributions, together with the significant sum donated by the people of Canada, totaled $10,166,280.

The power of each of these dollars was raised tenfold, as CARE converted them into the material aid and the services delivered in support of its new and ongoing programs for the needy in 38 countries of Europe, Latin America, the Near East, Asia and Africa. Fiscal 1964 thus set a new high mark of $105,000,000 in the value of CARE distributions, and brought the total of its help since its inception to $674,000,000.

The political, social and economic turbulence of a changing world disrupts millions of lives and brings new tasks to CARE. We respond to the mandate with planning, with rallying public support, and ultimately with supplies to meet the needs of those who call for help. But the turbulence of nature serves no notice, and we are suddenly faced with a challenge that leaves no time for anything but immediate action.

The past year was no exception, nor was it an exception to CARE's long record of swift and effective response in the face of disaster. A shattering earthquake left Skoplje, Yugoslavia, in ruins; Hurricane Flora ravaged a large part of Haiti; volcanic ash and floods combined to afflict Costa Rica; cyclone and typhoon struck East Pakistan and the Philippines. In every instance, CARE was there, quickly, with life-saving food and medical supplies for the hungry and injured, with blankets, sheets and other necessities for the homeless. And stayed on, to see the job of recovery through.

In our long-range efforts, the year also saw gratifying progress, notably through the expanding programs of MEDICO, now in its third year as a Service of CARE. There are long-term medical teams at work in Afghanistan, Algeria, Malaysia, Tunisia and Vietnam. Specialist service and training programs, including orthopedists, general surgeons, ophthalmologists, and others, are being provided in Afghanistan, Colombia, Jordan, Nigeria, Tunisia, Malaysia and Vietnam.

Peace Corps Volunteers under the administration of CARE during this fiscal year numbered 331 men and women. Of these, seven contingents, totaling 245 members, were engaged in rural and urban community development projects in Colombia. Fifty-two were similarly occupied in Guatemala, and 34 in Sierra Leone.

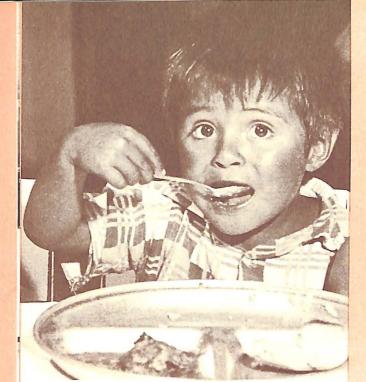

Their accomplishments in the fields of health, education and construction have not only contributed to the welfare of the people among whom they worked, but have won increased respect and admiration for their own country. A new CARE-administered Peace Corps of 50 Volunteers begins serving in Turkey in October.

This Report opened with a salute, and it surely is no less fitting that it should close with another—this time to the American and Canadian donors who have made possible all that CARE has been able to accomplish. When it is considered that in this fiscal year the average donation was $7.64, it becomes clear that many millions of people are united in the decision that the work of CARE must go on.

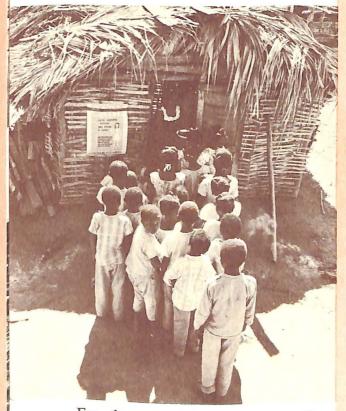

Speaking for myself, and for Deputy Executive Director Fred W. Devine, I extend warmest thanks to the Board of Directors for its counsel and confidence, and to the members of the CARE staff everywhere for another year of constructive effort in a great cause.

Thank I broffer

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

There are 27 million like him in 28 countries who received a cup of milk or a cooked meal daily under CARE school feeding programs. This year, CARE will reach even more school children.

For these Dominican youngsters, the CARE school lunch is the most important meal of the day, for many of them the only meal. The poster on the cook-shed wall tells them that the food reaches them as a gift from the American people.

SCHOOL FEEDING

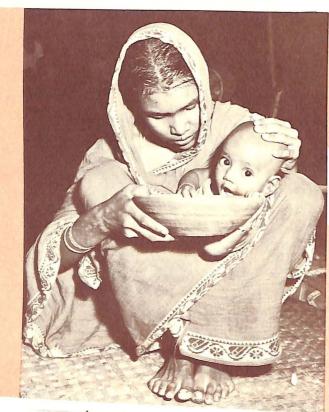

In Colombia alone, CARE helps feed over a million children in schools every day.

CARE milk, donated by the U.S. Government under the Food for Peace program, is the main ingredient of the daily school lunch served to four million youngsters in the Philippines.

Board of Directors

New York, N. Y.

We have examined the financial statements of Cooperative for American Relief Everywhere, Inc. for the year ended June 30, 1964. Our examination was made in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards, and accordingly included such tests of the accounting records and such other auditing procedures as we considered necessary in the circumstances.

In our opinion, the accompanying balance sheet and statement of operations and unallocated net margin present fairly the financial position of Cooperative for American Relief Everywhere, Inc. at June 30, 1964, and the results of its operations for the year then ended, in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles applied on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year.

TOOLS

Ecuadorean Indians used CARE picks and shovels to dig their first well, pipes to bring fresh water to their village, spades and hoes to build an irrigation system for their fields. To bring the boon of water to thirsty people and parched fields, well-digging rigs are busy in other Latin American countries, in areas as divergent as Iran and Vietnam.

From Costa Rica to the Philippines, CARE sewing machines and hand-sewing kits have become standard equipment of community centers and vocational training classes. Newly acquired skills in sewing and other needle crafts help many girls and women to boost their family's living standards.

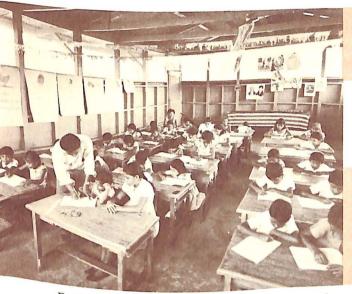

Tools, lumber, hardware and other materials provided by CARE gave fishermen in Panama, Korea, Hong Kong, Ceylon and other countries a chance to replace primitive craft with new and better boats that catch more fish to feed more people.

New skills are being taught with the aid of CARE tools to youths and adult workmen in many countries. The "Eagle House" of Catania, Sicily, is turning out highly qualified electricians at its CARE-equipped workshop.

Adult literacy is necessary for the proper use of tools. CARE books are used by Costa Rican villagers in adult education classes held at the community center which they recently erected themselves with CARE tools.

Built by the villagers themselves as part of a CARE-inspired Self-Help project, the new one-room school at San Jose, Guatemala, was equipped with 20 prefabricated desk-and-bench sets.

EDUCATION

CARE desk-and-bench sets, ready to be assembled by villagers, are implementing. Guatemala's ambitious program to construct new schools in over 400 communities.

Playground and athletic equipment is added by CARE in many lands to the classroom supplies for a newly built school, to make pupils strong and alert to grow new vegetables from CARE seeds in their school gardens, as do the boys of Santa Ana School on Mindanao Island, the Philippines.

MEDICO

Remote corners of the Malaysian jungle which can be reached only by boat are visited regularly by MED-ICO doctor-nurse teams for treatment of children and adults. In addition, MEDICO doctors at three permanent clinics in Malaysia every month see more than 2,000 outpatients each . . .

. . . Latest diagnostic and surgery techniques are being applied at the neurosurgical department recently established by an American MEDICO specialist at the General Hospital of Kuala Lumpur, capital of Malaysia . . .

"Orthopedics Overseas" is one of the several divisions of MEDICO's rotating specialists' program, under which American and Canadian doctors go abroad at their own expense for one-month periods to share their own skill and knowledge with indigenous medical personnel.

... At Quang Ngai, in South Vietnam, MEDICO doctors and nurses are fighting TB, malaria, beriberi, trachoma, yaws and other diseases prevalent among a provincial population of 700,000. Simultaneously, the MEDICO team is conducting an onthe-job training program to prepare Vietnamese nurses and midwives for much needed public health service in the hinterland

WE GRATEFULLY THANK ...

- . . . the millions of donors, who indeed are CARE, and whose voluntary donations make possible CARE deliveries to the hands of the needy overseas.
- ... national and local organizations—both CARE's member agencies and others—which once again channeled their international aid through CARE.
- . . . the thousands of active volunteers, who daily multiply our efforts—in schools, clubs, on local committees and individually.
- effective means of expressing humanitarian concern—through gifts in kind and cash contributions. The drug industry merits very special thanks.
- and TV, outdoor, car-card and display companies, The Advertising Council, Inc., and others in the communications world, whose continuing cooperation is CARE's public voice.
- the continent which save CARE costs by providing free office space, services and other facilities.
- Government, which forms the foundation of CARE's Food Crusade and partnership programs; and our host governments, for financial and other contributions.
- the U.S. and Canada, who gave so generously as individuals through the Federal Service Campaigns.
- Board of Directors, the MEDICO Advisory Board and National Advisory Committees, to give long-range shape and guidance to our program.
- teams overseas, at New York headquarters and in field offices at home—for the day-by-day work that keeps CARE aid flowing smoothly.

CARE will deliver a self-help package in your Mother's name, and CARE will notify her of your thoughtfulness.

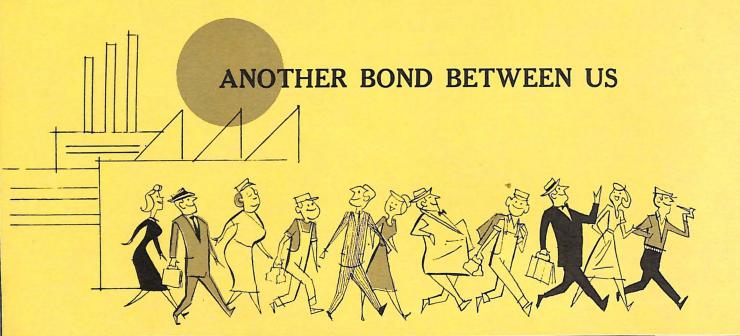

CARE equipment ranges in prices from one dollar to several thousands of dollars. You may pick the gift and the country. (Some examples are on the back). CARE does all the rest.

For information call 296-5696 or write to CARE, Washington, D. C. 20036.

We want you to feel welcome in our organization. You're in good company and we want you to share with us the bonds of friendship and cooperation that always draw people together when they're working toward a common goal.

We want you to benefit from this association right from the start. That's why we offer you yet another bond between us. One of the special benefits our employees enjoy is the opportunity to buy U. S. Savings Bonds on the Payroll Savings Plan. If you've been on this plan elsewhere, you know how handy it is. If not, here's how it works:

You simply sign a card authorizing us to save a certain part of your pay each payday. With this we buy your Bonds for you. It is the part of your takehome pay that grows, as the Bonds pile up and guaranteed interest keeps adding to their cash value. We will continue to do this for you regularly each payday.

This is the easiest way to save, because it's automatic and it's entirely safe and sure. When you join the payroll savings plan you're in good company, you're joining more than 8,000,000 working Americans who buy their Bonds this way every payday right where they work. Many millions of Americans now own Savings Bonds, their Shares in America.

Savings Bonds are bonds we share in other important ways. We all have a stake in American freedom, our good way of life that we want to make better before we pass it along to our children. When you put your savings into these Bonds you are helping your country to meet the challenges of those who would take away our freedom. Saving in Bonds is peace power. That's why we say: You save more than money when you buy and hold U. S. Savings Bonds.

HOW CARE ACTS FOR YOU

CARE helps fill gaps between what governments do and what people need for direct use and training. It goes where local sources cannot meet needs; leaves when conditions improve sufficiently.

American staff members stationed in each country report specific needs in supplies and services. Types of packages and programs vary accordingly.

When identical items are widely needed, CARE assembles standard food and tool packages — over 70 kinds. To meet urgent local needs, donated funds are used for special purchases. Packages and purchases are combined for community development and other comprehensive projects.

Relief and Self-Help supplies go to families and individuals, where practical; to institutions, training centers and communities for group benefit. Care's staff supervises all deliveries to recipients chosen solely on the basis of need.

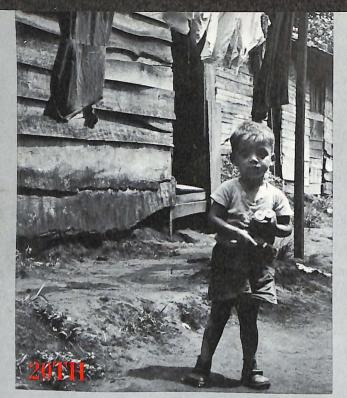

In addition to medical personnel, supplies are provided for MEDICO installations. Medical equipment also goes to independent medical services as a part of CARE'S Self-Help program.

YOU KNOW THE GOOD YOU DO

Your name and address, or that of your group, go with the CARE supplies you provide. You can be sure the people who are helped will know you, and our country, as their friends.

You may choose any of the areas listed on back cover, or kind of aid, or type of program.

However, priority needs can best be met if you let CARE decide on use of funds. All donations are acknowledged, and CARE always reports to you on how your money was used.

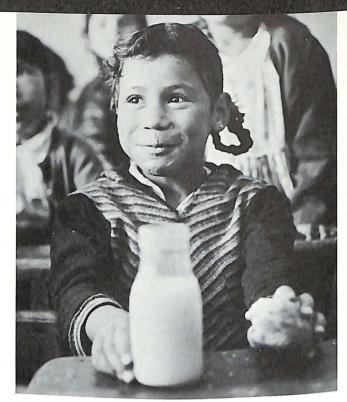

CENTURY?

One of every two persons on earth barely subsists. While we live in modern comfort, that have-not half of the world's people are ages behind. They do not have enough to eat. They earn less than $100 a year, cannot read or write. Chronic sickness steals their strength to work for a better future. Their children face a dead-end street.

These are the causes of so much unrest across the globe. Americans have never waited for the government to do everything. CARE offers a way for the American people to take a personal part in world affairs — because, as individuals, we are concerned with the welfare of all human beings; because, as citizens of a peaceful nation, we want to help build the kind of world in which peace can be achieved.

CARE supplements the international efforts of our government. It cooperates with the governments of the countries it serves. But always, CARE is people helping people — you, your associates, your fellow Americans reaching into other lands to befriend those still plagued by mankind's oldest enemies: hunger, poverty, needless disease.

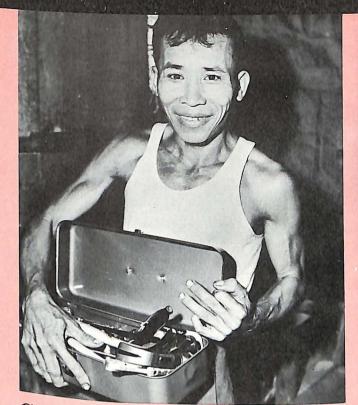

GIVE FOOD

Ever since its founding after World War II, food has been the keystone of CARE aid. Over the years, as economies recovered, service was ended in most western areas. But in lagging pockets of Europe; above all, in emerging nations of Africa, Asia, Latin America, the Middle East, food remains the vital first step toward easing human misery.

For this task the United States gives commodities from our farm abundance, so that CARE can multiply the help delivered with funds given by the public. Wherever possible the countries help too, by sharing distribution costs under "partnership plans. CARE also gets food donations from private firms, buys special items to match local needs."

At this writing, CARE food packages and programs are helping to feed 35,000,000 people every month—school children, hospital patients, orphans, refugees, disaster victims, destitute families. Through repeated deliveries as needed, the hungry are nourished to new health and energy. This is the job your dollars do when you send CARE gifts of food.

GIVE TOOLS

But freedom from hunger must take root in the people's capacity to grow, or buy, their own food in the future. Toward this goal, CARE's Self-Help program turns your dollars into tools to help the needy do the job of helping themselves:

Educational tools, to develop their abilities—supplies to equip pupils and classrooms, build more schools; literacy kits for adult classes; new books, from primers to texts to train college students.

Health tools, to safeguard and boost their vigor — pipes for water systems to replace polluted streams; sanitation facilities; medical equipment.

Seed and farm tools, to multiply their harvests—packages of assorted vegetable seeds; plows, hoes, rakes, fertilizer, livestock for farmers.

Work and training tools, to increase productivity and earning power—boats and gear for fishermen; lathes, drills, looms, saws, trowels for carpenters, electricians, masons, mechanics and other artisans.

GIVE SKILLS

In its feeding programs, CARE organizes the assistance of local officials, institution staffs, volunteer committees — teaching them the skills to conduct their own food relief programs when conditions permit. When CARE delivers educational, farm or vocational equipment, it enables people to learn and apply the skills by which they can support themselves and improve their communities.

In the field of health, skills are shared even more directly. Through MEDICO, a service of CARE, your contribution sends doctors, surgeons, nurses and technicians to treat the sick; help establish and staff clinics and hospitals; train local counterparts who will maintain modern medical services.

Whatever supplies you provide are delivered in your name. The Americans in charge of CARE and MEDICO missions are on the scene as your representatives. Thus, your CARE gifts of food, tools and skills are combined in a personal expression of America's desire to help the needy build a better life, in a world that will be better for all of us.

Over the years of its operations, CARE has been commended by President Harry S. Truman, President Dwight D. Eisenhower, and the late President John F. Kennedy. CONGRESSIONAL MEDAL OF HONOR GROVE A General Federation of Women's Clubs Project

1964 - 1966

The GENERAL FEDERATION OF WOMEN'S CLUBS has undertaken the establishment of the CONGRESSIONAL MEDAL OF HONOR GROVE at Freedoms Foundation located at Valley Forge, Pennsylvania. As Virginia's State Congressional Medal of Honor Grove Chairman, in conjunction with the GFWC, I have compiled this booklet containing information of Virginia Medal of Honor Recipients.

My thanks go to the Army and Navy Medal of Honor publications, the personnel of Fort Monroe, the personnel of the Mariners Museum Library and the GFWC Staff Coordinator.

THE MEDAL OF HONOR GROVE

As I walked alone through the quiet woods, I marveled at what I saw, The handwork of God was everywhere, Beauty - without a flaw.

Trees that have stood for hundreds of years Are standing still today, Waiting to cast their shadows So soft, so cool, so gray.

Waiting to cast their shadows
On a traveler tired and worn,
Offering their splendid solace
To those who have come to mourn.

For on each of these trees there is a placque That bears a hero's name, Who answered when his country called Who gave no thought to fame.

These men were the bravest of the brave, They risked their lives and limbs, To keep this beloved country of ours Free from oppressors' whims.

Many a brave man lost his life, And many more were maimed, While helping to protect this land, While keeping lit - the Flame.

The Flame of Freedom - it must burn bright For all who love this land, This land that was won by sweat and tears And gnarled and calloused hands.

Be ever wary and always alert
To dangers that lurk close by,
The Flame of Freedom must ever burn bright
And Freedom must be our cry!

Katherine J. Wilem November 1964

CONGRESSIONAL MEDAL OF HONOR GROVE

The course of history of our country has been charted by the lives of men who, loving liberty more than life, have donned the honored uniform of our armed forces and manned the ramparts of freedom from Bunker Hill in 1775 to Viet Nam today. The heroic deeds of these men are a source of inspiration to all Americans and have provided an exemplary example to the nation's youth.

To provide a fitting memorial to these valiant men who, in conflict with the enemy, have distinguished themselves conspiciously by gallantry and intrepidity at the risk of their lives above and beyond the call of duty and to keep ever alive the records of their bravery and sacrificial devotion to duty, FREEDOM FOUNDATION AT VALLEY FORCE is establishing at the American Center the CONGRESSIONAL MEDAL OF HONOR GROVE.

Fifty-two acres, encompassing the streams and hills hallowed by the early patriots of the Revolutionary War, have been set aside, one section for each of the fifty states, Puerto Rico and the District of Columbia, as a permanent memorial to the recipients of the nation's highest military award, the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Here a living tree will be marked in perpetuity with the name of each of the some three thousand medal recipients and in an appropriate building will be housed the records of their heroic deeds. The history of every other military decoration will be suitably recorded. This grove will become a great national shrine of impelling and patriotic significance to all Americans.

The Grove will contain formal gardens dedicated to America's heroes. Several miles of winding paths will connect the fifty-two separate areas with their memorials to the men who have been accorded our Nation's highest recognition for valor.

This project is being carried out in cooperation with the Congressional Medal of Honor Society which is lending its full support to providing this exclusive permanent memorial to these American heroes.

The work of the Freedoms Foundation, under the leadership of its Chairman, General Dwight D. Eisenhower, and President, Dr. Kenneth D. Wells, is well known to many of the members of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. On a number of occasions in past years our organization has been represented by its principal officers on the annual National and School Awards juries selecting recipients of the Foundation's annual awards to individuals, organizations and schools for outstanding work on behalf of a better understanding of the American Way of Life.

This new and exciting project to provide a memorial to our country's heroes is one which deserves the full support of every concerned American.

The women of the nation, who in times of war and conflict have steadfastly stood behind their sons, husbands and fathers, are invited to participate with other Americans in this great undertaking.

The General Federation of Women's Clubs, with the help of the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs has an unique opportunity for a national project which will bring the Congressional Medal of Honor Grove into reality. A national effort resulting in contributions of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($150,000.00) would provide for the clearing of this fifty-two acre area and for the construction of the central building for this facility.

HOW THE MEDAL CAME INTO BEING

The Medal of Honor was not the idea of any one American. Like most of the ideas which have flowered into institutions and practices in our nation, it was the result of group thought and action.

Senator James W. Grimes, of Iowa, took the lead, as chairman of the Senate Naval Committee. He introduced a bill into Congress to create a Navy Medal. It was passed by both Houses and approved by President Abraham Lincoln on December 21, 1861. It established a Medal of Honor for enlisted men of the Navy—the first decoration formally aurhorized by the American Government to be worn as a badge of honor.

Action on the Army Medal was started two months later, when, on February 17, 1862, Senator Henry Wilson of Massachusetts, introduced a Senate resolution providing for presentation of "medals of honor" to enlisted men of the Army and Voluntary Forces who "shall most distinguish themselves by their gallantry in action, and other soldier-like qualities."

Lincoln's approval made the resolution law on July 12, 1862. It was amended on March 3, 1863, which extended its provisions to include officers as well as enlisted men, and made the provisions retroactive to the beginning of the Civil War.

This legislation was to stand as the basis upon which the Army Medal of Honor could be awarded until July 9, 1918 when it was superseded by a completely revised statue. (For authorative description of these changes see the Army publication "The Medal of Honor".)

The Army Medal of Honor has been changed four times since its beginning. The original Medal was designed by Christian Schussell. The Medal was redesigned in 1904 by General George L. Gillespie and this Medal was patented December 19, 1904. General Gillespie transferred his patent "to W. H. Taft and his successor or successors as Secretary of War of the United States." Thus the final step was taken to protect the Medal of Honor.

ARMY MEDAL OF HONOR

The Army Medal of Honor is a bronze five-pointed star, resting on a laurel wreath enameled in green, while on each ray of the star is a green oak leaf. The center has the head of Minerva in a circle bearing the words "United States of America". It hangs from a bar surmounted by an American Eagle and this bears the word "VALOR". The reverse side of the bar is engraved with the words "The Congress to-----"followed by the grade, name, and organization of the recipient, with the place and date of the act for which the award was granted. In the event of a second award a bronze oak leaf cluster is worn on the ribbon.

NAVY MEDAL OF HONOR

The Navy Medal of Honor is symbolically designed with the star-shaped medal showing the figure of Minerva (the Union) "wise in the industries of peace and the arts of war". Encircled by the stars of the 34 states of 1861, she holds in her left hand the fasces (badge of authority). The shield in her right hand is driving off the serpents held by the crouching figure of "Discord". The Navy Medal hangs from its ribbon by an anchor.

Unlike lesser awards, the Medal of Honor is not pinned to the chest, but is hung around the neck on a blue, star-studded ribbon or, more often, is signified by a modest light-blue cloth bar. On civilian clothes, the Medal is represented by a lapel rosette of light-blue silk with 13 stars.

Any way you look at it, when viewing a Medal of Honor Winner, you are looking at one of the bravest men you will ever see!

WHAT IS THE MEDAL OF HONOR?

He who possesses the Medal of Honor is the holder of the highest military award for bravery that can be given to any individual in the United States of America.

This symbol of bronze, bestows upon the man who has won it a great privilege——that of sharing in the company of the few heroes who have been honored by the award of the same Medal he wears.

It is to define and illuminate the place in history which belongs only to winners of the Medal of Honor that this article is written.

The Medal of Honor was won in only one way during World War I and World War II. That was by a deed of personal bravery or self-sacrifice, above and beyond the call of duty, while a member of the American armed forces, in actual combat with an enemy of the Nation.

In their provisions for judging whether a man is entitled to the Medal, Army Regulations permit no margin of doubt or error. The deed of the winner must be proved by incontestable evidence of at least two eye-witnesses; it must be so outstanding that it clearly distinguishes his gallantry beyond the call of duty from lesser forms of bravery; it must involve the risk of his life; and it must be the type of deed which, if he had not done it, would not subject him to any justified criticism.

A recommendation for the Medal must be made in two (2) years from the date of the deed upon which it depends. Award of the Medal must be made within three (3) years after the date of the deed.

Apart from the great honor which it conveys, there are certain privileges which accompany the Medal of Honor. Its winners can, under certain conditions, obtain free Army plane transportation. Their military pay, if they are enlisted men, is increased by $2.00 per month. And former soldiers who have won the Medal are eligible, upon reaching age 65, for a special pension of $120.00 per year.

The Medal of Honor is presented to its winners in Washington by the President if at all possible, or by a high official "in the name of the Congress of the United States." For this reason it is sometimes called the Congressional Medal of Honor."

It should be noted that on a few, rare occasions, the Congress of the United States has awarded special Medals of Honor for individual exploits taking place in peace-time. However, in peace or war, this Medal is the highest decoration which can be given in any of the armed services—Army, Navy, Marines or Air Force.

THE CIVIL WAR

From the bombardment of Fort Sumter on April 12, 1861 to the surrender of General Robert E. Lee on April 9, 1865 at Appomattox, Virginia represented four of the bloddiest years in American history.

Brother fought against brother and father against son. Each certain that his cause was just. As is the case in all major conflicts, there was a physical symbol for what each man was fighting for. During the Civil War it was the Flag. The Union soldiers carried into battle the Stars and Stripes of the Union Army while our Confederate soldiers fought bravely under the flag of the Confederacy.

The flag was always present, visible to the men who fought under it. As the men charged forward with smashing cavalry charges and blaring bugles in the battles of Bull Run, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg and countless others, their flags went forward with them in the front ranks. As long as it was held aloft it was a weapon as surely as the atom bomb is today, possibly more so, because the bomb itself can only explode and pass into eternity, its mission accomplished while the flag was a physical symbol of right. If, during battle, the flag bearer was killed or wounded and the flag fell, men rushed madly to retrieve it and hold it aloft again. The hottest hand-to-hand fighting was around the flag. When the flag was captured, it was a disgrace. For these reasons, most of the citations of the Civil War hinge around incidents involving the flag.

On April 17, 1861 Virginia seceded from the Union and Richmond became the capitol of the Confederacy. The state suffered severely as the chief battle-ground of the Civil War.

Not all Virginia, however, agreed with the cause of the Confederacy and many of these men joined forces with the Union Army. It is the records of these men that are listed in this booklet as no Confederate soldier or sailor from Virginia won the Medal of Honor as this was a United States award.

It should be noted that the birthplace of some of the Civil War Medal of Honor recipients are counties located in what is now West Virginia. When these men entered the war, these counties were then a part of Virginia.

CIVIL WAR MEDAL OF HONOR WINNERS

GARVIN, William, United States Navy
Captain of Forecastle
Born: Virginia, 1835
Date Presented: December 31, 1864
CITATION

"Garvin served on board the U.S.S. AGAWAM, as one of a volunteer crew on a powder boat which was exploded near Fort Fisher, December 12, 1864. The powder boat, towed in by the WILDERNESS to prevent detection by the enemy, cast off and slowly steamed to within 300 yards of the beach. After fuses and fires had been lit and a second anchor with short scope let go to assure the boat's tailing inshore, the crew again boarded the WILDERNESS and proceeded a distance of 12 miles from shore. Less than 2 hours later the explosion took place, and the following day fires were observed still burning at the forts."

GODLEY, Leonidas M.
First Sergeant, Company E, 22nd Iowa Infantry
Place: Vicksburg, Mississippi; May 22, 1863
Born: Mason County, Virginia
Date Presenred: August 3, 1897
CITATION

THE INDIAN WARS

17.

The Civil War was over. Both men in Gray and men in Blue trudged wearily back to their homes. As these men dragged themselves along, their despair deepened. Many of the railroads and bridges had been burned and the roads were in disrepair. Public buildings had been destrived and homes and farmlands laid to ruin.

While our people were attempting to push ahead with reconstruction, the Regular Army resumed its task of making the frontier safe for settlers.

The leather-skinned, iron-legged cavalrymen had the job to break up Indian formations before they could do damage and to pursue and punish those who had done damage. There were hundreds of minor engagements with the Indians between the end of the Civil War and the beginning of the Spanish-American conflict with little attention or publicity. Many of these brave cavalrymen died in the hot Arizona sun or the bitter whirling Nebraska snow in battles with the Apaches, Commanches, Sioux and many other hostile tribes.

Some of these men won the Medal of Honor. There was little public ceremony then as the Commanding Officer in the West forwarded the applications to Washington. If they were approved, the Medals were sent by Registered mail to the army posts. The Army administration was still developing and had not completed the full organization of the Medal of Honor presentation as described in earlier pages. The citations, scanty as they are, when fitted together with other historical data, can give us a picture of the deeds of these heroic men.

SPANISH-AMERICAN CONFLICT

The citations of the Medal of Honor recipients of the Spanish-American War are sketchy in detail and read with almost monotonous regularity... "Gallantly assisted in rescue of the wounded from in front of the lines and while under heavy fire from the enemy... Gallantly assisted in the rescue...."

The records, scanty as they are, provide the clues, which, when fitted together with other historical accounts will give us a picture of the deeds of these men.

The immediate cause of the Spanish-American War was the condition on the island of Cuba. The Cuban people realized that they had been governed unfairly by Spain. They often rose up in rebellion, came down from their mountain hiding places and burned property of the Spaniards. But they were never able to hold out long. Every time they rose in revolt, some of them were captured and their leaders shot.

Sympathy was with the Cuban revolution and was one of the causes of the Spanish-American War. Another cause was that American property was destroyed by the Spanish and the revolutionists. The Spanish government could not stop this destruction so the Americans who owned the property asked the United States to intervene.

The American Navy was fairly well prepared, except that it had little ammunition. This was the first war in which our modern battleships were used. The Navy would be depended on more than ever before for the enemy was at a great distance.

The Army was not so well prepared. There were not enough railroads to carry the men to their ships, the officers and men were often separated, the soldiers were in one place and their supplies were in another and although the climate was quite warm the men were dressed in heavy woolen uniforms.

During the 20 steaming days of jungle fighting, which ended in the surrender of the city of Santiago de Cuba, the infabtry charged the entrenched Spanish positions, causing heavy losses and the eventual bottling up of the Spaniards in Santiago. There the artillery, bombarding the city, forced its surrender.

The main American attacks were upon San Juan Hill and the blockhouse of El Caney. These attacks were delivered on July 1, 1898, and most of the Army Medals of Honor awarded were for deeds of the self-sacrifice that took place on that date.

BOXER REBELLION (CHINA RELIEF EXPEDITION)

In 1894 China and Japan became involved in a war over Korea, in which China was defeated, and by the Treaty of Cheefoo, 1895, she was obliged to cede Formosa and certain parts of the Liaotung peninsula to Japan. New treaty ports were also opened to the world trade. Russia obtained a twenty-five year lease of Port Arthur and adjoining territory; England, to counterbalance this, secured the port of Wei-Lai-wei across the straits from Port Arthur. France secured a long lease of the coast of the Bay of Kwang-chan-wan. These various concessions aroused the anti-foreign element in China and led to the Boxer uprising in 1900. The armies and navies of the United States, France, Great Britain, Russia and Japan marched upon Pekin to protect their legations. With the restoration of peace, all foreign troops were withdrawn save those of Russia which remained in Manchuria for the alleged purpose of guarding the railway.

PHILLIPINE INSURRECTION

At the conclusion of the Spanish-American War, December 10, 1898, the Phillipines, the Sulu Archipelago and other territory were ceded to the United States upon payment of the sum of $20,000,000. Aguinaldo then returned to the islands and raised a formidable insurrection, but in time he was defeated and taken prisoner.

WAR WITH MEXICO

In April 1914, United States Marines who landed at Tampico to purchase supplies, were arrested. As an apology, General Victoriana Huerta, Provisional President, was ordered to salute the American Flag by Admiral Mayo, commanding the United States Fleet. This he refused to do, and so the United States Marines entered Vera Cruz and remained in possession of the city for seven months.

During 1916 a number of American citizens were slain and property was stolen and destroyed along the international border by Mexican bandits. In March a raid, thought to have been inspired by Villa, was made at Columbus, New Mexico. Carranza was either unwilling or unable to cope with the bandits, so President Wilson of the United States ordered General John J. Pershing with some 6,000 troops to invade Mexico in search of Villa. This expedition penetrated Mexico some 500 miles. Carranza objected to the presence of the American troops, but offered no further resistance to their presence. The expedition was withdrawn in February 1917. During this period some 50,000 to 100,000 American troops were stationed along the border for several months.

22,1914. In command of the Second Regiment Marines Lt. Col Neville was in both day's fighting, and almost continually under fire from soon after landing, about noon on the 21st, until we were in possession of the city, about noon of the 22nd. His duties required him to be at points of great danger in directing his officers and men and he exhibited conspicious courage, coolness and skill in his conduct of the fighting. Upon his courage and skill depended, in great measure, success or failure. His responsibilities were great and he met then in a manner worth commendation."

HAITIAN CAMPAIGN

For many years the government of Haiti was far from stable and anything but honest. Presidents were assassinated and an honest election was unknown. Finally in 1915, conditions became so bad that intervention by the United States became necessary in order to forestall similar action by some European power. In November of that year both Houses of the Haitian Congress ratified a treaty with the United States by which the latter agreed to assist in the establishment of responsible, orderly government. American occupation of Haiti ended in 1934.

HAITIAN CAMPAIGN MEDAL OF HONOR WINNER

UPSHUR, William Peterkin Captain, United States Marine Corps Born: Richmond, Virginia, October 28,1881 CITATION

WORLD WAR I

America entered a new kind of war in 1917. A war without smashing cavalary charges and without bugles. New scientific advantages and industrial development increased the horror of this war ten-fold. With the coming of mobilization and the use of gas, man no longer could fight this battle as he had in previous wars. Hard fighting took place in muddy trenches and sun baked plains, green fields and thick forrests on the Western Front, the Italian Front, the Turkish Front and Balkan Front.

In this war the unrestricted use of the submarine by Germany was a prime factor. Many tons of shipping and countless lives were lost when our convoys were attacked by the U-Boats.

For the purpose of the History of the Medal of Honor, it must be noted that two developments in over-all conduct of the war came about following America's declaration of war upon the Central Powers. Both are important as they had a great effect upon the course of American fighting.

- 1. American troops would fight as a unit, and
- 2. Taking the war out of the trenches and carrying it to the enemy.

GREGORY, Earl D.

Sergeant, Headquarters Company, 116th Infantry, 29th Division Place: Bois-de-Consenvoye (North of Verdun, France) October 8, 1918

Born: Chase City, Virginia

Date Presented: 1919

CITATION

"With the remark "I will get them", Sgt. Gregory seized a rifle and a trench-mortar shell, which he used as a hand grenade, left his detachment of the trench-mortar platoon, and, advancing ahead of the infantry, captured a machine gun and three of the enemy. Advancing still farther from the machine gun nest, he captured a 7.5 centimeter mountain howitzer and, entering a dugout in the immediate vicinity, single-handed captured 19 of the enemy."

WORLD WAR II

From December 7, 1941, when the Japanese made a sneak attack on Pearl Harbor, to September 2, 1945, when aboard the Battleship USS MISSOURI, in Tokyo Bay, when the Japanese signed the formal surrender document, America strove on many fronts to realize the objective proclaimed in the closing words of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's War Message to Congress "....we will gain the inevitable triumph, so help us God."

In gaining that triumph, the American armed forces lost more men on more fronts, fighting more enemies than ever before in history. Some of these men did far more than their duty and rose to the heights of heroism. It is the records of these men, gallant Virginians, the recipients of the highest military award for bravery that this country can give, that follow. Their names and their deeds have been placed in the records and speak for themselves.

These Virginians "for conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity at the risk of life above and beyond the call of duty" shall forever be enshrined in the hearts of their countrymen. Five of the eleven recipients received posthumous awards.

The Freedom we enjoy today was paid for by these men and countless other Americans.

The men listed in this booklet are members of the small number who are entitled to the highest award their nation can give them...the Medal of Honor.

CRAW, Demas T.

Colonel, United States Air Corps

Place: Near Port Lyautey, French Moracco - November 8, 1942 Born: Michigan - (Accredited to Charlottesville, Virginia)

Date Presented: March 4, 1943 - Posthumously

CITATION

"For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity in action above and beyond the call of duty. On 8 November 1942, near Port Lyautey, French Moracco, Colonel Craw volunteered to accompany the leading wave of assault boats to the shore and pass through the enemy lines to locate the French commander with a view to suspending hostilities. This request was first refused as being too dangerous but upon the officer's insistence that he was qualified to undertake and accomplish the mission, he was allowed to go. Encountering heavy fire while in the landing boat and unable to dock in the river because of shell fire from shore batteries, Colonel Craw, accompanied by one officer and one soldier, succeeded in landing on the beach at Mehdia Plage under constant low level strafing from enemy planes. Riding in a bantam truck toward French Headquarters, progress of the party was hindered by fire from our own Naval guns. Nearing Port Lyautey, Colonel Craw was instantly killed by a sustained burst of machine gun fire at point-blank range from a concealed position near the road."

DERVISHIAN, Ernest H.
2nd Lieutenant, 34th Infantry Division, United States Army Place: Near Cisterna, Italy; May 23, 1944
Born: Richmond, Virginia
Date Presented: January 8, 1945

"For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity at risk of life above and beyond the call of duty on 23 May 1944, in the vicinity of Cisterna, Italy. 2nd Lt. Dervishian (then Technical Sergeant) and four members of his platoon found themselves far ahead of their company after an aggressive advance in the face of the enemy artillery and sniper fire. Approaching a railroad embankment, they observed a force of German soldiers hiding in dugouts. Lt. Dervishian, directing his men to cover him, boldly moved forward and firing his carbine forced 10 Germans to surrender. His men then advanced and captured 15 more Germans occupying adjacent dugouts. The prisoners were returned to the rear to be picked up by advancing units. From the railroad embankment, Lt. Dervishian and his men then observed 9 Germans who were fleeing across a ridge. He and his men opened fire and 3 of the enemy were wounded. As his men were firing, Lt. Dervishian. unnoticed, fearlessly dashed forward alone and captured all of the fleeing enemy before his companions joined him on the ridge. At this point four other men joined Lt. Dervishian's group. An attempt was made to send the four newly arrived men along the left flank of a large, dense vineyard that lay ahead, but murderous machine-gun fire forced tham back. Deploying his men, Lt. Dervishian moved to the front of his group and led the advance into the vineyard, He and his men suddenly became pinned down by a machine gun firing at them at a distance of 15 yards. Feigning death, while the hostile weapon blazed away at him, Lt. Dervishian assaulted the position during a halt in the firing, using a hand grenade and carbine fire, and forced the four German crew members to surrender. The four men on the left flank were now ordered to enter the vineyard but encountered machine-gun fire which killed one soldier and wounded another.

At this moment the enemy intensified the fight by throwing potato-masher grenades at the valient band of Americans within the vinevard. Lt. Dervishian ordered his men to withdraw; but instead of following, jumped into the machinegun position he had just captured and opened fire with the enemy weapon in the direction of the second hostile machine-gun nest. Observing movement in a dugout 2 or 3 yards to the rear, Lt. Dervishian seized a machine pistol. Simultaneously blazing away at the entrance of the dugout to prevent its occupants from firing and firing his machine gun at the other German nest, he forced 5 Germans in each position to surrender. Determined to rid the area of all Germans. Lt. Dervishian continued his advance alone. Noticing another machine-gun position beside a house, he picked up an abandoned machine pistol and forced 6 more Germans to surrender by spraying their position with fire. Unable to locate additional targets in the vicinity, Lt. Dervishian conducted these prisoners to the rear. The prodigious courage and combat skill exhibited by It. Dervishian are exemplary of the finest traditions of the Armed Forces of the United States."

DOSS, Desmond T.
Private First Class, Medical Detachment, 307th Infantry, 77th Infantry Division, United States Army
Place: Near Urasoe-Mura, Okinawa, Ryuku Islands; April 29 to May 21, 1945
Born: Lynchburg, Virginia
Date Presented: November 1, 1945
CITATION

"He was a company aid man when the First Battalion assaulted a jagged escarpment 400 feet high. As our troops gamed the summit; a heavy concentration of artillery, mortar, and machine-gun fire crashed into them; inflicting approximately 75 casualties and driving the others back. Private Doss refused to seek cover and remained in the fire-swept area with the many stricken, carrying them one by one to the edge of the escarpment and there lowering them on a rope supported litter down the face of the cliff to friendly hands. On 2 May, he exposed himself to heavy rifle fire and mortar fire in rescuing a wounded man 200 yards forward of the lines on the same escarpment; and two days later he treated 4 men who had been cut down while assaulting a strongly defended cave. advancing through a shower of grenades to within 8 yards of enemy forces in a cave's mouth, where he dressed his comrades' wounds before making four separate trips under fire to evacuate them to safety. On 5 May, he unhesitantly braved enemy shelling and small-arms fire to assist an artillery officer. He applied bandages, moved his aptient to a spot that offered protection from small-arms fire and, while artillery and mortar shells fell close by, painstakingly administered plasma. Later that day, when an American was severly wounded by fire from a cave, Pvt. Doss crawled to him where he had fallen 25 feet from the enemy position, rendered aid, and carried him 100 yards to safety while continually exposed to enemy fire. On 21 May, in a night attack on high ground near Shuri. he remained in exposed territory while the rest of his company took cover, fearlessly risking the chance that he would be mistaken for an infiltrating Japanese and giving aid to the injured until he himself was seriously wounded in the legs by the explosion of a grenade. Rather than call another aid man from cover, he cared for his own injuries and waited five hours before litter bearers reached him and started carrying him to cover. The trio was caught in an enemy tank attack and Pvt. Doss, seeing a more critically wounded man nearby, crawled off the litter and directed the bearers to give their first attention to the other man. Awaiting the litter-bearers' return, he was again struck, this time suffering a compound fracture of one arm. With magnificent fortitude he bound a rifle stock to his shattered arm as a splint and then crawled 300 yards over rough terrain to the aid station. Through his outstanding bravery and unflinching determination in the face of desperately dangerous conditions, Private Doss saved the lives of many soldiers. His name became a symbol throughout the 77th Infantry Division for outstanding gallantry far above and beyond the call of duty."

GAMMON, Archer T.
Staff Dergeant, Company A, 9th Armored Infantry Battalion, 6th Armored Division, United States Army
Place: Near Bastogne, Belgium; January 11, 1945
Born: Chatham, Virginia
Date Presented: February 13, 1945 - Posthumously
CITATION

"He charged 30 yards through hip-deep snow to knock out a machine-gun and its three man crew with grenades, saving his platoon from being decimated and allowing it to continue its advance from an open field into some near-by woods. The platoon's advance through the woods had only begun when a machine-gun supported by riflemen opened fire and a Tiger Royal tank sent 88 mm. shells screaming at the unit from the left flank. Sgt. Gammon, disregarding all thoughts of personal safety, rushed forward, then cut to the left, crossing the width of the platoon's skirmish line in an attempt to get within grenade range of the tank and its protecting foot troops. Intense fire was concentrated on him by riflemen and the machine-gun emplaced near the tank. He charged the automatic weapon, wiped out its crew of four with grenades, and, with supreme daring, advanced to within 25 yards of the armored vehicle, killing two hostile infantrymen with rifle fire as he moved forward. The tank had started to withdraw, backing a short distance, then firing, backing some more, and then stopping to blast out another round, when the man whose single-handed relentless attack had put the ponderous machine on the defensive was struck and instantly killed by a direct hit from the Tiger Royal's heavy gun. By his intrepidity and extreme devotion to the task of driving the enemy back no matter what the odds, Sgt. Gammon cleared the woods of German forces, for the tank continued to withdraw, leaving open the path for the gallant squad leader's platoon."

MONTEITH, Jimmie W., Jr.
First Lieutenant, 16th Infantry, 1st Infantry Division, United States Army Place: Near Colleville-sur-Mer, France; June 6, 1944
Born: Low Moor, Virginia
CITATION

"For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity above and beyond the call of duty on 6 June 1944, near Colleville-sur-Mer, France. 1st Lt. Monteith landed with the initial assault waves on the coast of France under heavy enemy fire. Without regard to his own personal safety he continually moved up and down the beach reorganizing men for further assault. He then led the assault over a narrow protective ledge and across the flat, exposed terrain to the comparative safety of a cliff. Retracing his steps across the field to the beach, he moved over to where two tanks were buttoned up and blind under violent enemy artillery and machine-gun fire. Completely exposed to the intense fire, Lt. Monteith led the tanks on foot through a minefield and into firing positions. Under his direction several positions were destroyed. He then rejoined his company and under his leadership his men captured an advantageous position on the hill. Supervising the defense of his newly won position against repeated vicious counter-attacks, he continued to ignore his own safety, repeatedly crossing the two or three hundred yards of open terrain under heavy fire to strengthen links in his defensive chain. When the enemy succeeded in completely surrounding 1st Lt. Monteith and his unit and while leading the fight out of the situation, 1st Lt. Monteith was killed by enemy fire. The courage, gallantry, and intrepid leadership displayed by 1st Lt. Monteith is worthy of emulation."

NETT, Robert B.
Captain, Company E, 305th Infantry, 77th Infantry Division, United States Army Place: Near Cognon, Leyte - Phillipine Island; December 14, 1944
Born: New Haven, Conn. (Accredited to Lynchburg, Virginia)
Date Presented: February 8, 1946
CITATION

"He commanded Company E in an attack against a reinforced enemy battalion which had held up the American advance for 2 days from its entrenched positions around a three-story concrete building. With another infantry company and armored vehicles, Vo. E advanced against heavy machine-gun and other automatic weapons fire with Lt. Nett spearheading the assault against the strongpoint. During the fierce hand-to-hand encounter which ensued, he killed seven deeply entrenched Japanese with his rifle and bayonet and, although seriously wounded, gallantly continued to lead his men forward, refusing to relinquish his command. Again he was severly wounded, but, still unwilling to retire, pressed ahead with his troops to assure the capture of the objective. Wounded once more in the final assault, he calmly made all arrangements for the resumption of the advance, turned over his command to another officer, and then walked unaided to the rear for medical treatment. By his remarkable courage in continuing forward through sheer determination despite successive wounds, Lt. Nett provided an inspiring example for his men and was instrumental in the capture of a vital strongpoint."

PEREGORY, Frank D.
Technical Sergeant, 116th Infantry, 29th Infantry Division, United States Army Place: Grand-campe, France; June 8, 1944
Born: Albermarle, Virginia
Date Presented: May 30, 1945
CITATION

"On 8 June 1944, the Third Battalion of the ll6th Infantry was advancing on the strongly held German defenses at Grand-campe, France, when the leading elements were suddenly halted by decimating machine-gun fire from a firmly entrenched enemy force on the high ground overlooking the town. After numerous attempts to neutralize the enmy position by supporting artillery and tank fire had proven ineffective, Sgt. Peregory, on his own initiative, advanced up the hill under withering fire, and worked his way to the crest where he discovered an entrenchment leading to the main enemy fortifications 200 yards away. Without hesitating, he leaped into the trench and moved toward the emplacement. Encountering a squad of enemy riflemen, he fearlessly attacked them with hand grenades and bayonet, killed eight and forced three to surrender. Continuing along the trench, he single-handedly forced the surrender of 32 more riflemen, captured the machine-gunners, and opened the way for the leading elements of the battalion to advance and secure its objective. The extraordinary gallantry and aggressiveness displayed by Sgt. Peregory are exemplary of the highest traditions of the armed forces."

SARNOSKI, Joseph R.

Second Lieutenant, United States Air Corps

Place: Over Buka Area, Solomon Islands; June 16, 1943 Born: Pennsylvania, (Accredited to Richmond, Virginia)

CITATION

"For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity in action above and beyond the call of duty. On 16 June 1943, Second Lieutenant Sarnoski volunteered as bombardier of a crew on an important phoyographic mapping mission covering the heavily defended Buka Area, Solomon Islands. When the mission was nearly completed, about 20 enemy fighters intercepted. At the nose guns, Second Lieutenant Sarnoski fought off the first attackers, making it possible for the pilot to finish the plotted course. When a co-ordinated frontal attack by the enemy extensively damaged his bomber, and seriously injured five of his crew, Second Lieutenant Sarnoski, though wounded, continued firing and shot down two enemy planes. A 20-millimeter shell which burst in the nose of the bomber knocked him into the catwalk under the cockpit. With indomitable fighting spirit, he crawled back to his post and kept firing until he collapsed on his guns. Second Lieutenant Sarnoski by resolute defense of his aircraft at the price of his life, made possible the completion of a vitally important mission."

STREET, George Levick, III
Commander, United States Navy
Born: Richmond, Virginia, July 27, 1913
Other Navy Awards: Navy Cross, Silver Star with one Gold Star
CITATION

"For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity at the risk of his life above and beyond the call of duty as Commanding Officer of the U.S.S. TIRANTE during the First War Patrol of that vessel against enemy Japanese surface forces in the Harbor of Quelpart Island, off the coast of Korea, on April 14, 1945. With the crew at surface battle stations, Commander (then Lt. Commander) Street approached the hostile anchorage from the south within 1,200 yards off the coast to complete a reconnoitering circuit of the Island. Leaving the 10 fathom curve far behind, he penetrated the mined and shoal obstructed waters of the restricted harbor despite numerous patrolling vessels and in defiance of five shore-based radar stations and menacing aircraft. Prepared to fight it out on the surface if attacked, Commander Street went into action, sending 2 torpedos with deadly accuracy into a large Japanese ammunition ship and exploding the target in a mountainous and blinding glare of white flames. With the TIRANTE instantly spotted by the enemy, as she stood out plainly in the flare of light, he ordered the torpedo data computer set up while retiring and fired his last two torpedos to disintegrate in quick succession the leading frigate and a similar flanking vessel. Clearing the gutted harbor at emergency full-speed-ahead, he slipped undetected along the shore line, diving deep as a pursuing patrol dropped a pattern of depth charges at the point of submergence. His illustrious record of combat achievement during the First War Patrol of the TIRANTE charaterizes Commander Street as a daring and skilled leader and reflects the highest credit upon himself, his valient command and the United States Naval Services."

VANDEGRIFT, Alexander Archer
Major General, United States Marine Corps
Born: Charlottesville, Virginia, March 13, 1887
Other Navy Awards: Navy Cross, Distinguished Service Medal with one Gold Star

"For outstanding and heroic accomplishment above and beyond the call of duty as Commanding Officer of the First Marine Division in operations against enemy Japanese forces in the Solomon Islands during the period 7 August to 9 December 1942. With the adverse factors of weather, terrain and disease making his task a difficult and hazardous undertaking, and with his command eventually including sea, land and air forces of Army, Navy and Marine Corps, Major General Vandegrift achieved marked success in commanding the initial landings of the United States Forces in the Solomon Islands and in their subsequent occupation. His tenacity, courage and resourcefulness prevailed against a strong, determined and experienced enemy, and the gallant fighting spirit of the men under his inspiring leadership enabled them to withstand aerial. land and sea bombardment, to surmount all obstacles and leave a disorganized and ravaged enemy. This dangerous but vital mission, accomplished at the constant risk of his life, resulted in securing a valuable base for further operations of our forces against the enemy, and its successful completion reflects great credit upon Major General Vandegrift, his command and

"For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity above and beyond the call of duty in action with the enemy near Rabaul, New Britain, on 2 November 1943. Leading his squadron in an attack on shipping in Simpson Harbor, during which intense antiaircraft fire was expected, Major Wilkins briefed his squadron so that his airplane would be in the position of greatest risk. His squadron was the last of three in the group to enter the target area. Smoke from bombs dropped by preceding aircraft necessitated a last-second revision of tactics on his part, which still enables his squadron to strike vital shipping targets. but forced it to approach through concentrated fire, and increased the danger of Major Wilkins' left flank position. His airplane was hit almost immediately, the right wing damaged, and control rendered extremely difficult. Although he could have withdrawn, he held fast and led his squadron into the attack. He strafed a group of small harbor vessels, and the, at low level, attacked an enemy destroyer. His 1,000 pound bomb struck squarely amidships, causing the vessel to explode. Although antiaircraft fire from this vessel had seriously damaged his left vertical stabilizer, he refused to deviate from the course. From below-masthead height he attacked a transport of some 9,000 tons, scoring a hit which engulfed the ship in flames. Bombs expended, he began to withdraw his squadron. A heavy cruiser barred the path. Unhesitatingly, to neutralize the cruiser's guns and attract its fire, he went in for a strafing run. His damaged stabilizer was completely shot off. To avoid swerving into his wing planes he had to turn so as to expose the belly and full wing surfaces of his plane to the enemy fire; it caught and crumpled his left wing. Now past control. the bomber crashed into the sea. In the fierce engagement Major Wilkins destroyed two enemy vessels, and his herioc self-sacrifice made possible the safe withdrawal of the remaining planes of his squadron."

KOREAN WAR

The Republic of Korea was invaded June 25, 1950 by over 6,000 North Korean troops spear-headed by over 100 Russian-built tanks. The United Nations Security Council demanded cessation of hostilities and withdrawal to the 38th parallel. The member of the United Nations were asked to help out with this demand.

President Harry Truman ordered General of the Army, Douglas MacArthur to aid South Korea and the 7th U.S.Fleet to protect Formosa against aggression and to keep the Chinese Nationalist forces from attacking the mainland. United States Ground Forces entered the conflict June 30, 1950. The President termed this intervention a "police action". 33,629 men lost their lives during this action. On July 27, 1953 an Armistice was signed.

CITATION

"Distinguishing himself by gallantry and indomitable courage above and beyond the call of duty in action against the enemy near Sokkehae, Korea from 6 to 8 July 1953. On the night of 6 July he was supervising the reinforcement of defensive positions when the enemy attacked with great numerical superiority. Voluntarily proceeding to the area most threatened he organized and led a counter attack and in the bitter fighting that ensued closed with and killed two hostile soldiers with his trench knife.

Calmly moving among the men checking positions, steadying and urging the troops to hold firm, he fought side by side with them throughout the night. Despite heavy losses the hostile force pressed the assault with determination and at dawn made an all out attempt to over-run friendly elements. Charging forward to meet the challenge, Lt. Shea and his gallant men drove back the hostile troops. Elements of Company G joined the defense on the afternoon of 7 July having lost key personnel through casualties. Immediately integrating these troops into his unit, Lt. Shea rallied a group of 20 men and again charged the enemy. Although wounded in this action he refused evacuation and continued to lead the counter-attack. When the assaulting element was pinned down by heavy machine-gun fire, he personally rushed the emplacement and firing his carbine and lobbing grenades with deadly accuracy, neutralized the weapons and killed three of the enemy. With direct forceful leadership and by his heroic example, Lt. Shea coordinated and directed a holding action throughout the night and following morning. On 8 July the enemy attacked again. Despite additional wounds, he launched a determined counter-attack and was last seen in close hand-to-hand combat with the enemy. Lt. Shea's inspirational leadership and unflinching courage set an illustrious example of valor to the men of his Regiment reflecting lasting glory upon himself and upholding the noble traditions of the military service."

"For conspicious gallantry and intrepidity at the risk of his life above and beyond the call of duty as a Medical Corpsman, serving with the First Marine Division, in action against enemy aggressor forces in Korea on the night of 26-27 March 1953. After reaching an intermediate objective during a counterattack against a heavily entrenched and numerically superior hostile force occupying ground on a bitterly contested outpost far in advance of the main line of resistance, Hammond's platoon was subjected to a murderous barrage of hostile mortar and artillery fire, followed by a vicious assault by onrushing enemy troops. Resolutely advancing through the veritable curtain of fire to aid his stricken comrades, Hammond moved among the stalwart garrison of Marines and, although critically wounded himself, valiantly continued to administer aid to the other wounded throughout an exhausting four-hour period. When the unit was ordered to withdraw, he skillfully directed the evacuation of casualties and remained in the fireswept area to assist the corpsmen of the relieving unit until he was struck by a round of enemy mortar fire and fell, mortally wounded. By his exceptional fortitude, inspiring initiative and self-sacrificing efforts, Hammond undoubtedly saved the lives of many Marines. His great personal valor in the face of overwhelming odds enhances and sustains the finest traditions of the United States Naval Service. He gallantly gave his life for his country."

CITATION

"Distinguishing himself by gallantry and indomitable courage above and beyond the call of duty in action against the enemy near Sokkehae, Korea from 6 to 8 July 1953. On the night of 6 July he was supervising the reinforcement of defensive positions when the enemy attacked with great numerical superiority. Voluntarily proceeding to the area most threatened he organized and led a counter attack and in the bitter fighting that ensued closed with and killed two hostile soldiers with his trench knife.

Calmly moving among the men checking positions, steadying and urging the troops to hold firm, he fought side by side with them throughout the night. Despite heavy losses the hostile force pressed the assault with determination and at dawn made an all out attempt to over-run friendly elements. Charging forward to meet the challenge, Lt. Shea and his gallant men drove back the hostile troops. Elements of Company G joined the defense on the afternoon of 7 July having lost key personnel through casualties. Immediately integrating these troops into his unit, Lt. Shea rallied a group of 20 men and again charged the enemy. Although wounded in this action he refused evacuation and continued to lead the counter-attack. When the assaulting element was pinned down by heavy machine-gun fire, he personally rushed the emplacement and firing his carbine and lobbing grenades with deadly accuracy, neutralized the weapons and killed three of the enemy. With direct forceful leadership and by his heroic example, Lt. Shea coordinated and directed a holding action throughout the night and following morning. On 8 July the enemy attacked again. Despite additional wounds, he launched a determined counter-attack and was last seen in close hand-to-hand combat with the enemy. Lt. Shea's inspirational leadership and unflinching courage set an illustrious example of valor to the men of his Regiment reflecting lasting glory upon himself and upholding the noble traditions of the military service."

Defending Freedom Is Part Of Our Heritage, VFWC Told

By SYDNEY VAN LEAR Times Women's Writer

"The glory of defending freedom is part of our heritage," a Congressional Medal of Honor winner told the Virginia Fed-eration of Women's Clubs

Wednesday.

Ernest H. Dervishian of Richmond, speaking on "Our American Heritage," described at a public affairs luncheon at Hotel Roanoke the work of the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge.

Among the points of focus at Valley Forge, he said, is a Congressional Medal of Honor Grove, consisting of 52 acres in the shape of the United States. It is designed as a permanent memorial to winners of the nation's highest military award.

Mr. Dervishian is one of 60 Virginians to hold the Medal of Honor. After hearing Mrs. Richard T. Wilem of Newport News, public affairs chairman of the federation, read the citation that accompanied his own award, he reminded his audience that there is no such thing as a soldier without fear during battle.
While some Medal of Honor winners paid the supreme sacrifice, he said, the nation "didn't make the supreme sacrifice, because our freedom was not sacrificed."

"Freedom is intended to reflect force, good not evil, give and not take," he said. "Wishdidn't make us the richest ing didn't make us the richest nation in the world."

Youth of today, he added, is not willing to squander our heritage. And in a reference to recent marches and demonstrations, he said "freedom of assembly can't be preserved by suppressing it."
Also at the 59th annual convention of the federation, Virginia's superintendent of public instruction, Dr. Woodrow W. Wilkerson, cited strides in the state's education program the state's education program in a talk to the education department.

Singled out was a milliondollar project now under way for the training of some 4,000 persons who fell short of com-pleting high school.

Pupils in Virginia receive $380 each in instruction each year, said Dr. Wilkerson, with a total of $440,000,000 being spent per annum. Mrs. James Roberts is chairman of the VFWC Education Department.

Awards in an education program in the name of the General Federation of Women's Clubs and the Shell Oil Co. went to the Brambleton Junior Women's Club of Roanoke and Appalachia Woman's Club of Appalachia. Each received Thomas F. Martin, sales supervisor of the company's Richmond District of Shell, made the awards.

The Brambleton club won among cities of 10,000 or over; the Appalachia group for com-munities of under 10,000.

The Roanoke club was named winner for sponsoring a special class for emotionally disturbed children within the Roanoke school system; for providing nursing scholarships and for conducting a driver improve-ment program.

Later, Mrs. Alvah E. Rig-gins, state president of Hamp-ton, conducted a lengthy business session highlighted by awards and resolutions and a talk by Dorman L. Miller, assistant to the general manager of the Appalachian Power Co., Roanoke.

His comments dealt with the "Bemiss Outdoor Recreation Study Commission Report," topic of one of eight resolu-tions passed by the body.

Dismal Swamp Picture

To many hunters, fishermen and nature lovers, the Great Dismal Swamp straddling the Virginia-North Carolina border just across the James River
Bay from Norfolk is a wonderfu' and special kind of world and special kind of world full of mystery and intrigue.

The swamp's awesome, primeval beauty, its spirit, its wildlife, its folklore and legend wildlife, its folklore and legend are treasured by thousands of outdoorsmen, those living along its edge and those hundreds of miles away.

But for years, the most dismal aspect of the swamp has been its future.

Exploitation there began a century ago. Since then, the swamp has been on the opera-

It has been carved to less than half its original size.

And in recent years, it has been choked to absorb some of the creeping population of the Norfolk-Portsmouth area.

Experts say it will die in the acquired for the establishment next 60 years.

But last week the picture down at dismal became brighter.

The Department of Conservation and Economic Development filed a feasibility study with Governor Harrison recommending that the state save the s w a m p, something it should have done years ago.

Three major recommendations were made:

-that the state acquire a minimum of 50,000 acres inminimum of 50,000 acres including Lake Drummond and that this area be administered as a wildlife management area under the direction of the Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries.

that a portion of the land, —that a portion of the land, sufficient to protect the character of Lake Drummond, be designated as a part of the natural area system administered by the Division of Parks.
—that a tract of 500 to 1,000 acres of typical swampland lying east of Route 17 be of an interperetive center to be administered by the Division of Parks.

This would save the area for all to enjoy, men and wildlife

A visit to the swamp is a real treat, especially for a person from the mountains.

The other fall, a companion and I launched my boat into a canal just off U.S. 17 which borders this dark, almost forbidding, yet strangely inviting swamp.

It was refreshing just to look at the canal, shimmering in the sun between its green banks. Its waters were black-ish-red and its banks hung over with heavy stands of maple and willow.

The swamp was deathly silent.

I cranked up my three horsepower outboard and we traveled for more than three miles, straight as a die, toward Lake Drummond near the center of the swamp.

When the saucer-shaped lake suddenly loomed up before us I after that straight, narrow stretch, it was like coming across a desert to discover that a mirage was no mirage after all, but an oasis.

That day the shallow lake was being churned by a brisk wind that whipped water around several thick, twisted cypress roots flaring up out of the lake and appearing to bob like sea dragons. Half a dozen weird, elephant-legged cypress trees, lonely and statuesque, stood nearby in the water like stood nearby in the water like sentinels guarding a treasure.

Legend has it that sometimes at nightfall a frail canoe appears on the lake carrying the ghostly figures of two lovers who light their path with a firefly lamp as the search for a way out of the swamp. We didn't stay to see.

Hunting rectivities are now

Hunting activities are now being enjoyed in the swamp during an Oct. 1-Nov. 30 season, different from any other in the state.

This time of year, the swamp often echoes with the howling and yodeling of hounds as they flush out deer and bear to waiting hunters. Using dogs is the only way to hunt in the area.

Before daybreak, boats loaded with men and hounds embark down the canals, fading swiftly into the darkness, leaving silence in their wake. Most hunters belong to clubs that lease hunting rights from companies now in control of the swamp.

A huntmaster stations his men along drainage ditches or clearings or atop poles. They don't move, because if you wander, the swamp can swallow you up.

One year two men were lost for three days, and before it was over one had grown so embittered and weary of the endless tangle that he begged the other to shoot him.

As dawn reddens the sky, the huntmaster frees his hounds. Hunters begin visualiz-ing the chase. They breathe more rapidly and peer more

The following is the complete Annual Report given by the club Parliamentarian, Mrs. V. E. (Anne) Kemp to the members of the James River Woman's Club:

Sveti Stefan, Yugoslavia Dear Mrs. Mitchell:

with a side trip down the Dalmatian Coast of Yugoslavia. A fascinating trip . . . small coastal steamer from Venice to Dubrounick, then by bus over the mountains through Montenegro to St. Stefan Island.

Should arrive in New Delhi about July 1st, will write from there.

Mrs. Bush will be sending articles for the next two years from New Delhi, India. See story on page 20.

LOST AND FOUND

Dear Mrs. Mitchell:

I never knew the Club Woman could be classified as the Bureau of Missing Persons, but this letter came to me, asking that I put the correct address on it and forward it. . . .

"I am Estaleah Baker and have lived here in Manassas, Virginia for a year. As I was reading my copy of the Virginia SUMMER, 1966 Club Woman I saw the picture about your club's opening a Library in Colonial Heights. One of the women in the picture looked very familiar, and reading further, I discovered that it was indeed my old friend from Alaska, Lilliam Martin. Both of us lived at Ladd Air Force Base where my husband was Commanding General, but during the past four years we had lost track of one another. Would you be so kind as to put the correct address on this letter and mail it to Lilliam?"

This letter from Mrs. Baker arrived the day of our Club Banquet, so I was able to add a special touch to a special evening.

Hope this will give you a smile and encourage you in your new job. You never know where your work will lead you.

Yours truly,
PEGGY WHITE

Federated Woman's Club

Dear Mrs. Mitchell:

Would you please tell us what rules to follow in order to get stories in the Virginia Club Woman?

* * * *

Thank you,
MRS. VERNON A. JONES
Chairman, Publicity
South Boston Junior Woman's Club

The rules are simple and easy:

Individual clubs:

1. Send SENIOR news to Pauline Mitchell, Editor. Send JUNIOR news to Ann Comer, Junior Editor.

If you should get confused and send Junior news to the Senior editor, or vice-versa, we're very understanding and will straighten it out without ever bothering you.

Send SUBSCRIPTION correspondence, CHANGE OF ADDRESS, to Naomi Sarig, Associate Editor. It would help if you would be very careful with this, but again, we'll try to straighten it out as quickly as possible.

District Communication Chairmen will send District level news to either Ann Comer or me, depending upon whether they are Senior or Junior.

Pick out something interesting your club has done, write us in your own words giving all the details possible (we'd prefer typed stories but will accept handwritten ones). If you use a photo, make sure it is a clear, interesting snapshot. Any photo can be used as long as it is clear. Remember that your club will be billed for any photo you send us and we use. The price has gone up slightly this year—allow about $7 to $10 for each cut—be sure to identify the people in the photo. The photograph will be returned to you after the magazine has been published.

So, what's new?

The Road to Freedom A WAY FOR MILLIONS

We see Daniel Boone in the context of legend. The man in the coonskin cap. The frontier hunter. In reality, he was far more than a colorful adventurer. His was the epitome of the pioneer spirit.

It was Boone who blazed the trail for the famous "Wilderness Road." A road that ran for almost 300 miles through the bloodiest, most dangerous country of our pioneer past. Rocky, mountainous country, inhabited by unfriendly Indians.

Almost single-handed, Boone broke the way. In 1775 he began his lonely task. By 1800, some 200,000 determined settlers had followed him westward. The frontier of America had been pushed back. A road to new opportunity, new freedom, had been laid.

Daniel Boone was a soldier and jurist, a dedicated servant of his country and his people. But it is chiefly as the lonely trail blazer that history honors him. The man who, in the words of Congress, "opened the way for millions of his fellow men.

The road to freedom is seldom a highroad, with bands playing and flags flying. It is more often a rough way, unmapped, through darkness and danger. It has not been the way of ease and expediency, but the way of individual initiative and determination, that has paved our long American Road to Freedom.

THE VIRGINIA CLUB WOMAN

LET us hold fast to the enthusiasm, the excitement, the will to succeed that comes with each change of administration not only in our clubs but in our Federation! We have felt the quiet power amassed for us through years gone by; we have experienced the vitality of the administration just closed, and we know we start from a plateau that will enable us to reach lofty heights if we keep our goals

What are those goals? They are very simple. Let us do all we can in every way we can to exert our influence for peace. How can we exert influence? We believe through every form of education we further the hope for peace.

Our General Federation Theme

Build With Youth for a Better World. is another way of stating the same ideal. Our Pesident, Mrs. E. D. Pearce, in her inaugural address put it this way: "Whatever else we may do during the two years of this administration one objective will be paramount-we will work for peace, because this is the yearning, the responsibility, the duty, the task facing all peoples everywhere."

"Let us, then, interpret the word 'youth' in this administration theme in two ways: first, as it applies to ourselves: adopting a vigorous approach to life and issues; and secondly, helping our young people to train themselves for the responsibilities they must assume," Mrs. Pearce challenged.

Promote Peace

This gives us our guideline as we stress education. As we seek self-enlight-SUMMER. 1966 enment, we promote peace within ourselves. As we seek to elevate the educational level of youth, we promote the chance for peace in a better world.

Your officers and chairmen have interpreted for you in this issue of our magazine ways to reach for our goals. Many of these are continuations of the outstanding programs you have long pursued. There are some fields in which we encourage additional emphasis. One of these is in stressing Leadership Development . . . the training of clubwomen to take an even greater place in community affairs by developing their own capabilities, by increasing their awareness of community needs, and by arousing their desire to do something about these needs. Women are sorely needed in community development and in public life.

General Federation is not calling upon us to support any particular project, to donate to any cause. You and your club are the focal point of this administration. Through your good judgment in selecting the ideas that are worthwhile for your club and your community, you will be upgrading the quality of our service . that service which for sixty years has been our motto.

Through "Service, the Debt of Education," may we strive for PEACE.

fifteen are granted and actually produced by the United States Post Office.

Club Women Must Seek Ways to Serve Best as Individuals and in the Community

In this issue of the Club Woman your state officers and chairmen have set forth objectives for the coming administration. From General Federation to the local club levels we are striving to streamline.

Programs on the local club level should provide information, inspiration and opportunities for action.

Members should have sufficient knowledge of procedure to conduct the club business in an orderly manner. Delegates should be encouraged to attend District, State and GFWC meetings. No other organization offers such a wide variety of opportunities for individual development.

Much of the success of a club depends upon its standing in the community. Make sure your public relations are of the highest quality, and publicize the worthwhile endeavors as well as the social

I have great faith in the club women our Federation in all facets of life, we of Virginia, that we will do just this.

Recipe for Membership

by MRS. JAMES B. ROBERTS, Second Vice President

Membership is often called the "Life's Blood" of an organization, and of course it is, for the attendance and attention of members at meetings make the program successful, their efforts make a project successful, and their participation makes the club successful.

Keeping our members interested and active, and getting new and enthusiastic members really should not be a problem for an organization which has the diversified scope of our Federation. . . but, sometimes it is, so let's take another look at membership.

Let's think of membership as a potpourri . . . an ambrosia . . . a blending of flavors that exquisitely satisfy in flavor and scent. Perhaps the ingredients of our imaginary recipe would be V, F, W, and C. Use large portions of each, stir gently, simmer carefully, and serve with loving care for complete success. What are these magic ingredients that assure us of a never-fail dish? Well, here they are:

V-Voices, vivacious, and vocal for the Virginia Federation (and GFWC). How can we resist singing the praises of our organization? KNOW your Federation so you can sing "loud and clear." Plan an inspiring Federation Day Program so all your members can learn the tune and sing, too. Use a speaker, a panel, a Federation Quiz (free from GFWC), a skit, a pantomime, or any combination you choose.

F—Federate new clubs. We still have DARK counties in Virginia (that is, counties not enlightened by a Woman's Club). Find out which they are, and see if you have a contact there who could help organize a new club. Many of our graduating Juniors do not join the existing Women's Clubs. Let's help them form new clubs, so our Federation will not lose this strong force.

Form Federated Teen Clubs. This is a new project for Virginia and is in keeping with our GFWC them, "Build with Youth for a Better World." These

by MRS. JAMES MINOR, JR., Third Vice President and Junior Director

Dear Juniors:

Having recently returned from the General Federation Convention in Chicago, I am extremely anxious to share the events with all of you. Therefore, I have included here a brief diary of activities. I trust you will accept it as my message to you at this time, and read it with the same good cheer with which it was reported.

> FRAN MINOR. Third Vice President and Junior Director

Friday, June 3

Celebrated birthday with husband at dinner. Tried to forget that airplane ride to Chicago less than twelve hours away. Had distinct feeling might be celebrating last birthday . . . ever!

Saturday, June 4

Arose in ink-black darkness and assembled already-packed bags. Tried vainly to ignore husband's little comments relative to hours clubwomen leave for meetings. Tried to assume great calm and peace of mind about impending flight. Took two aspirin and sprayed hair for third time. Regret waking great help mate (husband). Feel his humor weak.

4:45 A.M. collected two fellow-travelers and set off for National Airport, Washington, D. C. Inquired (in offhand manner) about location of same. Was given vague (also off-hand) reply. Have great confidence in signs on Route

7:30 A.M. Lifted off in jet from National safely tucked in between chattering companions. Much discussion of beauty and speed of air travel. Reflected ruefully on loved ones left behind. Stewardess served ample breakfast. Everyone consumed same with gusto. Ate to keep from thinking about why plane was bouncing like rubber ball. Never noticed this fact in advertisements about flying.

9:20 A.M. Plunged into Midway Airport, Chicago. Ears remained at 35 thousand feet. Remembered what husband said about pressurized cabins. Bah-humbug!

10:30 A.M. Hour lost in time zone. Ears lost in flight. Securely nested in Conrad Hilton Hotel, having tipped four gentlemen, each of whom carried bags ten feet. Felt grateful to be on twentyfirst floor. Thoughts of tipping possibilities further up overwhelming.

SUMMER, 1966

Noon: One companion departed for Chicago tour. Joined second companion for luncheon and entertainment in Old Chicago. Part of entertainment was waiter depositing greasy Italian lunch on arm, dress, leg and foot. Found it hard to believe that out of fifty people waiter Companion departed to mail room. Had determined set to jaw. Joined other companion in distributing other gifts.

Convention. Several seemed to be signaling from stage to delegates in audience. Was sure all in line of program.

Tuesday, June 7

7:45 A.M. Attended parliamentary procedure class with companions. One delegate complained that member of her club constantly moves for adjournment when issues must be decided. Motion to adjourn privileged motion. Made mental note to keep it in mind.

9 A.M. General Session. Many Virginians in attendance. Everyone seated under banner of states.

Newsbreak: New idea where local newsman gave convention delegates ten minutes of up-to-date news of the world. This very helpful. Had somehow forgotten land beyond the Hilton.

Music Break: A trifle alarming. Found it difficult to learn "easy" Japanese words to simple song. Would rather learn easy Japanese song with simple words.

Diamond Jubilee Stamp unveiled. Presenter apprehensive that ladies wouldn't approve women depicted on stamp. Delegates very enthusiastic. Presenter relaxed noticeably. (See photo on page 5.)

Noon: speedy lunch and returned to General Session.

5:30 P.M. Hurried to rehearse for processional with flags. Junior Directors and Presidents march into Grand Hall, former carrying state flags. Tried to appear nonchalant about walking up steps with flag pole hung in long dress.

Wednesday, June 8

1:30 A.M. Caught taxi for return to hotel. Found that many tissues stuffed around shoes would alleviate pain somewhat.

1:45 A.M. Arrived room. Rushed to soak feet. Much loud moaning.

9 A.M. Collected trifles for children at home. Spent a lot of time trying to stuff everything in suitcases. Tried to ignore hurricane warnings on radio and dark sky in Chicago. Lost hat under wheels of large truck. Tried to remain cheerful and remember Chicago is truly called "Windy City."

1:40 P.M. Boarded plane, took off. Tried to look worldly-wise and confident. Apparently looked ill as stewardess offered coffee. Tried not to notice that coffee was splashing out of cups. Companion commented again on beauty of sky in air travel, etc. No Comment!

4 P.M. Arrived National Airport. Temperature 90 degrees. Temperature in car, 110 degrees. Unbelievable traffic. Took wrong turn, arrived in Maryland. Re-adjusted thinking and set out again. Entered large storm area. Thankful to encounter this problem while on ground.

Entered Richmond and left companion in bus terminal. Drove rapidly home. Arrived home, exhausted. Husband opened car door and announced yard needed trimming around borders. Child ran out, greeted Mother and inquired, "What did you bring me?"

Attention Treasurers: Learn to Cope With

Your Friendly Internal Revenue Man by BERTHA M. LEPRELL

Treasurer, The Woman's Club of Bon Air

If your club is one lucky enough to have money earning yearly interest in an amount exceeding $10.00, be wise and contact the Bureau of Internal Revenue before they contact you. All earned interest amounting to $10.00 and over must be reported to the U.S. Treasury Department who, in turn, assume all to be liable for the payment of income tax unless proved otherwise.

Therefore, it is up to you to furnish this proof if the earnings of your club are used mainly for philanthropic puran accumulative fund for a future build-

Briefly, your procedure for furnishing this proof would be as follows:

- 1. Obtain an identification number by filing Form SS-4 with your District Director of Internal Revenue.
- 2. After this number is received, ask for Form 1024, Exemption Application. This form must be filed in duplicate and is made by a principal officer of the organization claiming exemption. If you have difficulty completing this form, the local Bureau of Internal Revenue will be most helpful. Along with this form, duplicate copies of the following must be attached: charter; bylaws; statement of assets and liabilities as of the end of each annual accounting period; statement of receipts and expenditures for each annual accounting period (probably a three year period would suffice for this annual accounting period.

statement, but check with your District Director); a brief statement which states the specific purposes for which the organization was formed; a statement explaining in detail each fund-raising activity (their interest is primarily in the financial aspect); a statement which describes in detail the nature of your activities, activities which you sponsor (these statements do not have to be lengthy-keep in mind that they are interested in knowing what you do to aid and help in your community, etc.); a statement which describes poses or if your fund earning interest is the purposes for which the organization's funds are expended; copy of any leases; a statement which indicates the distribution of assets upon dissolution; and a statement which indicates what qualifications are necessary for membership.

Preparation of these statements can be time-consuming but not difficult. It is suggested that a committee be appointed to work with the Treasurer and that a reproduction machine be used for the conformed copies of the charter, bylaws,

3. Within six or eight weeks after the exemption application and attachments are filed, you will be notified by your District Director of Internal Revenue as to your status. If your application is approved, you will be exempt from the payment of taxes but will be required to file an information return, Form 990, annually on or before the 15th day of the fifth month after the close of your Think what this world would be if we didn't have horticulturists who are, in turn, conservationists. This is how we arrive at "America The Beautiful." us to stress education in every phase of club work. "Youth in Our Times" is the Junior theme that we shall stress in our Education Department program. With these goals and with the forward and progressive look in education in our State, this is the year to highlight our Education Department.

Youth Training

- 1. Encourage the development of the potential of young leaders. Go to high schools, School Boards, Education Association, get backing of your community educational leaders, meet with principals and organize a Leadership Training Conference (and if one already exists, offer your help to improve and secure qualified speakers) in every high school.
- Work with your local school boards in securing provision of physical education teachers in all elementary schools.

3. Sponsor and help organize Teen Clubs. Locate suitable meeting places for youth groups.

4. There is a need for more parks and recreation areas to keep children off the streets, etc. Work with your city and recreation departments on this.

5. Emphasize American Education Week, November 6 through 12.

Adult Education

Take advantage of any adult education courses offered in your community. Organize groups within your club and study together. The study of parliamentary procedure is especially recommended.

The ESO reading program offered through the University of Virginia will be continued. Further information and reading lists will be made available to you by the Junior Vice Chairman of this department.

Colleges

Governor Godwin has encouraged us as club women to direct our interest and energies to the development of the new community colleges. Information and suggestions will be available to you in the near future.

Special Education

The clubs throughout the State of Virginia have done a tremendous job of working with and helping the handicapped and under-privileged. There is still a great need for your help in both fields, but keep in mind the need for your help and influence in obtaining the proper training for the normal and gifted children. This presents a tremendous challenge to you. Certainly from the four types of children mentioned, each club can develop a special education project to suit its own interest and, at the same time, meet the needs of each community.

In our rapidly changing world, communications is the means by which we are informed, educated, and entertained. As clubwomen we have a responsibility to every person in our local area, our State, and our Nation to promote and encourage the best in news media, radio, TV, books, and movies. If we are to do this to the best of our ability, we will carry out the theme of this administration—"Peace Through Education."

- 1. Use all media: radio, newspaper, TV, the Virginia Club Woman, news bulletins (both District and State).
- 2. Know your local communications personnel, their deadlines, and how to report to them. Show appreciation for all services rendered.
- 3. Promote good TV, movies, and books. Show approval by your club (by voice or by letter) of good productions in your area, to the sponsoring groups. Watch your news stands!
- Publicity is competitive. Therefore news agencies will want to tell it.

5. Encourage 100% subscription to the Virginia Club Woman to keep informed of what other clubs are doing. 3. Use this as a guide to help your club. Others will do the same. The ex- 4. change of ideas will stimulate interest and growth.

Webster says music is a combination of sounds pleasing to the ear, the art or science of harmonic sound, an artistic expression by voice or instrument of melodic or harmonious tones. Isn't it much more? It is the surest means of communication when other means fail!

Promote, and most of all, enjoy music. What could be a better "Instrument for Peace"?

1. Set your imagination in motion by creating outstanding and original programs.

For example, select compositions by great composers, let club members perform, and have guests dress in suitable costumes. Study great composers.

2. Strive to understand and appreciate the role of music.

Bring to our youth a sense of the beautiful and an appreciation of quality.

3. Promote activity to discover talent.

Encourage personal creativity and develop skills of club members and local artists. Offer scholarships to students.

5. Bring fine music to all.

Community Concert Associations have proved that great artists are willing to perform in small towns.

6. Arrange "Music Festivals."

Include vocalists and instrumentalists. Renovate an old barn, mill, or farmhouse, or ask for the use of a school auditorium, community center or church. Have a gathering of the finest talent in your community . . . and what an excellent community project that could be! Perhaps arts and crafts could be included to enhance the project.

7. Stress "More Music in Virginia."

Use you own local talent; also promote, visit, encourage, invite and enjoy Virginia symphonies, choral groups and small ensembles.

- 8. Build a music library of recordings and music books.
- 9. Learn about music camps for youth. 10. Sing at home and at club meetings.

POETRY, LITERATURE, AND DRAMA DIVISION

Chairman—Mrs. W. A. Teele 4421 Burnham Dr., Churchland, Chesapeake, Virginia

Vice Chairman—MRS. BENNETT WILSON 42 Shirley Rd., Newport News, Virginia

The aim of this division is to explore the theme "Peace Through Education" by encouraging appreciation, and participation in clubs, schools, and communities in the following goals:

- Stimulate an interest in reading both as a pastime and as a means of education.
- 2. Promote good reading habits among club women so that these habits may be reflected in our homes and other areas of our communities, including newsstands.
- Encourage club women to find inspiration and self-enrichment through creative writing, exploring all literary forms, and organizing workshops.
- 4. Participate actively in the field of dramatic arts.
- 5. Work toward the establishment of a Virginia Center for the Performing Arts.
- 6. Continue to urge the public to work diligently to abolish the publication, sale, and use of all objectionable reading material.
- 7. Observe: National Poetry Day—October 15, National Book Week in November, and National Library Week in April.
- 8. Form reading groups.
- 9. Cooperate with the Education Department in interesting members in ESO courses.
- 10. Hold Book Fairs or Book Sales. Have a Book and Author Luncheon.
- 11. Support Little Theatre, the dramatic efforts of your schools, and attend plays made available by the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts. Start a Children's Theatre in your community.
- 12. Evaluate your public library and make appropriate recommendations.
- 13. Sponsor club or community Fine Arts Festivals.
- 14. Write club history. Compile community history if none is available.

"Education for Peace" of the Soul.

- 1. Religion and Bible Study is an important part of any club woman's life in the home and community—plan a devotional for each club meeting. Also, encourage club members to give of themselves actively in the Church School program.
- Consumer Education is a must for the lady of the house. Plan a program emphasizing such fields as "Medical Quackery," family finance, weights and measures, meats and produce and care and use of new fabrics. This is a wide-open field, and many outstanding speakers are available.
- 3. "Growing old gracefully" should become the aim of each club woman. It matters not the age—now is the time to prepare for the happy adjustment to the Senior Citizen period in life. Help those of retirement age in your community to continue to be of service and to find activities and interests to stimulate their thinking.

- 4. Reaffirm our belief in the policy of a strong and effective national defense.

The second approach is actually developing leadership among our members and in the community to enable us to carry out the objectives set forth above. Please give special emphasis to leadership development training through which clubwomen learn not only about our own organization and its goals, but how to:

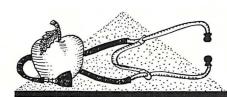

..... survey community needs establish priorities

..... involve as many individuals, groups and other organizations as possible in solutions.

Where desirable, set up community councils or other community-wide structures that will insure on-going leadership for continuing improvement within the locality.

Restoration of the garden at the International Headquarters of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in the Nation's capital is in accord with the current emphasis on beautification by our State Chairman of Conservation and Garden, Mrs. William G. Madison. (see Objectives, Page 11)

We have an attractive and handsomelyfurnished home for the International Headquarters. It gives one a feeling of great pride to go into the Drawing Room and feel the atmosphere of that stately room; or into the Dining Room and see the massive furniture and lovely silver. The interior of this building is a place "fit for a queen" and queens and important people from foreign countries and our own United States are made to feel welcome there. conceived when members noted that the potentially beautiful garden at Headquarters was badly in need of restoration. Two former VFWC presidents, Mrs. A. Paul Hartz, now serving as chairman of GFWC Resolutions Committee, and Mrs. J. York Welborn, formerly President of the Southeastern Council and now Chairman of GFWC Health Division, were most concerned, and took the idea to Mrs. Richard R. Graves, then President of Northern District.

A committee was appointed, and its first order of business was to get formal approval from proper authorities. Mrs. William H. Hasebroock, then President of GFWC, and Mrs. E. Lee Ozbirn, Chairman of the Headquarters Restoration Committee, approved with enthusi-

FUTURE PLANS FOR THE GARDEN

The brick patio is in the shape of a long oval with one curved walk leading to the buildings, and the other leading to the parking area. Some existing plants, a tall magnolia, a mimosa, and a white birch were not disturbed. Plants requiring a minimum of care were purchased and planted. During the summer the patio is edged with pink and white Future plans call for Salterini furniture (a Covington, Virginia product) such as chairs, benches, and a figurine fountain, but at present only a central umbrella table has been purchased.

Forty-eight of the seventy-six Northern District clubs have provided funds thus far. The response has been spontaneous and enthusiastic, and the committee is confident that these future-planned items will materialize as the remaining clubs get around to considering their participation.

NEWS FROM GFWC HEADQUATERS

Dear club members of Virginia:

Greetings! With deep solemnity, I accept the honor and responsibility of being the 26th President of the General Federation of Women's Clubs! I approach the task before me with enthusiasm and with an abiding optimism that we shall continue the signal achievements of the years past.

The philosopher Nietzsche said: "What is great in man is that he is a bridge, not a goal." This truth also expresses the spirit and strength of our great organization. We are not striving to attain one goal; we are moving forward on a mighty bridge, spanning the past with the present, and looking forward to the future,—a future that we, today, are molding.

This Administration will build on the accomplishments of our previous GFWC Administrations and it will distill from our 75 years of existence the wisdom, the courage, the faith, that has made this organization a force with which to conjure and a world-wide power for progress.

Our theme for these ensuing two years will be: Build With Youth For A Better World. And, my dear friends, interpret this objective broadly! Not only must we reach forth a sympathetic hand to our young people, but also we should translate the "youth" to ourselves in its connotation of a vigorous outlook to community problems, and a flexible mind! Youth is not only computed by years, but also by a fresh, positive attitude towards life.

SUMMER, 1966

More than ever before, this spirit is needed! Because, ours is a troubled world indeed, threatened by man's inhumanity to man. And if we clubwomen have one charge, if we have one objective, if we have one bridge to cross,—let it be our work in the name of world peace! We, as mothers and as wives, are traditionally the guardians of the home. We are the peacemakers! Let us, then, accept this task, let us work to instill in our youth the meaning and love of freedom as expressed in our free enterprise system. Let us help to teach and make a reality of those sublime words found in the Sermon On The Mount and the Golden Rule. Let us play our role to the fullest to eradicate bigotry and bias, to erase prejudice, and to find, when these two years have elapsed, that our world—now torn asunder by warfare-will be free and peaceful. Let us know, that however small it may be in the great context of

So join hands with me in this undertaking! Let us walk across the bridge together-with courage! Let us make our deeds great and find our reward humbly . . . in the joy of a task well

Charlottesville Juniors

A main project of the Charlottesville Junior Woman's Club involves working with the international wives of students and faculty at the University of Virginia through social and informal educational contact. They have "coffees" in their homes twice each month and provide transportation and baby-sitting for the Internationals. They also make individual visits with each girl and try to make her month a luncheon was held with each girl bringing a dish to represent her

Eight foreign countries are represented in this group, and the results have been very rewarding. Besides establishing lasting friendships and international goodwill, the Internationals have been able to improve in their use of the English language and have received the confidence feel more a part of the community. Arts Drive Reaches Younger Generation

About 800 admiring parents, teachers and friends filled the auditorium of George Marshall High School, McLean, Virginia for a "Matinee of the Arts" presented by the Woman's Club of McLean.

Students from McLean, Marshall and Langley High Schools, and the Cooper and Longfellow Intermediate Schools presented a program of choral and instrumental music. The McLean School of Ballet performed extracts from Swan Lake and the Nutcracker Suite, as well as a Hungarian folk dance, the Csardas Sarkoz.

Senator Harry F. Byrd, Jr. opened the matinee by remarking how glad he was children were participating in such a worthy endeavor and that most certainly the Woman's Club of McLean's activity did much to promote the Cultural interest in the greater McLean community. The committee, headed by Mrs. Robert T. Dodd, music chairman, was gratified by the large turn-out and hopes to make it a yearly event. Proceeds from the matinee will be divided among the schools

During intermission the audience had a chance to look at an exhibit of student art. Dr. H. Lester Cooke, Curator of Paintings at the National Gallery of Art, acted as judge. The blue ribbon award went to Bill Brandt of Marshall for a pen and ink drawing of bookshelves.

"The Bat" Benefits AVNA

The smiling faces above reflect the pleasure of the Olde Towne Woman's Club of Alexandria, Va., in presenting a check in the amount of $425 to the Alexandria Visiting Nurses' Association. The Club benefited the Visiting Nurses at a performance of "The Bat," given by the Alexandria Little Theater. Following the performance, a champagne supper party was given in the theater's Green Room with the Diamond Jubilee of the VFWC as its theme.

Hilton Village

The Junior Woman's Club of Hilton Village was one of four clubs to be recognized for its film project, "Movies and You," at the Diamond Jubilee Convention of the General Federation of Women's Club in Chicago.

Mrs. Horace Edwards of the Junior Woman's Club of Hilton Village checks ticket before leaving for Chicago and the annual convention of the GFWC. She accepted an award for her club's "Movies and You" contest.

The Hilton Club received honorable mention for third place. Actor James Stewart announced the name of the winning club in the contest sponsored by the GFWC and the Motion Picture Association of America.

The club was chosen for national recognition on the basis of a written report disclosing ways in which it had carried out the purposes of the project. These purposes, according to the GFWC, were to encourage members to become more aware of the importance of motion pictures in today's community life, to make the clubwomen more conversant with the ways of improving film entertainment, and to make them better acquainted with the sources of movie content.

The Hilton Juniors carried out the project in three ways. Monthly bulletins were posted which disclosed the MPPA's rating of recently released movies. The featurette, "The Warlords," which reveals what goes into the making of a film, was shown. And the club sponsored a movie party, with proceeds going to the Main Street Branch of the Newport News Public Library.

The Lee District Juniors are in the second stage and soon will be orbiting in their plans for their annual Grand Ball. The formal ball is sponsored each year by the thirty-two Junior Clubs of this District in co-operation with the National Tobacco Festival as the opening social event of the Annual Tobacco Festival. At this Ball the Official Hostess for the Tobacco Festival is selected; the choice being made from representatives from the Junior clubs of the District.

The Consultation and Evaluation Clinic of the Medical College of Virginia will receive the proceeds from the Ball for

> RURAL ELECTRICITY

Placing power lines where they are needed is fun for a child, but it is a big job for the nation's power industry.

Today, consumer-owned electric systems such as ours serve 54% of the rural population, and the demand doubles every seven years.

Meeting the rising powerneeds and preparing for tomorrow takes the best efforts of the entire power industry. In our area we are proud to be carrying our share of the load.

the second consecutive year. The Clinic is involved in research and treatment of mental retardation in children. It has been found that by early detection of disorders causing mental retardation, it can be prevented or minimized. The Consultation and Evaluation Clinic is available to all citizens of our state.

Last year the Clinic received $4,500.00 from the proceeds of the 1965 Grand Ball.

Learning about the clinic equipment at the Consultation and Evaluation Clinic, are Mrs. James R. T. Hodgson, chairman of the Grand Ball, and Mrs. Coleman D. Figg. Lee District Junior Director. Dr. Ralph Ownby Jr., Clinic Director, and Dr. R. B. Young explain just what happens when that button is pushed.

The West Gate Woman's Club of Manassas, Virginia recently held a successful dance at the Manassas Fire Hall. Proceeds from the event, and local contributions enabled the club to give two scholarships for a total of $250.00 to senior students at Stonewall Jackson High School.

Club Has Part In Contest

The Williamson Road Woman's Club is one of 106 Virginia women's clubs competing for honors in the General Federation of Women's Clubs/Shell Oil Co. Education Awards Program.

Now in its fifth year, the education program presents three awards in each state to women's clubs judged to be conducting the best programs to further the education of young people in their communities.

Competition a mong the various clubs is not broken down into population categories. All clubs, regardless of the size of their memberships, have the same chance of winning. Entries are evaluated taking into consideration need, imagination, approach and the number of club members actively participating in the club's education program in relation to the work accomplished.

Awards consist of a first prize of $500, a second prize of $300, and a $200 third prize. Award winners in last year's competition were the Suburban Junior Woman's Club of Norfolk, first place; the Junior Woman's Club of Hilton Village (Newport News), second; and, the Timbrook Woman's Club of Lynchburg, third.

Entries from Virginia were judged by a four-member panel of judges from Richmond. Serving on this year's panel are Mrs. Mary Anne Franklin, program director, WCVE/WCVW-TV, and from the Virginia State Board of Education, Miss Jennie Brewer, Supervisor of Special Education; A. Gordon Brooks, director, Division of Teacher Education and Certification; and Miss Helen Hill, consultant, visiting teachers program.

The winning clubs for this year's education program competition will be announced during the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs (VFWC) convention April 11-13 in Norfolk. Award money is used by the winning clubs to further expand their education programs.

Newsletters Make the News!

this issue came from newsletters which clubs and districts send the Editor and Jr. Editor. They ARE read and enjoyed and we would like to thank you for sharing them with us.

These newsletters, which clubs use to diverse as the clubs themselves. Some are short and concise; others are pages long. Many have elaborate art work. One club (Falls Church Juniors) sends a calendar for each month with club activities entered on the proper dates. Many have information from department chairmen and quite a few include a recipe.

Some of the news which appears in the Junior Woman's Club of Fairfax County; "Junior Jotter" (Junior Woman's Club of Loudoun County); "Pony Express" (Springfield Community Woman's Club); and "Monkey Chatter" (Pamunkey Junior Woman's Club). THE TORCH OF HONOR

"National honor is national property of the highest value."

These words were spoken 150 years ago — in the First Inaugural Address of James Monroe, fifth President of the United States and author of the Monroe Doctrine.

Today, these words mean more than ever. The bright flame of our national honor seems — at times — to flicker dangerously. If it is to burn on, it must be guarded well. It must be tended with dedication, responsibility, and the willingness to sacrifice.

James Monroe was well aware of this, and he gladly accepted the sacrifices that duty entailed. Revolutionary soldier, statesman, President, he devoted his life to keeping bright that flame of national honor.

The torch has passed through many hands. Today, it rests in ours. Let us guard it jealously. Let us never deprive it of the life-giving air of freedom.

Communities Improve Through Clubwomen

by MRS. E. PARKER BROWN

President VFWC

Once there was a community that gradually came to consider itself a garden spot... one that was an especially nice place to live. The people in the community had a degree of affluency and gradually felt a sophistication that left them less and less time to think of the needs of others. After all, THEIR community was about perfect!

You guessed what happened Before too long the community discovered it was no longer a garden spot in which to live. The local hospital was inadaquate no one had bothered to spearhead a drive for increased facilities. That industry looking over new sites passed them by in favor of a nearby town which not only offered public school kindergarten but was cooperating with the establishment of a community college as well as a little symphony orchestra.

Health organizations were no longer active in disseminating lifesaving facts in their community for lack of volunteers. Church schools maintained only a token schedule made possible by an overworked staff. Why mention the library as an asset it apparently had no "friends" who cared. The expansion plans for the museum gathered dust on the curator's desk . . . he could not undertake their execution alone.

Where were the people who once had gently prodded the community into cleaning up unsightly areas, into expanding utility systems, into doing the simple act of voting for good government? They were just temporarily asleep in that stage of human ecology from which they would emerge and do something to build their community again to the peak from which it dropped.

Who would arouse the community from this unproductive slumber? It would surely be the members of the Woman's Club who would themselves awaken quickly to the realization that community action was imperative!

Where would these women get the training and the incentive? From a relative and a friend the General Federation of Women's Clubs through its Community Improvement Program in cooperation with the Sears Roebuck Foundation.

This friend of all clubwomen and all people communities is making possible by a thousand dollar grant a special Leadership Development Seminar for one hundred Virginia Federation leaders to be held in Richmond on February 9. The Sears Foundation has for ten years sponsored contests with generous rewards for community improvement, and now for the first time, the Federation will have the opportunity for specialized training to make community action even more effective.

If your community is anything less than perfect, there is always a need.
Regardless of the nature of your club large, small, program, departmental wherever there is a group of women banded together in the name of the Federation there is the nucleus of a force for good a force that involves the entire community and one that can perform miracles: quiet miracles such as helping the elderly enjoy life more fully through sharing programs and talents with them or explosive miracles such as shaking the community into doing something about the increase in drug addiction and venereal disease among young people, and the mental degradation wrought by pornographic material available to all age groups including the very young.

You through your club are a member of the Federation sponsoring the Community Improvement Program. You feel you do something worthwhile in life, do you not? Then see that your club enters the CIP contest, and through your efforts with those of others in your club, see that whatever it is you are doing is the BEST effort possible. You may be the one who adds the special push to nudge our state winner into the Top Ten General Federation winner's circle! . . . But your personal satisfaction will exceed all monetary value!

Another Highlight of the Virginia Federation International Tour

Dear Mrs. Brown,

With my greetings for you and the members of the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs, I say goodbye with a heavy heart.

In all the twenty-two years in Washington and in close association with the General Federation, my own life has been enriched because of esteemed friendships and I am grateful for the opportunities for service to this world's greatest organization that has brought us together. I have spoken at your convention and at many local clubs in Virginia which makes me feel very close to each of you.

I am leaving the United States with a heavy heart but I take with me beautiful cherished memories, valuable experiences and esteemed friendships from coast to coast. Washington will always be a second home to us. Wherever we will be, we will continue to speak with sincerity of the greatness of this country greater still are the American

Why Do We Have Mental Health Projects? And I Answered "Because..."

Some months ago, while I was attending a General Federation meeting, an outof-state friend looked at me and inquired, "Why do you have Mental Health as a project in Virginia? Is there some special need?" I looked at my questioner long and thoughtfully. Her interest was obvious and sincere. She was not "just asking" . . . she wanted to know.

Often as clubmomen (and just as women, I suspect), we are given to uttering platitudes. We sometimes give voice to beautiful, verbose phrases that sound intelligent and say little. I did not want to answer my friend in this manner, but I wondered to myself if Virginia clubwomen really knew why we had this project. It is vastly important to know why, because the study, evaluation, and project support of a program dealing with mental and emotional problems demand the total understanding and interest of those who pursue the problem.

And so I said, "Because. . . . ? Because Virginia institutions are crowded with patients who need all the help and understanding available.

Because Virginia agencies and institutions that treat our young tell us that with alarming frequency our youth are becoming victims of emotional illness.

Because too many of our citizens are miserable and afraid to go for help, because of the possible stigma attached to mental and emotional illness.

Because special education teachers tell us that their classrooms are filled to capacity with children with emotional difficulties. These are children that were labled "bad" until special education came to their rescue.

Because State leaders paled and felt genuinely alarmed to know that there are children who do not want to live and try to end their lives, because they live in a jungle of emotional terrors.

Because one former patient in a State hospital told, with glowing face, how much a rehabilitation club meant to him and to others like him. He explained how a helping hand to the road back made life worth living.

Because this same patient told that the ONLY piece of mail of ANY KIND

his release from the hospital was a card from this rehabilitation club, inviting him to a meeting.

Because a clinic director told of a young girl, who could have been yours or mine, whose only friend was a doll, and who talked and lived with this doll as that he had received in the 3 years since though it were real. This same clinic director reported that the parents were almost too late in bringing the girl for treatment, because they did not want anyone to know.

> Because, because. Mental health is our project because we want everyone to know, to understand, and to help.

Sex Education in Virginia's Public Schools

by FRANCES A. MAYS Assistant Supervisor, Health and Physical Education State Board of Education

A Resolution sponsored by the Highland Springs Junior Woman's Club and adopted April 20, 1966 at VFWC Convention-

SEX EDUCATION

WHEREAS, in view of the increases in venereal diseases; and

WHEREAS, economic costs of illegitimacy and foster child care in the state of Virginia are due, in part, to lack of better education in the areas of venereal disease and sexual attitudes; and,

WHEREAS, as we believe there is a need for the inclusion of sex education in our public school curriculum:

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, that the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs urges the State Department of Education to devise a sound curriculum guide for sex education and venereal disease information based upon the moral, spiritual, biological, and health needs of the youth of the State of Virginia; and, that we urge the use of said curriculum guide by local school authorities.

public schools of Virginia? This is a question being asked by many people today. There is no State Board of Education regulation which prohibits the teaching of sex education in the public schools in Virginia. There is, however, a regulation which requires that all materials used in any public school which deal with sex education must be approved by the State Board of Education.

A procedure to be followed by local schools in requesting approval of sex education materials has been established. After a careful review of the materials

Can sex education be taught in the at the local level by the appropriate school personnel, the division superintendent submits to the Director of Secondary Education in writing his request for approval of such materials for use in his school division. In submitting his request, he is asked to clearly indicate in his letter a specific recommendation, approved by the local school board, concerning the precise manner in which the materials are expected to be used. In addition, the request must be accompanied by copies of the materials for which approval is being requested.

When the request and the materials are received, they are reviewed by a committee composed of members of the professional staff. If, in the judgment of this staff committee, the material is considered appropriate for use in the schools, it is recommended to the Textbook and Curriculum Committee of the State Board of Education. If, however, the staff committee deems the material to be inappropriate for use in the schools, the local division superintendent is notified by the Director of the Division of Secondary Education. After receiving such a notice, the local division superintendent has the privilege of further pursuing his request through the office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction.

A set of "Guidelines for Local Schools Interested in Incorporating 'Sex Education' Into the Curriculum of the Secondary School" has been established. These guidelines were presented in a statement of general policy approved by the Textbook and Curriculum Committee of the State Board of Education on September 26, 1963. In this policy it is stated that, "In view of the fact that many of the subject matter fields in the existing curriculum of the secondary school have a logical contribution to make to the development of understandings in the board area of sex education, and in order that learning experiences in this area of instruction may be held in proper perspective, a separate course in sex education is looked upon with disfavor." The suggested guidelines for schools to follow in incorporating sex education learning experiences into the curriculum are given

- 1. The instructional program should be characterized by cooperative and careful pre-planning involving school administrators, teachers, parents, church and civic groups, local medical societies, and public health officials.
- 2. Parent-Teacher Associations should be provided an opportunity to understand thoroughly the purpose, scope, and nature of the content and learning experiences prior to initiating the program.
- 3. Arrangements should be made for the periodic and systematic evaluation of the instructional program from the standpoint of its effectiveness.
- Teachers should be well-prepared through background training to provide effective instruction in those aspects of sex education relating to

Preparation for the advent of public school kindergarten in Virginia in 1968 when the Commonwealth begins a financial partnership with local school divisions, is progressing rapidly in colleges throughout the state that will offer the necessary courses in kindergarten teacher

Because there has been very little need for kindergarten teachers in Virginia, the new emphasis on pre-school education will in the beginning necessitate shifting elementary teachers to this level with a minimum of additional instruction. In general nine semester hours in specialized courses will be required for a kindergarten endorsement on a teaching cer-

Virginia institutions of higher learning indicating they expect to offer summer school courses leading to this endorsement are the College of William and Mary, Longwood College, Madison College, Virginia State College at Petersburg and Norfolk College, Old Dominion College, Radford College, Richmond Professional Institue, University of Virginia, Hampton Institute, St. Paul's College, Virginia Union University, Presbyterian School of Christian Education and Roanoke College. While these schools hope to begin these summer classes in 1967, it may not be possible to do so in all instances. Other schools which have shown interest may be able to join in the effort to provide training necessary in this Inasmuch as the emphasis of this administration of the Virginia Federation is on education and specifically on promoting the inclusion of public school kindergarten throughout the state, the primary way clubs may help is through their scholarship programs. Clubs that do not have a definite commitment of their scholarships to another field are asked to offer them for kindergarten teacher training during this administra-

A suggested course of action is as follows: Contact your school superintendent, or the principal of your local school if you prefer, and tell him you would like to have the names and background material on teachers who would be interested in your scholarship. Have your scholarship committee review the applications and make the awards.

It is suggested that your scholarships offer between $20 and $25 per semester hour. One summer course would then be $60 to $75. The normal summer school course load is six semester hours or $120 to $150, with a nine semester-hour load underwrite the scholarship.

(if sufficient courses are offered at that school for a person to carry such a schedule) requiring $180 to $225 to

If the recipient is able to attend college in her home community, the lesser amount is recommended, but the greater amount would be a help if the recipient has considerable travel expense. Of course, your superintendent can advise you and undoubtedly there will be instances when a nominal amount of assistance and the attendant encouragement from your club will be of real value to a person trying to decide whether to seek the kindergarten endorsement.

At the meeting of the Virginia Federation Board of Directors at the University of Virginia in September, it was voted to use the contribution for sponsorship of notepaper by Bright of America Company for kindergarten teacher training scholarships. It is anticipated that these scholarships will be offered to students in the summer school programs at Radford, Madison, Richmond Professional Institue and Old Dominion College during the sumer of 1967. An application blank will be distributed through the Headquarters Bulletin which member clubs are urged to give to candidates wishing to apply for these scholarships which will be offered on a basis similar to the plan suggested for individual club scholarships. Individuals wishing to study at other schools will also receive ing experience will consider returning to this field and themselves apply. The shorter kindergaten teaching day may make it possible for many to fit this into the home schedule and help meet the needs of this crucial transition period in early childhood education.

To make this program effective, it will be necessary for every club to start preliminary arrangements immediately and maintain contact with school officials. The success of the public school kindergarten program in Virginia is up to interested citizens initially. The Virginia Federation is more than interested it is willing and anxious to help. Even in school divisions that cannot anticipate kindergartens in 1968, we would encourage efforts to prepare personnel for the eventual pre-school program. A State Department of Education survey indicates a maximum potential of some 67,000 kindergartens whenever full participation becomes possible in Virginia.

Just as individual clubs have tailored scholarships in the past to meet the particular needs in their areas, so this program is to be self-designed, selfcontrolled, and it will indeed be selfsatisfying to every clubwoman to have a part in launching Virginia's public school

A Report on Your Dues Dollars

by MRS. J. WILEY NASH, JR., State Treasurer, VFWC

Secure in the knowledge that every member of the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs has the right to know where her contributions to the state treasury are used, I ask you to consider the following very carefully:

Thirty-five cents per member is paid to the General Federation of Women's Clubs to help meet their budget.

A like amount stays in the General Fund of the Virginia State Treasury, and this money is stretched like the proverbial rubber dollar. You will notice in the budget you adopted that certain allotments are made to officers, chairmen, and district presidents. This in no way pays their expenses, but is a token contribution toward the expenses they incur in performing the duties of their offices. The time and effort expended by these women is astronomical, and they certainly deserve all the help and gratitude you. as members, can give.

This thirty-five cents also pays the expenses of maintaining the headquarters office, the secretary's salary, rent, office supplies, postage, etc. The expenses of the Yearbook, which you receive, is also paid from this thirty-five cents, as well as the token allotment to the VIRGINIA CLUB WOMAN. (Advertising pays the remaining cost of the magazine). So you can see we are on a tight budget, and I am sure that you are proud of the marvelous job the Executive Committee and the Budget and Finance Chairmen perform with limited receipts.

In addition, you also make voluntary contributions to the Headquarters Equipment Fund. This money is used to purchase badly-needed equipment. Your contributions to the Mary Macon Mc-Guire Student Loan Fund have helped educate Virginia girls and boys for over a quarter of a century. This is a loan. made without interest and payable in installments the year after a student completes her education.

The Dorothea Buck Fellowship enables a Virginia woman graduate student to study in a Latin-American country during one administration and to permit a young woman from a Latin American country to study at the University of Virginia during the next VFWC administration.

The Penny Art Fund is used to purchase awards for excellence in Fine Arts

The Special Education Scholarship is offered to teachers to enable them to study at the University of Virginia during the summer to prepare themselves to teach exceptional children. Between twenty and twenty-five men and women receive this assistance each summer.

The Headquarters Building Fund was established in 1962 to secure funds to establish a permanent headquarters for the VFWC. At the 1966 convention the assembly voted that the interest from this fund be made available for the purpose of promoting headquarters under the direction and supervision of the Executive Committee. A seven-member Headquarters Advisory Committee has been appointed to assist with this.

So, you can see how important it is that your dues be paid and that you make contributions to these various funds. Thirty-five cents alone does not go far these days, but much can be accomplished when all the coins are added

MRS. WILLIAM G. MADISON

(Ed. Note:) Mrs. Madison, Chairman of Conservation and Gardens for VFWC, was born in Scranton, Pennsylvania. She and her husband Bill moved to Roanoke in 1949, transferred to Bon Air in 1955. The first President of the Woman's Club of Bon Air, she is a skilled flower arranger, a National Accredited Flower Show Judge, and a Director of Piedmont District of the Virginia Federation of Garden Clubs. She is the mother of two married sons, and the justly-proud grandmother of beautiful twin girls.

When arranging flowers for the Sanctuary there should be joy in the work, a joy in being able to honor God by arranging the flowers of His house with dignity and reverence. Many things should be considered: the architecture of the church, the size and the depth of the alter, the appointments being used, whether there is a stained-glass window which can pose a problem, or a hanging. Usually containers or vases have been presented as gifts to the church, and so should be used. These containers are for the most part tall, deep and brass.

So, let's take a second and discuss the mechanics used. Personally, I prefer Oasis (which can be purchased at florist or garden shops) which comes in bricks or blocks and is usually green. This can be cut into the size needed, allowing about an inch extra so it extends above the mouth of the container, thus permitting the latest of which is a 1967 model. you to place some of the plant material at an angle and helping to create a prettier design. If Oasis isn't available, other mechanics may be used, such as chicken wire, crumbled and placed in the container, or a heavy needlepoint holder. the Virginia Museum Theatre.

Floral Design for the House of Worship

by MRS. WILLIAM G. MADISON Chairman, Conservation and Gardens

You might keep in mind that other mechanics are needed as well—sharp clippers or knife, wire, sometimes even extra pieces of stems just in case the flowers being used aren't long enough. To add to stems merely add extra length by wiring or taping extra stem to it, but be sure the stem of the plant material is in the water.

The type of plant material selected depends on the type of church for which the arrangement is being designed. A combination of plant material may be used such as flowers and foliage, flowers and fruit, all fruit or all evergreens. Evergreen arrangements are very satisfactory as they last for a long period of time if the evergreens are properly conditioned. To do this you simply cut the stems of the evergreens at an angle and split the stems about one inch. Remove foliage from the bottom of the stem and place them in a container of water using one teaspoon of glycerin to each quart of water and allowing them to sit overnight or at least for a few

Great quantities of flowers are not necessary to produce an excellent effect. We may choose the humblest roadside blooms and leaves, combine them with skill and thoughtful planning and achieve

Flowers and foliage for the sanctuary should be at the peak of perfection before making the arrangement.

The three types of symmetrically balanced arrangements most often seen in church are massed oval, massed triangle, and massed vertical.

In a small church or a simple chapel, a rather loose, informal type of arrangement is suitable. A formal chapel demands a more tightly massed arrangement, yet one that should be kept dignified and simple.

White flowers are always appropriate but colors may be used. Flowers of the same hue but different values make a delightful design starting with the lighter colors at the top and the darker ones at the bottom. This color harmony is called Monochromatic. If different colored flowers are used, group the same colors together to avoid spottiness.

There are no rules regarding the cross, but it is suggested that the arrangement not extend above the cross arms. If the cross is small it may be made to look larger by placing it on a block of wood to raise it, thus allowing you to use a taller design.

When candles are used it will make a more interesting group if the candles are not on the same level as the cross and flowers arrangement, creating rhythm in the over-all effect.

Good luck in your special work. May you enjoy every minute of it. It will be a joyous way to serve in the House of the Lord.

If Winter comes—can Spring be far

By this time of year, I'll bet most of us gladly welcome the first signs of Spring—the awakening and rebirth of nature in all its splendor!

Shall we start with our lawns? There is nothing lovelier than a velvety green lawn but remember, there is no perfect grass. Beware of "wonder" grasses. You buy them, usually at an outrageous price, plant them and "wonder" why they don't grow. Grass seed sowed on snow is for the birds! Wait and sow the seed on a well-prepared seed bed. You may invest a little more in a permanent lawn but you will have green grass as long as your house lasts. If the grass starts to dry in hot weather, don't panic, it'll bounce back after the first rain if it is a permanent type.

Let us touch slightly on our flower gardens. An annual is a plant which completes its growth in one year and it is started each year from seed. Annuals are divided into three groups according to when the seed is sown: tender, halfhardy and hardy. Hardy annuals are those you can sow directly in the open ground as soon as the soil can be prepared. Half-hardy annuals are sown in February and March in a hotbed or warm window. Tender annuals need more warmth and protection and a longer growing season, therefore, are started in January or February in a warm greenhouse or window. These cannot be planted outdoors until danger of frost

A perennial is a plant whose roots live in the ground year after year, even though the tops die down each fall. Keep the perennial bed or border neatly edged and weeded. Water them well in the hot summer. Your perennials will be showier when planted in masses than when planted in a hit-and-miss fashion.

Bulbs are classified as hardy or nonhardy. A non-hardy bulb will not live outdoors through winter. A lack of moisture during the growing season can cause failure to bloom and seed pods can cause a drain on the plants, so remove them. In winter storage, prevent bulbs from rotting and drying by dusting with sulfur. Misuse of weed killers can cause big trouble with any of your spring planting, especially your bulbs. Hardy bulbs can be left in the ground year after year without danger of winter killing. Failure to bloom is usually due to overcrowding, therefore, most of them should be dug and separated every two to three years. If you can't get manure for your bulbs, be thankful! Use balanced plant foods to avoid diseases which are found in manure. Hot pepper and mothballs scattered in a border are very discouraging to rodents and dogs which bother tulip bulbs. Don't plant hardy bulbs in outdoor planters. They'll freeze.

It's been fun bringing you these few green thumb tips as found in "The Green Thumb Garden Handbook' by George Abraham.

Happy Spring Planting!

Graciela is a shy and timid three year old—a Chilean child. Her family, losing everything and terrorized by the more recent earthquake, fled from its destruction and arrived in Santiago homeless. A struggling Protestant Day School, just affiliated with Children, Incorporated, noting their hunger and extreme need, let them occupy rent free a small wooden shack of one windowless room with a dirt floor. There are three beds for a family of seven but only one matters and insufficient covering. TR germs lurk in the dust of support and sticky much of mattress and insufficient covering. TB germs lurk in the dust of summer and sticky mud of winter. The father, when he can secure work, makes about $30 a month. Graciela has been squeezed into the crowded day school which is trying to help her family

Although the school manages to meet the Government's teaching standards, its buildings are flimsy, without electricity and in urgent need of repairs. 300 children are enrolled with 85 more approved for admission but money is lacking to accommodate them. Graciela, like the other children, exists under sub-human conditions. The lunch which the school tries to provide in the parent thing to a real meal cruel powerty permits to most of those whilds vide, is the nearest thing to a real meal cruel poverty permits to most of these children. Insufficient and improper food bloats their bodies and weakens and stunts their development.

Chile is a beautiful land with friendly people and bright, attractive children. But there are the Gracielas who have so pitifully little—they are "unfinished children". They have such potential. Their lives could be so changed if they could be helped even a little. They could blossom out into lovable, bright and capable youngsters. Graciela's life can be changed, like that of other similarly needy children, her whole future could be broadened and the worried look in her little face could disappear if she were sponsored under the Cl "Adoption Plan". The cost of an "adoption" is the same as in all the Cl projects around the world—$10 a month and the projects around the world will a month.

The airplane circled Cochin in this PART TWO old, old land called Kerala. Below we could see green vegetation, white beaches and palm-fringed lagoons. It looked more like the South Seas than India and we found it really more interesting, for its people are products of a civilization whose recorded history mentions contact with Solomon the Great.

It was the land of the refugee, of religious tolerance 2000 years old when Columbus discovered America. Jews fled here when Nebuchandnezzar destroyed the second wave of refugees came when Titus destroyed the second Temple in A.D. 70 and still a third influx came to this tip of India in 1492 when Ferdinand and Isabella, the Catholic Majesto the City of Cochin in the State of Kerala. The Coast of Kerala was a maze of channels and lagoons all covered with the tallest coconut trees we had ever seen. There were no bullock carts Temple of Jerusalem in 586 B.C. A here; everything moved by large bargelike boats poled by dark men in white dhotes. From our hotel, which was on the water at the mouth of the channel. we watched ferry boats, fishing boats. water taxis and cargo ships pass. Taking ties of Spain expelled the Jews from their a motor launch through the back waters. we passed large boats piled high with coir, the fiberous part of coconut, being poled to the little factories where it is made into the type of door mats that we all use at our front doors. Water little island to another to school. The girls were beautiful, somber young women in sandals and peacock blue skirts with shining black hair hanging down their backs, and the boys were barefoot in shorts and the same blue shirts. There undoubtedly are no handsomer people on earth. By training and tradition the boys and girls are utterly segregated; even in the school boats they sit separately. These children are fortunate to be living in the most literate State in India where 98% of the children go to school at least to the 6th grade.

Kerala seemed more advanced than much of India because of the impact of educational opportunities over the years. In Kerala you find an interesting example of the Indian struggle for progress over traditionalism.

This struggle began in the time of Nehru who successfully curbed the fanaticism of the Jan Sangh and other more extreme groups. His daughter, Indira Gandhi, now prime minister, has a modern outlook and is fighting for the kind of Indian society for which her father worked. She has the courage to act in what she believes to be the best interest buses were taking children from one of her fellow countrymen. It took great courage, for example, for her to devaluate the Indian Rupee, an economic necessity but unpopular move.

Superstition Determines Politics

There will have to be great changes in the attitudes of the masses, and this must start at the village level. In the West I cannot imagine a great event being celebrated on a particular day because of the prophecy of an astrologer, but it happens in India! Careers are launched on this basis and no marriage takes place unless the horiscope of the pair matches; then the wedding date is set by the astrologer. In America we have our prejudices that have taken generations to change, but we have not allowed our religious or superstitious beliefs to determine public policy.

Cows and Rats Eat Needed Food

The prejudice about cow-killing, which is religious, is only one example and it has done grave damage to India's economy. If these holy, starving, milkless, even crippled beasts were put out of the way so that the healthy stock might have a chance of survival, India would be far less poor. If the rats that infest the ports were destroyed, there would be half again as much grain to feed the Traveling through the countryside and villages one sees the vastness of India's problems, and they are staggering, with Birth Control at the top of the list. It is making progress in some areas with over 48,000 Family Planning Centers, In 1951 only 3,700 villages had elechowever, it has an uphill road. First there are some elements that spread adverse information, such as mid-wives, pharmaceutical companies and even some doctors who feel it might cut into their

All changes must start at the village level and here there are certain attitudes that are almost impossible to overcome. First, every family wants two or three sons. The number of daughters does not count as they marry and leave home. Sons are life insurance! They bring their wives home to live, take over the business or land when the parents are old and care for them in old age. Two or three sons are a necessity as one might leave home or go to the city to work and leave the family. This is the basis of the "Joint-Family System" which is the usual way of living in the village and to some extent in the cities. Girls always move in with their In-Laws. It is the Mother-in-law's house until she dies and then the eldest son and his wife take over. This system will gradually die out as the country becomes more industrialized and more young people move to the cities for both education and work.

Foreign Aid Not Enough

Village life is improving a little, with electricity and more irrigation, and with the help of AID, Agricultural Advisers and the 1500 Peace Corps workers. There seem to be dozens of advisers on every subject imaginable in India. The American is predominate with the Ford Foundation, Rockefeller Foundation, AID, CARE, UNESCO, Peace Corps, Friends Society (Quaker-type Peace Corps), YWCA, Soil & Irrigation experts and all sorts of educational advisers and exchange teachers. India is not lacking in people to help her, but it is a slow process to get things done and to change the villagers' ways to more progressive ones. It is fatalism—"the gods willed it this way so why should we try to change things." The old adage that anything that should have been done yesterday can just as well be done next month or next year holds true with many individuals here. However, there are many Indians who are trying hard to solve their country's problems. Because of them progress has been made in the last 15 years. Here are a few examples:

changing attitudes and habits. (They have never irrigated before so why should

Caste System Continues

Many of the attitudes and habits are definitely related to the Caste System for when one discusses India, the word Caste always comes up. Untouchability is outlawed but Caste as it is today will probably never disappear. It is a built-in social structure. There is a sort of tribal security within the Caste, or within each social level. When a Villager goes to a strange village or is simply traveling he asks where the people of his Caste live or eat and he is immediately accepted without question. I am not sure how much it limits the individuals' opportunity to rise in the world but I do know there are successful businessmen, politicians, doctors and artists from all Castes. However, they seldom inter-marry.

There are still vestiges of the old Caste System in the villages. Recently I visited one of the YWCA pre-school projects in a small village about 30 miles from Delhi. It is a program very similar to "Head Start" in the States. Because most of the children attending this particular project were of the very poor class many parents of a higher caste or those slightly better off would not send their children to the same school. These are children who need not only the nutritional lunch but to be prepared for schooling since most of the parents can neither read nor write and the children probably have never seen a book unless they have an older brother or sister in school.

In the last six months, you have read much about the rioting in India. This was best explained at a discussion on Indian political parties held at the Embassy recently. One Indian and two American political reporters were the speakers. From their viewpoint it is purely political. India is having the 4th general election since Independence in February and the opposition parties are doing everything possible to embarrass the Government or Congress party as they control the government. It was the only party until Independence. It was the party of Gandhi and Nehru and the one that unified all India against the common enemy of the time-Great Britian. The opposition parties that have come to life since independence are something new to Indian politics and something that will take time for Indians to learn how to handle.

India cannot really withstand the forces of reaction and develop industry and science intelligently unless her people can overcome personal superstition. She is trying to modernize herself in a democratic way in a few generations. However, she does not have a scientifically trained young generation of men and women to set about changing public opinion. Without a new kind of crusading zeal in an army of medically trained people, the population growth will not be halted and the efforts at social reform are of no use. No matter what advancement she makes it is of less importance than moving the Indian people out of the traditional fatalism which is a barrier to present day progress.

THE VIRGINIA CLUB WOMAN

What's in a Club Name?

by PAULINE A. MITCHELL

A look at a Roster of Virginia clubs brings forth some interesting names, particularly among the older clubs. For example:

IN HOC SIGNO VINCES CLUB of Roanoke, translates "By this sign thou wilt conquer." This is one of the older clubs in the state, organized in 1912, federated one year later, with three main purposes: the study of cultural subjects, civic improvement and philanthropy. This year the club has chosen a most provocative motto. "A Better World Begins With Me."

In 1924 the club entertained the Virginia Federation with a buffet supper and reception. They also purchased thirty acres of land for Shenandoah National Park. While it is one of the smaller clubs in Blue Ridge District, for the past few years it has been giving a $75.00 campersite to Camp Easter Seal, according to the president, Mrs. Walter Garland.

THE FORTNIGHTLY CLUB LI-BRARY ASSOCIATION of Herndon was organized in 1889, proudly states the attractive club letterhead, but according to Mrs. John Middleton, Corresponding Secretary for the club, the name is slightly misleading. The original club met once every two weeks (a fortnight) but for many years now it meets monthly as do most other clubs. It is a service club, its chief project being offering and sustaining a free library for the town of Herndon, in Northern Virginia.

THE ABINGDON BOOKLOVERS CLUB of Washington County was founded in 1914 by about a dozen women for the purpose of reviewing books and beginning a library. They also started a Junior Booklovers Club which changed its name to the Junior Woman's Club of Abingdon some time later. The Abingdon Booklovers Club has never been a departmental club, but stresses the Literary portion of the Federation aims. Miss Marian Stafford, Past President, says that although the library it originally sponsored is now a public library, it is still the major activity of the club.

THE MONDAY CLUB OF WEST POINT began as a Friday Club. Mrs. P. H. Martin, Jr., current president, delved into old minutes of the club and found that the original club was to meet "every second and fourth Friday at 3:30 P.M. promptly." Every third meeting was to be a social one, and yearly dues were set at "two dollars and a book."

In 1921, after "due discussion," the minutes indicate that the meetings were changed from Friday to Monday, and the club became the Monday Club.

Each year the club purchases books for the town library. These books are circulated among the members during the club year and then donated to the library. The club recently won $100.00 on the radio "Quiz Bowl" and donated this extra money to the library.

THE WOMAN'S READING CLUB OF NORFOLK is one of the smallest clubs in Tidewater District, having only 17 members, but it has been an active club since February 3, 1905. Mrs. William E. Bishoff, Historian of the club. writes that the club is primarily a study club, and through the years its members have made a thorough study of various foreign countries. Each member appears on the agenda twice during the year. Within the club there is also a circulating serve many homeless boys in Virginia. It is being developed on 900 acres of land which was a part of Patrick Henry's last plantation and his burial place.

The home is a non-profit, charitable organization incorporated by the state of Virginia. Any non-delinquent homeless boy from age six through high school who is mentally and physically well can be admitted. The boys are placed in the home by welfare agencies, parent or legal guardian primarily because the boys' own homes have been broken due to death, divorce, desertion or inability of parents to care for them.

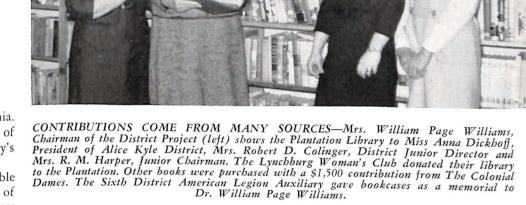

First Cottage Built in 1959

Alice Kyle District and the Lynchburg Foundry made funds available for the construction of the first cottage in 1959. Several years prior to that, construction of the home was the main project of the district. Upon its completion and dedication, the project was dropped, but many of the clubs continued their interest and support. There was so much continued interest that at the 1966 Spring Meeting,

Home Atmosphere Important

Contributions of books, furniture and clothing have been made by many clubs in the area. Parties and outings have been provided for the boys.

The young residents attend public schools in Campbell and Charlotte counties and also a local church of their choice. All boys perform chores such as bed-making, cleaning the cottage, kitchen duty, cutting grass and gardening. They are paid an allowance for the chores they perform, and a bonus is paid for making honor roll at schools. They spend their spare time fishing, participating in sports at school, 4-H Clubs, and church youth groups. They have their own basketball team and enjoy competition with comparable groups.

Although the program is designed to take care of boys only through high school, four boys are now being assisted in colleges of their choice. Through the efforts of the Brookneal Junior Woman's Club and friends of the home, money is currently being raised to finance another boy who entered college in January.

Home Operating at Capacity

Boys Plantation has no vacancies at this time. Officials are hoping to raise the additional $19,000.00 needed to construct the third cottage this summer and

Club Hopes to Break Barriers to Handicapped

Mrs. Catherine Umbarger of the Virginia Society for Crippled Children and Adults and Mrs. Colon McMath, Jr. of the Norfolk Junior Women's Club, talk with Mrs. Dolly Dudley about the barriers survey being conducted by the Norfolk Juniors. (Please note sign requesting the use of a revolving door!)

A survey of architectural barriers to the physically handicapped in Norfolk had been conducted by the Junior Woman's Club of Norfolk. A selection of 150 public and private buildings was made by the Public Welfare department and its chairman, Mrs. Maxey Bryant. Some of the barriers noted by the members were flights of stairs, narrow doorways and restrooms preventing use by wheelchair persons, out-of-reach drinking fountains and telephones, inconvenient parking and grading at unusual levels.

The department was contacted by the Health Information Center of Hampton Roads and the survey is intended as a pilot project for similar surveys in the surrounding cities and county area.

The department is also working with the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults. This group is directing a four year project on architectural barriers financed by the U.S. Public Health

The most immediate result from the survey will be a pocket-size directory of selected buildings in Norfolk permitting the handicapped to move about the city as independently and easily as possible. It is also desired by the club that this new community awareness will result in new buildings designed without barriers or the removal of barriers in old build-

Thomas Jefferson Juniors Sponsor Mental Retardation Forum

The Thomas Jefferson Junior Woman's Club under the direction of Mrs. Byron B. Nelson, Jr., Chairman of Health and Mental Health, sponsored with the Richmond Area Association for Retarded Children, and the Richmond Junior Chamber of Commerce, a Public Forum on Mental Retardation in Children

This Forum was held in the hope that it could better acquaint the public with the exceptional child, and to discuss the provisions available for him and those which are needed.

An introduction was given by Mr. Walter J. Harmon of the Richmond Area Mental Health Association. The five members of the panel are authorities in the field of mental retardation. Important aspects of retardation were selected and each speaker discussed a different area in which he has specialized. The five aspects and the speakers were:

Lake Community Sends Gifts to Vietnam

MOTHER'S HELPERS William, Jon Karl and Gregory Lyons, sons of Dr. and Mrs. William Lyons of Lake Barcroft, Virginia, were kept busy for a week helping their mother (right) and Mrs. Bernard McGurr (center) President of the Woman's Club of Lake Barcroft, lift books and packages into their station wagon.

These goods, including food, magazines and many personal items, were collected by the club and sent to American servicemen in Vietnam. The club members also enlisted the aid of other local groups, such as the BYKOTA Society of the First Presbyterian Church of Falls Church and classes from the Princeton Elementary School.

Westhampton Juniors Collect Gifts for Eastern State Hospital

The Health committee of the Westhampton Junior Woman's Club rounded up a large collection of things needed by Eastern State Hospital in Williamsburg. Clothes, books, shoes and eyeglass frames (to be fitted with the patients' own prescriptions) were collected. Added to these were small gifts which were purchased by each club member. Two cars were completely filled with boxes when the items were packed for delivery. Club members who accompanied the gifts to Williamsburg toured the hospital and visited with some of the patients.

of Women's Clubs (VFWC), at Andrew Lewis High School.

Defining politics as "the art of government," Pence asked the clubwomen "as responsible citizens" to participate actively in political affairs.

"The caliber of lawmakers should be the concern of every citizen," he said.

Pence said women should advise themselves of political matters on all levels . . . of Richard F. Pence spoke Saturday to the Blue Ridge District meeting of the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs held at Andrew Lewis High School in Salem. Some 29 clubs were represented.

"Door - to - door canvassing for contributions will attract candidates of higher caliber," he told the women.

Pence said that Roanoke has been especially fortunate in its candidates. "This isn't always the case in other areas."

The lawyer said he disapproves of the "independent voter category.

"And independent electorate makes for a dangerous situa-tion. A political party has to be numerically strong." Following Pence's talk, the

Clubwomen Fewer, GFWC Leader Says

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The number of club women in America is declining but the General Federation of Women's Clubs is "stronger today than it ever has been," its president said Monday.

The federation is suffering a "decline in membership just as other organizations," Mrs. E. D. Pearce of Miami, Fla., said, because Americans "are over-organized."

"There is a club for everything," Mrs. Pearce told a news conference on the eve of the federation's 76th annual convention.

Some 1,500 delegates, representing 800,000 clubwomen, registered for the convention, running through tomorrow.

Mrs. Pearce blamed the decline also on competition from other clubs, from television and "our affluent society" which is attaining many of the goals clubwomen have been seeking for years.

"The threat to our organization is senior fallout and junior dropout," she said, "Our membership is older." The federation, which perhaps foresaw the problem 45 years ago when it organized the juniors—age limit 35—is trying vigorously "to bridge the generation gap."

"We are encouraging junior clubs to organize still younger groups, in high school," Mrs. Pearce said, "and they well could be our savior."

Mrs. Pearce emphasized that there has been no loss in the number of clubs, and five states have increased membership. Among them were California which added 5,000, new clubwomen in a year, and her own state of Florida.

In a pre-convention lunce on honoring the federation board of directors, Byron Nichols, vice president Chrysler Corp., urged (women to push for st ocompliance with provision the National Highway Act, and to try to motorists to use safe vices auto manufactury vided them.

Club Members to Appear In Benefit Fashion Show

The Valley Junior Woman's Club, which will sponsor the first kindergarten for the deaf in Southwest Virginia, will stage a "Fall Winds of Fashion" presentation tomorrow evening at Hotel Roanoke.

Proceeds will be given to the kindergarten which is expected to open later this month at the Williamson Road headquarters of the Virginia Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

Club members who will model in the 8 p.m. show include Mrs. Fred Swartz, Mrs. Richard Metz Jr., Mrs. Durward Starkey, Mrs. Jimmy Hiner, Mrs. William Hedger, Mrs. Chester E. Gorman, Mrs. Carl Jensen, Mrs. J. D. Sisson and Mrs. Charles R. Nelson.

Terry Firebaugh and Phyliss Hedger, daughters of club members, will parade in children's fashions and styles for the mature age will be shown by Mrs. W. A. Dean and Mrs. George DeMott of the Williamson Road Woman's Club.

The Miller & Rhoads department store is furnishing the outfits and will present Miss Linda Jo Maclin, a former Miss Virginia, and Miss Jody Spofford as models.

This company has gone to its advertising representative. Byer & Bowman of Columbus, Ohio, to conduct taste-testing sessions, first with the Williamson Road Woman's Club, and now with the Valley Junior Woman's Club.

Mrs. Marcella Dyer, a representative of the agency, was in town for the Tuesday evening meeting of the junior organization, and paid the club "50 cents a mouth" to taste the products, to fill out questionnaires and to prompt the women to experiment with different products in their own kitchens.

"The response was great." Mrs. Dyer observed in an interview later. "Some of the women brought along their husbands and we got a good cross-section of honest opinions."

Mrs. Dyer said Roanoke is one of the few areas in the country where such a survey is being taken, and the findings eventually help the producer in packaging a meat product which is favorable to everyone.

"It's actually a service for the food producer as well as the homemaker," she said.

The testers look for flavor as well as packaging, deciding which product they prefer, how they would prepare the meat, and the frequency of purchase of such a product. The food in this recent test was sausage and wieners, both without a brand name and each sample lettered A, B

"There's a lot of psychology in food testing," Mrs. Dyer revealed. "For instance, we see so often a product advertised as Brand X. We've eliminated that because saying 'Brand X' leaves a bad effect upon some people. Numbers won't work either. And with letter labeling, some people will subconsciously say they prefer Dish A because it appears first. Then others will select Dish B because they feel the other fellow has chosen the A and he wants to be different."

All of this information is studied over a period of time, and changes are suggested to the meat producer, who improves upon his product. Then the same products are retested on the previous tasters.

"To complete such a study, it takes at least eight to 10 sessions, sometimes more." the food consultant said, and added that she is on the lookout for groups interested in the taste-testing program.

The variance in regional tastes enter the picture, too, and Mrs. Dyer explained that in some areas, sausage is accepted only as a breakfast food. In the kitchens at the advertising agency, Mrs. Dyer and her staff of home economists develop a number of recipes using sausage anything from outdoor-grilled sausage, sausage casseroles to a sausage fruitcake. "Actaully, it's form of con-

Being a home economist, Mrs. Dyer is constantly cooking and testing in her own home in Worthington, Ohio, "in my spare time." There, too, television commercials are filmed and publicity photos made. "I have a whole closet full of props," she said.

The food expert is also in the process of writing a cookbook which will appear later this year, and she stresses that all recipes will be fully tested, "so if the dishes don't turn out the way they're supposed to, it's because the cook doesn't follow directions."

Mrs. Dyer laughed at some of the minor faults which have come out of her kitchen testing during the past years. One recipe for a sausagecornbread stuffing which appeared in a Ohio newspaper caused quite a furor when readers turned out an extremely dry dressing. A cup of bouillon was to have been added to the cooked sausage drippings, in such a way as to "clean out the frying pan" of sausage particles.

This liquid was to have been added to the dry ingredients. "We found that the cooks had poured the liquid down the drain with the reasoning that it was to wash out the pan and not to be added to the dressing. Directions in recipes have to be made as simple as possible, step-by-step, because some women just don't use common sense," Mrs. Dyer said.

Cathy applied to AFS last fall during her junior year, submitting an autobiography and filling out forms on top of forms. She was chosen from many applicants because of her scholastic average, which is 5.0. She has maintained a perfect, straight E record through school. She has served as co-president of the high school chapter of the AFS Club, cheerleader and junior class secretary and Friday is the big day.

She will fly to New York, where she will visit the American Field Service Office and join other students from all over the United States who have also been chosen to go abroad.

She and her mother, Mrs.
Paul C. Dress, have had just a little over a week to make preparations. There were shots to get, a physical checkup, and a passport and a visa to obtain.

Cathy will arrive in Rio de Janiero Saturday, where she will be met by an AFS representative and, perhaps, her new 'summer family.'

Her summer will be spent living with the Elio de Almeida Viana family in Vila Velha Espirito Santo on the east coast of Brazil.

She hopes to learn firsthand what family life and education are like in South America.

The family with whom she'll be living has four daughters and two sons ranging in ages 3 through 16.

12 Tuesday, June 20, 1967.

Mr. Viana is an architect and Mrs. Viana paints porcelain. With their six children, they live in a moderate house within walking distance of the nearest town, although there are no neighbors close by.

In addition to scholastic achievement and personality, Cathy was chosen to live with the Viana family because they share basically the same background.

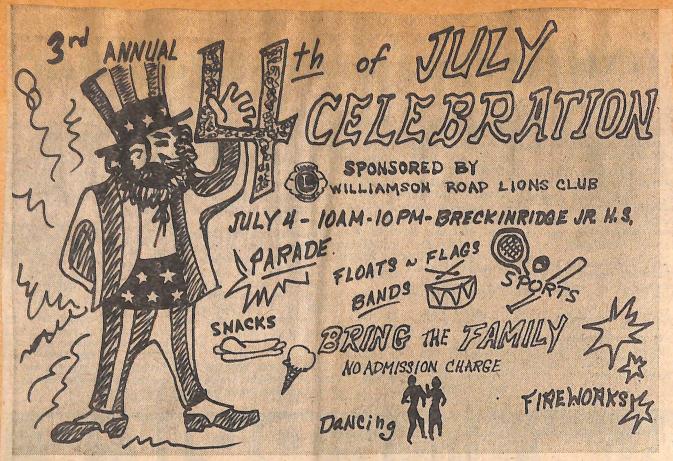

She loves sports and camping, and plays the piano. So do the Vianas.

The AFS has cautioned her against wearing bermudas, slacks and two-piece bathing suits while there. Only in certain areas of South America are they permitted.

Since they will be having their winter, she is encouraged to take light woolens and sweaters.

Cathy's main problem now is trying to secure a Portuguese phrase book. Only two members of the Viana family speak English. And, much to her regret, she speaks no Portuguese.

Her parents are to finance one-third of the trip, and the AFS Adult Club, which is composed of various civic organizations in the Williamson Road area, will assume the remaining two-thirds.

Dear Mrs. Haislip:

The 1967 summer camping season at Camp Easter Seal ended on Friday of last week, and it is a pleasure to say that the overall program was tremendously successful. A total of 323 handicapped boys and girls from all areas of the state participated, and we feel that every one benefitted.

It was good to have had Linda Dillow in attendance, and your club's kind assistance with her sponsorship is deeply appreciated. We feel that it was a very profitable experience for her.

We owe a great deal to the outstanding clubs in Virginia, such as your Williamson Road Woman's Club, who have helped to make possible the success of this endeavor for these handicapped children, and we want you to know that we do appreciate your continued interest and support.

A snapshot of Linda is enclosed for your club scrapbook. Again our sincere thanks to each of you.

Very truly yours,

Governor's Wife Is Special Guest At VFWC Tea

Mrs. Mills E. Godwin Jr. and wives of state legislators were guests of honor at a tea given Thursday in Richmond by the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs (VFWC).

And the state's first lady stood painfully for more than an hour as nearly 800 women from across the state greeted her in a receiving line with Mrs. E. Parker Brown of Richmond, VFWC president. Mrs. Godwin's right foot, broken in an auto mishap nearly a year ago, has caused her discomfort since healing, but it has, too, revealed her sense of humor. She has been pictured with a three-legged stool against which she has leaned in receiving lines.

"I don't mind saying it hurts," she said at the tea in Miller & Rhoads' department stor?. "Now I just try to forget it."

Before the 4 p.m. affair began, she chatted with early arrivals, remarking "I'm just being real spoiled sitting here. I'm ready to get up any time." But before the last guest was greeted, she appeared fatigued.

Mrs. Godwin wore a silk suit of her favorite color, sapphire blue. It matches her eyes. She says she is unusally busy when the General Assembly convenes as "invitations start coming in from everyone months before." And she is committed to a certain amount of entertaining

Women Respond To Plea To Fight Crime in Streets

WASHINGTON (AP)-Organizations representing many thousands of American women have responded to Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson's appeal to citizens to help fight crime in the streets.

The White House announced Saturday that the First Lady has had expressions of interest and support from some 27 na-tional and local groups.

Perhaps the largest is the 11million-member General Federation of Women's Clubs, whose president Mrs. E. D. Pearce of Miami, Fla., applauded Mrs. Johnson's "intention to emphasize individual, and community responsibility in the fight against crime."

against crime."

Mrs. Pearce said she has asked the nearly 15,000 federated clubs across America "to help in this fight."

Mrs. Johnson, in a reply the White House released, told Mrs. Peace "how deeply the president and I appreciate their help in this problem."

"Widespread problems of crime are solved only with

"Widespread problems of crime are solved only with widespread interest and thought-ful approaches," Mrs. Johnson told Mrs. Pearce.

Among organizations the White House said have written to Mrs. Johnson to express interest and support of anticrime activities by citizens groups are:

B'nai B'rith, whose national resident Mrs. Arthur G. Rosenbluth offered to assist "with all the resources and womanpower at our disposal"; the National Federation of Business and Professional Womens Clubs, whose president Mrs. Mabel McClana-han, said she was issuing a call to action to all its 250,000 mem-
