Greetings

- G Stands for Greetings,
We extend them now to you,
Teachers, friends, alumni,
And City of Roanoke, too.
- R Stands for Reading.
Do this, without our pleading.
- E Stands for Every One
Who in this book will find some fun.
- E Stands for Errors Few
May such a number meet your view.
- T Stands for Tremble,
Which now we certainly do;
But surely will forget soon,
Because of kind words from you.
- I Stands for Interest shown.
Our hearty thanks we now make known.
- N Stands for our good Name,
Which ever is, one and the same.
- G Stands for Great Big Men,
Who for our book their "Ads" they send.
- S Stands for Students all,
Whose efforts here you see.
And now before their Senior Hall,
They give to you the key.

Toast to the 1917 Class

Hail, to the CLASS OF SEVENTEEN!
 The best that Roanoke has ever seen.
 They have wit and charm and grace enough,
 Good looks and sense; that's not a bluff.
 There's CAMPBELL and COOK in leadership famed,
 And POWELL and BOWERS of intellectual name;
 REPASS and GORDON are the stars of beauty,
 MAL PAYNE and E. SCOTT, they do their duty;
 There's E. DAVIS and HAMERSLY, efficient and neat,
 KOONTZ, the musician, whose melodies sweet
 Ring throughout old Roanoke High,
 And make us forget that teachers are nigh;
 And also GIBBONS and PRESIDENT STONE,
 Whom girls admire but leave alone.
 MOOMAW, MEADOWS and FRANKLIN are basket-ball stars;
 BENING, BURNS and AVENT are useful at large;
 BAKER and SMITH, the jesters merry,
 Have hearts that are light and ever cheery;
 HASH is the actor and leader of cheers.
 ERB's the wee bright one, young in years;
 THORNTON and CHESTERMAN are "little but loud,"
 When you get with them you're with quite a crowd.
 There's SPALDING and PRICE of gridiron renown,
 RANKIN is the star football center of the town.
 KERLIN and QUINN are the clowns of the Class,
 Their antics are ever a joke and a farce.
 J. KENNETT, the debator, can also write themes,
 They're worth a hundred, the teacher deems.
 FAY YOST and C. STONE are managers fine,
 BRUNER and HILL hold down the art line,
 HARRY YATES, athletic star, plays on all teams;
 ATKINSON and HORNBERGER please Miss Critz, it seems;
 MOTTLEY and SNAVELY are good all around,
 And AMOS leads the Class in talking renown.
 So, SEVENTEEN CLASS of R. H. S.,
 Here's to you—to your happiness;
 Here's a health to your future,
 And a health for your past;
 May you love and remember
 And be true to the last
 To the memories of R. H.,
 And friends still in the strife,
 So, "good speed" to you, classmates,
 On your journey of life.

Class Song

TUNE—"There's a Long, Long Trail"

Roanoke High, we now must leave you, The end at last is here; Oh! our hearts will e'er be true To our school so dear. Old remembrances are thronging Through my memory, Till each thought seems full of longing, To bring High School back to me.	No, we never will forget you, We will loyal be. '17 Class will e'er be true, Grand Seniors are we. In the days that lie before us, Our fond hopes will be, That Junior Class, you, too, may trust Roanoke High as well as we.

CHORUS

There's a long, long trail a-winding,
Into the land of our dreams,
Where the visions bright are splendid,
And the future beams.
There's a long, long thought of leaving
Our school of joy, love and strife.
But at last we must be going
Down that long, long trail of life.

T. HAMERSLY, 17.

EWING CUTCHIN PARSONS

COURTNEY ALLEMONG

"I awoke one morning and found myself famous."

It is a well-known fact that Courtney is the flirt of the class for she makes excellent use of her "star-like" eyes. She certainly causes all of us a lot of amusement; she's forever saying funny things which generally make the class become hysterical. Courtney has not deemed it necessary to attend school regularly and when she does come she gets here a half an hour late. Aside from her eccentricities, we all admit that she is a musical genius. All great geniuses have hobbies. Courtney's is pigeons, and all hours of the day or night one may hear her melodious voice calling, "Pigie, pigie, pigie." When the world is talking of Courtney as a composer, we will be glad that she belonged to the '17 Class. M. W. L. S.; G. C.; A. A.

GODFREY RUSSELL ARNALL

"Enough, with over measure."

Godfrey, our illustrious Brutus in Shakespeare, is contemplating for the future a career in business. As to what this is we do not know yet. He says it is straight. We hope so, and presume that he is not destined to be a farmer. Godfrey seldom says anything to the girls in school, but one can never tell what does or may happen in the mind of our actor. During his four years in the High School, he has done very well, and we express our wish that he may do as well, or better, in his business career. A. A.; B. C.

DORA ELIZABETH ALMOND

"A girl whom we all hold dear."

This quotation is certainly true of Dora. We have all learned to like her though she spent most of the time before Christmas talking to Minnie and since January, having finished school, has attended Park Street Normal. Dora takes so much interest in her school work that we feel her career as a teacher will be successful though she doesn't intend to teach over two years. The only thing we regret is that Dora was fortunate enough to finish school before the end of the year and could not be with us the whole term. A. A.

WILLIAM ATKINSON

"Above the flight of common sort."

Now William has a most brilliant future before him and should be a wonderful model for his worshipers. As a man of mind he is excellent and deserves much credit as a member of the M. A. C. William's work as a poet is unsurpassed, but he expects to rest on his laurels, though this act is a keen loss to the literary world. In relation to athletics he proved himself a stalwart pillar of the Basket-ball Team. J. L. S.; B. C.; A. A.; Bt. B. '17.

SARA IRWIN AMOS

*"She is buxom, wise and merry,
And has a tongue no man can tame."*

During the four years that Irwin, or "Big Girl," has been with us in R. H. S. she has become famous for her giggle and the "speed of her tongue." No one would believe the statement she made when she said in a confidential chat: "Don't you know when I walk down the street with a man I can't say one word." Irwin is the best all-round and the most popular girl in the '17 Class, and her popularity is not confined to the Seniors alone, but extends to the Faculty, underclassmen and to a "Forrest" in Tennessee. Irwin's ability as a teacher has been recognized by the Superintendent, because of the skillful manner in which she substituted at Commerce Street School. She intends to teach—but we predict that she will become a leading Shakespearean actress on account of her successful portrayal of the character of Lady Macbeth. She has not fully decided what she will do next year, but the whole class wishes her much success in what she undertakes. V. P. Senior Class; M. W. L. S.; G. C.; A. A.; Pt. of H. I.

VIRGINIA ALBERTINE ASH

"I love the tranquil solitude."

Quiet Jennie—that's her reputation, at least, it seems to be with the teachers of R. H. S., for her report usually shows 100 for deportment. She can talk though, and does so in school—but what she says is usually worth listening to. Promptness is another virtue. She has not been late during her High School course, though we once heard her say she wished she had been five minutes later. Ask her any time if she has written her English and she always says, "I've got something." It must have been something, too, for her grades are usually good. School is not her only interest by any means, for ah! there is another. Jennie says she is going to be a teacher, but we have our doubts about her teaching long. Whatever she does we are sure she will succeed as she has in her school work, and we wish her happiness in whatever she undertakes.

FRANCIS DANIEL PRESTON BRUNER

"Life without industry is Guilt; Industry without Art is Brutality."

Francis, whose ability as an artist is well known, is a good-natured, unassuming fellow. He often amuses the Seniors with his varied drawings, and one can always find him putting the finishing touches to some sketch. The Senior Class made a wise selection in electing him Art Editor of this volume of ACORNS OF ROANOKE. In his Math. classes he is slow, but sure, and often shows new and astonishing solutions for geometrical problems. Francis is contemplating entering Lehigh University and our class wishes him all the success in the world in his new field of endeavor. B. C.; A. A.; T. T. '15-'16-'17; J. L. S.; S. C.; Art Ed. '17.

CLAUDINE AVENT

"Her modest looks the cottage might adorn, Sweet as the primrose peeps beneath the thorn."

Claudine's gentle manner and generous heart have held our love and friendship through these four long years. When one knows her well, she is a true and invaluable friend. Especially when we are in trouble do we understand Claudine's lovely character, when in her quiet and unobtrusive manner she lends a helping hand to the struggling student. Claudine has won many friends during her High School career. As we have all found she is very fond of the initials H. H., whenever we see her at the post office, we know where her letters are going. After leaving R. H. S. Claudine expects to enter R.-M. W. C., but we think she will make a happy home for some devoted lover in the far west. The best wishes of the '17 Class go with her. M. W. L. S.; G. C.; A. A.; Alumni Ed. '17 ACORNS.

ANNA JACKSON BAKER

"Still constant is a wondrous excellence."

Anna is rather quiet until she is asked to recite in any of her classes, and then she talks more than most of us. She carries five subjects, four of these five being languages; her excellence is shown, however, in French. Although Anna lives a long way from school, which hinders her from entering in some of the school activities, she is never tardy. She is good-natured and when any of her struggling classmates want help, they always go to her, and she gives it so willingly. We hear Anna likes preachers, but we cannot say any more about it, for that is all we know. She tells us she intends to go to Normal School, but has not yet found the one of her choice. Here's hoping she makes a good school ma'am. M. W. L. S.

JAMES EDWARD COMER

"Noble in deed as in stature."

Edward, better known as "Skinny," is the tallest member of our class—but wait, he has even finer qualities than this. In studious diligence he is unrivaled among the boys, and we often envy his records in Math. and English classes. Possessed of extraordinary histrionic and oratorical abilities, Skinny's modest and retiring nature has kept them concealed until recently, when he directed and played a prominent part in "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch." His humorous readings at J. L. S. meetings will be remembered, to say nothing of his faithful portrayal of Shakespearean roles. In track work he is equally proficient and we prophesy a new R. H. S. record in the 880-yard run this spring. Edward is an all-round good fellow, and we wish him the best of luck in his career at V. P. I., where he intends to matriculate next fall. T. T.; B. C.; J. L. S.; A. A.

KATHLEEN ELIZABETH BAKER

*"Forever foremost in the ranks of fun,
The laughing herald of the harmless pun."*

Kathleen is the chief fun maker of the class and always has a good joke to tell you. She is carefree, and loses no sleep over her studies, however, she manages to come out on top. She loves to argue, as is shown by her frequent speeches at the Annual Board meetings. At basket-ball practice her cry is, "Oh, I've sprained another finger." But that doesn't hinder her from keeping her opponent's ball out of the basket. Frankness is Kathleen's strong characteristic and often puts us in the right place. She is very popular and her bright smiles and words will be missed a great deal. But we know she will be just as popular and successful wherever she may go, as in R. H. S. Sec. M. W. L. S. '17; G. C.; M. W. L. S.; Joke Ed. ACORNS; A. A.; Pt. of H. 3; Lit. Coun.

ROSA BENING

*"A lovely being, scarcely formed or moulded,
A rose with all its sweetest leaves yet folded."*

Rosa is one of our prettiest and most popular girls, for by her sweet and generous disposition, she has long since won the love and respect of all her classmates. She leaves behind her an enviable record, never having to take an exam until her senior year. No subject seemed to present a difficulty to her, though she starred especially in modern languages, mastering both French and German. Rosa also has an abundance of school spirit and every game finds her on the side lines shouting with all her might for old R. H. S. Whatever may be Rosa's aim in life, she is sure to succeed and when we part on our many different ways, she will take with her the best wishes of the Class of '17. M. W. L. S.; A. A.; G. C.; Sec. M. W. L. S. '16; V. P. G. C. '16-'17; Organization Ed. of ACORNS, '17; Pt. of H. 5.

ALFRED CHARLES DAVIS

"He is so generally civil that nobody thanked him for it."

In several ways he reminds us of the opposite sex—his low voice (for which he is often chided by Miss Critz), his effeminate hands with their Chinese finger nails, his flowing raven locks and his small feet (No. 10). Yet withal, to those who know him, he is far superior to a female. He realizes the advantages of R. H. S. and left his home in Tennessee that he might come here and enjoy these advantages. Though he participateth not in our sport he is as anxious as any other pupil that victory comes our way. B. C.; A. A.

EDNA VIRGINIA BITTERMAN

"Infinite riches in little room."

Although Edna is small in stature she has a large heart, and a determination that enabled her to finish her High School course in three and a half years. She is rather shy and "at times" very quiet; but an acquaintance with her reveals a bright and true disposition. Edna enjoys having a good time and would often have sacrificed Virgil for a good movie romance. Of all her subjects "Bitty" likes United States History the best and she is especially interested in the trouble with Mexico for "there's a reason." We are all very much attached to Edna and we hope that she will enjoy a fruitful college career. A. A.; G. C.

JULIA KATHLEEN BOGLE

"Faithful, gentle, good, Wearing the rose of womanhood."

To a stranger Kathleen may seem rather quiet and reserved; but any one that knows her noble character can tell you that she is a potent factor of the world's development and one who makes only friends along her path. She has won our admiration and esteem by her sweet disposition and untiring efforts to aid her classmates. We have found her to be a faithful student, with the determination to succeed. Although practical and matter-of-fact she always seems ready for innocent fun. Kathleen is a little undecided as to what course she will pursue, but her great ambition is to take one along the medical line. Whatever her future career may be, she has our best wishes for great success.

WILLIAM WARREN DICKERSON

"A man after his own heart."

Warren, whose wavy golden locks are a familiar sight about R. H. S., is one of the most studious members of the '17 Class. His popularity among the fair sex is evinced by his fondness for coming to school every morning with a bevy of damsels. Further proof of this weakness is shown in his conduct while portraying Shakespearean roles, for which he has a great ability. We do not know what plan this tall blond has for the future, but we have a suspicion that his happy and careless freedom will soon be curtailed and more serious duties thrust upon him. A. A.; J. L. S.

EVA CATHLEEN BONDURANT

*"The mildest manners,
And the gentlest heart."*

Eva is one of the sweetest girls in our Senior Class. She is always willing to help any of her fellow students and has won all our hearts by her kind and gentle personality. One morning, when talking about the Faculty, Eva astonished us all by exclaiming about one member, "Oh! he is a perfect dear." Eva is sometimes tardy and when she finds three points taken from her department she is terribly disappointed. She expects to teach this fall and we know that she will be successful in this phase of life, with her sweet and demure manners. G. C.

EVELYN LENA BOHN

"Happy am I; from care I'm free."

Lena is one of the jolliest girls in the school, yet you have to know her to understand her. She often "speaks her mind" (but no one pays any attention to her). Lena is a star pupil in Civics and argues by the hour on suffrage; she is also in the tardy race, for one morning when she came on time, one of the pupils exclaimed, "Why, Lena, how in the world did you get here at five minutes to nine?" Lena expects to teach next year, but we predict that she will be a congress woman in about the year 1925.

HARLEY ELSWORTH ERB

"A short man may cast a long shadow."

This is certainly true about Harley. Although he is small of stature, his radiating influence is felt in more ways than one throughout the Senior Class. He has won a place in the hearts of all his classmates by his ever readiness to lend a hand either in mischief or help, for he never troubles about low grades, as he has none. Harley is a most worthy exponent of the "Calico Club" ??? and an aspirant of Athletics; he is also rather active in literary work, having proved a great help to the Jefferson Literary Society. He has the reputation of bringing good lunches to school and at or before dismissal is always surrounded by a crowd of "irresistible bums." After further college preparation, if Harley attacks the business problems of life as vigorously as he did his Shakespearean notebook, he will arrive at and preside in the hall of fame. A. A.; Sec. J. L. S.; B. C.; Pt. of H. 3.

MARY ELIZABETH BOWERS

"A little learning is a dangerous thing, Drink deep, or touch not the Picrian Spring."

Elizabeth heartily follows Pope's advice for she "drinks deep" into learning with comparative ease, and has never had to take an Exam until it was forced upon her in the Senior Year. "Beth" plays the piano well, and has plenty of time to take and teach music aside from her school work. We wonder how she does this. And she finds time for some other "diversion," too, for we notice that she wears calmly a S. H. S. pin rather than an R. H. S. She is "full of fun" and her mother enjoys the greater part of her humor, for she often says, "Oh! Mother thinks I'm awful." Elizabeth is undecided as to the future, and we can hardly go so far as to forecast her occupation. ??? Lit. Ed. '17 ACORNS.

ELISE RUTH BOWMAN

*"Unthinking, idle, wild and young,
I laughed and danced and talked and sung."*

Enter Elise, one of the jolliest, most care-free girls in the Class of '17. Whenever there is a joke being told she is always one of the eager listeners and usually the first to laugh, and as to teasing! Well, she had rather tease some one than "eat when she is hungry"—and that's saying a whole lot, for she is always ready to accompany any one to the bakery. She caused the girls to become "horrified" by suddenly announcing that they were going to have "onions" at the club supper because she had "smelled them cooking." We predict that Elise will become a "hunter of world-wide fame" on account of the success (?) that she had on shooting mistletoe Christmas. As to a chauffeur! she's fine. Whenever we see a seven passenger Reo, which seems to be running itself we hurry out of the way, but on taking the second look we see Elise peeping over the steering-gear. A. A.; G. C.

MILES NEILSON FRANCIS

"Oh he sits high in all the ladies' hearts."

Neilson just recently came into the Senior Class, having determined to finish in three and a half years, with the aid of the summer school. But we do not think that he has impaired his health by too much study. His motto is, "pleasure first, spare time for studying." But when it comes to translating Virgil, Mr. Alexander Pope "has nothing on Neilson." He also possesses the peculiar art of making a teacher believe he knows a subject by throwing in an abundance of "ands" and skillfully handling another line of talk. Those winning smiles and beautiful cat eyes have set many a fair heart yearning. Neilson also enjoys the company of those of the fair sex. He takes life easy, the only time he hurries is in going from the school door to his room when he is five or ten minutes late. Although he has not decided what course he will take after leaving R. H. S., we all hope that it will be a beneficial one.

MYRTLE MAUDE BRUMFIELD

"For an easy goer she has no equal."

Myrtle, by her charming personality, has won many friends among her school acquaintances. Because of her quiet manner many have the impression that she is very fond of study. But upon certain inquiry we know that this enthusiasm lasts only during school hours. Never was she known to hurry and she is never troubled, even if her essay or notebook is late. Whether it be a virtue or fault, Myrtle has quite recently proved herself a man-hater, she declares she is going to live happy always as a school teacher, but we know that a girl with so many charms cannot always live a lonely life. However, we all join in wishing her success in whatever she may undertake for the future.

BERNICE HUBBARD BURNS

*"I have immortal longings in me,
As chaste as unsunned snow."*

This quotation refers especially to Bernice's desire to become an Angel, though she may have other "immortal longings" that we know nothing of. Ever since Bernice came to us, three years ago, she has made us love her just as though she did not come from "way out west." Here at R. H. S. she has worked hard, burning the midnight oil many a time, but coming smiling, though sleepy, to school the next day. Before Christmas, German was her nightmare, but now her dreams show old maids floating in mid air, each carrying a banner bearing the name, "Martha Washington," and scattering programs over the universe. Bernice doesn't expect to go to college next year, but to practice what she is now learning in the Commercial Department. M. W. L. S.; G. C.; Sec. M. W. L. S. '16; Pres. M. W. L. S. '17; Pt. of H. 8.

WILLIAM ANDREW GIBBONS, JR.

"His face is like an angel, his form divine."

Bill, better known as "Rosy-cheeks," is a little shy around the ladies, but we have it from good authority there is a secret he's keeping from the class. "They say" there is a lady with light hair that "Willie" glances at. When Bill blows into the Deaconess' room ten minutes late, his cheeks look as though the lady with the light hair had been trying rouge on the texture of them. He is a man of athletic skill and keeps in shape by vainly trying to satisfy his country appetite. Bill is one of the few, without whom R. H. S. will seem like a tomb in 1918. He has held many honors and a high place in the esteem of the Faculty. Pres. A. A. '16-'17; B. C.; Sec. J. L. S. '16; T. T. '15-16; S. C.; Pt. of H. 8.

MARY CAMPBELL

"Of their own merits, modest men are dumb."

I'm the biggest "pill" in the Senior Class,
I'm unattractive, that's my belief;
And the Annual will sure be a failure,
Because I'm Editor-in-Chief.

In the first three lines in the first verse
Not a word of it is true.
There are not so many girls like her,
In fact a very, very few.

She's pretty, witty, wise and sweet,
And puts it over all, when it comes to being neat.
Here's to Mary, the finest of girls;
Our Class wouldn't swap her for the richest of worlds.

M. W. L. S.; A. A.; G. C.; Sec-Treas. Class '15; S. C.; Editor-in-Chief of ACORNS '17; Pt. of H. 4.

EMMA CAMERON COOK

"Love me, love my dog."

To look at Emma's picture and her long list of offices you would think her serious and dignified, but Coach Meissner can tell you that he frequently has to call her down for her foolishness at B. B. practice. Speaking of offices you might think B. B. stands for basketball, but it can also mean something more interesting to Emma. She doesn't know exactly where she gets the pet name "Teedie," but she bestows it upon every one regardless of rank or distinction. We could not say that Emma has been a brilliant student, but when she did get down to work she proved to be quite a "math star," having taken all the mathematics in school. If you have ever heard Emma sing, we will say no more, but if you haven't, in the years to come you have something to look forward to. Sec. M. W. L. S. '14, V. P. '15; 2d V. P. A. A. '15-'16; Pres. G. C. '16-'17; Bt. B. '15-'16-'17; Mgr. Bt. B. '15-'16; Girls' Chem. S. C. '16-'17; Sub. Mgr. ACORNS '17; Pt. of H. 15.

WALTER LEONARD GILES

"A man of gratitude is a rare bird."

Walter has certainly won commendable success at High School and is known for his realistic acting in the Shakespearean plays. He will long be remembered for his singing in "Much Ado." His voice approaches in melody that of Caruso's, 'tis said by one blue-eyed maid. However, for all this, he is a jolly good fellow and radiates cheer. His hobby is to eat cake in Study Hall, when the teachers are innocently gazing out of the windows. Walter has not definitely decided where he will continue his studies, but we wish him even greater success than he has achieved in High School; B. C.

CATHERINE HAMPTON CHESTERMAN

"Here's to her who halves our sorrows and doubles our joys."

Catherine is indeed the very life of any bunch and although she is better known by the name of "Kitty" it must be just for "short," for she is far from being a cat. She gets along fine in her classes, but seems to think it necessary to repeat History. She must not study very hard for she has time to be seen frequently in the social circles. The Faculty knows her most striking traits are, to be tardy but with plenty of excuses, and talking on the installment plan, but, of course, we don't mind her st-st-stammering or the frequent intermissions, for we generally hear something worth while. We, the Class of '17, and her many friends wish her success and happiness. M. W. L. S.; A. A.

HATTIE LEE CHILDRESS

*"She's not a goddess, an angel, a lily or a peach,
She's just that which is sweetest, completest and neatest—
A dear little, queer little, sweet little girl."*

Hattie, the noted math star and translator, will be remembered by her classmates for many things, especially for her willingness to help them out when they needed assistance. Although Hattie says she never opens her books there is some mystery as to her perfect recitations. She is especially fond of athletics, although only a scrub on R. H. S. Basket-ball Team. Hattie is fond of a motto, "Absence cannot hearts divide." What Hattie intends to do after leaving school is unknown; however, we think her "Domestic Science" may be of some use to her. A. A.; Bt. B. (scrub); G. C.

PAUL THOMAS HASH

"His Christianity was muscular."

This is indeed the case with Paul. His one great pleasure is to engage in combat, whether physical or mental. Judging from the way he ran the track last year he can combat money matters successfully, too. Paul's one great accomplishment is to act, either the part of a fool or "Hamlet." Paul does not spend all of his time in study, however. He is an old stand-by on the track squad, and lately has taken up basket-ball. He has faults like the rest of us for he spends at least one-half of his time, either with a girl or talking about them. But beneath this frivolity is deep intellectual power that will carry him to success. After leaving R. H. S. Paul expects to go to V. P. I. to study farming, and here's wishing him success as a farmer. J. L. S.; A. A.; B. B.; T. T. '16; Mgr. T. T. '16; B. C.; Cheer Leader '16-'17; Pt. of H. 5.

HELEN BLANCH COLLEY

"I had rather a fool to make me merry than experience to make me sad."

Blanch is one of the many deceivers in our Class. Her demure looks have often been used as a mask to hide some "daring" little scheme. She seems quiet and moves here and there noiselessly, but if you must study don't get near her in the Study Hall for we know that Blanch can chatter "a mile a minute." At one time she nearly proved a deserter, but like a true soldier she rallied to the fight and will finish in May with her colors flying (?). In the typewriting room Blanch is usually sitting in the window laughing and talking with a crowd of girls, when she should be making perfect pages, for she seldom makes more than half the required number. Blanch says she is going to teach school, and we don't doubt that with her gentle glance she will sway the hearts and minds of her dear pupils. She intends to go West, along with Gertrude. They say they will never teach unless it is among the ranches of the "Golden West." M. W. L. S.; A. A.; G. C.

MADOLIN DAVIS

*"All fancy sick she is, and pale of cheer,
With sighs of love."*

Breathlessly Madolin climbs the three flights of stairs every morning to go through with the routine prescribed by the Commercial Department. It does seem so sunny and bright when Madolin is around. She is always jolly and has a cheerful word for every one. She is envied by many for the ease with which she confronts Miss Critz and her great dramatic ability. Madolin is intensely interested in the Insurance business and is very Frank(s) in telling every one that it is her intention to join the firm. Here's wishing Madolin success in whatever line of business she chooses, whether it be domestic, stenographic or that of insurance. Clerical Mgr. ACORNS '17.

EARL HAMPTON HORNBARGER

"He eats not the bread of idleness."

Behold, the only boy we know of who is so infatuated with R. H. S. that even after finishing in three and a half years must return. As Shakespearean actors "Horny" and "Bill" were Miss Critz's stand-bys. Margaret can tell us why "Horny" likes light comedies best. Does any one know why he prayed for a brick to fall on "Ding's" head? In spite of it all, Earl is an all-round good fellow, with plenty of school spirit, and his memory will linger long in the hearts of his classmates. We feel sure the "Earl of Bening" will, also, make his mark at Va. Tech. A. A.; B. C.; J. L. S.

EDITH MARION DAVIS

"Fair was she to behold, that maiden of eighteen summers."

Edith is one of the prettiest girls in our Class. She is "full of fun" and always on the lookout for a good time. She is a good student; however, she had much rather ride around in a limousine than tax her mind with people long since dead. As things are being modernized more each day Edith prefers a modern version of Shakespeare's Duke of "Clarence." We think she would make a good newspaper reporter as she gave such an interesting account of the Inauguration this year. Although we think it strange that V. M. I. cadets looked so much nicer than V. P. I. cadets. Edith is very anxious to finish school as she hopes to have next year an ideal school in the country, but we predict that this career will be of short duration. M. W. L. S.; G. C.; Sec Class '17; Pt. of H. 3.

CORA ANTHALINE FRANKLIN

*"A mind at peace with all below,
A heart whose love is innocent."*

Anthaline is a perfect model of dignity. Through her four years of hard work we have never known her to say more than five words at one time. In spite of this characteristic, she is a sincere friend and takes pleasure in helping her fellow students. Perseverance is her motto and she carries it out well in typewriting. While the other students become disgusted and stop to "loaf," she plods wearily on and reaches the goal ahead of time. We have often heard that still water runs deep, and we believe it in this case. Anthaline will not give us any hint as to what she intends to do after she leaves old R. H. S., but we are sure that her quiet and reserved manner will win her a place of honor and respect.

ARTHUR WILEY HUFFMAN

"How can I study with love affairs on my brain?"

Arthur—when we hear that name our minds wander back to the scenes of the Commercial Department where he labored, laughed and talked his way through. Arthur can do so many things it is hard to enumerate them in so small a space. When it comes to acting Shakespeare, he is always on the job, and in the role of Cæsar he showed wonderful dramatic ability. Above everything else "Art" is a poet and some of his love verses would move the hardest heart to tears. Arthur should have gone to college, but he happened to be one of the kind whose heart rules his head, so he took a Commercial Course. We all know there is a sweet little maiden, with brown hair, who is waiting for "Art" to finish school and secure a position. His many friends of the '17 Class wish him success in his "adventure of peril" and may they live happily ever after.

JEAN MACDONALD FRANKLIN

"A girl who's not afraid to say her say, Though a whole town's against her."

You would never think of finding so much stubbornness and persistency in such a little person, but when Jean has an opinion, in vain we plead with her to change it. She claims to be of English decent and after once telling her a joke we thoroughly agreed with her. She is interested in every phase of High School life, and has managed well the Girls' Basket-ball Team through its most successful year. To look at Jean you would think her peaceful and mild, but you are fooled; she has a temper which is speedily shown when things go wrong, the consequences, however, are small and she is soon calmed. Jean is sweet to everybody and is very popular with the whole Class and especially one member. Treas. G. C. '16-'17; S. C.; V. P. M. W. L. S. '17; Bt. B. '15-'16-'17; Mgr. Bt. B. '16-'17; Class Editor ACORNS; Pt. of H. 8.

MARY TERRY GOODWIN

"Though some still believe her looks deceive."

Mary hasn't had the benefit of the public school for her earlier education; however, she realized the advantages of the Roanoke High School when she had completed two years of that course, and since then she has become more than popular with all the members of the '17 Class, as well as the Faculty. Mary is going to continue her education in the portals of Vassar. If she does as well there in all respects as she has done here, she will be a good representative of Roanoke. Mary doesn't take any part in the Girls' Athletics, but she is always on hand at the contests with her good will. Her old-fashioned girlish ways have won admiration from us all, especially when she portrays the character of "Viola." G. C.; S. C.; A. A.

JOHN HOLLIDAY KENNETT

*"And wisely tell what hour o' the day
The clock does strike by algebra."*

John is an embryo man (quoting John Daniel) of admirable qualities. The one most ostensible and laudable thing is his resemblance to Hercules, not in avoirdupois per capita, but that he is always willing to lend a helping hand to others. Though he is not a great land owner he loves his Land (es) and allows no trespassing in that vicinity. John's chief amusement during vacation is making honey-coated popcorn and his friends among the fair ones assert that he does it most excellently and that he is very generous with it. He is a representative of the track squad in speed work. It has not yet been ascertained as to whether the date is set, but we are led to believe that he is preparing his ship for a voyage on the sea of matrimony. We all hope that he has left no leaks in his ship and may have a "bon voyage." B. C.; J. L. S.; A. A.; Organization Editor ACORNS '17.

ANNIE TEMPLE GORDON

"Her air, her manners all who saw admired, Courteous, though coy, and gentle, though retired."

Annie is so different from other people that you couldn't help but love her. We see in her the qualities of a wonderful artist or writer, for she is as much interested in those ancient people of English literature as most of us are in the leading "movie stars." Annie just naturally knows things and she gladly solves any difficult problem for her fellow students, whether it be Math, French or English. Her old-fashioned ways, so quaint and fascinating, thrill us through and through and we would gladly listen for hours at a time to her wonderful stories of childhood were it not for Miss Funkhouser ever saying, "You must stop that talking." Those big brown eyes, so full of expression, claim for Annie a foremost place among the Class beauties, and by her sweet disposition she has won her way to the hearts of us all. In the years to come Annie will not be forgotten by her '17 friends. A. A.; S. C.; Class Historian.

THELMA CLAIR HAMERSLY

"And vital feelings of delight, Shall rear her form to stately height."

Thelma is not tall, but she makes up for her lack of height in plumpness. However, she would not be Thelma if otherwise and we would not have her different for the world. Her smiles and bright eyes have attracted the attention of all of us, but (especially that of a blue-eyed "rat"). Although we are all envious of her eyes, these are not her only charms, for she is a good student. She even consented to take French against her wishes, just to please us, and shows her ability as a student of English by being chosen one of the Literary Editors of the ACORNS. We hope she will succeed in any life work she may choose. Literary Ed. of ACORNS '17; G. C.; A. A.; M. W. L. S.

CLARENCE PHILIP KENNETT

"A man of silence is a man of sense."

Clarence uses his reasoning ability more than he does his tongue, as is shown in the fact that he is the Math star of the Senior Class. He is very generous and is always willing to aid his less fortunate classmates. With his excellent originality and dry wit he amuses all of his friends, especially in the Shakespearean plays. Although Clarence has never taken much interest in athletics, he does like a good game of checkers once in a while. Clarence expects to enter the business world where he will have the same success as in Roanoke High. J. L. S.; A. A.; B. C.

GERTRUDE GAINES HILL

*"Oh, what a deal of scorn looks beautiful
In the contempt and anger of her lip."*

Gertrude is a happy and interesting companion, and an all-round good sport. She has much of that desirable quality called school spirit, and may be seen regularly at all the High School basket-ball games, as well as at the Y. M. C. A., where she breathlessly watches the player (s). In the typewriting room Gertrude spends half her time looking (just looking, though) out of the window. However, she always manages to get all her perfect pages. Gertrude has quite an "artistic" temperament and is Art Editor of the Class. Although she has not yet decided about her future, we do not think she will remain long at any special work, for though she scorns the advances of admirers we think she will find her Sir Lochinvar in the West. Art Ed. '17 ACORNS; M. W. L. S.; G. C.; A. A.

MARY JORDAN HILL

"I chatter, chatter as I go."

Mary's joy manifests itself in suppressed chuckles and occasionally in outbursts of mirth, even in the Study Hall when every one is busy, her outbursts of laughter are heard quite frequently. Her jolly disposition has won for her a warm place in the hearts of all her classmates, and her frequent little chats are the despair of the Faculty, who always happen along just in time to take her department grade down a few notches. Study never troubles Mary's brain, for with her happy-go-lucky nature she skips over all the bad places and with an "I don't care," goes on her way in happiness. She is undecided as to the career to pursue after leaving R. H. S., but whatever she undertakes we feel sure she will be successful. M. W. L. S.; G. C.; A. A.

WALTER CLAUDE KERLIN

"He had an abundance of wit, but was shy of using it."

Claude is the clown of Roanoke High. He renders some very original interpretations in Shakespeare Class. In athletics and literary contests he is an unfailing aspirant. Claude is a bear with the ladies. A proficient dancer and courtier, nevertheless, not averse to work. Many a time in the early a. m. he has been seen coming from work. Claude intends to go to V. M. I. and train for Uncle Sam. Here's to his success, with hopes that he won't be exterminated in the first battle (with his spouse). Sec. J. L. S.; B. C.; A. A.; S. C.; Pt. of H. 3.

BLANCH JEFFERESS HUBBARD

"Can we ever have too much of a good thing?"

For four short years Blanch has faithfully kept up with the best of us. Her middle name is "Good Time," and she turns pale at the mention of school and study. Blanch does not take much interest in any game except that of love, and we think her Prospect down the road is very bright. Blanch has a weakness for candy and the movies. In the typewriting room our friend is the only one who can smile over the numerous mistakes she makes. In the future she will put that smile into use as an elocutionist. In this capacity we expect much from this little schoolmate of ours. M. W. L. S.; G. C.

VIVIEN HUTTON

*"Whose eyes are blue as the sky,
Whose hair is countless gold incomparable."*

Blond little Vivien is one of the most attractive members of our Class and in the art of giggling is an adept. Originality is another one of her chief points; her witty remarks are always greeted with genuine hilarity by the pupils and with great consternation by the Faculty. As a Latin star (?) Hutton has few equals and no jealous enemies. A patriotic little soul she is, too, else why spend so much time at the American? In business life she will never be imposed upon, for even now she knows what she wants and always asks the "Price." All together Vivien is a dear, jolly girl and will always have a host of friends. M. W. L. S.

WARREN WOMACK KOONTZ

"The secret of success is constancy to purpose."

If the above quotation is true Warren will certainly reach the "Delectable Heights of Success." He puts determination into everything he goes into and comes out in triumph. Warren has, beyond a doubt, tried himself at R. H. S. for he is graduating with twenty-two and one-half units. He is a forceful debater and has upheld the honor of our school in the State Literary Contest with great ability. He does not let the fair sex interfere with his work, although he breaks out once in a while and generally keeps a good supply of perfumed handkerchiefs. Although Warren had not entered Athletics before, he made the position of pivot-man on the basket-ball squad this season. Warren has not decided definitely where he will complete his education, but if he continues with his present enthusiasm he will surely achieve greatness. Pres. J. L. S. '17; A. A.; B. C.; Bt. B. '17; S. C.; Debating C.; Pt. of H. 5.

DORA CECIL JORDAN

*"A creature not too bright or good
For human nature's daily food."*

Cecil is a good student and a true friend and classmate. "La Senorita Cecil" is very proficient in Spanish, and can really converse with any one who can speak Spanish if she gets a good start. In French class "Mademoiselle Cecil" is good—often she translates long and tedious sentences and gets ten as a reward for her trouble. Cecil says she is considered as having a very melancholy disposition, but we haven't discovered this yet—for she is always ready to talk and has been known to talk forty minutes at a time "on special occasions." Cecil is not at all fascinated with the "Senior Class supply of the other sex"—not knowing, however—but, we suppose—"There's a reason." We hope Cecil will be successful as a teacher after R. H. S. A. A.

DOROTHY FONTAINE LACY

*"The purest treasure mortal times afford,
Is spotless reputation."*

This is certainly true of Dorothy. She has been a diligent student through her three and one-half years at R. H. S. How she carried six subjects in her Senior year, most of us cannot understand. Even though she is very studious we know that she does not spend all of her time studying for she has been an enthusiastic basket-ball player for the last two years and has kept many forwards from putting the ball in the ring. Dorothy is stubborn and very finicky, but her gentleness and willingness to help others has made her popular with all the students and they wish her future success. A. A.; G. C.; Bt. B. '16-'17.

HENRY LOEWENSTEIN

"Better late than never."

This applies to Henry's daily arrival at school for he answers roll-call every morning from the head of the stairs or sends a deputy to announce his arrival. Henry is very fond of flowers, especially the "Rose," he also likes dancing, particularly "Florine Waltz." When it comes to being a Shakespearean comedian, Henry has no rival. The '17 Class all wish him great success in the business world which he is to enter. J. L. S.

WILLIAM THOMAS LEAVELL

*"She's jolly and tall, carefree, withal,
And a good sport we know her to be,
With the mildest manners and the softest call,
A mighty good friend is she."*

Willie, better known to us as "Bill," is always on the "Leavell." On account of her good humor and wit she has won our hearts. Her ability to see the humorous side of life is just one of her many attractions. Bill is good-looking, too. She is crazy about movies and dancing. Notwithstanding her "nuttiness"—Willie has bunmed her way through Roanoke High for she, like the rest of us, faithfully abides by the saying, "Never do to-day what you can put off till to-morrow." But we can't appreciate Bill's true worth till we consider what a long distance she comes to be with us, having come from the "Blue-Grass Region." Nevertheless she is all right and we know she will be very successful wherever she goes. A. A.; G. C.

ELEANORA LESCURE

*"Far may we search before we find
A heart so gentle and so kind."*

Eleanora is one of the smallest girls in our class, but her diminutive size has no influence upon her intellect. Ever gentle and kind, she is a cheerful worker, ever ready to assist others who are in trouble. Especially do we remember her willingness to translate "Die Ahn Frau" for certain of her fellow classmates in German. Upon first acquaintance Eleanora is rather quiet, but gradually her good nature and cheerfulness make for her a strong place in the hearts of her friends. G. C.

ROBERT COURTNEY MOTTLEY

"What great ones do, the less will prattle of."

"Mot" is certainly one of the great ones of our Class. For instance, he is the honored President of the Boys' Club. As a basket-ball player he has proved a star. Even at Lynchburg we found out he was known and loved. He won't tell her name, but as soon as he gets to the "Hill City" it's good-bye Mot for several hours. Of course, the girls of R. H. S. were not slow in recognizing his good qualities, but all in vain. Faithfulness is one of his characteristics. When he finishes Summer School he will leave behind him a record of which he may be proud. Bt. B. '16-'17; J. L. S.; A. A.; Pres. B. C. '16-'17; Pt. of H. 5.

CAROLYN OLIVIA MEADOWS

"An open countenance, but close thoughts."

Carolyn Olivia, sometimes called "Granny," but better known as "Callie," is one of the few "students" of our Class. She once received special mention from Miss Critz, having made 92 on her English exam. Nevertheless Carolyn has always found time for athletics. Just what the Girls' Basket-Ball Team would have done this season without such an efficient member is hard to imagine. That the 1917 team has made the best record in the annals of R. H. S., has been partly due to the fact that Callie was none other than Captain of the team. Callie's weak point in school was Botany, but she always got along splendidly in Zoölogy and her hobby was collecting NAT(S). She was always very fortunate in that she never had to go to the fields to find these insects, but easily found them on the street. M. W. L. S.; Bt. B. '15-'16; Capt. '17; Sec. G. C.; A. A. Board; Pt. of H. 3.

MARIAN JANE MOOMAW

"As true as I live."

If you should see a small, brown-haired, brown-eyed girl gazing dreamily over Study Hall you may be sure it is Mena. Her smallness of stature does not keep her from saying what she thinks. And she is stubborn, for if she doesn't wish to do a certain thing it is useless to try to persuade her. Marian is a worker, as is shown by her enthusiasm in basket-ball. She played forward for us this year and by the victories won we can be assured she did her part well. She has been a good student these four years, though she never burned "midnight oil" by studying. By her sunny disposition and willingness to help other she has been elected the most popular girl in the 1917 Class. M. W. L. S. '16-'17; Pres. M. W. L. S. '16; V. P. Class '16; 2d. V. P. A. A. '16-'17; Bt. B. '17; Pt. of H. 7.

EMMETT MASSEY NEWCOMB

"A good worker should have good wages."

Massey is a boy with moral qualities unsurpassable, a prodigious worker, with a firm, press-forward spirit. When examination time comes on Massey is heard to say, "I see my finish," but when they are over he is still alongside of you hard at study as ever. Massey is noted for his good attention in Chemistry Class and one day surprised the class in an oration on chlorin. He has the stick-to-itiveness quality which is sure of success, and in his upward progress Massey has our hearty wishes. A. A.; B. C.

MAMIE DUNN MOSHER

*"Though modest and shy, she has a twinkle in her eye,
And a smile that won't come off."*

Here's Mamie, our small and dignified, but pleasant classmate. She's full of fun and joviality, although she is a little reserved. She has become noted for her original and unappreciated French translations, but English is her "bugbear," for it takes Miss Critz to rattle her. "Duncy" has a good deal of school spirit, but the gray and maroon really have first place in her heart, she being a staunch rooter for Roanoke College. 'Tis said a certain young fellow spends all his money riding the street cars from Salem to Roanoke, and all his time dancing with his "special" on Fifteenth Avenue, for Mamie is quite a dancer and very fond of this pleasant amusement. Nevertheless she is, as her favorite expression terms it, "a good un," an all-round, true, modern girl, and we predict for her a bright and prosperous future, either as a teacher or housekeeper. "Un bon voyage, notre ami." A. A.; G. C.

MARIE ANNA NOLTE

"Away dull care, thou are my undoing."

Marie is the very emblem of dignity, but she often forgets herself in her frantic efforts to make forty perfect pages in a single week. Like the majority of students Marie likes to "loaf" and you can often find her sitting in the window of the Commercial Department taking life easy. "Hun" very emphatically says she is going to work when she finishes school, but she never gives us any hint as to what this work will be; it is logical to think it will lie in the course of Domestic Science. May her sunny disposition go with her and make her life as joyous and carefree as it has been at R. H. S.

MAL BENJAMIN PAYNE

"Brave men care little for the world's applause."

Although Mal cares little for the world's applause the laudation of the fairer sex sometimes stirs his noble heart to higher and greater ambitions. Mal, at present, is preparing himself to enter West Point and if he accredits himself half as well there as he does at Roanoke he will go General Lee one better. Mal is one of the intellectual leaders of our Class, gaining many plaudits from Miss Critz for his marvelous interpretation of Shakespeare's plays. Mal's most salient characteristic—stick-to-itiveness, is typified in his steady plodding on the track squad. He says he does track work to improve his grace. In farewell, the Senior Class wishes Mal a brilliant success as Commander-in-Chief of the United States Army. T. T.; J. L. S.; A. A.; B. C.

KATHLEEN MAYE PAINTER

"Few things are impossible to diligence and skill."

That means Kathleen, for she is one of the most accomplished members of our Class. She has written lots of songs and toasts for the Girls' Club and other organizations and she can play any old tune that ever happened on the piano. As one of Miss Critz's star actresses she gets fine grades, and she also has the distinction of graduating ahead of the class she started High School with. No one has ever seen her in a bad humor, and she's an all-round, good old sport. M. W. L. S.; A. A.; G. C.

FRANCES LOUISE QUARLES

"What's mine is yours and what's yours is mine."

This is certainly true of Frances. She never hesitates in giving you anything, and thinks that everything you possess is undoubtedly half hers, in other words, her motto is '50-50.' Her friends call her "Willie," though how she received the name we know not. Willie is popular with the boys as well as with the girls, which is a rare combination, and her popularity not only extends within the city limits, but far beyond. Willie is among the many bluffers of the Senior Class, though we must admit when studious, she is unusually bright. Frances has made many friends in the Senior Class and we are glad to have her among the '17 members. A. A.; M. W. L. S.

RAYMOND HOPE PHLEGAR

"A pound of pluck is worth a ton of luck."

Raymond Hope Phlegar, known in the laboratory as "Soda-water" Phlegar, is very studious and had the audacity, during his last session, to carry two Math Classes and two English Classes. Ray came from Radford, near the bonny banks of the River New. Under the skillful instruction of Miss Critz, during his career here, Ray has improved marvelously in his verbal felicity, especially in explaining passages in English poetry. He is the quintessence of a philosopher, but very modest in his tone of voice. His hobby is to look up words to please Miss Critz and to suddenly startle his hearers by wonderful exclamations of wisdom and sage philosophy. Ray has our best wishes for a bright and successful future. A. A.; B. C.

FRANCES ANN REPASS

"I tell thee love is nature's second sun, Causing a spring of virtues where he shines."

One of the few criticisms we have to make of "Pat" is that she didn't have quite as much school spirit as she might have. But this was not always her fault and we have to excuse her—because it lends no little distinction to our Class to read an account of the V. M. I. dances and see—Miss Frances Repass, Roanoke—with Cadet (). Notwithstanding the fact that Frances frequently attended some social function, she always managed to keep up with her classes and each month she had a passing report. We've never seen one of "Pat's" baby pictures, but if the old saying is true, she surely must have been an ugly little child. She intends to take up teaching as a profession, but we are willing to bet that if S. W. P. has anything to do with it, her profession will not last more than a year. S. C.; G. C.

EDITH HOLMES ROWLAND

"The secret of success is constancy to purpose."

Edith—what fond and pleasant memories does this name recall! She is all that her name implies—gentle, sweet and lovable. Although few of us are well acquainted with her, still those that know her have found out that she has an accommodating disposition and much perseverance. From the time Edith entered Roanoke High she has proven herself a conscientious worker and sincere friend. Edith is undecided as to what college she will attend after leaving Roanoke High; however, we hope that some day she will rival Paderewski in music. G. C.

PHILIP THOMPSON POWELL

"Faultless in body and blameless in mind."

The first is vouched for by his record in basket-ball and on the track team. Though as to the second part, Philip has been seen—whisper it softly—under suspicious circumstances on certain bright Sunday afternoons. But, withal, Phil has an upper story of goodly dimensions; starting in math and being a prominent aspirant for scholarship honors. After finishing a successful course at R. H. S. he intends to take his A. B. degree at Transylvania University, Lexington, Kentucky, and then to follow the devious paths of Blackstone at the Law College of the University of Virginia. The Class of '17 join in wishing him success in his chosen profession, which he will surely attain if his past record remains unbroken. B. C.; T. T. '16-'17; Bt. B. '16-'17; V. P. J. L. S. '17; Sec. ELIZABETH HULL SANDERS

"Buxom, blithe and debonair."

Elizabeth once expressed her intention of becoming a Vampire or a Ballet Dancer. She has unlimited energy in the art of primping, as she gets much practice between periods in the cloakroom. She is also an energetic student, as she is one of the few to finish in three years and a half. She keeps on the good side of Miss Critz by keeping a neat and accurate Shakespeare notebook. We hope she will captivate the hearts of the public as completely as she has won the admiration and respect of her schoolmates.

EDYTHE HEADEN SCOTT

"My book and heart shall never part."

Edythe is neat, sweet, young and fair. Her reasons are both good and weighty. She has love and judgment and generally sees more than others. She is gentle and ladylike, but full of fun when you are personally acquainted with her. She is ambitious and dares not smile at the opposite sex, but makes a hundred yard dash rushing Roy. She is not only finishing the High School course in three and a half years, but is also the youngest in her class. Edythe is going to Randolph-Macon and we all hope she will be as successful there as she has been at Roanoke High. M. W. L. S.

ATHAL WARWICK PRICE

"For courage mounteth with occasion."

True to his name (Warwick) Athal was certainly a fighter in the football line of the famous '17 squad and also in Cæsar's Gallic Legions. ??? Athal, better known to us as "At," is one of the most original members of our Class, and whenever one sees him coming, one is never deprived of his accustomed pinch. Athal has contributed to the success of J. L. S. as Cæsar did to Rome. We often wondered why "At" was late on Thursday morning, but it proved to be late hours in the Calico Club. Athal is a jolly, good fellow and worries little about his grades. He will always hold a place in the hearts of the '17 Class. Pres. J. L. S. '16; F. B. '17; A. A.; B. C.; Pt. of H. 5.

SUSAN LYNE SEMPLE

"I never knew so young a body with so old a head."

Lyne is one of our most faithful schoolmates. Ever since she was in the Grammar School she has come the short distance of five miles every day and her report shows few absences. Lyne required only one subject in the spring term to graduate, but being very industrious she is now carrying four classes. Our black-haired Indian maiden is very kind-hearted and is the comfort of the "No Nothings." Lyne is an active member of our Literary Society and has benefited the cause in many ways. Her "rep" as a trusty, gave her the position of treasurer. Lyne is going to college, then she expects to teach. Here is success to her future. M. W. L. S.; A. A.; Treas. M. W. L. S. '16; Pt. of H. 1.

RUTH ALMA SMITH

*"Happy am I, from care I'm free,
Why aren't they all contented like me?"*

Ruth is one of the jolliest girls of the school, yet you have to know her to understand her. We can hardly believe her when she says she is going to teach next term, but she is making plans for this and we all wish her success. She is very loyal to old R. H. S. and may generally be found near the "Royal Rooters" at the games. The old saying that red hair signifies a high temper is not entirely true of Ruth although she always stands up for herself. When all other voices are hushed, that of Ruth's can most always be heard and her hearty peals of laughter are seldom drowned. G. C.

KARL CLEMENT QUINN

"'T is better not to be, than be unhappy."

We now come to one who is probably the liveliest member of our Class. Clement, better known as "Casey," literally bubbles over with a spontaneous effervescence of good humor, and we have yet to see him in an angry mood. He has distinguished himself as a Shakespearean actor, winning great fame under Miss Critz, but do not let it impress you that acting is his only occupation, for he is a Latin scholar of no little fame, besides being an ardent member of the Paradise (pair o' dice) Club. Of his propensities and proclivities we need say nothing for they are known to most of us. He does not say much about the fairer sex, although he sometimes delights in "tripping the light fantastic toe." Clement is always ready and willing to do you a good turn, a cheerful-spirited, good-natured, sociable fellow and a friend to all. Have we not said enough? A. A.; B. C.; J. L. S.

LINDA ST. CLAIR

*"She foots it ever fair and young,
Her locks are tied in haste,
And one is over her shoulder flung,
And hangs below her waist."*

This is our little country girl, though from her looks and ways you would not think it. Every morning she comes in on the train from Bonsack, walking slowly to school just as though the classes did not begin at 9:00 a. m. Linda is the tall and fair one who is going to get her diploma after Summer School, but whether she will continue her education further we do not know. The Y. W. C. A. gym is her delight. Who knows but what she will some day practice tactics and be a brave soldier. G. C.; A. A.

MARGARET AGNES THORNTON

"Little, wilful, wayward fiction, Teasing, torturing contradiction."

And Margaret is an actress, too! As Beatrice she made quite a "hit," for this character was witty, talkative and coquettish, just as Margaret is. Margaret has a will and a way all her own, which is very well demonstrated in the way she "Guy"(s) all the fellows. "Peggie" sees the humorous side of everything and her suppressed giggles and unexpected remarks are "thorns" in the flesh of Miss Funkhouser. Nevertheless Margaret has a great deal of school spirit and attends all the High School games. In fact, she is so loyal to and fond of R. H. S. that she often comes back visiting. We all hope she will be as successful in the American as she has been in Roanoke High. G. C.; M. W. L. S.; S. C.; A. A.

ARTHUR JOHN RANKIN, JR.

"I am slow and steady."

Arthur is slow of speech and action except when he is on the athletic field and here he is quite an agile fellow. He played center on the '16 Football Team and sub-forward on the '17 Basket-ball Team. In his school work Arthur is very good, when he studies, but like the rest of us, he is not very diligent. His star subject is bookkeeping, as Miss Mabry will testify. By his jovial humor and happy disposition Arthur has won a large place in our hearts and we wish him great success in his chosen occupation. A. A.; F. B. '16; Bt. Bt. '17.

CARMEN ERRELL WARD

"Quiet women are the best."

Carmen is so quiet that few of us know her. In truth, she never speaks except in Shakespeare Class where she recites or acts so well that Miss Critz is charmed. Carmen never is the least bit worried about the many cares of school life. We hope she will never share the fate of "Carmen," but will meet the troubles of life in a calm, peaceful manner. A. A.

MARGARET EUGENIE WATKINS

*"If she will, she will
You may depend on it;
If she wont, she wont
And that's an end on it."*

Here's Margaret, the care-free, happy-go-lucky Senior. She faithfully abides by the saying, "Never do to-day what you can put off till to-morrow." As a talker "Big Sister" has gained much notoriety among the Faculty and students. On account of this accomplishment she has made many friends. Nevertheless Margaret is a very congenial girl, being full of wit and dry humor, which makes her very attractive. So here's to her future career at Farmville and may she turn out to be a successful school ma'am. A. A.

ROY REUBEN RUSH

"A lion among the ladies."

When it comes to courting Roy is always on the job. However, this does not affect his being studious, as he is finishing R. H. S. in three and one half years. Roy is very good for he is always seen with his "pal Jimmy" at Sunday School promptly at 9:30 a. m. every Sunday morning. On leaving R. H. S. Roy expects to go to college where the Class of '17 join in wishing him great success. J. L. S.

LILLIAN GLADYS WHITAKER

"A friend worth while."

Gladys, one of the biggest talkers in our Class, is always on hand to render aid to her fellow students. In spite of her "tough luck," as she calls it, her report usually shows good grades. Gladys is an excellent speller and German student and in French Class, when she begins to read at sight brilliant translations, we begin to think that a wonderful genius is in the room, and because of its magic power pupils sit up like statues with wondering eyes. Small, but alert, we presume that Gladys will leave behind her friends who wish her every hope of success. Gladys says she is studying to be a teacher; but we all think that she is studying to be a preacher's wife. M. W. L. S.; A. A.

EUNICE EILEEN WINEGAR

"Gentle of speech, beneficent of mind."

Eunice has the "curliest hair" and is usually with curly-haired people. She is very musical, and through her efforts the girls' quartette was formed. Eunice is a good student, but when notebooks are due she rushes in asking, "Is your notebook finished? I worked until one o'clock last night on mine and haven't finished yet." Although Eunice does not take much part in the activities of the school, she is liked by all with whom she comes in contact. Eunice is tardy frequently and is always in a hurry to leave promptly at 1:20, because a certain HERR is waiting outside. Eunice says she is not going to teach, but in whatever she does we wish her success and happiness. G. C.

MINOR WILLIAM SMITH

*"If she undervalue me,
What care I how fair she be?"*

This certainly applies to Minor—for his favorite subject of conversation is the story of his troubles in love making. He is seen and heard of very frequently riding up and down Maple Avenue. But Minor has obtained fame in other ways than his love affairs. His brilliancy (? ?) in Trig Class astonishes us all. He explains this by telling us that it is not caused by how much he studies, but by his naturally brilliant mind. Because of this and his wit and good nature, he is very popular with both the students and the Faculty. Minor expects to become a mechanical engineer. He will no doubt achieve great success at this occupation for he gains constant practice by engineering his jaws on "Juicy Fruit." A. A.; B. C.; S. C.

KATHERINE FRANCES WOOD

"She is known to few, but prized by those."

Katherine, one of the dignified maids of our Class, comes in every morning with the same words, "I haven't opened a book." However, in Geometry Class we sit spell-bound listening to her explanation of a difficult proposition. From Katherine's good impersonation of "Queen Elizabeth," in her Shakespeare Class we know she will be queen some day, not of any country but of some one's heart. "Kitty" is one of the class who is finishing in three and a half years and we predict for her a very brilliant career as a school teacher, as she declares this is her calling. M. W. L. S.; A. A.

MINNIE PETRUE WORTMAN

"The kind of friend that is not found every day."

Minnie has won many friends in R. H. S. because of her willingness to help, and her genial disposition. Any one looking at her calm countenance would not think that this young lady has a temper which will flare up when things go wrong. We wonder what will become of this classmate of ours. Will she teach Latin? which she says is her greatest ambition. Minnie also has a mania for anything "Black." We wish her hearty success in her career at Wilson.

HARRY FLETCHER SMITH

"Infinite sweetness in condensed form."

Harry is the only Smitty in the world. If he had a twin brother the other Smitty would have to go to another school, for R. H. S. could not hold the outbursts of laughter from two such sources. However, if Harry laughs his way through life as well as he has laughed his way through High School, he will certainly be a success. He holds a warm place in the hearts of all his classmates, as well as of the Faculty and what he lacks in quantity he makes up in quality. A. A.; B. C.; J. L. S.; Joke Ed. '17 ACORNS.

NORMA CHRISTINE WRIGHT

*"Wisely and slow,
They stumble that run fast."*

Norma is so quiet that no one would ever know she was around. In English class she is never heard unless Miss Critz calls on the "girl hidden back there behind the others." Norma always says she has so much to do that there is no possible way for her to finish, but somehow she accomplishes her work by the last minute. "Slow but sure" describes her for she was never known to hurry or to be the least bit excited. At all times Norma has a calm, quiet manner which often pacifies the rest of us who are so excited. We hope she may have no more storms in the sea of life than she has had at R. H. S.

ELSIE STARR WRIGHT

"Speech is silver, Silence is golden."

Elsie came to Roanoke High two years ago to pursue her course of study, and although she has been with us a short time we have found that she is very studious. She was known to sit up until five o'clock in the morning working on her Shakespeare notebook. She has impressed all who came in contact with her, with her great earnestness and desire to acquire the most knowledge in the shortest time. We, her classmates, shall remember her with great esteem and wish for her a full harvest from her field of high endeavor. M. W. L. S.; G. C.

SHIRLEY EHNES SNAVELY

*"Rage is the shortest passion of our souls,
Like narrow brooks that rise with sudden showers,
It swells in haste and falls again as soon."*

"Buck" is short of stature but long of wind. His never ceasing arguments, which are always groundless, can be heard wherever he is. Nevertheless he has been a generous "chewing-gum disperser" to the followers of that club. Aside from this Shirley is brilliant (?), so one of the dear members of the Faculty asserts, but what we think is best unsaid. He is a faithful follower and chaperon of the Girls' Basket-ball trips. He has loads of school spirit, as shown by his presence and yells at every High School game. As Assistant Business Manager he has been indispensable, and we wish him as much success in the business world. J. L. S. '17; A. A.; B. C.; Cheer Leader '16-'17; Assistant Business Manager '17 ACORNS.

EVELYN CATHERINE WOOLFOLK

"Wreathed with smiles and winning ways, She's the girl for us."

Although Evelyn's name comes toward the end in our list, she is by no means least in our hearts. She is one of the most unselfish girls in our Class and is always willing to assist her fellow students out of any difficulty. With her happy-go-lucky way and free disposition Evelyn never lets her studies worry her in the least and an examination never keeps her from attending the movies. Shorthand is Evelyn's "hobby," but woe for bookkeeping. She often expresses the fact that she is going to be an old maid stenographer. She is fickle and free, but we all know as long as her "list" extends from to Canada, where the most interest seems to lie, that Evelyn will not "peck" the typewriter very long. However, the whole Senior Class joins in wishing her success in whatever she might attempt after leaving R. H. S.

BRANCH SPALDING

"The same ardor always, only the idol changes."

Have you ever heard Branch or "Twig," as he is better known, sneeze? Then you will know him though you meet him in the dark. He is considered one of the most athletic boys in our class and did fine work as quarter back on the "'16" football team. If fun is going on anywhere he is sure to be present. Branch is very popular among the boys, and even more so among the girls, indeed so popular among them that he can get a new one each week. He is one of our Artillery men, but Uncle Sam cannot furnish him shoes because the government does not make "out sizes." Branch expects to enter the army after he leaves R. H. S. and we hope he enjoys the trials of that life. Treas. B. C. '16-'17; J. L. S.; A. A.; F. B. '16; Athletic Editor '17 ACORNS; Pt. of H. I.

THELMA JANE YOST

*"As true of heart, as sweet of face,
With gay and girlish air."*

Here's Thelma, what are you going to do with her? She is one of the most attractive girls in the Class of '17, always ready to laugh and talk. Thelma won the hearts of the Senior Class when she took the part of a fairy in "Mid Summer Night's Dream." Whenever there is a High School game in town Thelma is always there and rooting for old R. H. S.; there is nothing that we love better than to hear her yell, "Go—on H-I-G-H—S-C-H-O-O-L! What's the matter with you?" Thelma informs us that she has been in three weddings since Christmas and that she will live all her life in single blessedness, but we are not so sure of this on account of her success in answering ads.—'Wanted a wife.' After leaving R. H. S. Thelma intends to enter a Northern School and the Class of '17 wishes her much success. M. W. L. S.; A. A.; G. C.

REUBEN FUQUA STATON

*"It may be said of him that
His wit shines at the expense of his memory."*

Reuben's smiles and blue eyes are surpassed only by his wit and good nature, although he has been known to get serious. Always ready to give the Faculty an impression of being a studious character even after ragging or "tripping the light fantastic toe" the evening before. Reuben finished R. H. S. in January and is still striving to gain his sole ambition, which for "some reason" is to become a fat and huffy man and own a Studebaker car. Unexcelled as a Shakespeare actor, and as a local druggist every one feels that he will make a success of his future profession. B. C.; J. L. S.; A. A.

CHARLES EDWARD STONE.

"He is a good man, and just."

Here is one of the most progressive members of the Class of '17. Charles was an aspirant for Track honors last year and will try for them again this year. He was the first person to take up the motion picture trade in Roanoke. Charlie excels in the Chemistry Class and in laboratory his experiments are a continuous source of wonder to all. Also "Runt" was very successful as a "Sandwich Man" advertiser of the football games this season and in the "Royal Rooters" there was no one who could yell quite as loud as he. He has, however, two weaknesses, "Juicy Fruit" and strong "Habana Segars," which are banned by the school authorities. Charles intends to enter the University of Virginia next year and we are sure he will prove a successful student there. J. L. S.; T. T.; S. C.; A. A.; B. C.; Business Manager '17 ACORNS.

ANNIE LEE YOUNG

*"Modest and simple and sweet,
The very type of Priscilla."*

Annie is one of the youngest as well as one of the best students in our class. Her ability to work math problems surpasses all wonders. Annie is also a "great talker," and whenever opportunity offers she is found in an enthusiastic group in Study Hall discussing the most interesting topics of the day—the Faculty, students, music and the "movies." Annie is very dignified "on special occasions," but whenever there is anything funny in French Class she is sure to see it and lead the class in "giggling." Annie has, indeed, been a "True blue" girl in R. H. S. and we wish her success. G. C.; M. W. L. S.; Sec. M. W. L. S. '15; Pt. of H. 3.

ROBERT FRANCIS STONE

"Good nature and good sense are usually good companions."

Rob has the distinction of being the only Senior who never has to bring Miss Critz an excuse for absence or tardiness as "over-sleeping" is understood. A great lady-killer and heart-smasher so, of course, is very troublesome to his less gifted companions. Rob has engineered several successful love affairs, but suddenly lost heart in his last one when she asked for the "ring." He tries to get the maximum amount of success out of the minimum amount of study and is a great believer in the chemical theory of the principle of least work, especially at night. Pres. Class of '17; B. C.; J. L. S.; A. A.; Pt. of H. 5.

HAROLD IRVIN WELLS

*"And who so look on him shall see
An eligible deity."*

Irvin's black hair and stern, handsome face do not correctly portray his habits. Any one being down town after midnight might catch a glimpse of something like a galloping Hessian trying to reach some destined place before dawn. Also, if sitting near him in the Study Hall when the period is drawing to a close, one might think it was Pluto himself speaking of the five propositions which he had to learn in three minutes. Irvin, being Miss Jenning's best pupil when it comes to French pronunciation, Miss Board's math star, Mr. Parson's equal in Lab and Miss Critz's leading man in Shakespeare Class, proves him a victim of hard study. Irvin must certainly be placed among R. H. S. politicians, one who was always successful in his diplomatic negotiations with our Faculty. Now open his heart for the future and you will see carved on it "surgery." At last the Class of '17 cannot find anything more appropriate to say of him than that he is regarded by some girls "Too fair to worship, too divine to love." V. P. J. L. S. '16-'17; B. C.; A. A.; J. L. S.; Pt. of H. 1.

EDNA MARIE YOUNG

"There's a little bit of bad in every good little girl."

In her career at High School Edna has won the admiration and respect of the "Faculty" and fellow sufferers by her zealous pursuit of knowledge. By no means does she believe in all work and no play for she is always ready to enter into the school activities. In general, Edna is a heart-smasher and is often seen on the job early. Her gay and care-free manner disperses the gloom of her despondent classmates. Although Edna intends to enter the business world it is doubtful for "Somewhere a voice is calling." M. W. L. S.; A. A.; G. C.

WALTER WHITE WOOD

"I never dare to write as funny as I can."

"Bubber," for that is the name to which he answers in school, is known chiefly by his continual smile and good nature. Now, having introduced the subject of our discourse we shall proceed to tell you about him. Walter is interested mostly in Ladies and the Great American Game (by which we mean baseball and not poker as some misguided reader may think). "Bubber" has made the baseball squad two years and is now manager of the baseball team of 1917. Yet, with all his sporting blood, Walter has ability to stick to whatever he undertakes, such as acquiring a diploma and a unit of Book-keeping and we are sure this "never say die" spirit will bring results in future life and we wish him success. B. B. '14-'16; Mgr. B. B. '17; A. A.; B. C.; J. L. S.; Pt. of H. 5.

HARRY ROBERT YATES

"Airy ambition soaring high."

This brown-eyed gentleman of tall stature is characterized chiefly by his ability of talking much and saying little. In fact, any one who knows Harry knows him by his pleasant line of (—). Herein lies the secret of Harry's popularity. But verbosity is not the only thing in which this Senior is proficient. "Yatie," as he is called, is an athlete of no mean ability, having played on the Basket-ball and Football teams of 1916, both contenders for Championship honors. The subject of this sketch is a dancer of surpassing grace—a ladies' man—indeed, a squire of dames. Yet, behind all this frivolous extreme, his usual manner, he conceals a studious, serious mind and we wish him success at V. P. I., where he intends to study engineering. A. A.; B. C.; F. B. '16; Bt. B. '16; B. B. '15.

HENRY FAY YOST

"His head is young but his experience old."

Fay is known and liked by every one, for he is friendly and at heart he is true and loyal. He has won a name for himself in athletics. He was one of the stars of the Track Team of '16 and is the captain of that team this year. Fay made the Football squad of '16 and also managed that team. But do not think that he is known only by his athletic abilities, for he is quite a favorite with his classmates, especially the fairer sex. Fay has not decided what institution of learning he will enter next fall, but it is thought by many of his friends that he is seeking an appointment to West Point. Whatever institution he may enter we are sure he will have the best wishes for success from the Class of '17. Mgr. F. B. '16; T. T. '16-'17; J. L. S.; A. A.; B. C.; Capt. T. T. '17; S. C.; F. B. '16; Bt. B. '17; Asst. Mgr. Bt. B. '17; Pt. of H. 10.

Senior Class History

EVEN a casual visitor on chapel morning would be impressed by the dignity and earnestness of the pupils in the central row. This group is the "Class of 1917," the largest senior class Roanoke High has ever had.

Yes, it is wonderful to be a Senior after all those trying years of study which the "Class of 1917" had to pass through, and we are glad that so many had the determination to push onward no matter how hard the battle.

We entered the High School in 1914 and had no more privileges than any other "rats." We had to endure the smiles and gibes of the Sophomores who, having just escaped from "ratdom" themselves, felt all the more that we should have our share of humiliation. However, the Seniors, with their encouraging smiles, welcomed the new adventurers upon the path of knowledge. They were the leaders and we moved on as if fascinated by their dignity and great store of knowledge. We passed, with these glowing lights ever before us, through the Sophomore and into the Junior Class. It was then that we began to realize that we were children no longer and that much depended upon us. We were organized as the "Class of 1917" and became leaders in many of the school activities. But then came the fall of 1916, when we entered the school as Seniors ourselves—Oh, how glorious to be Seniors! We felt exhilarated at having reached that place of vantage where we could view the other pupils who followed us. I am sorry to say, however, that during the fall we did not feel so kindly disposed toward the "rats," for some persisted in thinking they were Seniors and seated themselves quite coolly in the Senior row. Of course, we might smile at them sweetly when in their proper places, but we could not tolerate an intrusion into the Senior row. Now we are Senior A's and troubled by rats no longer, being assured of our exalted position. We have worked hard and although we have not all been shining stars we have tried to do our best. Many of the girls and boys have held high offices in the literary societies and clubs and some have been very active in athletics, showing an abundance of school spirit.

And now as our high school career has almost closed we do not regret the time spent there but rather feel sorry over the thought of leaving it and the teachers, who have worked so patiently over us, trying so often to make us understand the importance of study. There are many roads which we may travel through life and we know we must choose one, but we leave dear old Roanoke High reluctantly, wishing that those who follow may have as happy and successful a school life as ours has been.

HISTORIAN.

My Memory Book

IT was a day about in the year 1950, when I was ransacking the ancient chests in the garret, that I found my old Memory Book. It brought back to me sweet memories of my younger days and friends, and I immediately extracted it from the heap of discarded rubbish, so that I might look it over in my leisure hours.

That night as I sat before the glowing fire, in the twilight, I thought of the book and went for it. Resuming my seat I blew the dust from the back and opened the volume. On the first pages were souvenirs, clippings, letters, etc., which reminded me vividly of the happenings and good times at dear old R. H. S. I passed over these hurriedly as I was anxious for recollections of my friends and members of the 1917 Class, which I recall I had collected in the years following my graduation.

The first familiar names I saw were those of Branch Spalding and Mal Payne, in a newspaper clipping which gave them special mention for bravery and gallant service in the war that broke out in 1925.

Opposite from that on the same page was another clipping, giving the names of Misses Jennie Ash, Anna Baker, Eva Bondurant, Myrtle Brumfield, Lyne Semple, Edith Rowland, Elsie Wright, Elizabeth Sanders and Margaret Thornton, who had patriotically enlisted as Red Cross nurses in this same war.

The next souvenir was a scrap of moving picture film, pasted in, and after looking closely I discerned it to be a farce comedy. At the bottom were the few words, "Fay Yost, the greatest comedian and rival of Charles Chaplin."

Turning the page I found a card announcing the engagement of Miss Claudine Avent to a young gentleman from Arkansas. Pasted below this was a stamp from Africa—I wasn't positive, but I think it was from Harley Erb, who had gone there as a missionary to the natives in the jungles.

Across from this was a newspaper clipping describing the inauguration of 1929, giving the members of the inaugural committee. Those of my acquaintance were, Godfrey Arnall, Mary Hill, Minnie Wortman, Massey Newcomb, Madolin Davis, Margaret Watkins, Alfred Davis, and Irvin Wells. Turning to the left-hand corner I found a letter from Edith Davis, relating to me the details of the most magnificent inaugural ball in the annals of history, which she had attended, and of the old friends and acquaintances she met. Mademoiselle Dujure (Frances Quarles), the world's most artistic dancer, gave a solo dance preliminary to the opening of the ball. Hattie Childress, Willie Leavell, Edna Young, Kathleen Baker, Dr. Walter Wood, and Hon. Robert Stone, Secretary of the Interior, had also danced during the evening. The rest of this page and the next were covered with attractive souvenirs of dances and parties, but I could not recall them, so I turned over, and the first thing which met my view was a picture of Philip Powell with an inscription underneath, "Prominent Lawyer, recently appointed by the President to the Supreme Bench." Below this was a very humorous cartoon from Cartoons Magazine, by Francis Bruner, and on the next page I found a program of a famous play by James M. Barrie, with Paul Hash and Vivian Hutton, the great character impersonators of the age, playing the leads. On the left-hand side was a small box of wedding cake tied fast and I remembered it to be that of Rosa Bening and Earl Hornbarger.

Over on the next page was a pamphlet announcing the long list of actors of the Famous Players Film Company; the familiar ones were, Clarence Kennett, Lena Bohn, Norma Wright and Reuben Staton, who had all attained fame as "movie" stars.

Glancing over, my eye caught sight of a note. On opening it I found it was from Emma Cook, inviting me to be present at her first appearance in grand opera, which was to take place that season.

Slowly turning over, for I was living over the past, I saw at the top of the page a small picture of the champion typewriters of America. I recognized many of my old friends among them—Evelyn Woolfork, Blanch Hubbard, Anthaline Franklin, Marie Nolte and Arthur Huffman. The last thing on the page was a newspaper clipping announcing the election of Mary T. Goodwin, Ph. D., president of Vassar College.

I turned the page but the next was blank, I had come to the end of my book and was somewhat disappointed at the abrupt conclusion of my sojourn into the land of memories. However, I had enjoyed it so completely that as I closed the book and laid it upon the table I gave a sigh of great happiness and contentment.

CLASS PROPHET.

Class Poem

'T was just four years ago, High School,
When first we entered here,
'T is just four years since when we crossed
Thy threshold now so dear.

We did not know thee then, High School,
Nor could we then foresee
The happiness in store for us
Ere we should part from thee.

Our first long year was spent in study
'Neath Intermediate's stony wall,
And ere that first year had passed by,
We loved thee, one and all.

Came second year, and then it was
That first we came to know
Old Roanoke High, t' whose guiding hand
What gratitude we owe!

What treasures she unlocked for us
From wisdom's bounteous store;
And strides we took on many a path
Unknown to us before.

The third year came, our ranks were thinned,
As some had strayed away.
But we were loyal Juniors then,
And all worked for that day.

And as we toiled the days flew by,
The end before us lay
Which we had striven to attain—
Had hoped to reach, some day.

And now that it is won at last—
The goal we've fought for so—
We backward cast a lingering glance,
And wish we need not go.

But, we must say farewell, High School,
E'en though we fain would stay;
A last, a fond, a sad farewell,
Then all must turn away.

Yet unprepared we do not go,
We've laid foundations here
That are full wide, and deep, and strong,
Our many names to rear.

And in our future lives, whate'er
The different paths we go,
However great success may be,
Thanks to thee we shall bestow.

Roanoke High, we can't forget thee
Nor the happy days we've seen,
For our memories traveling back shall cross
The 'Bridge of Sighs' that intervenes.

The first High School Bible Class, in Virginia, was organized in January, 1917, in Roanoke. There are two classes, and they meet every afternoon in the Y. M. C. A., one at 1:30 and one at 2:30 p. m. The work is all outlined, which makes it easy now, but when the State Examination comes—goodness, well—we hope we'll all get through! The lessons are very interesting, and we enjoy them, while they are also most helpful to us. We hope that more such classes will soon be organized in our State.

JUNIOR CLASS

Junior Class History

WHEN, in 1915, the Freshman Class of Roanoke High entered upon their High School career, the years intervening between that time and the hour when those same Freshmen should be accounted Juniors stretched out like an eternity. After looking at the Algebra, the French and German, and the other Chinese puzzles belonging to those who had reached that imposing (?) position in life, the way thither seemed not a flowery road, but a thicket of locust bushes, whose thorns seemed like the claws of some terrible monster, waiting to seize any one that attempted a passage.

A year soon passed by, however, and these Freshmen, having advanced to the grade of Sophomores, were then transferred to the High School Building. They were promptly dubbed "rats," and "bucked" by the overbearing Juniors and Seniors. They limply resented this treatment, and believed in their hearts that they were the equals, if not the superiors (such is always the idea of the youthful) of the proud aristocracy of the school; but still the aristocracy were magnanimous, and forgave.

And now the year 1917 has come, and this same Freshman Class has arrived at the degree of Juniors—the future Class of 1918. It is one of the largest in the history of the school.

Among the members of this class are some of those claiming the highest honors in the life of the school—such men as Harry Loewenstein and Francis Huff, of football fame, and Clifton Gleaves, who distinguished himself on the track team last spring.

The Class, now linked together in a strong chain of friendship, is earnestly looking forward to the time when they shall have achieved the station of Seniors. Realizing that this cannot be attained without unremitting effort, they are laboring on toward the goal; and they wish to their friends, the lower classes of the High School, the same success that has so far crowned their own efforts. They also wish to express, through this medium, their appreciation of the untiring labors of beloved teachers, realizing that without their efforts, the pupils would not have reached this present position.

SOPHOMORE CLASS

Sophomore Class History

IN the beginning of the spring term of 1916 a crowd of boys and girls found their way from Intermediate to Roanoke High School. The reader must remember that we had been Seniors and would soon fall to the low estate of "Rats." The boys were greeted with paddles and had to run the "gauntlet," "cuckoo" and sing a few songs to their elders. The girls got off easy with the loss of a few hairpins and the dreaded name of "Rat" shouted to them between every period. In a week or so our initiation was over and we settled down to high school life. Time passed swiftly and the May exams soon arrived. After these, vacation, but in a few months we found ourselves back at school. It was then that the other part of our class came from the Intermediate and they suffered the same as their classmates who had come before them, but took it bravely and decided to get even with the "new comers" in January.

A few weeks after each term has begun a Junior or Senior always comes along and asks the "Rats" if they don't want to join the Athletic Association. Many do so to show their "school spirit," although it costs a few jitneys. Some of the girls joined the Martha Washington Literary Society, and the boys the Jeffersonian. When the time for athletics came, many of the boys went out for basket-ball and baseball, while others made the track and football teams.

Soon after our class had entered into the common interests of the school we felt like a part of it and no longer like gathering ourselves up in a corner and dreading the "natives" of the place.

And the time will pass with studying, school games, holidays, and vacations until we shall reach the top step and be called "The Senior Class of Roanoke High."

Freshman Class Poem

We, the Freshman Class of now-a-day,
 Are pushing, striving hard on the way;
 For the prospective Class of nineteen-twenty
 Are going to show you all a plenty.

"Hard Study" will our watchword be.
 We'll show you then that we are we.
 Rah! Rah! we say we shall be gay,
 For in this class the corner stone we lay.

Of knowledge and truth and life of fame,
 And on life's page we write our name;
 For we are sighting years to come,
 When our tutors shall say, "Well done,"

Then we'll go forth the year that's later,
 Inspired for the thing that's higher and greater;
 And if our goal at last we reach,
 Our prayers will be for those that teach.

It has been hard to study nations;
 And all the Latin conjugations.
 It was very important to learn declension,
 And very hard to pay attention.

We've struggled through our Math exams
 And stormed at all our "English Ma'ams,"
 When asked to write a synopsis,
 Or read again the "Thanatopsis."

We've learned to cook without a book,
 And if our teacher did not look,
 We'd smack our lips, our hands on hips,
 And from the spoon we'd take our sips.

In manual training the boys are gaining,
 They'll make home snug when it's a-rainin',
 In basket-ball they're hard to beat,
 And now the champions they can meet.

But, tell the truth, behind our books
 There are not always sober looks;
 For even though we're hard at work,
 Young Cupids in the corners lurk.

Our teachers mild, with faces of care,
 Smile when he (Cupid) takes them unaware,
 And really now, 't is hard to find
 One that is settled down in mind.

And teachers, scholars, great and small,
 Will march in "twos" at the last call.

SUB-FRESHMAN CLASS

Rooms of R. H. S.

To dear old High School we go each day,
And through its building we wend our way
From room number one to room number ten,
And then we wend it back again.

Room twenty-two is always chill,
Here we learn Shakespeare to our fill.

Room twenty-four is such a bore,
With Layman and his wars galore.

Room twenty-three is a sweet repose—
Here we are Frenchmen, likewise Dagoes.

In room eleven we have quivers and shakes,
With fear of those horrible toads and snakes.

Room number twelve is calm and refreshing,
Here we get "Amo" and all its blessing.

In room thirteen you're in the hands of fate,
You're lucky to get through by the hair on your pate.

In room eighteen the Math stars shine;
Always be sure to be on time.

We climb the steps with weary feet,
But thirty-five is a safe retreat
From work and care and war and strife,
From all the teachers and the ills of life.

But after all we hate to part,
Because these rooms have touched our heart;
And with a look to the world so new,
We bid you all a fond adieu.

Rap! Rap! Rap!

DO I believe in ghosts? Well, perhaps not, but one time, at least, I had a curious experience that seemed to point to the existence of something supernatural, or at least unexplainable. If you wish, I will tell you about it. You may not believe it at first, but I assure you that everything happened just as I will tell it. You will have to judge about the ghost part yourself.

A few summers ago, I spent a month camping with five of my friends. There was only one drawback to our camp site. It was about half a mile from the swimming hole, but it was near the spring, which was more important.

One afternoon while we were all in swimming one of these summer wind and rain storms came up before we knew it. Of course, we didn't mind getting wet but we remembered that all our bed-clothes had been left out to sun. So it behooved us to hurry back to camp before the storm broke or we would of necessity sleep under wet blankets that night. We dressed almost quicker than it takes to tell it, yet before we had even started for camp the wind had begun to blow and the rain to fall. Both became harder, so we realized we were too late to save our blankets. Still we hurried on, and the rain changed to one of the worst hail storms that I have ever seen. The lightning, too, began to flash about us. Then, not being able to stand it any longer, we rushed into a house that was near the road. It proved to be an old Colonial mansion, long vacant, about which we had heard strange rumors. However we were not afraid of ghosts, so, pushing open the door, we entered. A strong gust of wind immediately slammed shut the door, leaving us in inky darkness. Outside the storm continued with unabated fury. Inside we began to hear strange noises. Somebody yelled; then he discovered that rats running across his feet had caused his fright. This seemed to make us rather ashamed of ourselves, for we had all been somewhat disturbed by the noises. When, a little later, we heard other noises, that could not possibly have been made by rats, we decided to investigate. From overhead seemed to come a steady rap, rap, rap. The storm was still raging outside. We could stand it no longer. Something had to be done; so we decided to find out the source of this strange noise.

As I said, this was an old house and a wide stairway led to the second story from the room we were in. Up this stairway we crept, six abreast, as no one wanted to lead. Even the creaking of the old stairs couldn't drown out the other noise—the rap, rap, rap. When we reached the second story the rap, rap, rap was more audible, but seemed to still come from overhead. Exploring, we found there was a ladder leading up to the attic. Not being able to go up this six abreast we almost had to give up our plan, but we finally decided to draw straws to determine the order in which we should mount the ladder. The unlucky boy who drew the shortest straw and had to go up first, almost rebelled, but we finally prevailed upon him to lead the way. Every step up the ladder seemed to make the rap, rap, rap more audible. However, we slowly mounted and at last all of us were in the attic. Rap, rap, rap sounded quite plainly.

The attic was one large room with a slanting roof, or rather ceiling, and a large chimney at one end. We decided that the rap, rap, rap came from behind the chimney. So we went cautiously toward this end of the room. All the while this steady rap, rap, rap worked on our nerves and seemed to push us, with an invisible hand, away from the chimney. We came to it, however, and heard rap, rap, rap coming from behind it. We decided then that the noise came from a black hole back of the chimney. By this time we were ready to find out the cause of this strange and weird rap, rap, rap or die in the attempt, and I am not sure but that most of us feared it would be the latter.

Not a soul had any matches and the hole was dark as night, not silent, however, for from it sounded hollowly rap, rap, rap. We tried to make the boy who had led the way up the ladder put his hand in the hole, and try to find out what caused this rap, rap, rap, which every minute seemed to grow stronger and more gruesome. He flatly refused and said we would have to draw again. Of course, everybody thought that one of the others would be the unlucky one, so we agreed to this. Thus a second time, spurred on by the rap, rap, rap, we drew straws. Then again we almost left without finding out the cause of this mysterious rap, rap, rap. I know, for I was the one this time who drew the shortest straw.

However, after a great deal of persuasion, and incidentally rap, rap, rapping, I finally consented to put my hand in the awful black hole and try to catch the cause of the fearful rap, rap, rap. Feeling much like I judge one feels who is going to be executed, I cautiously extended my hand until my whole arm was in the hole. The rap, rap, rap sounded in my ears like a funeral dirge, only louder and more awful than any I had ever heard. For a while my groping fingers encountered nothing but empty air. Then suddenly I felt something. The rap, rap, rap continued. I snatched out my hand and jerked out something with it. In my hand was—"a piece of wrapping paper!"

The Snapshot

IT was near the latter part of September and colleges were opening for their term's work. Boys and girls were returning to their respective schools; some would enter the Senior Class, some the Junior, some the Sophomore and some the Freshman.

The day was bright and fair, and Ned Mathews was standing on the platform of the little station of Burnsville bidding his friends good-bye. This was his Senior year at Yale and they were all wishing him success. Just before the train came in one of the boys discovered that Ned carried his folding kodak in his hand, and asked the reason why he had not packed it in his trunk. "Really," replied Ned, "I meant to do it, but in my hurry I overlooked it until my trunk was gone, and rather than not have it with me, I decided to carry it in my hand. You know there is so much pretty scenery around school that I like to have it with me."

"Be sure to take some pictures of some of the buildings so you can show them to us when you come back Christmas," said Ann McFarland.

"I certainly will do that," promised Ned.

The whistle of the train was heard and hurried good-byes were said. As the train pulled up to the station Ned sprang to the steps and soon disappeared from sight as he entered the car and the train moved slowly on.

Ned walked through several coaches, and then entered the Pullman car. There, to his surprise, he found his roommate, Billy Marshall. The boys were delighted to see each other, as they had been parted for three months, and they began to tell of their summer vacation. Billy had attended a house party at the seashore and Ned had been on a camping trip in the mountains.

While they were talking of their pleasures, the train stopped at a small town and a girl entered the coach, where Ned and Billy sat, and taking a seat across from them, began reading a magazine which she had in her hand.

Ned and Billy renewed their conversation but in a somewhat lower tone, and every little while each would steal a glance at the girl across the aisle. All that they could see was a girl dressed in a dark brown suit with heavy fur trimming, a big velvet hat and little bronze boots to match. Her hat was tilted on one side and this prevented the boys from seeing her face. In a few minutes the porter entered carrying a little satchel and a brown sealskin coat and placed them beside the girl. The satchel was turned in such a way that Ned saw two initials on the end—"D. P."

"I wonder what 'D. P.' stand for," he whispered to Billy.

"So do I," replied Billy; "maybe it is Dean Preston, or Drucilla Powers," suggested Billy.

"Or it might be Dorothy," answered Ned, "but I don't know what the last name could be."

"I surely would like to see her face," said Billy.

"So would I," responded his friend.

"I'll bet my last quarter she is a college girl, Ned."

"I would not be afraid to bet mine, either, on that, old chum."

"Ned, it seems that she is never going to turn her head this way, so I guess we had better look at the landscape as we are passing."

At this both boys laughed and immediately became occupied in looking out of the window.

When the train was entering a small town where there was a girls' college, the boys' attentions were aroused by the porter's appearing and getting the young lady's coat and satchel and they saw that she was going to get off.

"I've an idea," whispered Ned to Billy.

"What is it?" whispered back Billy.

"It's this," said Ned, "when she gets off the train I am going to place the kodak in the window and when she is on the platform, snap her picture. See?"

"That's a fine idea, I never had thought of that, Ned."

The train slowed down and the girl left the car and when upon the platform, she turned to see if the two new men who were sitting opposite her on the train were still there. Ned snapped the kodak. Just as he looked up his eyes met a pair of big blue eyes which belonged to a girl with wavy golden hair, pink cheeks and a rosebud mouth. All that Ned could do was to stare. In an instant the girl's gaze dropped and she turned away with a picture before her of a tall dark man with shining brown eyes and thick black hair.

Upon reaching college Ned had his film developed to see if the snapshot of the girl he had taken was any good, which, much to his delight, was the very image of her. He took the picture, put it in a little silver frame, and placed it upon his writing desk, where he could look at it when his mind was troubled over his studies.

The first term passed rapidly away and Ned had many dreams of the little girl whose picture occupied an important place upon his study desk.

The Christmas holidays were approaching and Helen Mathews had written her brother that Ann McFarland was going to give a house party Christmas and was going to have several of her college friends. "Won't we have a good time?" wrote Helen.

Ned did not spend much thought on the prospective house-party guests; all that he thought of was, "If only I could see that sweet little girl whose initials are 'D. P.'"

On Ned's return home for the holidays, when he passed the station where the girl got off he looked to see if he could see anything of her, but she was not there.

When he reached home Helen told him that Ann was going to give a dance that night for her guests and they were invited. When Helen and Ned arrived Ann came forward to meet them and took them around to introduce them to her friends. She introduced them to five, but one girl was missing.

"Where is Dorothy?" she asked.

"Oh, there she stands talking to Mary Jones," spoke up one girl. Ann approached her and said,

"Come, Dorothy, I want you to meet Helen Mathews and her brother Ned."

Dorothy turned and shook hands with Helen, then she extended her hand to Ned. As she glanced up she saw the same big brown eyes looking at her that she had seen on the train. She also saw that he recognized her. The color rushed to her face and she turned away. But other guests were arriving and soon the dance began.

Ned looked at his program; the third dance was with Dorothy Page. Ned danced his worst during the first two dances because all the time he was thinking of the third dance.

At last it came and he hastened over to Dorothy's side.

"Shall we dance or sit this dance out?" he asked.

"I prefer to sit it out," answered Dorothy.

So Ned found a nice quiet place beneath some tall palms and then they began to talk. Ned told her that he had recognized her as the same girl he had taken the snapshot of, and that he still had the picture. She laughed and said that she had recognized him, when she met him, as being the same man she had seen on the train when she was on her way to college.

* * * * *

At last the Christmas holidays ended and the young people returned to their colleges. Ned the happiest of all, because Dorothy had promised that he might come down to the college to see her.

In April, Ann wrote to Helen:

My dearest Helen: Ned has been a frequent visitor to our school since Christmas and next fall you are going to have one of the sweetest little sisters-in-law in the world. Dorothy tells me that it all came about by his taking a snapshot of her as she stepped off of the train last fall on her way back here.

You know, Helen, he told us he was carrying his kodak because there was such pretty scenery around Yale—well, it seems that Dorothy happened to be the “scenery” this time.

Your loving friend,

Ann.

A Dream Faculty Meeting at R. H. S.

IT is the day for the Faculty meeting and Mr. McQuilkin is sitting at the desk in the conference room with his hair neatly slicked back, puffing on a cigarette and looking over the Faculty roll. Mr. Turner comes in with a prize-fighter swagger, slams his hat down on the table, clears his throat and sits down. He remarks to Mr. McQuilkin in his rumbling voice:

"Well, I guess I have got to stay in this place about an hour, now."

About this time Miss Board saunters into the room, clad in a green smock, with two beauty spots on her cheek and long earrings dangling from her dainty ears.

She is closely followed by Miss Critz, who is chewing gum in perfect time with her steps. Sitting down she turns to Miss Board and taking her in with one glance, remarks:

"Gee, kid! You are dolled up for fair to-day. Where'd y'u get the classy ear weights?"

Miss Board responds, "Aw! come on, fifty-fifty with the gum."

They are interrupted by Mr. Phelps hurrying in with a bright red necktie on and accompanied by Mr. Layman, who walks very stately, and perceiving Miss Board, lets out a long, low, exclamatory whistle and seats himself.

The debonair Misses Lovelace, Carlisle and Jennings enter the room together, all showing that they are growing fatter every day.

The next to enter is Miss Hayward, looking strong and husky as ever.

Then Mr. Parsons walks in with Miss Mabry, to whom he is talking very interestedly.

After Mr. Beale comes in, arm-in-arm with Miss Johnston and Miss Funkhouser, Mr. McQuilkin rises, shoots his cigarette across the room, and calls the meeting to order. About five minutes later Miss Board and Miss Critz finish their conversation and Mr. McQuilkin calls out the name of Earl Hornbarger.

Mr. Phelps, talking exceedingly fast, remarks,

"I have nothing against Earl Hornbarger."

"Nor I," from Miss Board.

"Nor I," from Miss Critz.

And so they decide to give him a hundred.

The next name is Harry Smith.

"Harry's deportment is beautiful," says Mr. Turner in his gruff way.

Miss Critz is acquiescent and they agree to give him a hundred.

Mr. McQuilkin then peevishly calls out, "Clement Quinn."

Miss Critz, sticking her chewing gum under the chair, exclaims, "When it comes to deportment, nobody's got anything on that kid, Quinn."

They likewise give him a hundred.

Mr. McQuilkin makes several more vain attempts to get somebody's deportment cut, when Mr. Phelps remarks, "I have no cuts for any one to-day."

They all express the same sentiments, and the meeting is adjourned, Mr. Turner going home to his poor little wife sooner than he expected.

BRANCH SPALDING, '17.

Huff: "Mr. Turner, what is my grade?"

Mr. Turner: "Zero."

Huff: "I don't think I deserve that."

Mr. Turner: "I don't either, but it is the lowest I have."

Student (translating): "Am I ignorant of this—"

Mr. Turner: "It rather looks that way."

"What are you going to be when you leave school, Earl?"

E. H. (after about five minutes' thought): "A success."

Miss Hayward: "Harry, go to Mr. Hel—Hel—oh, Hel something, and get my fountain pen."

H. D.: "Miss Johnston, when I try to swim my feet sink."

Miss J.: "Well, the feet are solid, having no air spaces in them."

L. M.: "I guess his head floats for the opposite reason."

Miss Jennings's favorite "hymn" is "The Spanish Cavalier."

Irwin Amos: "Harry, have you had your pictures taken yet?"

H. Yates: "Yes, Irwin, but I've given the last one away."

Mr. Beale (to W. Stephenson): "Now, if you get this outline in your head, you will have the whole thing in a nut shell."

In times previous to the former year much difficulty was experienced in getting the students to the games, consequently the small showing of school spirit. In order to stimulate greater interest and to bring greater crowds to the High School games, the Athletic Board conceived a plan by which every student in High School might attend all home games free of charge. A committee was appointed who canvassed for a minimum budget of $400.00. Thanks to the generosity of the students and to our outside friends, a sum was raised amounting to $448.30, sufficient to meet the expenses of the Athletic Association for the whole year. Passes were immediately issued and distributed among the students, insuring to each free admission to all home games for the present session. We think that this plan has proved highly successful and hope it will be continued in the future.

FOOTBALL SQUAD

Roanoke High School 10 Salem High School 0

Our football team played its initial game on the Roanoke College grounds at Salem, defeating the Salem High School team 10 to 0. While we proved superior to our opponents in every period of the game, it was a hotly contested battle and the Salemites offered a stubborn resistance to our tearing line plunges. Several times we closely approached our opponent's goal and were unable to score, the first half ending with the score 0 to 0. However, in the second half we ran up ten points to their none; Captain Gettle putting a place-kick between the uprights and later plunging through the line for a touchdown. On the offence the three backs, Loewenstein, Gettle and Yates, did stellar work in advancing the ball throughout the game, while on the defence Rankin and Gettle were especially effective, the entire line being strong and impenetrable.

Roanoke High School 20 Christiansburg High School . . . 0

The following Saturday we met the Christiansburg High School eleven at the fair grounds. We found our opponents' line weak and succeeded in defeating them 20 to 0. They were able to advance the ball but twice for creditable gains, the big tackle, Rangely, skirting our ends each time for fifteen yards. Our goal line was never endangered and we found no trouble in making gains when they were needed. The entire R. H. S. back field proved invincible to the Christiansburg's gridders, while Rankin's defensive work was particularly good.

Roanoke High School 34 Cluster Springs Academy 0

We then met Cluster Springs Academy, another heavy team, out-weighting us fifteen pounds to the man. R. H. S. surprised everybody by defeating them 34 to 0. We got the jump on them when first whistle blew and throughout the game our goal was not endangered. Our men were successful in every detail of offensive work, forward passes included, while our defense was unmovable. The first half ended with the score 20 to 0 and in the second we were as strong as ever. Our end runs were more effective than any other method of ground gaining and the entire back field starred. The honors in the line were about evenly distributed as every man did his duty. Faucette proved the best man for C. S. A.

Roanoke High School 13 Blacksburg High School 20

Friday, November 10th, we journeyed to Blacksburg, where extreme overconfidence and lack of team work resulted in a defeat at the hands of the Blacksburg High School eleven, the score being 20 to 13. In the entire first half we were completely outclassed both on offensive and defensive being unable to gain and finding the Blacksburg backs hard to stop. In the second half we came back rather strong and succeeded in scoring two touchdowns, while we were still unable to hold our opponent who scored another touchdown in the third quarter. With about two minutes to play in the last quarter the Blacksburg man picked up a fumbled ball on our seven-yard line and raced across the goal line with it, game ending with a score of 20 to 13 in favor of our opponent. Bock for Blacksburg was the star of the game, while Yates did stellar work in advancing the ball for R. H. S.

Roanoke High School 20 Randolph-Macon Academy 3

The next week we covered ourselves with glory by defeating the heavy R. M. A. squad on their home grounds by the score of 20 to 3. We kicked off to our opponents who advanced the ball to center of the field and marched steadily from there to our twenty-yard line, where we braced and held them for three downs. Connor then dropped back and put a well-executed drop kick over the crossbar, making for R. M. A. three points. From then on we completely outclassed them in every phase of play. They were utterly unable to stop our sweeping end runs, while our line plunges were as merciless. We ran up twenty points while they didn't make another first down. McConnell showed great speed and ability in circling their ends, while the rest of the back field did stellar work. The entire line was a wall of defence and the team as a whole worked like a machine. Warren was easily the star for R. M. A.

Roanoke High School 14 Lynchburg High School 0

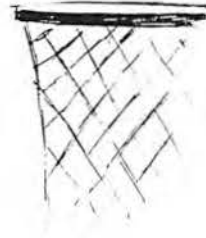

We next met our old rivals from Lynchburg High at the fair grounds and revenge was sweet. We defeated them 14 to 0, but they did hard fighting with all they had, to the last second of play. In the first quarter we had trouble getting started; handling a new ball we fumbled several times, but after the first five minutes we gave L. H. S. a pretty good idea of what our intentions were, and we carried these intentions out. A few minutes after the second quarter started we succeeded in scoring a touchdown through their line after steadily advancing the ball from our territory into theirs. All during the first half the goal was kept in danger. We were as strong in the last half as in the first and on a well-executed forward pass to Yates we scored another touchdown from easy striking distance of their goal, making the score 14 to 0. We really beat them worse than the score shows. They didn't earn two first downs throughout the game. All the breaks went against us as we were penalized time after time and lost several good chances to score on account of fumbles. The entire back field starred on the offensive while Meador, McConnell, H. Yates and Rankin were the R. H. S. strength on the defensive. This game put the Hill-toppers out of the race for the state championship and gave us the title for the western part of the State.

John Marshall High School. . . 33 Roanoke High School. 10

Saturday, December 2d, we went to the fair grounds to battle with John Marshall High School of Richmond for the championship of Virginia, but our battling was in vain. Soon after the starting whistle blew it was plain that we were up against a team superior in weight and speed. Our boys scored first on a place kick by Captain Gettle, but our opponents found little trouble in scoring a touchdown soon after and continued to drive their plays over us almost at will. After recovering a J. M. H. S. fumble on their twenty-yard line we pushed the ball over for a touchdown in the second quarter. When the first half ended the score was 20 to 10 and when the game ended it was 33 to 10, as they made two touchdowns in the last half while we were unable to score again. Hock and Meador at the ends did stellar work, boxing in all end runs. Rankin played his usual good game while no other player on the team displayed any of their former class. Care for J. M. H. S. was invincible at quarterback.

Although we ended rather disastrously we had a very successful year, winning five out of seven games and winning the championship of the western part of the State. We defeated, decisively, two old rivals, Lynchburg High and Randolph-Macon Academy. We also trounced Salem, who could hardly be called a football rival of R. H. S., but whom it is always a great pleasure to beat.

In the initial game of our season we met the girls that hail from Pulaski High. From the time the referee's whistle blew to start until the end, we outplayed them in every phase of the game. Captain Meadows and Welsh played excellent ball for R. H. while Moore was the star for Pulaski.

Roanoke High School	19
Fincastle High School	5

The second game of the season was with the girls of Fincastle High. Our team made a poor exhibition. Bolling was the only one that played as well as usual. But the end of the game found us a few points ahead. Custer starred for Fincastle.

Roanoke High School	13
Marion High School	12

Our first game out of town was with Marion High, one of our old rivals. From beginning to end it was a fight for a point, but at the end we were lucky enough to be one point ahead. Our team as a whole starred, while Atkins played excellent ball for Marion.

Roanoke High School	9
Blacksburg High School	4

Blacksburg journeyed here to meet us. We were handicapped by our crippled condition but we made them fight for the ball. The pass work of Blacksburg was excellent and outclassed our work. But we, by putting up a game fight, had the largest end of the score. Estes and Bolling played splendid ball for R. H. while Critchan and Hoge starred for the visitors.

Roanoke High School.....	5
Blacksburg High School.....	26

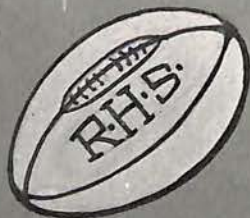

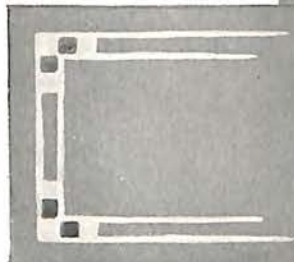

Two weeks later we went to Blacksburg where we met with a great surprise, being defeated by them 26 to 5. Our team was in a bad condition and was handicapped by the size of the floor. None of the team played up to the standard. Holt starred for Blacksburg High by her accurate shooting, scoring 24 of the 26 points.

This was the most successful season the Girls' Basket-ball Team has ever experienced. We won four out of five games, defeating two teams that were never defeated before, Blacksburg and Marion. We owe our success largely to the excellent coaching of Mr. Meissner, to whom we wish to express our sincerest appreciation.

Captain Meadows slipped on the gym floor and we feared the wreckage of the building.

Roanoke High School... ..22 Lynchburg High School... ..19

The following Saturday we journeyed to the Hill City where we defeated our old rivals from the Lynchburg High School, a feat that was never accomplished before. It was a scrappy game, our opponents taking defeat stubbornly. Noftsinger and Koontz played the best game for R. H. S. while Horner starred for Lynchburg.

Roanoke High School.....16 Farmville High School.....17

Our next game was a big disappointment. We were defeated by Farmville High here in our own Y. M. C. A. It was a listless game and we could not get together. Every one seemed to have an off day, Mottley being the only man on the team that played up to his standard.

Roanoke High School.....28 Lynchburg High School... ..29

We next played Lynchburg a return game, losing again by one point. Lynchburg started out with a rush but we came back strong in the last half. Until the final whistle blew it couldn't be said who would win. But Lynchburg's end of the score was a little heavier than ours, the score being 29 to 28.

Roanoke High School..... 8 Randolph-Macon Academy..20

Our last game was with R. M. A. at Bedford, who proved superior to us in shooting goals. They maintained the lead throughout the game, the final score being 20 to 8.

RECORD OF GAMES PLAYED

Roanoke High School..... 8
 Salem High School..... 1

The season opened with a game with our rival, Salem High. The team played together and left S. H. S. with the little end of 8 to 1.

Roanoke High School..... 4
 Chatham Training School..... 19

The second game of the season was a Jonah. We met the strong Chatham team and seemed unable to work together, therefore, this score.

Roanoke High School..... 9
 Salem High School..... 0

Our next game was with Salem on our home grounds and again we trimmed them with a score of 9 to 0.

BASEBALL TEAM

Roanoke High School.....	4
Lynchburg High School.....	1

Next we went to Lynchburg to play our old rival, L. H. S. The team started in with a rush and did not stop. Calahan, their south paw, was unable to hold the team. Thomas's pitching was a feature.

Roanoke High School.....	4
Wytheville High School.....	0

Our next game was with Wytheville and was one of the hardest fought of the season. The Wytheville team worked hard but were unable to cross the plate, the final score being 4 to 0.

Roanoke High School.....	8
Blacksburg High School.....	2

We played the strong nine from the wilds of Blacksburg next and succeeded in downing them with a score of 8 to 2.

Roanoke High School.....	8
Wytheville High School.....	5

The team next went to Wytheville and after a hard fight the game ended with R. H. S. at the big end of an 8 to 5 score. At the first of the game Friday got mad and threw a ball through the wind shield of a car.

Roanoke High School.....	9
Christiansburg High School.....	1

On this same trip we played Christiansburg and broke their record of having never been defeated on their home grounds by a score of 9 to 1.

Roanoke High School.....	9
Randolph-Macon Academy	0

The last game of the season we journeyed to Bedford and played the R. M. A. nine. They failed to solve Thomas's pitching and could not hold the R. H. S. sluggers. The game ended with a score of 9 to 0.

The season closed with R. H. S. the undefeated High School champion of Virginia. Much credit is due to Mr. Marshall who, by his efficient work, was responsible for the success of the team.

TRACK TEAM

Track, 1916

The 1916 track team kept up the good record established by the teams going before it in that line of athletics, in winning the High School Championship of Virginia. This great success is largely due to the excellent coaching of Mr. Moss A. Plunkett, under whose training the R. H. S. track teams have for many years won enviable laurels. The first meet in which we entered was held at Charlottesville under the auspices of the University of Virginia. Competing with not only high schools of Virginia, but all the principal preparatory schools of Virginia, we won sixth place with 12 points. Matson took fourth place in the 100-yard dash, third place in running broad jump and second place in running high jump. Paine took fourth place in the 880-yard run and Thomas won second place in the discus throw.

We next entered in the meet at Washington and Lee University, competing with the same class of schools. At this meet we took second place with $23\frac{1}{2}$ points to our credit. Matson won third place in the 100-yard dash, first place in the discus throw, second place in the running high jump and second place in the running broad jump. Barbour took fourth place in the 220-yard dash and fourth place in the 440-yard run. Gibbons took fourth place in the 220-yard low hurdles and third place in the pole vault. Helvestine won fourth place in the 120-yard high hurdle. Paine won second place in the javelin throw and Thomas took third place in the discus throw.

Our next meet was at V. P. I., where we met only high schools of the sixth and ninth congressional districts of Virginia. We won first place with 76 points. Matson took first place in the 100-yard dash, second place in the 220-yard dash, second place in the discus throw, first place in the running high jump, second place in the shot put, and first place in the running high jump. Our relay team, consisting of Andrews, Helvestine, Fox and Barbour, took first place in the relay race. Barbour won second place in the 100-yard dash and first place in the 440 yard run. Bruner tied with Gibbons for first place in the pole vault. Cary took first place in the 120-yard high hurdles, third place in the 220-yard low hurdles and third place in the pole vault. Helvestine won third place in the 120-yard high hurdles and second place in the javelin throw.

Paine won first place in the 880-yard run, third place in shot put and first place in javelin throw. Thomas took first place in discus throw; and Yost won second place in the 120-yard high hurdles, second place in the 220-yard low hurdles and third place in the running broad jump.

Our last meet was a dual meet at the fair grounds with Staunton Military Academy, who defeated us by 2 points. We made 49 points and they made 51. It was a closely contested meet, first one team having the most points and then the other.

It seems just not exactly fair
That he gave to her that present rare;
For no one else was favored so,
And she was neither friend nor foe.

We cannot understand it all;
For he was harsh and wise and tall,
While she was just a Freshman girl,
With her rosy cheek and hair in curl.

That gift was very small and round;
It didn't even make a sound—
Yet it would last a long, long time,
That ZERO—worth not e'en a dime!

Journey of Studious to the Delectable Heights of Success

STUDIOUS graduated from the Roanoke High School and forthwith decided to continue his journey on the path toward knowledge and thence to the Delectable Heights of Success. There were devious routes to this lofty pinnacle and so Studious was grievously "put to it" at the very beginning of his journey to decide on which road he would travel. At last he decided on a route that lay through the demesne of Hampden-Sidney College and the post-graduate labyrinths of the University of Virginia.

Studious started on the first part of his College Career with a joyous heart. At first his buoyant hope kept his eyes above the trees and he did not see the many rocks that lay in his path. Many a time he stumped his toe but laughingly passed it by as an inevitable consequence of haste. He received his first jolt when he came to the end of that year. Inattentive he traveled o'er the last few rough rods marked "Exams" and did not see the sheer drop at the end called "Partial Failure." He precipitated himself o'er it.

He arose and saw a Cross-road that led back to the World from whence he had come. It was short and pleasant. So he was meditating on following it when a Benevolent Student and an interested Member of the Faculty took him by the hand and told him to assay the rest of the journey a little more cautiously than the first.

Again Studious set forth on the upward path of Knowledge. Here he found it rough going for he must surmount barriers of stone such as Etymology of Homeric Greek and Analytic Philosophy. Here he found many sleeping by the wayside. Studious was strong of body and intellect so he soon found to his great delight that he was Head of his Class. He now adorned a brass plate with the words "President '18" inscribed thereon. At last he approached the College Domain and the Keeper of the Grounds placed a mark on his head thus: A. B.

Studious looked back over the road he had traveled and up at the new one through the University. He thought that it was "a day's work," so he decided to take a Vacation. He went out and lay on a luxurious bed called Society. When he awoke in the morning he started to get out on the wrong side which would have hurled him into a yawning chasm called Matrimony. At this time an old friend, Bachelor, told him of his mistake and Studious came back into the road of Knowledge.

He now started through the paths of the University. They were almost indistinguishable among the tall trees. The guards along the way gave meager directions. But Studious was filled with enthusiasm and followed his nose. He commenced with nature and studied the plants and animals not for their organic relations but their community life. He wrote his treatise on Ancient Greek Cavo-relievo. Then the mark on his forehead was changed to M. A.

The rest of the journey was up a twisting and winding trail. The goal was in plain sight but could only be obtained by persistent climbing. Many perished by the wayside. Immediately Studious clothed himself in a flowing Cape of Poetry and spread it in the Breezes. These Breezes were called Editors and the fiercer ones, Critics. They would tear any weak fabric from the backs of the struggling authors and hurl them into Oblivion. But in attempting to pull Studious's cape from him, a Wind Critic carried him through the air and despairingly dropped him. To his great amazement Studious fell, unhurt, right on top of Mt. Success. He declared to the admiring World that it was a Windfall.

Toast to the 1918 Class

Class of Eighteen, here's to you!
We know you're great, we know you're true;
The road to real success we've tried to pave,
For soon the Senior flag o'er you shall wave.

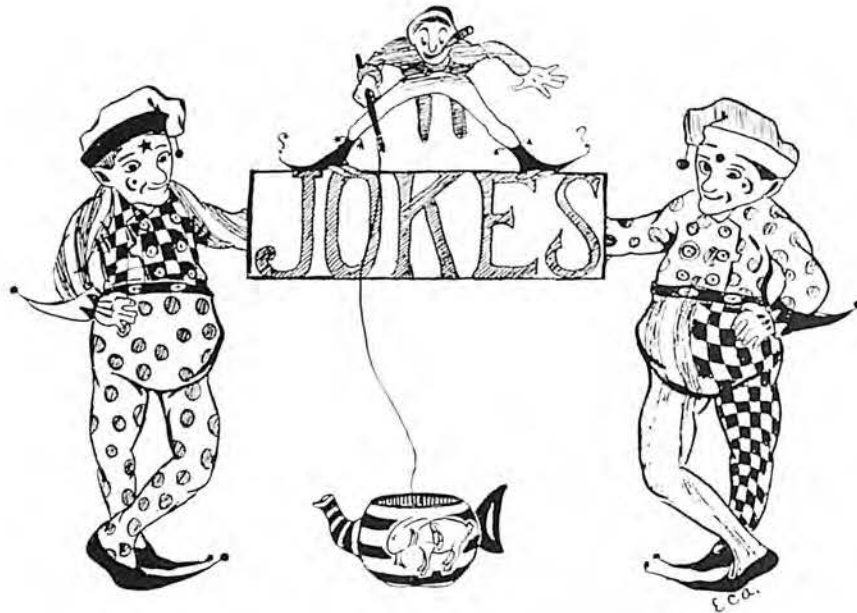

Oh! Juniors, work you'll have next fall,
But try your best to do it all.
Whate'er you say or do, don't dare forget
That Seventeen Class, in heart, is with you yet.

T. HAMERSLY, '17.

Like Raphael's Cherubs, we gaze above;
But oh! our looks are not of love.
For Sophomores ne'er were known to care
For Seniors, with their haughty stare.
They snub us every chance they get;
They call us Rats—that's mean, you bet—
But time cures all things, so they say,
And so ere long we'll have our day;
Then perhaps we'll be snubby, too—
Guess it's just human so to do.

A phrase in Macbeth, "Light thickens." Powell reading the same phrase, "Light chickens."

Courtney A.: "You ought to be awful good to me because I am named after you."

Courtney Mottley: "Huh, you ought to be proud of it."

P. Powell: "George, slip me that two bits."

Mr. Helbig: "Give the gentleman a quarter."

SENIOR NOTICE

There will be a "jint" meeting of the literary societies this afternoon.

Shirley (looking at a Hampden-Sidney annual): "What is a Sponsor, a sort of a chaperon?"

Mr. Parsons (on market, noticing some chickens): "Will those chickens lay?"

Farm girl: "No, sir, they are roosters."

Student in English: "They say that Tennyson sometimes worked a whole afternoon on one line."

Bright Student: "That's nothing. I know a man who has been working eight years on one sentence."

Spalding: "I just can't picture a person not knowing anything."

Spangler: "Did you ever look in a mirror?"

Mr. Beale: "Payne, where do all the insects go in the winter?"

Payne: "You can search me!"

Mr. Layman (to John Carr): "John, you remind me of a Ford."

John C.: "Why?"

Mr. Layman: "Because you are such a little car."

Stevens: "Mr. Phelps, I got this proposition in a round-about way."

Mr. Phelps: "That's all right, it's a circle anyway."

Miss Johnston, after explaining the force on a dam, explains the force on a stream.

L. M.: "Well, Miss Johnston, is that the same theory as the dam theory?"

Student: "I can't tell what you are trying to get at."

Professor: "Your knowledge."

Mr. Helbig (in history): "Now, Miss Gibbons, going further down the bill of fare to-day, tell us of the Diet of Worms."

Layman (asking the origin of names): "What is Layman?"

Gettle: "Hebrew."

(Overheard among the Faculty) Mr. Layman: "I heard of another big real estate deal this morning."

Chorus of teachers: "What?"

Layman: "A House of the Seven Gables sold for twenty-five cents."

Sallie B. (at end of history class): "Mr. Layman, are you going to call on me to-morrow?"

Mr. Layman: "I'm sorry, Miss Barksdale, I'm married now, but I'll try to find some one to take my place."

Miss Critz (in Shakespeare Class): "Minor, go out and come in again; you are a 'fool'."

Mr. Phelps: "Mathematicians have been studying this formula for over two thousand years."

Bruner: "Have you been teaching Geometry that long?"

Hornbarger: "Miss Critz, can me and William go in your room?"

Miss Board (noticing a window up): "Do any of you other girls feel a draft? I don't."

Rob. Stone: "I don't either."

Mr. McQuilkin (suggesting a change in song books in chapel): "I have in my hand a sample copy of a new song book and I will give you a few of the selections."

The school laughs and Mr. McQuilkin blushes.

After winning the game at Marion, the Roanoke crowd was in one of Marion's drug stores. Just before we left for the station they played on the Victrola, "Farewell, dear friend, I love you so."

The first day of school three of our Faculty came to school with a feeling of possessing something new—Mr. Parsons had his mustache, Mr. Beale his Maxwell, and Mr. Layman his wife.

Mr. Phelps: "All right, Miss B., we will take another look at your figure."

Miss Johnston (explaining apostrophe to class): "Now, suppose you entered a room in the dark and fell over a chair in passing, what would you say?"

Pupil: "Why—I'd hate to say."

Harry Smith was highly insulted because his picture had Kid(d) under it.

Miss Critz (as she walks into the hall, quoting): "I, who saw power," (meeting Mr. Helbig) "see now love perfect, too."

Payne solemnly remarked one morning last fall: "The dampness during the summer seems to have sprouted a good many mustaches among the Faculty."

Mr. Meissner: "I feel like laughing. Miss Meadows, go over there and see how high you can jump."

Irwin Amos, looking in a mirror at herself, began singing, "Pretty Baby."

"Pretty people never take a good picture," Amos says. "I don't usually take a good one."

A Woman's Curiosity

I wonder who those people are
That live across the way;
I wonder what their business is,
And how they pass each day.

I wonder who she is that lives
Upon the upper floor,
And if those children both are hers,
If she be rich or poor.

And who is she who always wears
That deep-dyed crimson sacque,
Whose face as pure as marble gleams
'Neath hair of raven black?

And who is he with whitened locks?
And who the maiden fair,
With roses in her rounded cheeks,
And sunlight in her hair?

I wonder if I always will
Go wondering on this way,
Or shall I get acquainted,
And know them all some day?

Know who they are and what they have,
And how they come to be
The tenants of the house that stands
Right opposite to me.

And why—but there, I must arrange
Inside that house to see,
Oh, I shall die, I know I shall,
Of curiosity.
