ALMA MATER

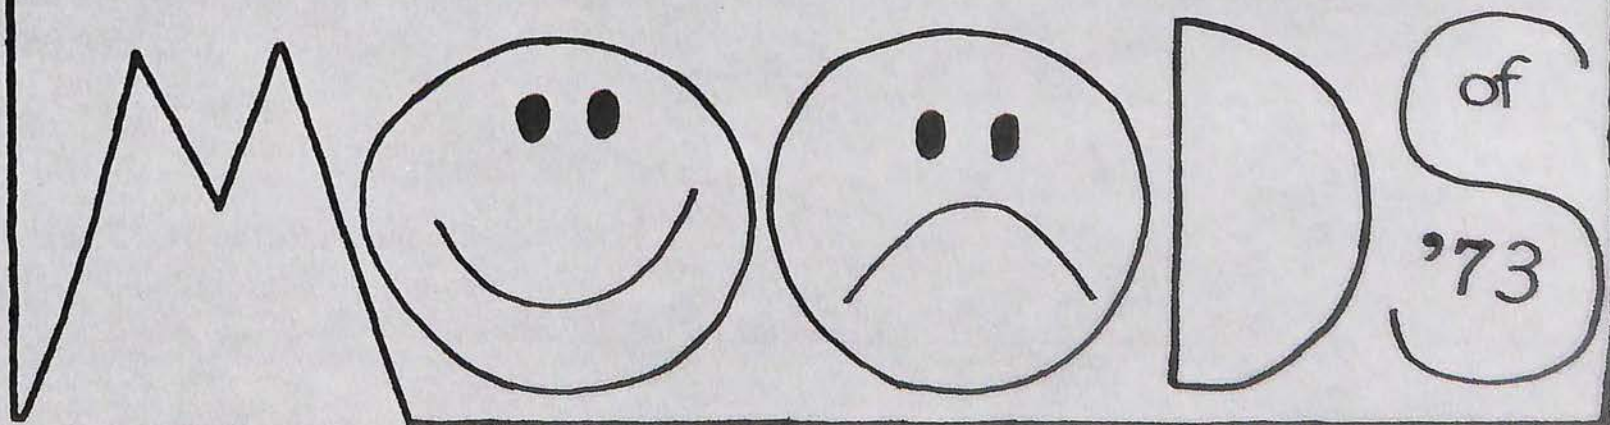

To Thee, Our Alma Mater,
Our hearts will e'er be true;
And so, with lifted voices,
We sing our praise to you,
Still thru thy halls we wander
Our friend You'll always be,
Forever we'll be faithful,
Dear Jefferson, to Thee.

Hail to Our Alma Mater,
To us You'll always be,
A symbol of our happy days,
Our heartaches and our glee,
Within your walls fond mem'ries,
Grow dearer day by day,
All hail our Alma Mater,
Grant us courage on life's way.

You wake up jittery, afraid you'll be late for school or depressed at having to go at all. At mid-morning an unexpected "A" on your algebra exam makes your spirits soar. Feeling happy and gay, you trot off to lunch because you want to ask that certain someone to go to the Homecoming dance. If the offer is accepted, maybe the prom will be next, and maybe this could be the start of a budding love affair! To your dismay, that special someone is absent today. You feel very sad, and you go to your favorite activity to clear your mind of the disappointment. Club meeting turns out to be really great. The teacher seems to be more understanding than usual. You are now in a better mood. You see the coach, who suddenly reminds you that you have a game tonight! By now you're exuberant! You've got confidence in yourself, and you know the team will win!

Does this sound like one of your typical days when your moods soar everywhere — up, down, in, and out? Well, welcome to the club because moods are constantly changing with everyone. However, moods are unique, and you cannot function without them. They are all your own, good or bad; and so it is with the Jefferson Story as told in . . .

SPIRIT

If any occasion bubbles forth with moods of every description, it's Homecoming. Halls ring with laughter as victory posters deck the walls. Nervous jitters plague the girls as they await the announcement of the queen. Classes are interrupted and teachers suffer mixed emotions as students decorate floats for the parade. Emotions mount, anxieties flare and feelings change as everyone takes on the Homecoming Mood.

Coaches: John Mack; Dave Osborne, Head: Tom Lovell; Mike Blasiolo.

The football team ended the season with a 4-5-1 record. They were a little slow getting started, but once they got together, they proved to be dynamite! The Staunton game was among the best because the entire backfield scored. The kicking game was handled by the sophomores as Donnie McAllister kicked off, averaging 43 yards a kick. Punter Robert Vaden averaged 36 yards a punt, and W. D. Thacker was nine for fourteen on extra points. The team, numbering 42 players with eleven seniors, fourteen juniors and seventeen sophomores, was extremely dedicated, showing up in great numbers at practice and summer camp. Bob McClellan, sports writer for a local newspaper, spoke at the football banquet which climaxed the season. At this affair the coaches selected Paul Moock, who was an offensive and defensive standout, the most valuable player. Kent Bradley won the coaches award, Alphonso Preston was chosen unsung hero and Kent Bradley, Ike Tate and Ed Harper received tri-captain awards. First year men were given letters, second year men got letter jackets and third year players received certificates. In the Shrine Bowl game Bill Williams was selected "Outstanding Back" and Paul Moock won best defensive player. Although the season ended in November, the players continued to keep in shape by participating in a winter program. By March the guys were shaping up for next year with spring football conditioning. The football mood was catching on fast.

Jefferson's Great Game Was Fleming's Upset

The Magician line-up this year included Gregg Redd and James Lynch who started last year; Ron Patrick, a returning letterman; David Washington and Dennis Neighbors who will return next year. The first part of the season started with very few wins but toward the end of the season, we won three out of our last five games. In the last eight games we only lost by five points or less. James Lynch led the Jeffites in scoring an 18.8 average and also in rebounding. Ron Patrick led the team in assist and Gregg Redd in defense. Curtis Carter was also a valuable member who often came in and aided with his height and scoring.

The Junior Varsity Team gave the supporters of JHS something to look forward to in years to come. Coach Allen did an outstanding job with a team that won its last seven out of nine games. With the Juniors coming back on the Varsity Team and the sophomores from the J.V. Team, Jefferson will once again have a group of players to put the team back in contention for championship.

I'll race you to the field house.

The outdoor track team revolves around a nucleus of Bill Williams, James Smith, Stan Stuart, Mike Rowland, Fred Hill, and Leslie Trail. These are also the returning lettermen. Bill Williams, Mike Rowland, and Fred Hill were outstanding sophomores and improved greatly through their junior year. Robin Moore and Jeff Lloyd were outstanding sophomores this year. Track and field has improved steadily since Dave Osborne has become head coach. Records were broken in many events — 9 out of 14 — this year. The weakness of the team is very little depth and no threats in the sprints and pole vault. Part of the track program incorporates a spring conditioning program for football players. With so many young members on the team, the future looks bright at Jefferson High School.

ACADEMICS

This academic year has been a great one because of the fine teamwork of the faculty, students, service personnel and administrators. As a result of their efforts, Jefferson Moods have changed like the ocean tide as dreams and ambitions became a reality or died for lack of concern. These emotions are reflected as the Jefferson story continues through this section.

A listening success

Helpful Additive

Five brave men marched into the educational battle fighting on the side of the Maroon and White. Commander-in-chief Graybill announced the call to active duty in order to provide a full range program of activities and courses for each Magician. His second concern and equally important to the first was in the field of human relations as he tried to help the Jeffites get along better. As the combat deepened, Graybill was called to the front to serve as president of the Virginia Education Association for one year. He left his assistant-commander Mr. Wood in charge. Mr. Wood moved into command and carried on in an outstanding manner. His previous experiences with curriculum planning, supervising instruction and directing students helped him handle this job with little difficulty. With the strong assistance of Kepley, Garber and Byrd, the battle was soon under control as mid-semester approached and the commander returned to the home front. Here he received a lot of inspiration from teachers and students who were interested in promoting a stronger, better Jefferson. He was pleased to find everything working well and delighted to find a staff with the attitude of keeping Jefferson ahead. Victories were won and goals were accomplished while these "Bold Ones" remained steady.

Mr. Graybill returns to his principal's desk and once again feels at home.

Giving out basketball awards is one of Mr. Kepley's main jobs.

Garber And Kepley Getting The Job Done

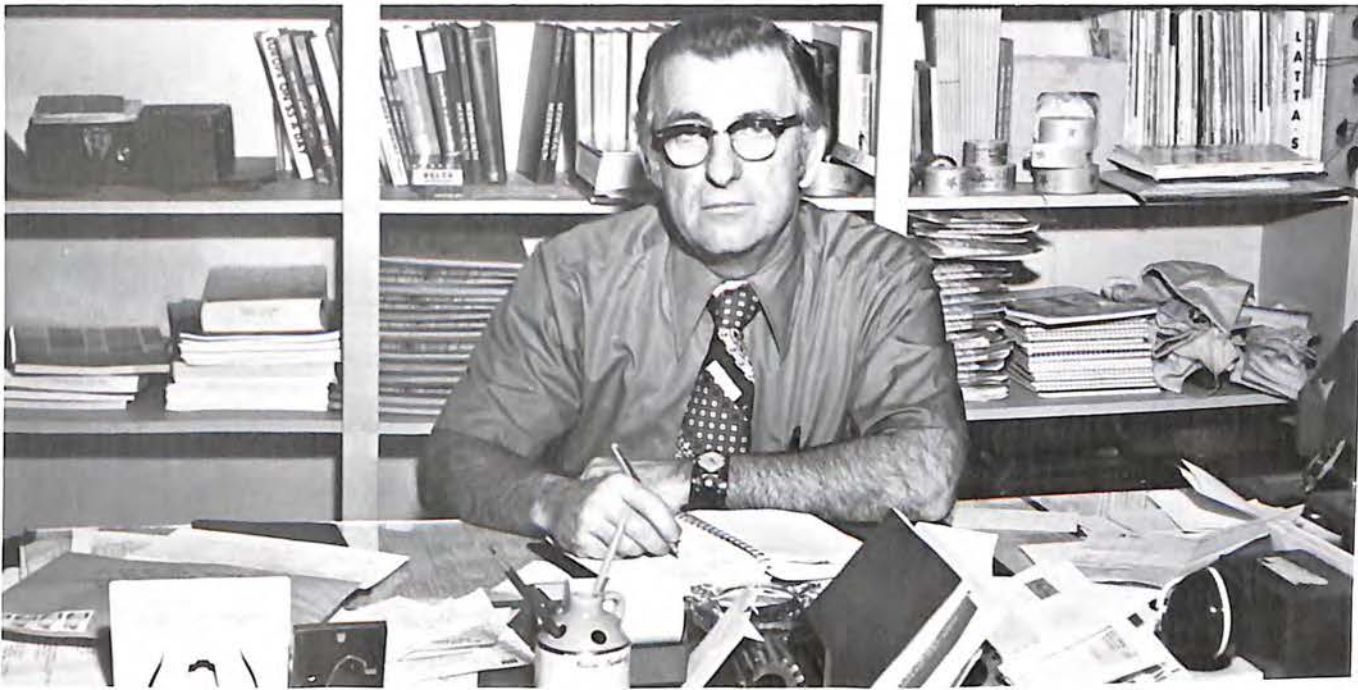

I almost made it, but he was a bit too fast.

On occasions Mr. Garber finds time to smile.

Mr. Garber heads the social programs which include assigning student teachers, distributing lunch tickets and bus tokens, scheduling assemblies. Besides these duties, he works with the home-school counselors, makes schedules during the summer and advises sophomores with special problems. After all this is done, he relaxes with golf, handball and five horses. To take his mind completely away from the cares of the day, he enjoys his family which includes his wife, two children, a dog and a cat.

Mr. Kepley's favorite place is on the basketball court, but his concerns are in the guidance office when he is counseling the juniors. However, because of a few major changes at the top of the administration, he found himself performing new duties as acting assistant principal. Dividing himself among these areas proved to be quite a task, but Coach managed to come through in the usual Magician style. Although the responsibilities were rough, Kepley faked a pass, shot two from half-court, rebounded at a crucial moment and went up for two more which put us out ahead during the last few seconds of the game.

Mr. Byrd's calendar of events is always full, and his many duties are often baffling.

Mrs. Monroe checks records in order to issue bus tokens.

Keeping schedules straight is difficult at times.

Students call this fun, but Mr. Byrd and Mrs. Monroe call this work, and very hard work it is for the activity office. It is through these extra curricular activities under the supervision of this office that the students get a delicious taste of the good life.

Mrs. Irene Monroe is beginning another busy day.

Checking in students is part of Mrs. Doud's busy day.

Service all the while could certainly be the motto of these Magicians. The office staff stays busy checking on the whereabouts of students. The cafeteria group sees that we are well fed, and the custodial force keeps our building warm, clean and comfortable. These are just a few of the many responsibilities delegated to these people that are constantly on the job both day and night. Their work extends beyond the service to the students as the teachers and administrators demand their attention. If the power that these workers generate should suddenly fail, the entire educational process at Jefferson would go on the blink.

The English Department, under the leadership of Mr. Ronald Campbell, offers approximately twenty-five semester courses aimed to satisfy the various moods of our students. Some classes boast that writing can be fun or reading is for everyone while others maintain that grammar is important, and literature is an adventure. Still others suggest that Jonathan Seagull is now, but Julius Caesar is forever. The latest addition to the electives area is the Science Fiction course, but an old favorite is American Literature, and a must for all is a course in speech. Whatever the point of concentration, all the classes agree that English is essential.

Reading Is Fundamental

"Books are keys to wisdom's treasure;
Books are gates to lands of pleasure;
Books are paths that upward lead,
Books are friends. Come, let us read."

The library is the learning center of the school. Here one comes to browse through the large collection of books, catch a few moments of pleasure through reading the magazines or check the newspapers for the latest information. Classes are often seen busily working on research themes while teachers check out filmstrips and records to supplement their classroom materials. The approximately 12,000 books and reference books are an inspiration to the serious student and a challenge to all.

Whatever the tool or whichever the course, students of these sciences have unlimited experiences. They learn to think about a problem, plan a course of action, experience a defeat, rethink a situation and, in time, find a solution. In spite of the amount of knowledge acquired, the fact remains that the scientific students have been in touch with reality for they have been exposed to the techniques of problem solving.

The Color Guard participated at the Cardinal 500 Race, when Vice President Agnew visited Roanoke, and at basketball and football games. Besides regular classes and drill practice, flag ceremonies were performed at school and the Kazim Shrine Temple. First year cadets went to Langley A.F.B. while second year cadets toured Andrews A.F.B. and Washington, D. C. A major accomplishment was the girls' receiving their uniforms and honored cadets were recognized at an Honors Formation.

These courses help students prepare for immediate employment after graduation and also offer practical training for everyday living. If any courses could be labeled relevant, these are they. The business department offers courses in office training, money management, preparing income taxes and buying insurance, while students in home economics learn the techniques of home making, child growth and development and family care. Distributive Education students study skills in basic economics, employment skills and problems dealing with human relations. Fine Arts Department Breeds New Creativity

There is a vast explosion of talent in Jefferson's Fine Arts Department as students explore the courses offered. The results are usually different and exciting, as well as inspiring, whether they be in Music, Art, or Drama. Each of these classes offer a variety of subdivisions, so that students with a particular talent can explore their interests and develop their special abilities. Students in these classes participate in parades, concerts, plays, art shows, and festivals. These activities stimulate a breed of new creativity.

Persons who complete these courses are generally highly skilled workers who are always needed by an employer.

ACTIVITIES

Senators are a vital part of student government.

For a taste of the lighter moods seasoned with a touch of the more serious, students participate in some twenty-five clubs and organizations. These activities provide opportunities for students to work with others their own age and to understand the meaning of responsibility. On the first Wednesday of each month many look forward to sharpening their wits during their favorite club period. The Activities program is like a thoroughly supplied delicatessen providing goodies suitable to everyone's desires. Forensic activities deal with four general academic areas for self-improvement and competitive purposes — debate, speaking, reading and spelling. Contests are held in inter-school groups, followed by an assembly in which winners are selected by judges. These winners represent Jefferson at various workshops and invitational tournaments throughout Virginia. A district meet is held in the early spring and winners at this meet participate in competition with other district winners in the state. Martha Williams, a junior, was chosen first place regional winner in original oratory.

Mike, Phillip and Martha were chosen district winners.

Printing Class Attracts Both Men And Women

The Jefferson Printing Department, having a value of $115,000, serves all four area high schools and is probably the most well equipped in machine variety. The printing students produce work for school activities as well as the school administration. Finished products include diplomas, baccalaureate programs, report cards, class admit slips, stationery and envelopes, thus saving thousands of dollars that may well be used to further the education process. The printers earn money for local and distant field trips as far away as Kingsport, Tenn., and Charlotte, N. C. Students from the classes are eligible to join the printing section of VICA.

Health Careers And Cosmetology . . .

The various projects of the members of the cosmetology club can be seen throughout the school. Many hours are spent in preparing the members for competitive projects and the results have been rewarding. Students participated in state contests and entered a scrapbook in a contest. This book contained the activities and events that have been carried on during this school year.

The Health Career Club had two very successful projects. As a fund raising project, the group sold stationery, and as a community service project, they became involved in environment protection by collecting newspapers and cans. The members participated in state, local and national contests and entered a display at the Job Fair.

These two activities are an extension of the regular classes, and are a vital part of the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America.

About thirty-two FTA members entertained the teachers with a tea during National Education Week. Adding to the fun of homecoming, three members dressed as clowns and handed out candy during the parade. The money making project was selling name cards and thank-you notes to seniors. A day was set aside for future teachers to visit other schools and observe teaching techniques. The group honored the teacher of the year Miss Mildred Kerlin at the annual city wide FTA banquet. The year ended with a picnic at the sponsor, Mrs. Dudley's house.

The Key Club is a service organization sponsored by the Roanoke Kiwanis Club. This group, under the direction of Mr. Stephen Mabry, has been involved in many projects both in the community and at school. They felt a deep sense of pride as they gave baskets of food to families during the Christmas season. In order to send members to the district convention in Ocean City, Maryland, the club held a number of car washes and doughnut sales. Each Wednesday they enjoyed the fellowship of the Kiwanis Luncheon and presented a program concerning this year's activities to their adult sponsors.

The Jefferson Chorale, a group of some fifty students earnestly attempted to fill the world with song. Whether it was with contemporary, traditional or classical songs, the chorale, under the direction of Mr. Roland Plasterer, was always on hand to perform. They participated in assemblies, concerts, tours and conducted a light bulb sale to raise money for their trips. In addition to the chorale, one might have seen and heard the Jefferson singers. This small but capable group of girls mostly focused their talents upon the sounds of today and performed during the Christmas and Easter assemblies and various other local affairs.

... and the band played on, and on, and on at football games, during pep assemblies, at concerts, in parades, and at basketball games. Yes, our school band, numbering approximately thirty members provided Musical Moods for all occasions. When the band was not performing, it spent hours practicing march routines and learning new numbers. One of the dedicated members, Marvin Randolph, auditioned on the clarinet and was selected to the Regional All-State Band. With the hard work all done and every Reese's Peanut Butter Cup sold, the band packed up and marched away on tour to Canada and parts unknown. It was a well earned trip and a very good year for the band because the Marching Magicians had served the school well.

The Magicianettes got in the Mood in early summer when four girls went to drill-team camp at Roanoke College. Summer activities continued as the girls practiced once a week then took time out for an all-day event at their sponsor's house. The long hard hours of rehearsals paid off as the high-stepping Magicianettes performed their routines at football and basketball games and during pep assemblies. Their goal this year was to raise enough money to go to Canada with the band. Therefore the toe-tappers went into business selling doughnuts and baked goods and washing cars. The girls appreciated the efforts and interest of their sponsor Mrs. Baier who constantly encouraged the best results; therefore, they thanked her "dozens of doughnuts"

The Drama Department was very active this year in bringing Jefferson and the surrounding communities a variety of plays; the season began with the musical West Side Story. The dramatics group represented Jefferson at the International Thespian Society meeting in Charlottesville, and won a Citation of Recognition for their participation in improvisations and their performance of scenes from West Side Story. Man of La Mancha was the winter play and the cast and crew took off for Washington, D.C. to see the newly released movie of Man of La Mancha and to tour the D.C. area. In the spring the group embarked upon a big project — a world premiere of a new musical comedy Spring for Sure which was performed at Jefferson and then toured to state prisons, drug hospitals, mental institutions, rest homes, and orphanages. Circle of Sanity, A one-act play written by Mike Elkins, was performed at the District One Act Competition.

Newspaper And Magazine

The Jefferson News was published ten times during the year, approximately once every month. Mike Elkins served as editor-in-chief with Denise Thurston as news editor, Butch Dodd as sports editor, and Greg Redd as feature editor. Larry Dowdy was photographer and assistant sports editor. Mike Elkins was selected to receive the "Most Valuable Staffer" award from the World News.

The Acorn Magazine, published once annually, was headed by Mike Elkins as literary editor and Sherry Amos as assistant literary editor. Material for the magazine came from two main sources: 1). literature written by Mr. Campbell's Creative Writing classes, 2). art from Mrs. Lowe's art classes.

The yearbook staff is composed of students who plan and work on the yearbook. The staff is made of ten members, with Salena Mack and Betty Wilmoth as co-editors and Mrs. Broady as sponsor. This group learned while working on the yearbook that it takes cooperation, patience, consistency, and dedication in order to get things done. In May the staff went to Charlotte, N. C., to visit Delmar Studios. While there they visited the "Carowinds" — a sort of Disneyworld. Some staff members struggled, complained, got angry, confused, and sometimes felt like they wanted to scream when trying to meet the deadline, but when it was all over, they were proud of the results. After a much deserved rest, they were ready to start next year's annual.

Senior Officers Coordinate Senior Activities

This has been quite a successful year for the senior class and their officers. They have managed to keep "all of the books in order," and hopefully end the year in the clear. The officers have served the class well, keeping all of the members informed of those things to come. They have led the class in various money raising projects which included selling scented oil lamps and travel bags. During the academic year, the officers and their sponsor, Mrs. Lawhorn called a series of senior meetings so that important decisions concerning them might be made. Among these decisions come the planning of the various graduation activities.

The senior officers have done a big job, but none of it would have been possible without the cooperation that they received from their fellow class members.

IN MEMORY OF

This page is dedicated to the memory of:
Katherine Sue Moses — Class of '73 — July 17, 1955 — September 14, 1972

There is a strange infinity in life
Forgotten at the moment of our birth
But lingering like a half-remembered song
To give us violets in December.
There is a certain comfort
In the reaping of the grain
A Circularity to life
Knowing that we will not be flung
Against the sands of life and then erased
Without some sort of harvest.

Seniors Will Remember

Friends that time will soon separate us from

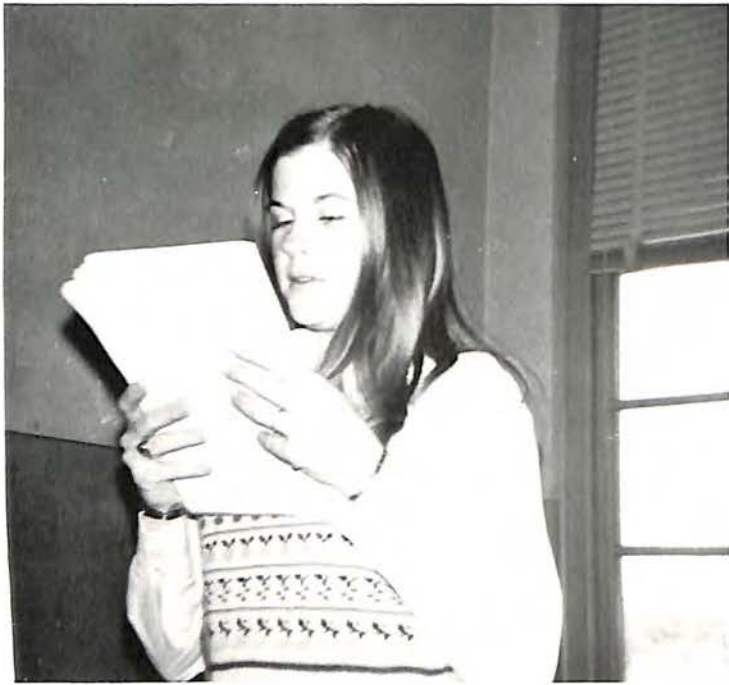

The pep band and their rocking machines

The hot and nourishing meals

Homecoming '73', and the affairs of the year

They give reports ...

They seek perfection in their work ...

They stand on clouds with Jrs. ...

They illustrate split-ends ...

They smile when spoken to ...

They think . . .

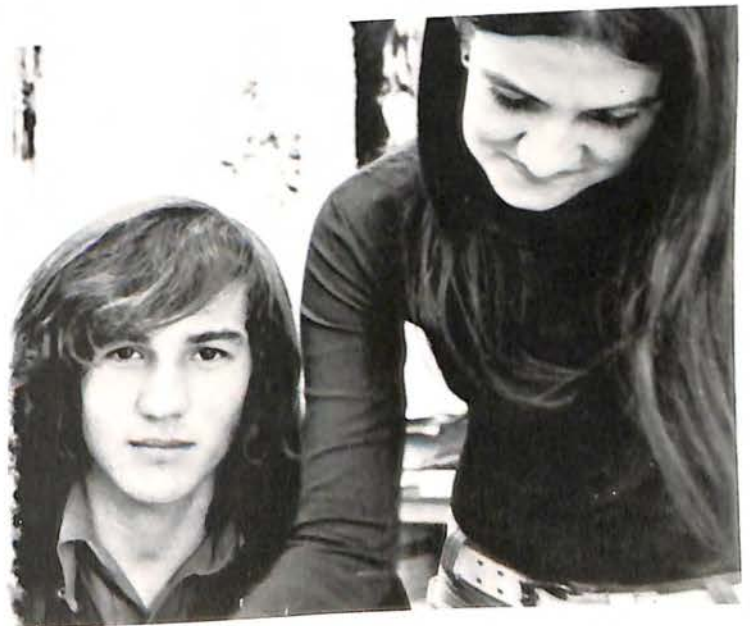

They cheer at games . . .

They slide down stair rails . . .

Seniors Do Really Weird Things!

And they help underclassmen get started.

Junior Planning Sessions Require Major Decisions

Debbie and Janet receive candy to sell for the Prom.

Jr. Officers: Diane Carter, Martha Williams, Lynn Manning, Linda Arnold, Kathy McGregor, Cathy McDaniels, Millicent Neal, Diane Rice.

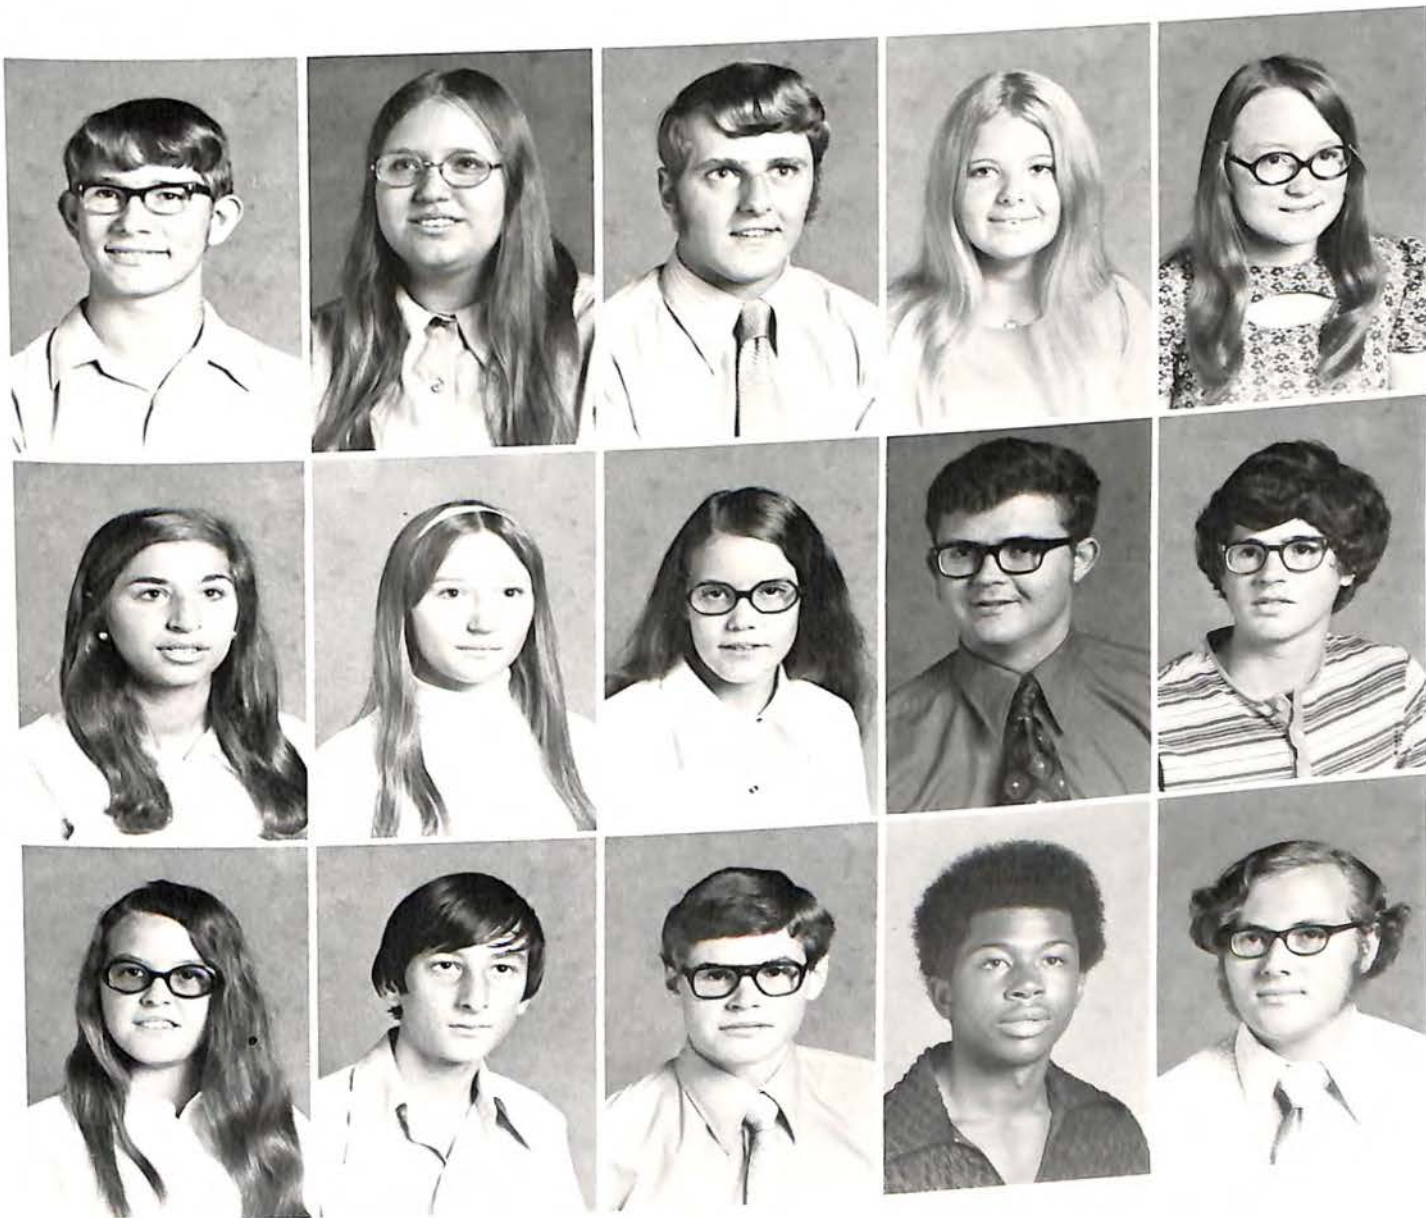

Mrs. Witten helps Juniors during Prom planning committee.

Returning to Jefferson in the fall makes you feel like you are coming home, coming back to where it all began. As you see the faces of old friends and faces of people yet to become friends, you realize how much you have missed this particular "House of Learning". It's 8:45 and there goes the first bell for homeroom. How different it is from last year, when you were a sophomore. Strange faces and a strange building scared you. Now it feels great to be back from the long summer vacation. After the greeting and the meeting, the first problem shows up with the new schedule. Some classes you like, and some you don't. Well, off to the guidance office — Look out Mr. Kepley! Classes, clubs, and class meetings suddenly fall into place, and the Junior year gets started in the right direction. Pictures, candy-sales, car-washes . . . this year is going so fast. Mid-term exams and the Junior-Senior Prom . . . the school life is almost over. Class elections, the yearbook, final exams, and saying good-bye . . . it's hard to believe but it's summer again, and a Junior year of fun, fears and excitement has ended.

Come on Mr. Sink, we didn't wreck your Driver's Ed. car

Juniors Aim For A

Close your mouth Sam, she's not that goodlooking!

Dennis looks over library's selection.

Barry appears out of nowhere.

Brian with the group "Maze."

Everywhere you looked, you saw the smiling faces of a junior — well, usually smiling because sometimes the problems got really rough. This was a big year for Juniors for they found out what giving a prom was all about. Throughout the many difficulties, Mrs. Witten calmly helped to settle them. To the surprise of all "Somewhere My Love" proved to be a great success and the results were overwhelming.

Fabulous Prom

Sophomores Challenge The Jefferson Moods

About 270 new and bewildered faces showed up for orientation as the sophomores joined the Magician Moods. They appeared rather quiet and shy at first, but soon things changed as they took on the moods of high school students. The new Jeffites turned out in numbers at the football games, and they let everyone know that they were proud to be a part of the Jefferson team.

At Homecoming time they were among the first to get the halls decorated. During the pep assemblies and at basketball games the sophomores out-yelled all the rest. The school-wide candy sell was their first big assignment, and they came in first here also. Most of the really big jobs were done by these once shy, quiet, bewildered ones who are now members in good standing. This class looks like a winner!

G. A. A. members show disgust as they lose to faculty team.

MOMENTOUS

Throughout the year various events take place. We have done our best to capture as many as possible. Imagine a pep assembly without Jeffites filled with spirit or a candy sale without the desire to be top-seller. Consider the atmosphere of a lunch room when the power fails. Relive each contest as students received one award after another. Such events have been emphasized because each is accented by a different mood or feeling. This is what makes an event a "happening". Herewith, my friends, are a few MOMENTOUS EVENTS of '73.

sale. Brenda Sink wins top prize, a television.

Mr. Wright is also amazed.

And then there were lights — even between the lockers!

The '73 Top Ten

Being one of the top ten in the graduating class is certainly the "sweet taste" of success. With all the demands of the now-world, it must have been a very difficult task to accomplish, but through it all these seniors have persevered and now stand in the most honored positions.

Pam J. Hannabass enjoys the great satisfaction of being rewarded for learning as she has proudly accepted the title of Valedictorian of the class of '73. Having maintained a yearly average of A in each class since the seventh grade, she believes that listening attentively and taking notes accurately in class are the stepping-stones to her success. As Pam looks back over her learning experience, she sees her senior year as the best, and she is grateful to her parents and teachers for their encouragement and help. Because of Pam's great love for animals, she plans to work a year in a veterinary hospital, then she plans to seek her fame and fortune as a bride.

Pam reflects on her independent study in Latin 3 which proved unique.

A last minute glance at notes always helped.

Listen, record and review are three study skills that Pam always used.

Chemistry test is tough for Wilma.

Wilma finds periodicals a source of help.

Government issues make interesting class discussions.

Wilma J. Nichols ranks second in the class and finds it difficult to believe that twelve years of school are really over. She recalls many wonderful experiences, but the greatest honor is having earned the title of Salutatorian. As she makes plans to major in education at Virginia Western or Radford College next fall, she is looking forward to continuing her education and hopes that her future will be as rewarding as her past. With gratitude Wilma is appreciative to all who have given her advice and help through out her twelve years and especially her years at Jefferson.

Boys And Girls State Participants

Margaret Tabor, Wendy Campbell, and Renee Ferris were among the 621 girls who attended Girls' State.

Wendy Campbell's "City" was selected "Model City".

Girls' and Boys' State participants elected officials and study city management.

Randy Craft and Leroy Carter represented the Federalists party at Boys' State.

Jr. Miss Contest Brings Honor To Jefferson

Renee Ferris wins title out of 11 entries in Roanoke Valley Jr. Miss contest.

Jefferson had the largest number of participants in the Jr. Miss contest. They were Angie Deal, Charlotte Scott, (both not shown) Mary Sibold, Mary Jo Towe, and Renee Ferris. All participating girls had to be seniors in high school and no older than 18. Mary Sibold was first runner-up and received a $200 scholarship. The contest was only the beginning. Being crowned Jr. Miss carried many fringe benefits, and kept Renee busy and on the go. Some of these activities were helping to open new establishments, such as banks, department stores and others. She took part in two ribbon cutting ceremonies. She went on TV to draw the winner of the trip to Jamaica for Mountain Trust Bank. Above all, she has brought honor and credit to Jefferson High School.

Girls worked for a month learning dance routine.

Seniors Receive Outstanding Awards

Mr. Graybill gives Pam Hannabass the Betty Crocker Award, which is presented on the basis of test scores.

Jenny Akers and Leroy Carter receive the Brotherhood Award, given annually to seniors who are chosen by the Senior class.

Renneé Ferris receives the DAR Award.

*Down With The Old
Up With The New*

The painter adds color to the model classroom.

Mrs. McCabe discusses remodeling plans with schoolboard representative.

Work has begun on the new library to be housed in the old gym.

Barry Kelly finds the fieldhouse a welcomed addition.

The guys enjoy studying offense and defense techniques in the new office.

Doug Akers and Randy Wood have a tug-a-war.

The coaches really appreciate the fieldhouse — as shown by Coach Lovell.

Randy Wood, manager of several sports, keeps uniforms properly shelved.

After about three years of promises, promises, Jefferson's athletes are finally enjoying the conveniences of a fieldhouse. Everyone takes pride in this long awaited addition which has come to be called "The Home of the Wishbone". While the guys were living it up in the fieldhouse, Mrs. McCabe sparked an idea and asked My Lynn, president of Heironimus, to remodel her classroom. Since the Deb Council of that store had won a national cash award which had been earmarked for a youth ecology program, this once-in-a-life-time request was granted. Throughout the year persons on the west end of the main floor heard the hum and bang of saws and hammers as work began on the new library. These changes have and will add many hours of pleasure to the Magicians.

Christmas Assembly Goes Strictly Modern

The choir sings the Jazz Rock version of Peace on Earth.

The Grinch invades our Christmas assembly.

Mary & Joseph, portrayed by Butch Dodd and Wilma Nichols, is an honor given to deserving seniors each year. They are voted for by the seniors.

Miss Terrell congratulates Wendy Campbell and Leroy Carter for having received the "I Dare You" award given by the American Youth Foundation.

Marvin shows his Va. All-Regional Band Certificate to Cindy and Janet. He played the clarinet in the 12th annual affair.

Magicians Feel Their Fashions

Mr. Poindexter joins "Fro" generation!

Dennis styles a shag.

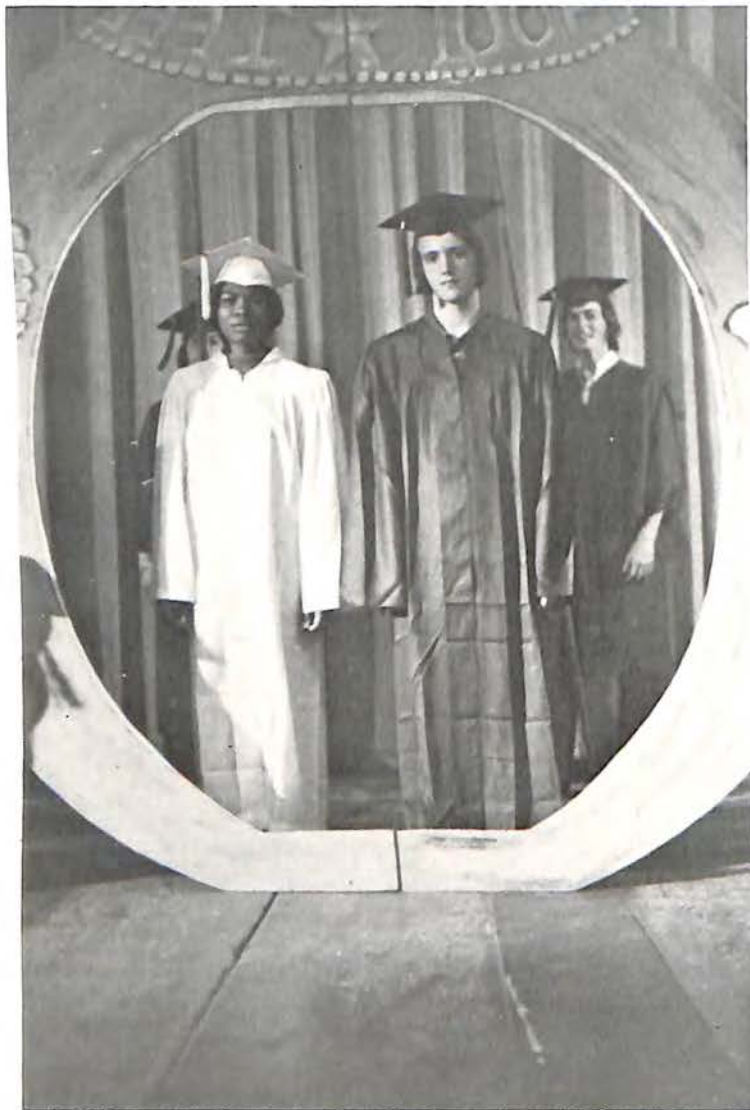

Pants take a wider flare.

Gloria models a new hairdo.

After what may now seem like an eternity, but may soon seem like only yesterday, our seniors are ready to make their way in the world. Graduation 1973 became a reality as the senior activities got underway with rehearsals, senior breakfast, and the senior assembly. It wasn't until Senior Day when everyone dressed in the beautiful maroon and white caps and gowns and stepped through the traditional "Ring" that the real feeling of graduation prevailed. The next important event was the Baccalaureate Service at Calvary Baptist Church, but the auspicious occasion came on June 7, at the Roanoke Civic Center when Dr. Robert Williams, outgoing Executive Secretary of the V.E.A., gave the seniors some parting words of advice . . .

Mrs. Broady and Dawn help Montinia fit her robe.

Fitting robes included some real scrambling around.

The Graduation Moods Have Come And Gone

Leaving the auditorium doesn't seem quite so long.

Smile Seniors! It's not the end, but only the beginning.

Now that I have found a cap that really fits, I'm sure I must look great!

It will be so nice when they all get in.

One thing about the U. S. Army is its size. It's big. And because it's big, it offers all kinds of opportunities to girls who want to do things after high school.

Things like traveling, and meeting new friends, and learning new skills and personal accomplishments.

The Women's Army Corps has openings for training in many different fields and specialties. Communications, for example, or medicine. Personnel. Finance. Photography. And more.

The excitement and fun and interest of the Women's Army Corps is waiting for you. Plus the chance to serve your Country.

And do something for yourself.

Although The End Is Near . . .

Mr. Jefferson has his Moods: Proud to be in the Jefferson Halls!

Spirit catches Fisher!

After a hard weekend Moods fall asleep.

Going home — the best Mood of all!

50 cents or 50 lashes — the money Mood!

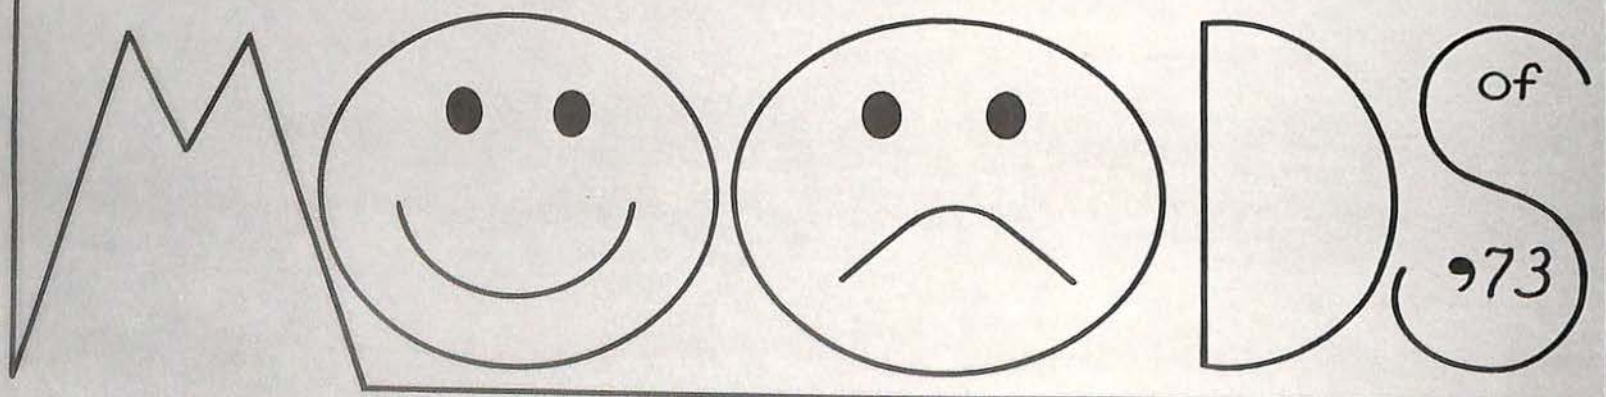

Betty feels Goofy!

The Moods Are Still Here!

As any story runs a normal course, coming suddenly to the peak of excitement and finally dropping off to a peaceful end, so runs the course of everyday emotions of all people. Recognizing the similarities between the development of a story and the course of changing emotions, the yearbook staff has attempted to capture and portray the different Moods of Jefferson. Salena Mack and Betty Wilmoth took the lead as co-editors, but the most valuable staffer award went to Dawn Gray who was always on the job. The best supporting workers certificates went to Janet Cothren, Debbie Fisher, Linda Murphy and Gerie Howard while Sharon Draper and Vicky Briggs received service certificates. The story was documented with pictures by Mr. Fred Baber, Gary Israel and Larry Dowdy. It became a finished product at the Delmar Companies in Charlotte, North Carolina. We are grateful for every act and word of encouragement, and we extend a very special thanks to Mr. Stephen Mabry who deserves our praise for letting us use his camera. Throughout the development of our story, storms raged, winds calmed, rains fell, birds sang, and all the while Magician Moods changed, and an exuberant, exhausted sponsor, Mrs. Delois C. Broady saw Moods of '73 make up the Jefferson Story.

A word of advice to all from Mike Carter!

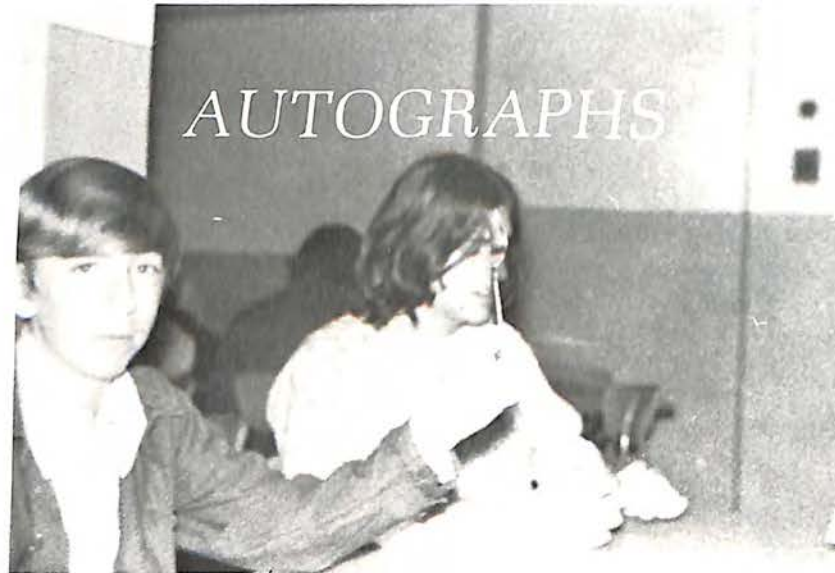

AUTOGRAPHS

Neal and Preston are in a soulful mood — right on!

Larry Martin tells a big tale that creates a happy Mood.

For Barry and Richard the Mood is serious because it's lunch time, and who needs a picture taken?
