Consider Our Journey

Deciding on the theme for a yearbook is always a challenging job. After all, finding a title for the yearbook that represents all aspects of the school can be overwhelming. Some editors choose to zero in on one detail that sets their school apart from all others. But what truly makes Patrick Henry stand out are these intensely different details combined. Welcome to the 1996-97 yearbook: ALL THINGS CONSIDERED. It is a time to step back and take a look at who we are, what we are doing, and where we are going. It is a time to break through the barriers that have divided Patrick Henry in the past and realize that the diversity that fills this school is what makes it such an incredible place to be. This yearbook is a tribute to the 1996-97 year. A tribute to the never-ending supply of friends as well as new faces, a tribute to making the grade, and to winning the game. You will want to remember it all, and you will be able to. It's all here. The laughter in the halls, in the parking lot, and on the buses, the uncertainty when you thought nobody was watching, the excitement of the dances, games and special events. Undoubtedly unforgettable, All Things Considered will help you keep these memories alive for years to come.

Fire up the night

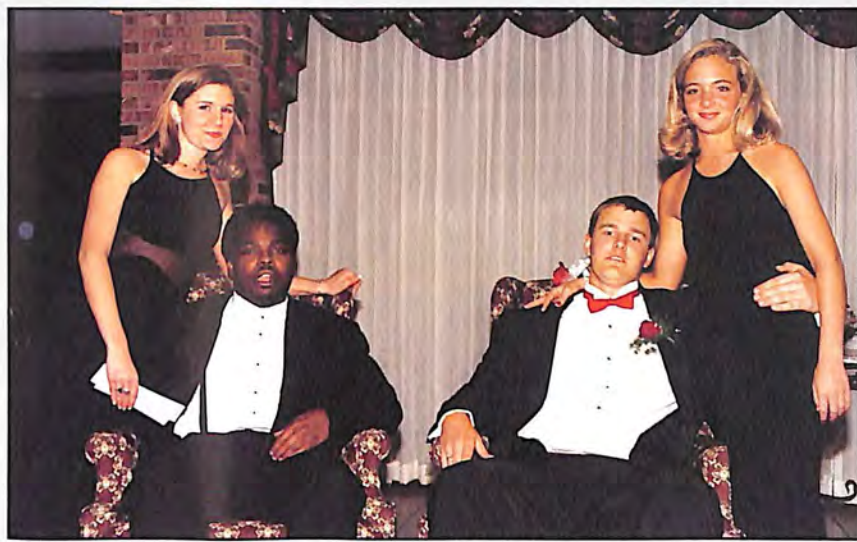

It's 6:30 and your date's arrived. It's time to let the good times roll as one endless night begins to unravel. You experience the exquisite dinner at an expensive restaurant your date has precisely selected. Now it's time to hit the prom scene with dancing till dawn. With cheers of elation as Marcie Petrocci and Dennis Dunnaville are crowned king and queen, the refreshments soon start to dwindle down and the punch disappears. It's time to hit the party scene. After a quick rush to change from evening gowns to blue jeans and sneakers, the After Prom festivities become the second highlight of the evening. Even though it's in the school gym, the decorations, games, and friendly faces make it all worthwhile. Fire up the night...I'll say we did. So much so that we slept through the next day and the first day of classes.

The Possibilities Are Endless

Where did we see? Who did we do? What did we go? No, no, no, that's not right! It's where did we go? What did we see? What did we do? I'm sure that every student has a different answer to these questions, but there is no doubt about it - the Patrick Henry seniors definitely displayed the most enthusiasm and spirit this year. From the first football game to the last day of senior beach week, our year was jam-packed with new people, places, and things. From pep rallies and bonfires to late night parties and weekend trips, no class experienced as much excitement as the senior Patriots. Now, after all this fun, the question is, where do we go from here? What new adventures will life have in store for us? All things considered, the possibilities are endless.

Consider Seniors Superior

The benefits of being the best

What does being a senior mean? At PH, it's a whole lot more than picking on the freshmen. Seniors begin their days by pulling into the designated senior section of the parking lot. In addition to a groovy purple curb, the closeness to classrooms is wonderful, especially when running late. As the day progresses, seniors anticipate a five-minute early release for lunch, which cuts their time in line way back. Upon buying their food, seniors can sit in the designated senior section, a slew of tables three feet higher than the rest of the cafeteria. After lunch, many seniors can leave school due to a free period, provided they've taken (& passed) their required classes in previous years. And for the seniors stuck at school, they anxiously await 2:32, when they get to go home three minutes before the rest of the school.

Besides the daily benefits, seniors can also enjoy activities planned just for them throughout the year. This year, during Spirit Week, seniors participated in Decorate-A-Freshman day along with a senior skating trip. Later in the year, they had a senior bowling trip. On Mock Graduation Day, they were rewarded for four years of hard work with a senior breakfast, a senior slide show, and a senior picnic. As anyone can see, being a senior requires a lot more than just hard work. That's why every senior is eager to stand up and brag about being a Patriot.

Nobel Prize candidates! Robyn Proffitt, Janelle Moeller, & Miranda Kyger work on a biology lab in Mr. McMichael's class.

The seniors of '97 put down their pencils and calculators once the weekend hits, turning men from mortals into crazy, fearless vampires. Seniors might dance the night away with some Hip-Hop at the Melting Pot where the bass keeps pumping until 2 A.M. Others might go to the Ghost of Hollywood for a more alternative rock type vibe or go see the ever-so-popular Agents of Good Roots whose mellow rock puts students into a groovy mood. The more daring seniors might go to parties that offer excitement, especially if that party contains a pool. The craziest seniors will go to parties uninvited and cause total ruckus only to be escorted out by six people or maybe go to Hidden Valley swimming pool and throw a party of about fifteen people and swim the night away. The seniors of '97 had a right to party hard this year, for nearly eighty of the 340 graduating students had a 3.0 or higher GPA. The seniors of '97 can simply do it all. They are athletic, smart, good looking, and as crazy as ever. They have both Bill Gates and Dennis Rodman mixed in their souls. Although no two seniors partied the same, overall they shared one common goal: To have fun and go BUCK WILD!!!

Consider Us Crazy

Flaggin' it! Trip Creech displays a Patriot flag posted on the Cave Spring flag pole during Spirit Week.

And we didn't get caught

The seniors this year have exhibited a wild side that will be remembered for a long time to come. The school spirit has been exceptional. Fans at the football games this year went nuts and rooted the football team to many victories. When the basketball team took on Cave Spring, the gym was sold out and there was standing room only. The crowd went crazy and cheered the basketball team to a dominating victory over our tough rival. Also, some seniors went to Cave Spring and hung an immobile wooden PH flag. This was the first year ever PH has had a mascot to represent the school. It was presented at all varsity basketball games this season. Trip Creech and Carrie Hendrick received the honor of dressing in the mascot uniform. Also, a flying rubber chicken was present at football and basketball games. The chicken represented school spirit and got the crowd fired up. In addition, school president Max Masinter arranged for a "seniors only" section at the last few home basketball games. This was an excellent idea because it let the students cheer for the basketball team in true Patriot spirit. To top it off, seniors even spray painted the amphitheatre "Seniors '97." This year's seniors are one of a kind and hard to come by. Seniors in the future will have a tough time living up to the expectations of this year's seniors.

Consider the Alternatives

Senioritis affects 99.9%

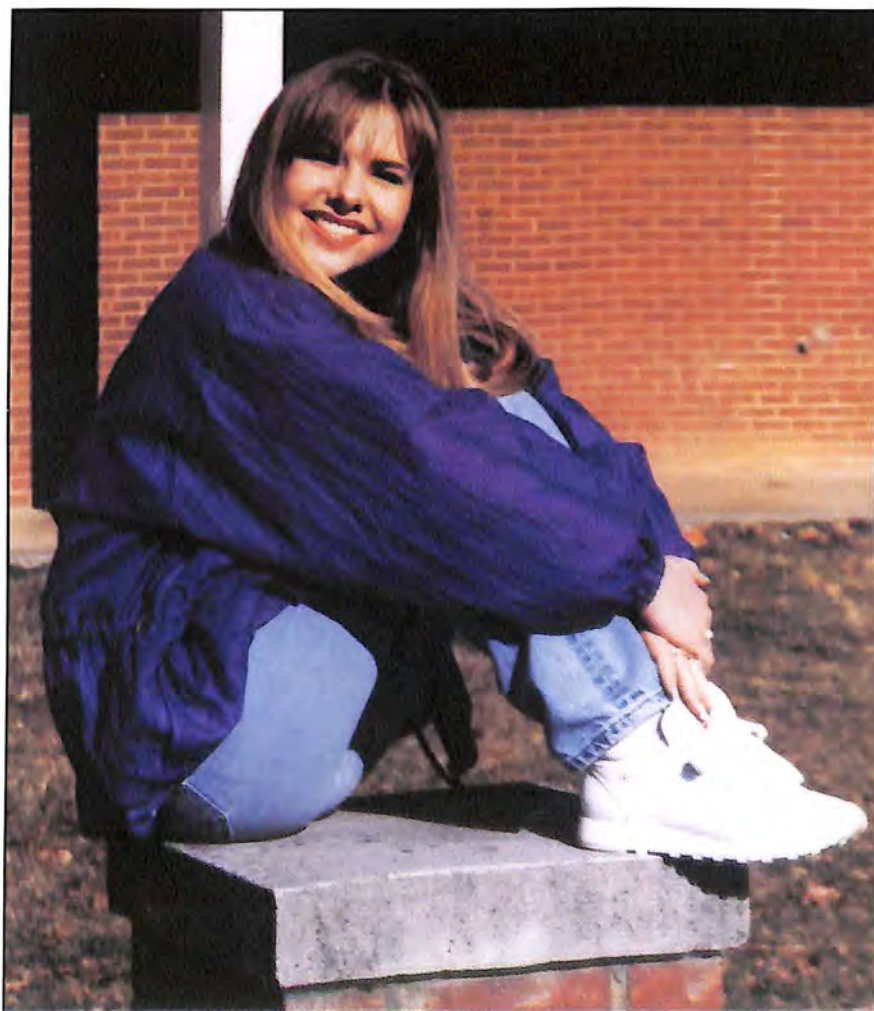

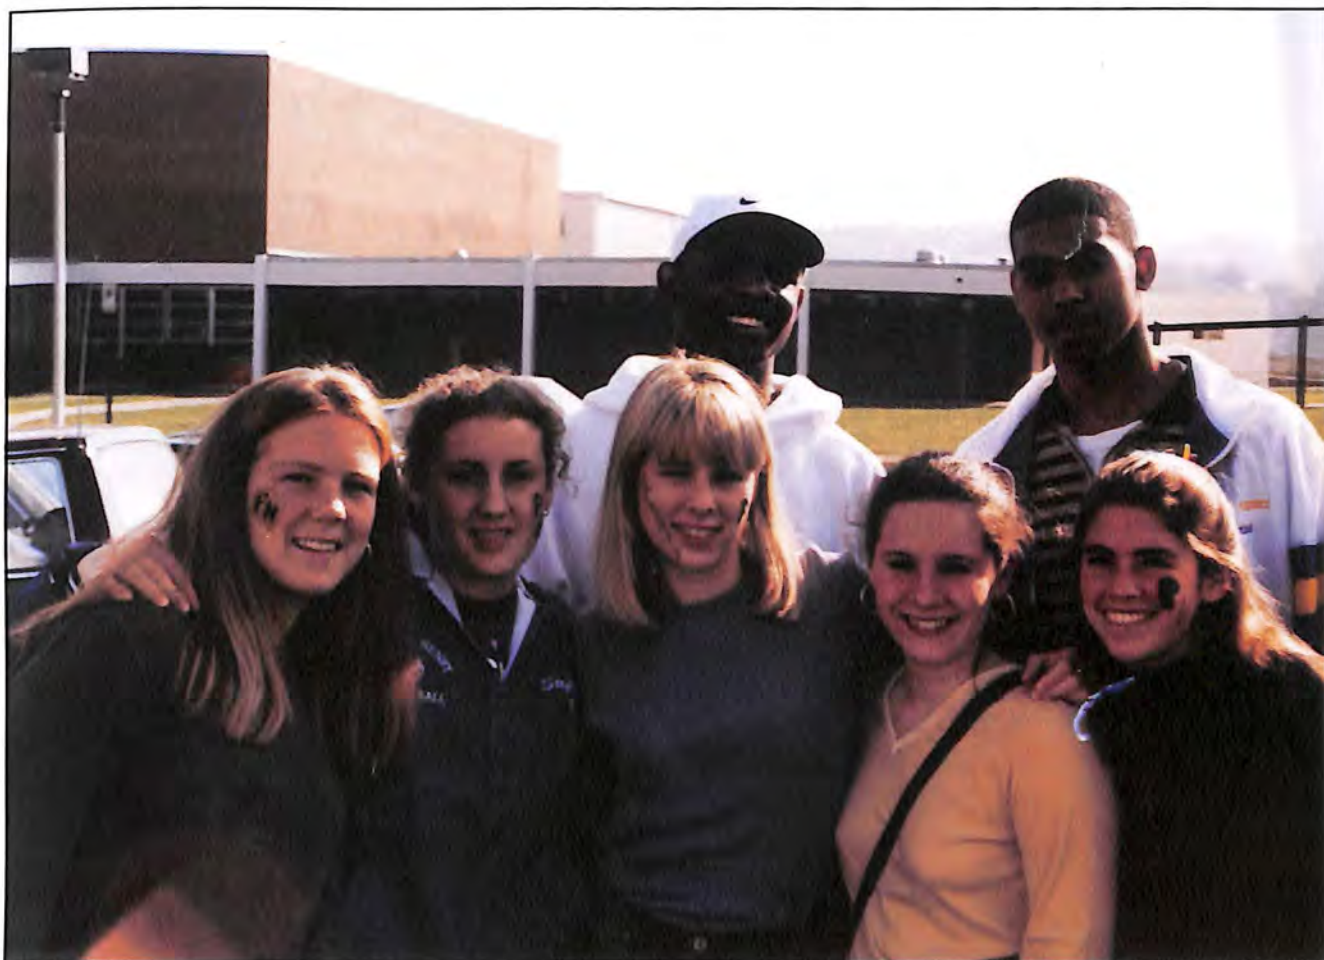

Once the school year begins, the senior class realizes that this is the last year of their high school career and the panic hits. Most seniors spend the first semester working their fingers to the bone, in hopes that the initial grades will pull up their G.P.A. When second semester rolls around, some students still work like there's no tomorrow. But, for most of the seniors, spring semester is the inevitable arrival of... SENIORITIS!!!

All of a sudden it is a lot easier to sleep through that first period class. After all, if you get there by nine o'clock, it's only a tardy. You wake up on a warm spring day; it's gorgeous outside. Why not just take a drive? The possibilities are endless: a trip to the lake, a day of hiking, anything instead of going to school. Some seniors may decide to check in late rather than not showing at all. This decision is helpful in having to avoid intercepting a phone call from the Patrick Henry phone service later on in the evening. Senioritis isn't only not bothering to come to school; it also involves conveniently forgetting homework assignments and slacking off when you have a killer college biology or government test the next day.

Senioritis can transform seemingly normal seniors into apathetic zombies. Those wild days off are always fun, or at least you think they are. Then, teachers inform you that to graduate you have to make up mad amounts of time. Nevertheless, your senior year is by far the best. Even if you do have to make up a little time for that hiking trip you decided to take, it's all worthwhile!

Seniors Plan for the Future

Years ahead look promising

"It attracts the girls, man!" Cory Evans and Jay Edwards explore the possibilities of joining the Reserve just so they can drive a Hummer.

The senior class of 1997 can't wait to enter the "real world." Whether it's a world with college or a world of just hanging out, the seniors are excited about the future.

"I plan on going to beach week after graduation...it's all downhill from here," said Janelle Moeller. "I plan to travel out west," exclaims Kim Alexander.

Looking further into the future, Robbie Adams plans on entering the military. While Miranda Kyger is attending Appalachian State University, Cory Evans will participate in both soccer and basketball at Hampden-Sydney.

Seniors embark on entirely new territory. They will experience life as an eighteen-year-old. This means the right to vote, and more important, the right to buy lottery tickets. However, along with the added privileges, seniors must prepare for responsibility. This may include living on their own, paying bills, utility bills, car insurance, and cash for meals.

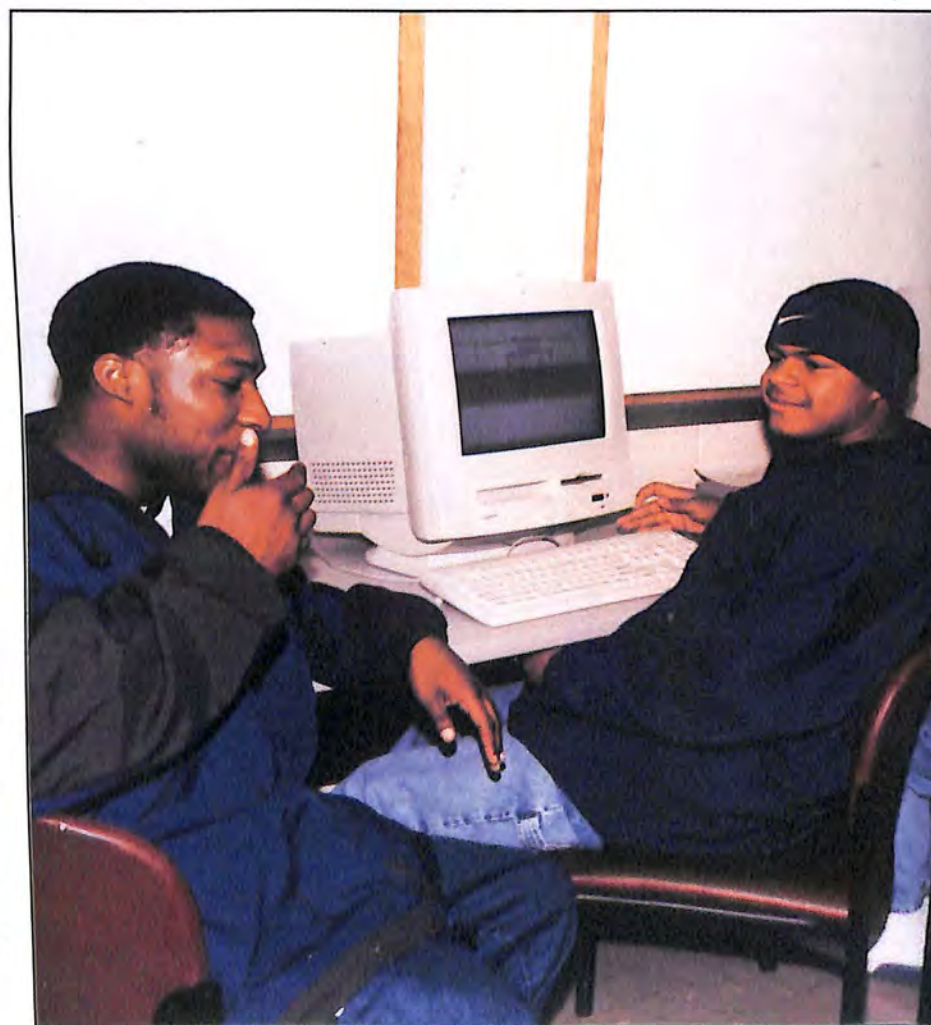

The most exciting adventure graduated seniors will have is a life on their own. Parents loosen their grasp on their beloved children and let them make decisions on their own. Curfews and revoked driving privileges become a thing of the past. Seniors get to be independent and experience the world. But one thing is for sure: We will always keep a spare quarter in our pocket just in case we need to make that adult call to our parents.

Is It Friday Yet?

"Beat those Springers!" Many loyal Patriot fans cheer on P.H. in an intense Roanoke Valley District rivalry

Seniors live for the weekend

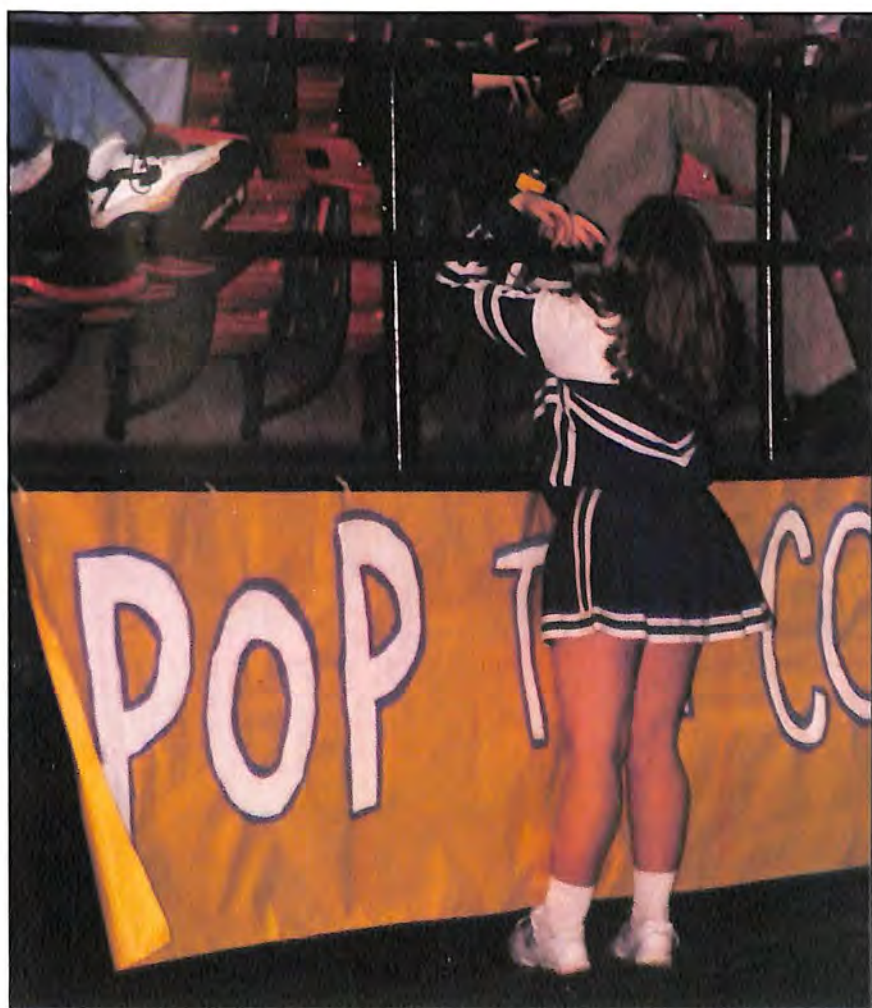

The 1996-1997 Patrick Henry seniors often found themselves struggling to get through each long and arduous work week at school. By the time Friday arrived, the constant questions were "What's going on tonight?" "What are y'all doing?" or "Where is the party?"

Patrick Henry students seek to release all their stresses on the weekends and have a good time. When Friday rolls around it's Miller Time ... I mean party time(Ha Ha!). Many seniors go out with friends and find a place to party. However, most students flock to see exciting Patrick Henry football and basketball games. Still others travel away from Roanoke to visit family and friends in exotic places. If nothing is going on, you will probably find Patrick Henry students at the movies, the bowling alley, or playing laser tag. "Dude, Friday and Saturday nights in 'Noke' are live...I mean the eats, the parties, the drinks (Coke, of course), and the chicks...you can't beat it," said Mike Stockburger.

When Sunday finally comes, most students are depressed about the upcoming week of school. However, the promise of the next weekend makes us go on.

Enriched by Nature

For seniors, experience comes naturally

For the past three years at Patrick Henry High School, seniors have endured constant ridiculing by teachers, administrators, security guards, and the previous seniors. But as we embark on our final year, freedom and privileges have increased ten fold. There are no more older students to boss us around, and the teachers cannot do anything about us leaving class early.... well, at least not five minutes early for lunch or three minutes early to get home. By now we know the administrators, and they are more likely to cut us a little slack. We've spent four years together, and although it will be emotional this summer as we go our separate ways, we're ready for the real world. Our high school experience has taught us how to deal with both authoritative figures and peers, study skills, and multiple variations of social scenes. Whether the years to come take us to jobs, college, or just to some quality time off, we are ready to take on our new life styles with full force. Being the first high school in the area to experience block scheduling, we are prepared for the three-hour classes in college and the nine-hour work days. Being exposed to people of different life-styles and cultures has allowed us to broaden our ideas of people different from us.

As we think back on our high school days, will we reflect on the great times we had while listening carefully to the wonderful instruction our teachers relayed to us? Will we remember the challenging tests and never-ending assignments or the two-hour afternoon block? Nah! Here's what's really embedded in our minds: dissecting fetal pigs, watching hours of The Simpsons, flying lunches, Killa Beez, tailgate parties, turfing Spanish books, lots of nicknames, last-minute cramming, cheat sheets, the library book lost in the ninth grade needed for graduation, house wrecks, lake parties, police trouble, falling off cliffs, rodents in toilets, fake ID's, rejections, late nights at Waffle House, early mornings at Hardee's, extortion in the lunch room, hopping in trucks, last minute assignments, sneaking out of the parking lot, checking yourself out, fake doctor's notes, flaming cars, basketball game heroics, Wednesday nights, bribing the guards, wire cutters for the fence, block blues, bald heads, campsite disasters, roaches in the classrooms, Fuji, Woodland Hills, El Toreo, car wrecks, suspended coolers, suspended licenses, X-men, stolen hubcaps, amateur videos, senior pranks & the ever popular...pounding brew in the basement.

Seniors push it to the limit

As the four years of high school roll by, there's more than meets the eye where seniors are concerned. Information in the classroom is one aspect. Using it to your advantage is another. As underclassmen, students learn and take many vital things from their upperclassmen schoolmates. A large percentage of these are how to live up to and slide by senior year with flying colors. Managing partying and late night study sessions, avoiding "X-ing" out, intercepting the absence reports sent home by teachers intended for your parents, and knowing when the time is right to skip out on those dreaded afternoon classes- the tools for slacking off to full potential are endless. Although some seniors may remember those ever-important lines from Act II Scene III from Macbeth, most remember where to put those quick facts for easy peeking during those monstrous tests. Senior year is full of pressures and questions about the future. Being hounded by teachers, counselors and parents about the next stage of life is all the more reason seniors take a break from school and focus on fun. College and job applications as well as other post-graduation plans are enough to drive upperclassmen crazy. Why wonder in fourth period about the future when it could be done lakeside with a bunch of fellow seniors? One aspect can be laid to rest. When the going gets tough, seniors get sneaky.

Beating the System

Here's what we do

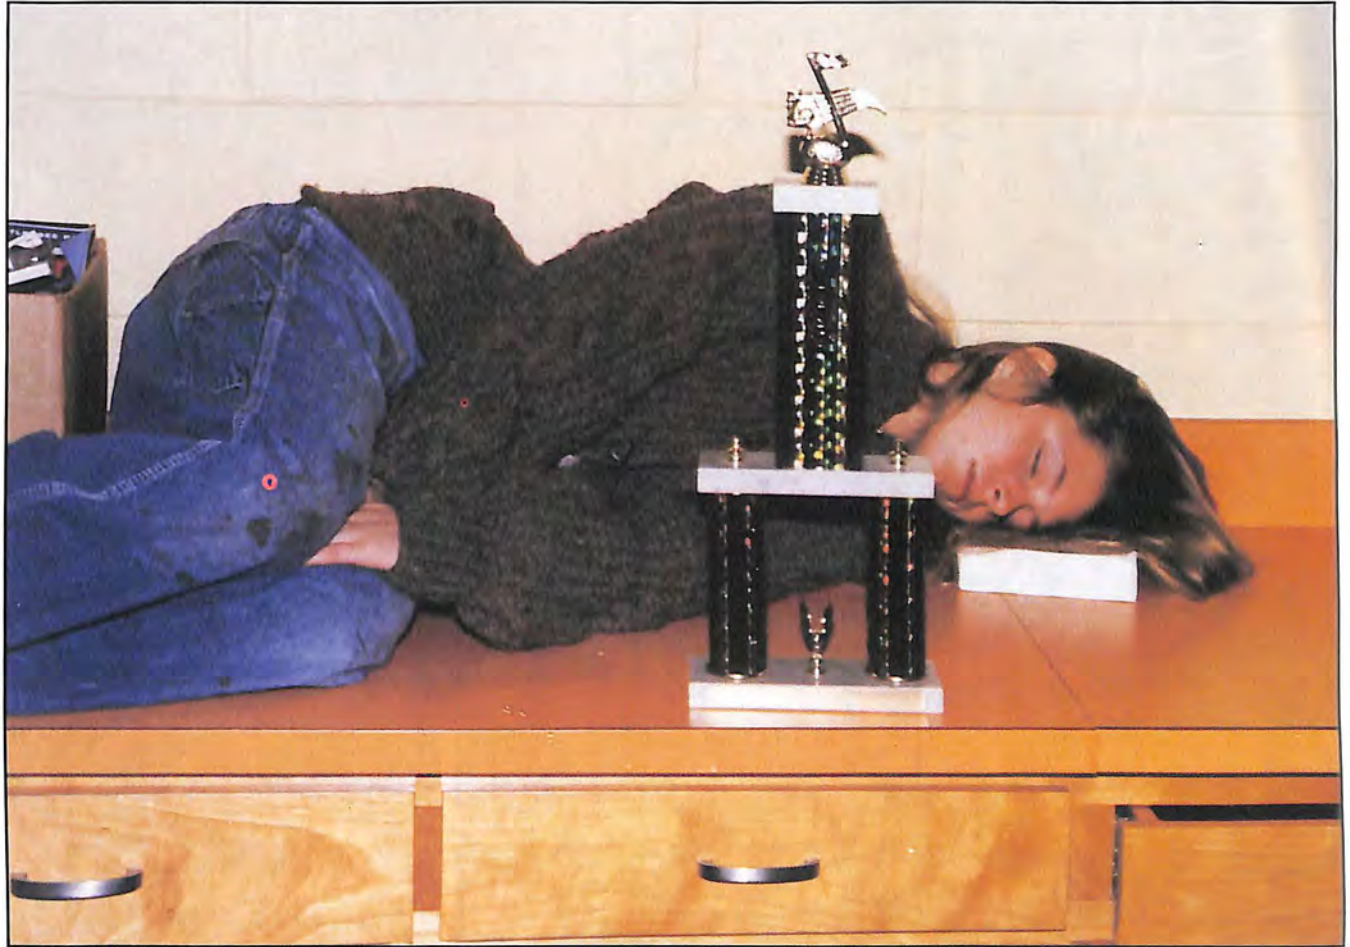

Shhhhhh! Miranda Kyger wins the student-of-the-month award and demonstrates how she won it.

Have you ever wondered why you go to school for four years and why we have names for each year? It's not because as the years progress we attain more book knowledge. It's because as we go from year to year we attain a higher knowledge of ways to beat the system.

Lowly freshmen attempt to enter the ranks of high school with some semblance of "coolness" by hanging around the much admired seniors. With only their middle school tactics of faking sick to miss class, they obviously have much to learn. Sophomores with another year under their belt and a new sense of boldness have found that the bathroom stalls provide a place to chill, and the infamous "hole in the fence" is a great escape route. As junior year arrives, students have grown accustomed to checking themselves out, sweet-talking their way off campus or simply just making a run for it.

Seniors are seasoned veterans at beating the system. They've done it so much that it becomes second nature. Some methods are not taking a full class load, leaving for lunch or just going out and playing with City School students. When getting in trunks of cars gets old, they just start walking off or getting picked up at the top of Gibboney. These tricks and many more are only some of the ways we pull the wool over the staff's eyes. Consider This: the way it's done.

Jason Green

Busted! "You can't get me in trouble...I'm Caroline Blackburn."

Consider Us Gone

A glance at the past/future

"Give me that assignment!" With the commanding voice of an experienced senior, Esber Nassif tries to take a freshman's homework. Wait...what is Esber doing in a freshmen class?

Friends forever, huh? Did you know that most high school graduates only stay in touch with one of their high school buddies after they graduate? This is a scary thought for all of us who have spent four years sharing good times with our friends. Twenty years from now, we will remember these experiences but will have forgotten the trials and tribulations of adolescence. Where will we go? What will we do? Who knows? Some will go off to college, some to the military, and others will head straight into the job market. No matter which direction we go, we will all be faced with new responsibilities and situations. Perhaps years down the road we will see one of our schoolmates in the media spotlight. All in all, it is a matter of each individual setting goals and striving to reach them. Whether or not we become corporate big shots or goat herders, we will use what we learned at Patrick Henry to the fullest extent. Despite our different career choices, we will all be able to look back at our high school years and remember the experiences we shared at Patrick Henry. Whether or not they were good or bad, hopefully we will grow from these experiences. I think it is pretty safe to say that we are all ready to move on to the phase of independent living. After twelve years of schooling, you can consider us gone!

A New Beginning

Low IQ, high golf score! Wyatt Anderson takes a break from his golfing to learn the force from Jedi Master, Tiger Woods.

This is the end. The end of curfew. The end of six-hour school days and nagging teachers. The end of having to listen to our parents complain about our rooms. The end of those tedious household chores, along with strange and pointless rules. The end of the phrase, "Because I said so!"

It is also the end of free living. The end of our parents giving us gas or lunch money. The end of using our parents' car when ours breaks down. For some, this is the end of relationships. The end of friendships that have lasted since kindergarten. The end of nights staying out till two or three in the morning and trying to sneak by our parents. The end of driving around Roanoke with a car load of people looking for a party. The end of calling each other to see where they are going. The end of saving our whole paycheck just to go out for one night. The end of the Coffee Shop, Macado's, the Ghost, and The Melting Pot. The end of a large room all to ourselves. The end of freedom.

This is, however, a beginning of being an adult. The beginning of paying bills and doing things for ourselves. The beginning of the rest of our lives, so this is the end.

Just A Small Part

Where's the chicken?

This year, the student body and faculty have witnessed something that has been hidden for a number of years...school spirit. Through the efforts of the SGA and numerous students, the campus came alive with a strong sense of pride and determination in making Patrick Henry an exciting place to be.

One major event that captured the spirit of the students was the appearance of a chicken. Through the promotional efforts of Max Masinter, the students took hold to a ugly, discolored, rubber chicken as their second mascot. All was going well as the wingless bird took flight (with the help of a few students) at all indoor events. However, one evening, the bird disappeared and the hunt was on. With a dragnet of over 1700 students, the critter was nowhere to be found. Even to this day, the disappearance is a mystery, however, rumor has it that one of the people in this picture was the culprit. Can you spot the chicken?

One More Year Till We Rule The School

As the Class of '98 entered the doors of PH this fall, we found that being upperclassmen meant harder classes, a junior cheer, and class rings. But, inevitably, along with more privileges and opportunities came stress as well. With our senior year quickly approaching, we were forced to take our futures into consideration. SAT's, part-time jobs, and college decisions became concerns as we struggled to balance work with relaxation. As the year came to a close, we looked forward to experiencing senioritis and the admiration from freshmen. We will park twenty feet closer in the parking lot, sit three feet higher at lunch, and leave three minutes earlier at the end of the day. Surely we will all be ready for the class of '98 to make its mark at Patrick Henry.

Juniors Get Their Hopes Up For Next Year

Many needed improvements were made to the Patrick Henry campus during the summer of 1996. There are new sidewalks and tables, which in turn have supplied us with a brand new shortage of chairs. There is another coat of paint on the lockers to brighten up the ace Lift 1998

pleasant walk through the Patriot halls. The teachers now have their own parking lot to be proud of, and we'll all live a little longer with the recent planting of trees and shrubs throughout the campus. And don't forget the baseball field. The new grass, dugouts, signs and scoreboard are sure to instill a sense of pride in the ball players this spring. But the best thing has got to be the cage guards on the vending machines to protect us from those pesky vending violators. All the improvements are great, but some juniors believe that total utopia has not quite been reached, and they have a few suggestions to make their senior year the best ever at P.H., starting with a senior lounge with a hot tub and large screen T.V.

We gotta wear shades

Consider us the beginning of a new breed. We, the class of 1998, are the start of a legend that will keep our memory alive. We have learned the short cuts through high school and are prepared to stretch them to the limits. Our last three years are just the preliminary stages of what is to come. We don't want any more discussions over cafeteria chairs, questionable excuses for taking away our spring break, or no parking spaces. What we do want are continuous rolls of T.P, free-for-all snowball fights, and, of course, no more kidnapping of our chicken!

Growing closer over the years

After three years together at Patrick Henry, the junior class has grown close in many ways. Despite their many diversities, they have come together to form lasting friendships and many memories that will never

perspective On Past Times

Looking back to what juniors did over the year

Throughout the '96-'97 school year juniors at Patrick Henry High School passed their time hanging with friends, going to movies, and attending concerts. Favorite places for juniors to get together were mostly friends' houses. However, popular restaurants to eat at were Macados, Chico & Billy's, Arzu's, Famous Anthony's, and Pargo's. Juniors rated Bound, People vs. Larry Flynt, Romeo & Juliet and Independence Day as the best movies of the year. And the best concerts of the year in the juniors' perspectives were PHISH, Dave Matthews' Band, Montell Jordan, Tori Amos and Jars of Clay. Overall, the juniors at PH spent their weekends enjoying the Roanoke scene with their friends.

he Final Year Ahead

One more year and we're outta here

We have finally passed the half-way mark. We are reaching the top of PH's academic ladder, and there is nothing like it. Not only can juniors walk into any high school party confidently, but we ARE the party. Juniors do not have to beg for rides home from school...we get to collect gas money from the underclassmen begging them. At pep rallies we no longer have to sit uncomfortably through the junior and senior chants because we ARE half the chant. Despite the increased work load, the junior year is filled with improvements from ninth and tenth grade. Just think what next year will be like!

Time Considerations

One More Year

"Ticking away the moments that make up a dull day. You fritter and waste the hours in an offhand way." This seems to be the case with the juniors at Patrick Henry. We are waiting to take our place at the top of the school as seniors. We have outgrown the underclassman labels that have plagued us through our high school career and are slowly coming closer to being at the top.

Throughout classes we dream of the day that there will be no one above us. We stare out the windows as the time passes. We watch the minute hand slowly roll around the clock with every tick bringing us one minute closer to our time.

We're gonna party like it's 1999!

Sophomores! The Class of 1999! The last year of the millennium! With a century of experiences behind us, we bring to a close the 20th century. With graduation just around the corner, we have time to reflect on the distinct honor we bear by being the end product of a century of technological advances coupled with new insights in social development.

We may seem to be a little different in our attitudes, beliefs, customs, and way of living; however, we are still sophomores and at that in-between age where we see the future as a new challenge. Sure, we are closing out one century as we prepare to graduate, yet we are the new breed that will take command of the new century. We just received our licenses, got later curfews, have more responsibilities placed upon us, and started to make college plans.

With $5.00 worth of gas in the tank, $2.50 for a quick stop at McDonald's, and a backpack full of books, we are ready to take on the world. Well, we have to get through our junior year first. Not to worry, though; we are the class of the millennium. Nothing can stop us.

Consider Sophomore Spirit

Throughout the year the sophomore class willingly supports the various events sponsored by the SGA. Although we are still referred to as underclassmen, we are definitely a spirited bunch.

Spirit week at Patrick Henry gives our class an excellent opportunity to be outrageous and stand out in the crowd. In a way, the spirit ride at PH has just begun for our class. Last year as freshmen, we let the terrors of high school get the best of us and we hid from all of the excitement. This year, we sophomores have broken out of their shells and are awaiting our years as upperclassmen when we can really show the other classes who has the most spirit.

Getting a hold on life

Life began improving since the last day of freshman year. NO MORE FRESHMAN HARASSMENT!! Now we can walk through the halls without fear of being stuffed in a locker by those big, cool seniors. We have the thrill of getting a driver's license and not depending on Mom and Dad for rides to school, that is until we wreck Mom's cool station wagon. Life has begun to take on a new meaning. Now that we have wheels, we can pick up our dates, go see a movie, eat at McDonald's and be home by 11:00!! Life is grand indeed.

Yes, it's another year here at PH! Now that we are sophomores, our knowledge of PH has grown and it's time to show the younger class the ropes around campus. As sophomores, we haven't quite experienced it all. However, we have gained many memories from the array of events that the student body provides. Without the exciting yet sometimes rigorous experiences established in high school, we wouldn't be prepared for the "real" world

Careful Considerations

Sophomores eager to drive 0-60 in 8 seconds

The sophomore class is getting ready for the road. It's our time to peel out. We're so excited, but so afraid. Yeah, it's our time to prove what we've only been able to talk about until now. We can't wait to experience the excitement of someone actually trusting us behind the wheel. Although Driver's Ed is the class that every sophomore wants to attend, we're all a little nervous about passing. This isn't just a grade- our freedom hangs in the balance. You won't hear anyone asking how this class applies to real life. It is real life.

New Beginnings

On September 3, 1996, 549 freshmen left behind an old identity in middle school life to take on the challenge of being the new freshmen of Patrick Henry High School and the Class of 2000. Feelings of anxiety and fear faded away as students found their niche among the 1722 students of our new school. We looked forward to later curfews, the potato bar, homecoming, drink machines, football games, pep rallies, new friends, and cute upperclassmen.

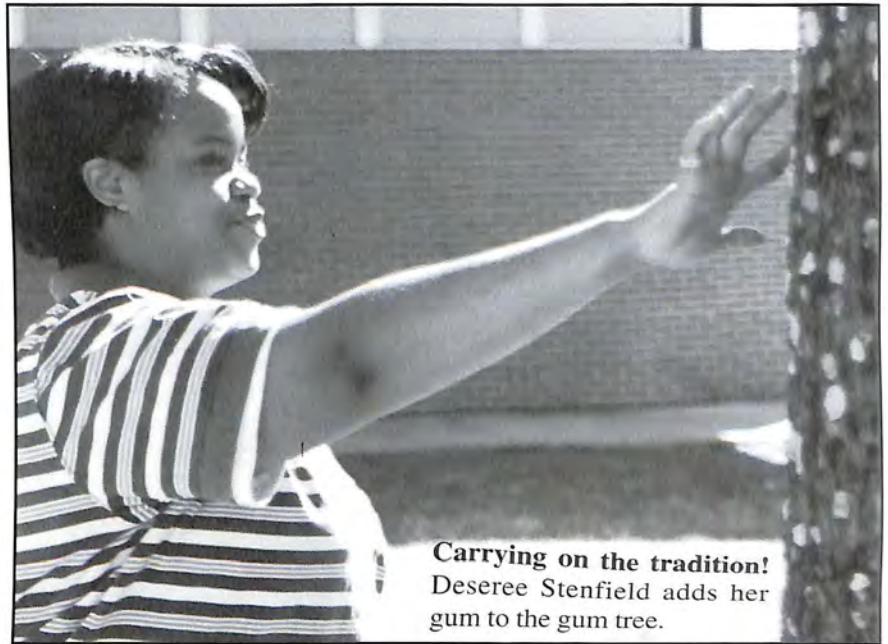

We dreaded the bigger campus, fatter books, unknown administrators, and mandatory Health and P.E. classes. Our immaturity might have shown at times, but overall we're starting to figure things out. Our advice to the incoming freshman class of '97-98': there aren't any drink machines on the third floor ... they're all in the basement. Finally, we've started leaving our mark as the Class of 2000.

n Consideration of the Future

The Class of 2000 begins to make its mark

Rising freshmen have high hopes of entering high school and being in a whole new environment. But when they get there, hopes and dreams turn to fears and doubts. Freshman year is all about change.

The first year of high school is undoubtedly the most difficult of all. Bus numbers, class schedules, finding rides, avoiding upperclassmen, making new routes around campus and most of all making new friends- all of these are challenges on the way to the future. But where is a better place to begin than as a proud freshman at Patrick Henry?

Consider Us The Future

Freshmen Find Their Place in a New World

Each year at Patrick Henry a brand new class of students arrives for the first time. Many of these new Patriots attended separate elementary and middle schools. Some students are short, some are tall, some weren't even born in this country, but there is one thing that they all have in common. They are all FRESHMEN! The hierarchy of high school is very simple: Seniors are in charge, juniors come next, sophomores are at the bottom of the pile, and freshmen don't even exist. Having this one dilemma in common with their predecessors, freshmen bring something that no other class before them has ever brought to PH: fresh ideas. Patrick Henry, like any other school, is constantly changing, as are the students that attend the school. Striped high-waters are no longer fashionable, it is cooler to wear your backpack with two straps than just one, and "Good morning" has been replaced with "S'up man?" While the class of 2000 brings with it many new ideas and enthusiasms, it is important to keep in mind that even though they are now only freshmen, they are the future of Patrick Henry.

e Consider Our Success

Class 2000... The Best Ever

Many freshmen have high aspirations for themselves in the upcoming three years. They predict that their class will graduate the highest percentage of students ever from P.H. Others have goals that are not so high, such as staying awake at least six classes a week, getting out of bed the first time the alarm goes off, and avoiding the endless onslaught of upperclassmen's harassment. One freshman was quoted as saying, "We will rise above the occasion. We will smile and laugh at those who told us we could not make it, and we will be victorious." Another simply stated that he wanted to "avoid being swirled in the boys' bathroom."

What's To Consider

Consider the Time We Have Left

Things used to be so easy when all our friends were in the same class with us every day. Best friends were those whom we could depend on to be there for us. It seemed like things would be this way forever until we hit high school. We learned the hard way that some friendships don't last forever and that life goes on. Now we have new friends, better classes, and we are growing up. We've come a long way, but we have a long way to go.

Don't Forget to Consider Us

On Track to the Millennium

We came out of middle school like we knew everything but found out in high school we know very little. We might not know how to get to the cafeteria or how to skip class. But sooner or later, we will graduate and do it with class. We don't know all the ropes yet, but as we sit back and think about it, we are the first class of the millennium. The year 2000 is what every freshman is shooting for. Through hard work, dedication, and Patriot pride, we will make it. So please, as we strive for perfection in our new surroundings, don't forget to consider us.

Consider the Adventure

Taking the first step

As freshmen, the adventure of taking on a whole new school begins again. Only this time it's a little more overwhelming. With almost two thousand students, a large college campus, and freshmen-hungry upperclassmen, intimidation becomes a reality. However, despite all of the fearful aspects of being the youngest at a new school, there are several positive and exciting issues that freshmen will encounter. Later curfews, football games, dances, and clubs begin an exciting list for freshmen fun.

A freshman's first glance at Patrick Henry may be breathtaking; however, at the same time it is looked upon as a new challenge. A larger school offers more diversity, more freedom for student expression as well as increased opportunities. After the initial shock has lessened, freshmen settle in and look forward to each new year.

FACULTY

As one of the most exciting places in town, Patrick Henry High School offers students the opportunity to explore possibilities, set goals, and strive for success. With a dedicated faculty and staff, individual achievement is the focal point that students experience.

Housed on a 68 acre campus style environment, Patrick Henry High School encompasses Gibboney

Technical Center, Parsons Hall, Persinger Hall, McQuilkin Hall, Penn Hall, and the Roanoke Valley Governor's School.

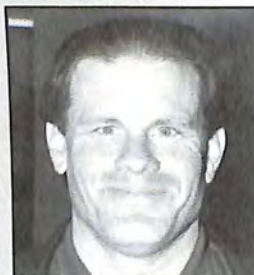

With two National Merit Scholarship finalists and five commended, we invite you to experience with us the wonderful happenings at Patrick Henry.

PENN HALL STAFF

Welcome to one of the most exciting buildings on campus. Serving the entire student body through various course offerings, Penn Hall offers students a wide variety of specialized courses while attending to basic core subjects. With four main departments: Business, Marketing, Foreign Language, and the Student Assistance Program, including science and math classes, students find many opportunities for excellence in education.

Contrary to the association of the building name to my own, Penn Hall was named after Dr. Harry Penn. As a dedicated community and civic leader, he believed in quality education for all students. Along with his belief I, along with the rest of the staff, share in the vision that all students will find that Penn Hall is dedicated to providing students with a learning environment that is both inviting and exciting.

McQuilkin Hall houses the English and Special Education departments, Air Force JROTC, Band, Culinary Arts, and a Student Resource officer. It is the largest hall at Patrick Henry by number of total housed: 52 teachers, instructional aides, and second support staff. McQuilkin staff can instruct a student in his/her required subjects such as English and science; teach him/her to cook; show him/her how to march in band or AFJROTC; teach him/her to play a musical instrument; and he/she may receive help from special needs teachers for the hearing impaired. One of the original Patrick Henry building, Parsons Hall is located in the center of campus. Enter Parsons in the morning and be greeted by the aroma of fresh breads and pastries as the cafeteria staff serves breakfast and prepares an array of foods to satisfy 1700 plus hungry teenagers. Throughout the day there is activity in Parsons. The Career Center and director of the guidance department are both located here. On any given day, one may find several transfer students applying for admissions or P. H. graduates returning to gather transcripts to continue their educational endeavors. Parsons is designated as the math hall because all but two of the math teachers are housed here. Math choices range from Algebra I to Math Analysis. Parsons is also the home of two science labs, a geography teacher and English teacher and the T.O.P.'s program. The T.O.P.'s program is designed to encourage student excellence through community involvement and volunteer programs. In addition the school's Center for Behavior Adjustment (CBA) room is located in the lower level of Parsons. All in all, Parsons is the one hall on campus that every student must pass through.

Working Over

Bookworms and

uskrats strive for high marks

Get up at 6 or 7 A.M. Be ready in time to catch a ride to school or, worse yet, the bus. Sit through three or four classes, including lectures, over-head viewing, and possible test-taking. Pretend you are really interested in cell division, derivatives, and Latin gerunds. Borrow paper from a classmate because you exhausted your supply for yesterday's notes. Think of all the work you have to do when you get home, and wish there were more hours in the day. Glance wistfully at the clock and wonder why it seems like the hands aren't moving. Wish you could be at home sleeping. Try to think of something, anything, to get you through the last class of the day. Look down the paper your teacher has just handed you. Smile at the big, red "A." Know that it is all worth it.

Taking Students to Exciting Heights

A.F.J.R.O.T.C.

R.O.T.C. is a great program at P.H. promoting citizenship among its cadets. The students involved with J.R.O.T.C. have learned and experienced many things that life in the military service has to offer. A.F.J.R.O.T.C. has been involved in many events around the community such as the Grandin Road, Salem Christmas, Roanoke City Christmas, and the St. Patrick's Day Parades. They have also ventured on many exciting fieldtrips. The most memorable trips were to Ft. Bragg/Pope AFB, NC; VMI, and Langley AFB/Little Creek NAS. This year's class has been one of the strongest in recent history, led by commanders, Cadet Colonel Tim Garland and Cadet Colonel Danielle Barrett.

Consider Our Talent

For most of us, art is an aesthetic stimulant, a pretty picture that we enjoy looking at. In actuality art is much more than just a pretty picture. Art therapy is used as a method of relaxation. Mentally challenged people use art to express what they cannot say in words. Artists can channel feelings or moods through their work. However, for many students at PH art is a learning experience. PH students can learn basic skills or improve their natural talents through the many art classes available. The art classes at PH range from basic art to studio art. The diverse selection of classes is taught by Ms. Diane Wood, Ms. Sindi Jones, Mrs. Leigh Pack, and headed by Fletcher Nichols. Whatever your artistic aptitude is, Patrick Henry offers an array of classes designed to meet the needs of all students.

AFRICAN-AMERICAN STUDIES 1996-97

This school year marked the eighth year for the African-American Culture Class. Sixty-three students started the year with teachers Fletcher Nichols and Robin Neamo-Parker. Mrs. Neamo-Parker, with her new responsibility as Parsons Hall principal, and Mr. Nichols, with his art classes, made this one of the best years ever as the class participated in several activities. Students worked at the Harrison Museum for African-American Culture and the West End Center as required community service. Guest speakers for the class included Superintendent E. Wayne Harris; Stan Hale, editor of Roanoke's black newspaper, The Roanoke Tribune, Sharon Davies; spokeswoman for Cox Cable Roanoke, and several others.

It was a light year, however, for performances. The students, along with the Men of Distinction, turned in one of the best performances with the annual spring concert on March 21. There was also a trip on May 30 to our state capital of Richmond with a proposed meeting with former governor L. Douglas Wilder among other activities. There were also several small trips to area businesses owned by African-Americans throughout the Roanoke Valley.

The future looks exceptionally bright for the class as they head into 1997-98 with new and old people returning.

THE SOUND OF SILENCE

Not Even Close

The sun, sand, and three days of fun! What's that sound like to you? It's the Patrick Henry Band's spring trip. The band consists of eighty five people who basically are one big family. They start out at Ferrum College for band camp and work from sun up to sun down to learn the field show they perform for students, parents, and Patrick Henry alumni. This show has been a highlight of the band's many performances over the years. Not only does the band march at halftime during football games, they compete in many different cities for top rankings. This year the band has had several major accomplishments including three ratings of excellent and placed second in six different categories. Before they finish their marching season, they are already showcasing their talent in numerous parades and many school functions. Toward the end of the year all the hard work and dedication is repaid to band members through a spring trip. This year's spring trip will be three days and two nights in Myrtle Beach. The adventures with the band are endless.

GET CENTERED, BABY!

The Center for Humanities combines English and Social Studies in an exciting atmosphere for 9th, 10th, and 11th graders. Tim Isaacs, the director of the Center, has helped change the center in the past two years. He has helped bring in AP History and coordinated team teaching—that is where both English and Social Studies are taught in the same block. The Center students participate in various activities and field trips throughout the year. The 11th graders took a trip to Williamsburg, in coordination with the Revolutionary period in American History. Each group of students researches a decade in the 1900's and puts on a ten minute skit. The Renaissance festival was a new experience for the 10th graders. It was held in Maryland, and people in the festival talked and dressed as the Medieval English people did. Activities such as sword fighting and horseback riding took place. The 10th graders also had a day of shopping and exploring Center in the Square while visiting the Anne Frank display. The 9th grade activities included a Baltimore trip in the spring and the first-ever Japanese culture day with the Japanese exchange students. And what would the Center be without the second annual Jimmy Thackery concert? This concert and the other Center activities will continue to grow in the future.

CITY SCHOOL

Monday to Thursday, fifty students venture downtown to take Government and English classes through Virginia Western Community College. This is CITY School, a special program offered to students at Patrick Henry and William Fleming. CITY School brings in speakers from around Roanoke to help teach in the relaxed downtown environment. As well as learning through class time situations, CITY

School requires that each student complete one-hundred hours of internship in a specific area. Despite the hard work load, trips to Oxford and New York City are offered to students to help present culture from other parts of the state and country. All together, CITY School teaches a great deal and prepares students for the future.

Odyssey of the Mind Reaches New Heights

Odyssey of the Mind is a creative problem solving competition. It involves extreme critical, analytical, and creative thinking in order to get a task accomplished. This year's problem involved three parts. The first part of the problem was to build a combination of a bridge that would span a gap and a vertical structure, both made of balsa wood. Together, the two balsa wood structures are tested to hold as much weight as possible. The second part involved creating an eight minute skit that is performed at the same time the bridge and structure are tested. The last part is known as spontaneous. Spontaneous is the part of the competition when the team is given a problem and is given a few minutes to think about it. After the think time is over, the team is given a few more minutes to respond to the problem creatively. All three of the parts are scored individually and then added together for the total competition score.

This year's Patrick Henry team consisted of Jason Bradford, John Clemmer, Tammy Craddock, Jennifer Dooley, Matt McLeod, and Paige Zimmerman. The team did very well at Regional Competition by placing first and going on to compete at State. At State the team had to compete against seven other teams. After a long, hard day of competition, the Patriot team took second place with a weight-held score (the amount of weight the balsa structure held) of 455 pounds.

Laura Lissau & Christine Pyne

I'm sure! Tammy Craddock is bothered by all the physical strain she's under. What ever happened to team work?

The Adventure of a Lifetime

PH Clubs Offer Excitement and Involvement

There is no doubt about it: Patrick Henry is known for its diversity. Well, the same thing goes for its clubs. Students are given the opportunity to join organizations ranging from the PH Players to the Modeling Club. Through these clubs, led by various sponsors, the Patrick Henry population has performed in public, learned new skills, and made new friends. No matter what the club, there is no question that it is beneficial to everyone.

Extra-curricular activities not only help students get into college but also give them a sense of accomplishment and belonging. Whatever the interest, Patrick Henry has a group of kids to match.

The school year opened with the PH choir setting new goals: more concerts, exciting trips, and a whole lot of new music to learn! With assistance from Mrs. Wynne, our mother and friend through it all, we were guided through the arduous tasks of learning new music and pulling together as a harmonious group. With concerts at Fallon Park and Garden City Elementary schools, the Underground in Atlanta, and many others throughout the Roanoke valley, we experienced our dreams and soared past expectations.

This year's chorus highlighted many soloists: Cristy Stamback, Kim Kays, Jennifer Groig, Andrea Martin, Denise Green, Brad Stump, Brian Wickham, Travis Croson, and Butch Chandler. In addition, the "Show Girls" made their debut consisting of: Cristy Stamback, Jennifer Groig, Amanda Gill, Samantha McCall, Denise Green, Angela Howell, April Hicks, Heather Argabright, Shannon Judson, and Tiffany Gibson. Looking back, we feel that our enthusiasm through music and song has not only inspired others but touched their emotions with an increased appreciation for choral music.

THE QUILL

The Quill is a literary magazine students use to publish their stories, poems, other forms of creative writing, and art. Throughout the year, talented student writers at Patrick Henry put their ideas down on paper, and the Quill is a compilation of their extraordinary efforts. It is an excellent medium for students to display their talents, circulate their ideas throughout the school, and share their thoughts and feelings. The creative writing class is responsible for assembling the Quill, and Mr. Foard is its sponsor. The class has the tough job of selecting not only the pieces of writing that are published in the Quill, but also student art to accompany the stories. As the year came to a close, Quill staff could be seen at the Patrick Henry Art Show selecting appropriate art to complement the eclectic mix of Quill material. Maybe we'll see some of the writers featured in the Quill make a career out of their writing or artistic talents in the future.

DECA An Association of Marketing Students

Through teamwork, dedication, and pride, the Patrick Henry High chapter of DECA has become known for its service to the community and students. As a student organization of the marketing classes, DECA offers students the opportunity to become involved in individual as well as group projects. As the sponsor for the Roanoke City Christmas Parade (now known as the Festival of Lights Parade), students plan, organize, and conduct this annual event for the citizens of Roanoke. In addition, the students were asked to help sponsor the St. Patrick's Day Parade this year, giving their acquired skills and talents to this rising event.

From competition in Williamsburg, VA to Anaheim, CA, DECA members took top honors in the district and state levels and advanced to national competition in CA. "The most exciting thing was going to California", said DECA president Adam Puckett. "Not only did we get to see the sights but we were able to compete with 14,000 other students from around the world."

Through job shadowing programs, working with the Salvation Army in distributing toys, attending the Ropes course in Martinsville, conducting monthly luncheons, raising funds for United Way, holding leadership conferences for area businesses, attending competitions, and distributing promotional materials for the Parks and Recreation, the DECA members have truly met their objective in being a community-oriented service school group.

CITY School Students Invade the Big Apple

New York will never be the same!

This April, seniors of CITY School participated in the annual trip to New York. Although the students just spent a long weekend in the Big Apple, they definitely got to see most of the sights, have their moment of stardom, and shop along the infamous Fifth Avenue.

During their trip to New York, the students brushed up on their history in the United Nations, bonded with some of their favorite artisans in The Metropolitan Museum of Art, and checked on their stocks in the New York Stock Exchange. While in New York, the students could not pass up a chance to be on the Today Show or tour the NBC studios. While on the tour, the students saw the sets for Saturday Night Live, The Rosie O'Donnell Show, and The NBC sports set. Students were also entertained on Broadway, where the students saw three plays: Les Miserables, Smokey Joe's Cafe, and The King and I. Fortunately, the students were able to snag pictures and autographs from Lou Diamonds Phillips from The King and I. During the nonstop weekend, the students also squeezed in some time for the Statue of Liberty, the Empire State Building, and for a walk in Central Park.

Despite the high taxes, numerous metal detectors, crowded streets, and blaring horns, CITY School seniors learned how to "rough it" in New York City. While their Southern accents may have caused them to stand out, their leader Nancy Patterson enabled them to fit in with the "city folk."

In 1996-97 we had students from all over the world come visit our school. Students from our sister city Wonju, Korea, visited Patrick Henry for the first time. Others from Paris, France; Leeds, England; Costa Rica; and Japan came to share in the American experience. These exchanges have sent our students overseas to experience other nations and broaden cultural horizons. The foreign exchange students often speak English, but frequently speaking can be creatively challenging. Michael Stockburger stated, "Having exchange students is great, dude! I had two chicks from France. They had a good time and I had a good time." The boys and girls from Costa Rica enjoyed roller skating as their favorite American pastime. Patrick Henry was the host for English student Dusty Adams. Jay Edwards says about the experience, "Getting an exchange student lets you make friends from far away." Hopefully the foreign exchange program will continue to grow.

Debate This

The Patrick Henry Debate and Speech Society experienced substantial growth and competitive success in 1996-97. In only its second year under the direction of teacher and coach Mark Kelsey, the team has thus far garnered over 30 individual and team awards in 13 tournaments. Twenty-nine students represented Patrick Henry High School at one or more of those tournaments. The tournament season runs from late-September through April. Some of the team's most impressive awards this season have included: First place championships in Lincoln-Douglas Debate earned by senior Yaron Rachlin in tournaments at the University of Georgia and James Madison University; semifinalist finishes in Lincoln-Douglas debate earned by senior Sarah Airey at Blacksburg High School, the University of Georgia, U.Va., and J.M.U.; a top speaker award in Varsity policy debate earned by senior Jennifer Rogers at J.M.U.; semifinalist finishes in Varsity policy debate earned by Jennifer Rogers and junior Sherrie Bocock at U.Va. and J.M.U.; VHSL District championships earned by senior Trip Creech, sophomore Liza Turcotte, and Sarah Airey; District runner-up awards by Sherrie Bocock, sophomore Bingham Powell, and seniors Latisha Sinkford, Laura Lee Paige, Preston Lyon, and Max Masinter; and the Regional championship in Original Oratory earned by Liza Turcotte. Forensics, which deals with the art of public discourse, offers a variety of styles of individual public speaking events, from Original Oratory to Extemporaneous Speaking, to Humorous Interpretation of presentation. While students usually specialize in one event, Mr. Kelsey encourages P.H. students to broaden their skills with a second event. In addition to all of the team's travels, Patrick Henry hosted a national invitational tournament

Tournaments for Debate, on March 24 and April 5 respectively. According to Mr. Kelsey, hosting those tournaments helps to build stronger competition in this area, earns a strong reputation for the P.H. program, and gives P.H. students added exposure to the tournament process. Students interested in competing in debate or forensics next year are strongly encouraged to contact Mr. Kelsey before this school year ends, since some preparation can be done during the summer vacation. According to Kelsey, the benefits of participating in speech and debate will be enjoyed for a lifetime: self-esteem, confidence, organization, research skills, time management, improved writing ability, and critical thinking. He says, "Roanoke is very lucky to have a school administration which supports our best students in this way." The Patrick Henry Debate and Speech Society hosted the Virginia High School League Regional Debate Tournament this weekend here at P.H.. Patrick Henry debaters dominated the tournament. In varsity level policy debate, the P.H. team of Sherrie Bocock and Hunter Elliott took the first place championship honors. In Lincoln-Douglas debate, Sarah Airey took the second place award. The P.H. team of Jordan Brammer and Ozzie Lane also were awarded the second place negative team award. Congratulations to all of those debate team members.

What's Cookin'?

There's a sweet smell in Culinary Arts

Cooking is definitely a skill that we all need to acquire at some time in our lives. We won't always be able to rely on Mom's good home cooking to fill our bellies. This is certainly a harsh reality for many guys and girls alike. As a result, the Patrick Henry culinary arts classes are here to solve this problem. Both sexes can learn the art of cooking along with other helpful kitchen skills. The year begins with a little basic instruction in nutrition, then proceeds to the fun stuff. "Mis en place" is a common phrase spoken by Ms. Cramer at the beginning of every class. This statement is a direction for the students to get everything set up for a day of cooking.

Once started, students get the chance to bake cakes, cookies, and even foreign foods. They also learn the various methods of cooking. After the students become proficient, they can participate in the VICA competition or cater for special occasions often relating to school. Over the course of this year, students even received a lesson in Costa Rican cuisine from exchange students. And when the day is over, students face the unpleasant task of cleaning and sanitizing their utensils.

Bound for the New York symphony! Mr. Bill Kinsey conducts the PH orchestra before heading to three other schools in the system.

Strength in numbers! Michelle Bouvier, Kate Preston, and Coleman Gutshaw make the best of zero period class by playing pop music.

Orchestra

The Patrick Henry Orchestra was the largest to date, beginning the year with over 30 members. Growth was the most dramatic in the violin section. One addition to this section came to Patrick Henry all the way from Minsk, Marina Zelikovich. Marina, Justin Marlles, and Daniel Mullen auditioned and were selected for Senior Regional Orchestra in Richmond, Virginia. Zelikovich made a strong showing in a competitive field and earned a seat in the middle section of the first violins, quite an achievement for a ninth grader.

First semester was scheduled to close with the winter concert. Mother Nature had other ideas, and concert dates were cancelled due to severe weather. Finally, in January, the orchestra was able to perform the semester concert. Two months later in March, the orchestra competed at the Roanoke District Festival. The orchestra received a significant sight reading component in the Excellent range. Patrick Henry was also represented in All-State Orchestra by Daniel Mullen, Roanoke City's lone instrumentalist to make this prestigious group. This is the second year for a Patrick Henry Orchestra student to make All-State.

Mary Catherine Martin represented Patrick Henry at the Junior High Regional Orchestra, which took place at Ruffner Middle School and was directed by Maestro David Wiley, conductor of the Roanoke Symphony Orchestra. It was a year of strong instrumentalists for the orchestra, which bodes well for the future.

P.H.A.T.

Patrick Henry Acting Group

PH Players take on new motto for 1997

The motto of the Patrick Henry Players is that in the theatre "excellence is just routine." This year has made that motto truer than ever.

One of the most excellent additions to the theatre this season was P.H.A.T., short for the Patrick Henry Acting Troup. Meeting four mornings a week (yuk, mornings! at 7:58), this group of dedicated student actors studied just that—acting.

The brain-child of senior Amy Alls, P.H.A.T. took on the aspects of acting that cannot usually be covered in a regular class. (No one got credit for this, incidentally. They did it because they love acting.)

Example, they learned to speak clearly, and not become "vocal wimps." They learned to move and to concentrate on what was going on in the scene in relationship to the characters.

Alls taught much of what she had learned at the Governor's School for the Talented and Gifted the previous summer. According to Alls, she felt a need to share what she had learned with dedicated people who really wanted to learn, also.

P.H.A.T. members are Alexis Black, John Barte, Abbie Ferrance, Allie Hutcherson, Eva Langston, John Martin, Sarah Maxwell, Degra Nofsinger, Blaine Owsley, Eric Alger, Micah Warren, Frankie Hayes, and Nikki Jester.

P.H.A.T also presented the play Dancing Dolls at the annual one-act play festival in February sponsored by Virginia High School League.

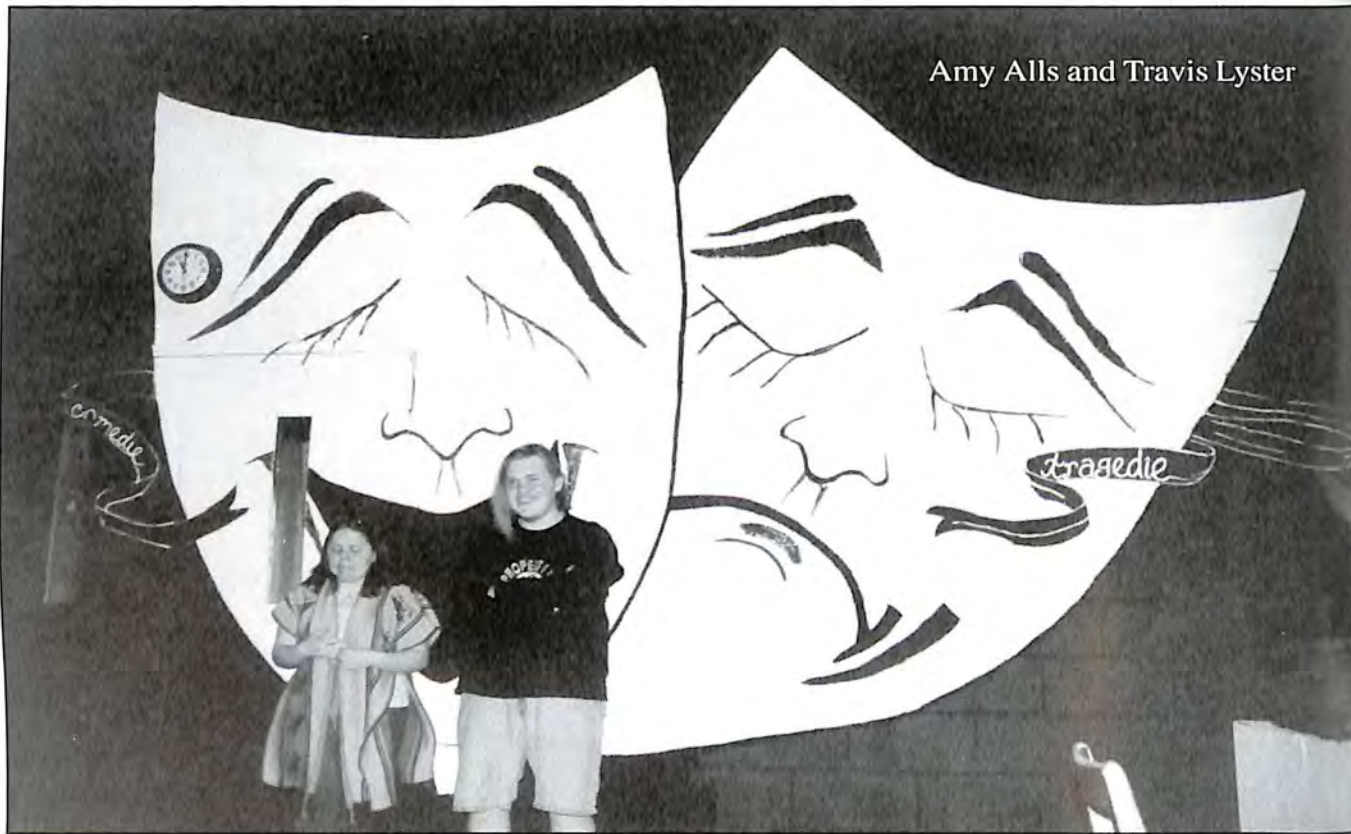

Properties performed by the Players this season included Agatha Christie's The Mousetrap, starring Megan McKnight, Frankie Hayes, Blaine Owsley, Shannon Harman, Justin Marlls, Allie Hutcherson, Micah Warren, and John Martin.

A musical review entitled Lift Every Voice and Sing was performed in May with the P.H. Strings, directed by William Kinzie, the P.H. Choir under the direction of Carolyn Wynne, and the Men of Distinction under the direction of Fletcher Nichols, fine arts chairman and teacher of the African American Culture Class.

The finale, as always, was the Patty's Awards Show, the annual gala directed by Amy Alls, the president of the P.H. Players, for the purpose of honoring those outstanding members who served so well during the year.

Darkroom Experiences

In the past, if a teacher spotted students walking through the halls snapping pictures, they would immediately be sent to talk with a principal. But now, the teacher would simply strike a pose and tell the student to continue. They would instantly realize that the student is a member of one of the photography classes.

This year marks the first in which photography teacher Pam Feldman is at Patrick Henry full-time. Maybe it's because of the opportunity for new forms of self-expression, or maybe it's Mrs. Feldman's informative teaching style that has led to the astronomical rise in popularity for the course.

Students begin the year learning how to use their cameras and lenses. They have their trials and tribulations in the darkroom, but they all quickly find out how to develop their film. Students roll through projects that Mrs. Feldman assigns. They work on everything from patterns in nature and double exposure to pinhole photography.

With many victories last year in art shows along with a rise in new entries, the photography department is bound to receive even more renown and gain more students. As Miranda Kyger says, "Photography is a great class because it's always exciting, and Mrs. Feldman affords us the opportunity to say what we really feel."

Literary Genius Journalism teacher publishes novel

Do you want a book that you can identify with? How about one that has love, death, and consequences? Then you'll want to pick up Roy Martin's first novel, Whisper My Name. The teacher of English as a Second Language and Journalism, started the book in 1989 as part of a class project. Starting with ideas that he had for the beginning and end, he wrote the rest of the book to show what happens when young people have to pay lifelong consequences for mistakes. Working with journalism for most of his life, Mr. Martin has learned that "you can't approach anything through the course of your life with a closed mind."

After a formal book signing celebration in North Carolina, Mr. Martin indicated that he is planning to start his second literary challenge. Next spring, a book collaborating with US Naval artist John Roach will be published. Martin contributes the commentary on Williamsburg's emergence as the colonial capital of VA.

Student Government Association President Max Masinter entered office with fresh ideas for Patrick Henry and ignited flames of tradition and spirit, once unknown to the students of Patrick Henry. Sales from the "Cat in the Hat" hats allowed the Student Government Association to sponsor activities from a Radar Rose concert to a spring Luau with Key West. The Student Government Association also increased attendance at sporting events, proving it is cool to be a Patriot. S.G.A. Advisor Coach Bane, generous with his time, energy, and ideas, created the Super Fan contests held at the home sporting events to keep attendance high at games during spring sports. The Student Government Association also renewed old traditions at Patrick Henry, like the Winter Dance, a huge success for the students as well as the school. But Student Government Association's commitment to work didn't stop there. Officers of S.G.A. were required to attend school meetings, pick up highway trash, change the marquee and school boards, and volunteer each nine weeks of the school year. Hands down, the 1996-1997 Student Government Association worked hard to promote school spirit and sponsor popular events for the students and the faculty.

SPREADING

To the average student, it seems like it would be easy to produce a yearbook. Perhaps it looks like a weekend project: just take some pictures, write some "articles" on various clubs, and get quotes from random students. Maybe it doesn't seem that hundreds of hours from students and one very dedicated advisor are necessary for the completion of a finished product: The Patriot yearbook. Seventy-four students in two different classes, including a staff of seven senior editors, work hard each day taking pictures, "getting the scoop," writing, editing and selling ads around town. Of course, none of it would be possible without the dedicated service of Gary Leah, yearbook advisor, teacher, and businessman. "Yearbook consumes your life," says Mr. Leah. Go ahead. teams are now able to compete on the regional and state level, and our goal is to be able to have all our teams get to that level. We are equally proud of our development in the area of sportsmanship as evidenced by

What's the All American pastime, that has been constant through history and loved by all? Baseball. Patrick Henry's boys' varsity baseball team this year had immense talent and had a memorable year. The team was lead by strong hitters such as Charles Dibling and Andrew Tegenkamp. The power hitters of this years season were Bryan Duncan with four homeruns and Andy Orfield with one. Rob Mangus led the Patriots' varsity team in stolen bases and Chad Hyatt came on strong the latter half of the season to help lead the Patriots to an unforgettable season. The varsity team played home games on their own field at the P.H. track, which has been restored by the players and parents over the past few years. Bottom of the 7th, bases loaded! A Patriot takes his bat and prepares to fight the battle. With apple pie waiting at home and the smell of hot dogs in the air, this is what the American pastime is all about.

All the practice and dedication seemed to pay off for the JV baseball players' 1996-97 season. Gaining new skills while building upon the experiences of the coaches, the team showed promise for the season. The addition of freshmen Scott Cronin, Chris Newton, and Aaron Bowles made a good power mix for the JV team. Randy Collette, Jonathan Newman, and Matthew Hambrick laid the ground work for the team to advance in regular play and give the members the leadership they needed.

Though last year's inclement weather seemed to hinder continuous play, the team this year was greeted with sunny afternoons and enthusiastic fans. With team spirit high and a strong outlook for varsity play next year, the team dedicated their talents to giving the Patriot fans a season of exciting innings. Coach Mark Foard led his team to many victories this season but had to say good-bye at the close of the final game. Furthering his studies at Columbia University, Mr. Foard will be leaving PH this year. Even though a new coach has not been selected, the team is still looking forward to a new and victorious year. The Shot of a Lifetime

PH Basketball 1996-97 Edition

The PH men's basketball team went into the 1996-97 season with a Virginia AAA State Championship on their minds. With a veteran core of players, rookie coach Jack Esworthy was looking forward to a stellar first season at the helm. Senior forwards Malik Shareef and Colby Leftwich, junior center Devon Battle, and senior point guard Ronnie Kasey made excited fans recall legendary teams that included PH stars such as Curtis Staples (UVA) and George Lynch (UNC/Vancouver Grizzlies). Freshman Mike Perry emerged as the 5th starter and contributed good shooting and ball-handling. Ray Johnson and Dominic English filled in nicely in each game off the bench. Johnson was instant offense and had deadly 3-point shots. English played great defense and added a scoring punch.

The Patriots opened the season with a 32-point drubbing of Amherst County on the road. PH then beat consecutive Blue Ridge teams, Salem and Northside. Devon Battle's 34-point 11-rebound game led the PH squad over Martinsville 97 to 81. The Patriots jumped out to a 4-0 start but were well aware of their next opponents, long-time rival William Fleming. Fleming staged a 4th quarter comeback and shocked the Patriots 57-56 at the Salem Civic Center.

The Patriots recovered from the Fleming game quickly and won three straight games over Martinsville, William Byrd and Garfield. In the Holiday Hoops Tournament semifinal against Garfield, senior guard Ronnie Kasey led the Patriots back from a 17-point deficit to win 67-65 in overtime. Next, PH lost a tight game to Riverside, North Carolina, in the Nations Bank Holiday Hoops game. PH then traveled to EC Glass and defeated the Hilltoppers 72-63 with Boo Battle's 31 point effort.

Roanoke Valley District play began again with another well-known foe, Cave Spring. The Patriots destroyed the Knights 90-70 in front of a capacity crowd in Cave Spring's home gym. Next, the Patriots slumped, losing two straight games to Woodridge and G.W. Danville. The PH squad then came back, beating both Franklin and Pulaski Counties in the following two games. The Patriots then defeated William Fleming 76-63, tying for the Roanoke Valley District lead. The Patriots concluded the regular season with a four-game winning streak by defeating Pulaski County, Cave Spring, Franklin County, and Amherst County. These final games were highlighted by the little-used "Bump Squad," a name affectionately given to the second team, including Trevor Plunkett, Wayne Hawley, Jay Edwards, Leon Glasby, and John Helms. PH then lost a tough game to William Fleming for the regular season title.

JV TEAM BALLS IT UP

The 1996-1997 Boys' Junior Varsity basketball team had another strong year preparing to become the next varsity squad. The team, led by a potent offense and a strong defense, came together as the season rolled on. Sophomore Ryan Crush said, "This year's team had a lot of talent and used it wisely. We played good ball throughout the year. The J.V. team has really prepared my skills to hopefully make the varsity team next year." The junior Patriots had big wins over rivals Pulaski County and Franklin County in the Roanoke Valley District as well as wins over Amherst and Northside. Coach Mike Franklin praised the team for their dedication and unity as they showed they were bound for varsity play. Led by a combination of freshmen and sophomores, the J.V. team ended the season with a record of 5 wins and 12 losses. Chris Genheimer, a sophomore on the team, said, "The team came together quick and helped me develop my skills." With a lineup of Thomas Hall, Shawn Pickard, John Flannagan, Ryan Crush, Chris Genheimer, Chip Knighton, and Keith Cray, the J.V. team is sure to improve in the future.

The team started off strong, putting an end to last year's losing streak with wins over Amherst & Roanoke Catholic. Led by seniors Charmaine Bonds and Kelly Short, the Lady Patriots worked hard to improve their skills. A third win over Roanoke Catholic proved the season's high point. With only two seniors leaving, the Lady Patriots are already making plans for a strong season next year.

BUILDING A STRONG FOUNDATION

By Drew Dickinson

The Starting Line-up for The PH Lady Patriots JV Basketball Squad

"It was a building year," said head coach Ruth Wilkinson concerning the year her Lady Patriots Junior Varsity team had just completed. The team ended the season with a 4 and 13 record. More important than the record, however, was the improvement that the team showed as the season wore on. The main goal of this team, as is the case with most JV teams, is to improve each game and prepare players to move on to the next level of competition...the varsity team. Working as a team unit, the Lady Patriots worked hard to earn both the respect of their coaches and their opponents. Their single goal: to be better this game than they had been before. On the varsity level, the RVD has always been one of the top districts in the state, with perennial powers Pulaski County and Cave Spring, but with the help of some talented players arriving on the Varsity team from the JV ranks. Patrick Henry is building a strong foundation for future success!

Varsity Cheerleading Squad Leads Teams to Victory

The varsity cheerleaders gave the Patriots the spirit and incentive to win in the 96-97 school year by supporting the athletes with great pride and dedication. The cheerleaders showed their school spirit and enthusiasm at all sporting events whether it was home or away, rain or snow.

The cheerleaders were led by senior captain Latisha Sinkford and Elina Martin. Their experience and talent helped the underclassmen to gain experience and improve their skills for the 97-

98 season.

While seniors go on to new heights, next year's cheerleaders will go on to a new level where cheerleading will be considered a competitive sport and the cheerleaders will compete in the district, regional, and state tournament.

The Junior Varsity cheerleaders have definitely shown PH students what they are made of this year. Whether they were making some noise for the football team or performing halftime stunts at the basketball games, the JV squad was living up to the varsity cheerleaders' good example. We could tell at every game that they were improving and that the friendships between the girls were growing because they became more unified-what PH cheerleaders should be. Even with the loss of cheerleaders between the football and basketball seasons, the squad still managed to achieve excellence in their sport.

CHEERLEADERS

This year Patrick Henry's freshman cheerleaders proved that less really can be more. With only six girls on the squad, they went above and beyond what everyone expected of them. Whether they were encouraging the teams to make strong comebacks when they were down on their luck or leading the crowd in exciting cheers of victory, they definitely kept the teams going. Through football and basketball seasons, the girls kept the crowds pumped up. Under the outstanding advisement of Ms. Ramsey, Nicole Edmonds, Christen Schoester, Chastity Wagner, Meredith Castleberry, and Brandy Musgrove gave Patrick Henry one of the best freshman cheerleading squads that the school has ever seen. The squad has left us all wondering if they're this good now, what can we expect to see in the three years that lie ahead?

Continues Improvement
Against Tough Competition

he PH boys' cross country team continued its improvement and solidified itself as a solid district contender in 1996. The team's hard work was reflected in their second place finish in the district behind Cave Spring. For the third year in a row, the team also advanced to the regional meet.

The team was led by a strong backbone of talented sophomores: Adam Childers, David Parrish, Andrew Haynie, and Rob Jennings; senior captain Bill Speas; and freshman Clint Morse.

Next year, the Patriots hope to finally beat Cave Spring and the rest of the district as all but one of PH's placing runners return.

Girls' Team Takes RVD Title

Although the Virginia High School League requires seven members to fill a cross country team, PH's five girls showed enough determination to make it all the way to regional play. Two girls, Dabney Edwards and Sarah Airey, placed in the top ten in the district and placed on the all- district team.

This was achieved partly with the leadership of Coach Kathy Barker, who started working with the team over the summer and led them all to new personal record times. Coach Barker is encouraged that her team will be strong district contenders next year.

Strong beginnings... Impressive results!

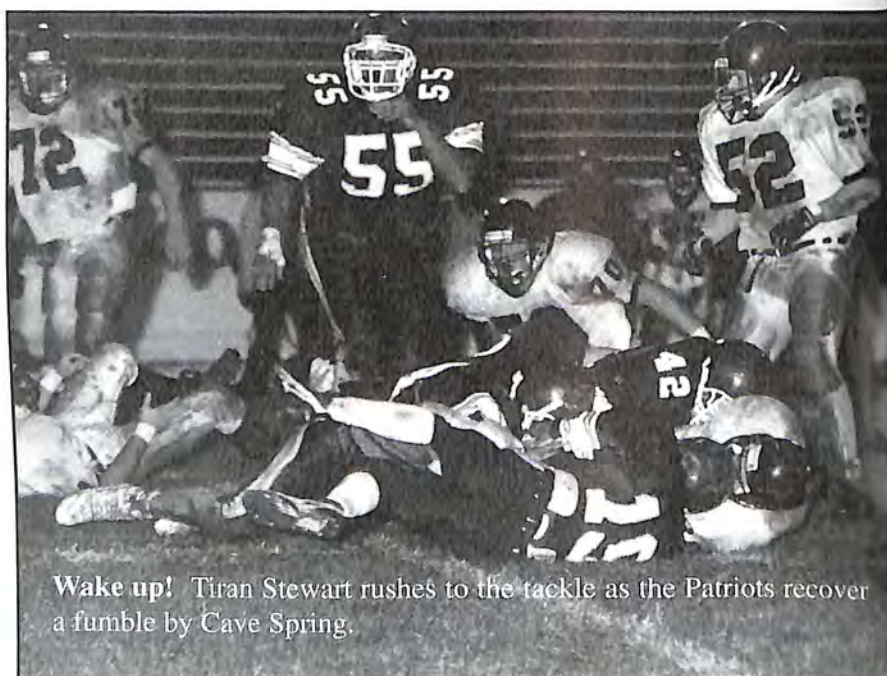

Hard work paid off this year for the Patriots' varsity football team. Beginning in August, the team practiced hard to improve their skills and strength. A strong commitment to the team and to practice was reflected on the field. Jefferson Forest couldn't shut down the Patriot powerhouse during our first game of the season. Although G.W. Danville and Pulaski County proved to be tough competition, the Patriots didn't lose hope. Determination prevailed and the varsity team went on to dominate. With exciting wins over Albemarle, Halifax, E.C. Glass and Amherst and a Homecoming victory against Cave Spring under their belts, the team ended their '96-'97 season with an impressive 6-4 record. The Patriots went out with a bang and with fourteen juniors returning in the fall, they are planning another blockbuster season next year.

JUNIOR VARSITY

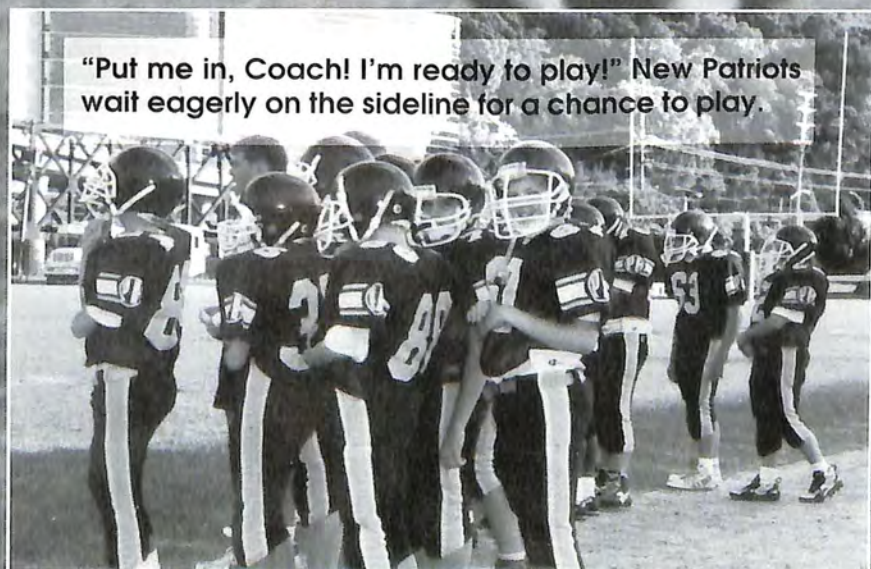

A turnover for PH at the 20. T.A. Williams marks the tackle to bring up a forth down.

The junior varsity team took their experience from last year's freshman squad to have a rewarding season. Although they didn't take the top district honors, the players had the opportunity to practice with the varsity squad for the first time in recent years. Practicing with the faster players allowed the JV squad to gain valuable first-hand experience. The juniors and sophomores that participated this year hope to eventually take their skills to the varsity level where we can expect to see great success from their experience. With many players moving to the varsity level next year, the RVD title is imminent.

While the team only finished second overall in the RVD and third in the district tournament, three players, freshman Lee Taylor and sophomores Ryan Patterson and Ryan Crush, qualified for the Regional Tourney. Taylor and Patterson qualified for the State Tournament, with Lee finishing in 4th place overall, and earning All-State honors. Senior players included Mike Stockburger, Wyatt Anderson, and Erik Wishneff. Team Captain Charles Dibling, junior Buck Noell, and freshman Stephen Leftwich also made strong contributions throughout the season. Indoor track has been the most productive team at PH for two consecutive years. With second in the state two years running, the athletes are working hard for another state victory. Several talented individuals such as Louis Booker, Shaun Akers, and James Hickenbotham gave the track team the needed push for victory in most meets. Leaves the competition in a

The PH boys' outdoor track team had a smashing season and went undefeated through the season and into the district blowout. The main scoring talent was the 4 x 1 team of Chad Giles, Louis Booker, Shawn Akers, and James Hickenbotham. Louis Booker also scored in the 400 and 200 meter dashes. James Hickenbotham scored in the 100 and 200 meter dashes. Mike Stevens scored in the discus and shot events, with Chad Hauk, Shannon Stroop placing in the pole vault events. These key players sealed victory throughout the season.

The team's strategy allowed them to get ahead and stay in the lead with all the meets. The always-powerful track team is sure to be a state performer for years to come.

"Setting personal goals as well as team goals is one of the main objectives of the squad," said James Hickenbotham. "Next year will be our finest."

PH Girls' Outdoor Track

Working hard to overcome obstacles

The girls' outdoor track team had a diverse make-up this year. Skill levels varied from beginner to experienced, but everyone had the same goal- WINNING!!

The girls achieved this goal at the Roanoke Valley District Championship where Barbara Evans turned in a second-place performance in the 400-meter dash, following up a successful season. Phyllis Holdway also turned in a stellar performance in the two-mile relay with a thirteen-minute finish.

Next year promises to be an even more successful season, as the girls lose only two seniors, Faye Casauay & Dabney Edwards. The majority of this year's underclassmen include juniors Genette Rutherford, Katie Silcox, and Christen Pendleton, along with Barbara Evans and Carrie Hendrick. Leading the way into the next year, these members, along with the rising freshmen, will provide the team with the talent and skills needed to challenge the RVD.

Boys' Varsity Soccer Team Looks to RVD Title

The boys' varsity soccer team came into the season with high expectations. They returned five starters from last year's squad that ended the season with 9-6-2. This year's team was led by senior captains Bryan Lewis and Cory Evans, junior captain Paul Wallace, and junior starters Trevor Plunkett and Will Krause. Other senior starters included Jay Edwards, David Farnum and Gouss Joseph. The season consisted of many closely contested games and several large wins. Regular play started slow with losses to North Cross and E.C. Glass. With an overwhelming win over William Fleming, the team continued RVD success with a 5-1 victory over Pulaski County. Following two RVD wins, the team lost a heartbreaker to cross town rival Cave Spring. Even though the team out-shot Cave Spring early in the game, the final second score led to defeat. The Patriots ended the regular season with a 4-2 victory over RVD leader Franklin County, led by Paul Wallace's two goals and Trevor Plunkett's foundation housing goal. The season concluded with 3-2, quadruple overtime losses to Franklin County in the RVD semifinal games. Paul Wallace, Trevor Plunkett, and Will Krause were selected to the first team all-district while Bryan Lewis, Cory Evans, Jay Edwards, and Landon Moore were put on the second team. Through the many housings, beat downs, broken ankles, and hustling, the Patriots turned a challenging season into an experienced team that shows potential for future domination.

JV Boys Soccer Captures RVD

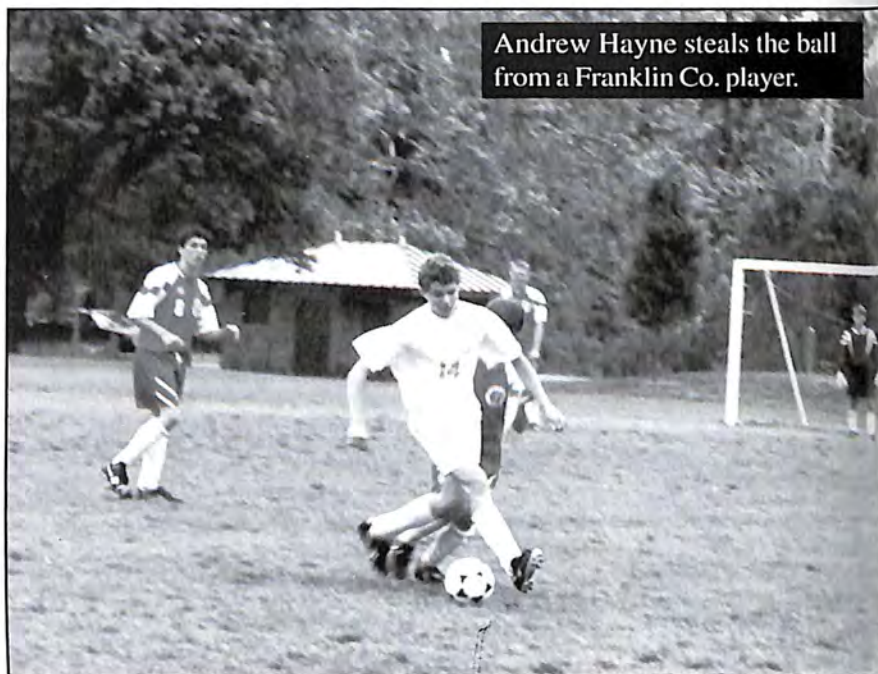

Turfin' it up

The Junior Varsity Boys Soccer team had an excellent season. The Patriots took the district championship with 7 wins, 1 loss, and 2 ties. Coach Ray Equi pulled the team together to get them to the top. One of their leading scorers, Rob Jennings, and other key players, Sean Mercer, Adam Childers, Chris Bryant, and Alfred Lexima led the team to a winning season. Mike Andres and John Flannagan, goal keepers, didn't let anything get past them and helped to lead their team to district championship. Throughout the year their skills and teamwork improved, and now the team members are ready to move forward to the varsity team next year. Rising freshmen and old players will continue the traditions of a winning team.

Girls Varsity Soccer Team Goes Undefeated

The Patrick Henry girls varsity soccer team did a super job of upholding our reputation as number one in the RVD. The Patriots embarrassed Franklin County with an upsetting score of 11-0 for each game.

The girls pride and excitement shined like stars at each game. From purple and white ribbons in their hair to purple band aids for boo-boos, it was obvious who had the most spirit.

With an undefeated season this year, our graduating seniors, Annie Eure, Hunter Flannagan, Carolyn Hodges, Connor Lancaster, Sarah Mercer, and Margaret Hunter Turner leave great expectations for next year's team. "They're going to be tough shoes to fill, but I know we can do it," said junior Christen Pendleton.

Bottom of the seventh, bases loaded, full count, can the Lady Patriots bring it home? After a season full of close last-pitch victories and defeats, the 1997 season proved to be a year of rebuilding and development. With six starting seniors leaving, the Lady Patriots will have to call on the developing skills of the younger players in 1998. Without a JV team this year, players moved up to contribute to the Varsity squad. Many seniors demonstrated good team leadership qualities, helping the younger players to feel more at home with their sudden move up. The premier pitchers were Caroline Roberts and Heather McClure while Kim Kays anchored the team as catcher. With hard practice early next spring, the team should be a factor in the RVD race next year.

Track & Field

Getting a jump on the competition

The 1996-1997 men's track team delivered another successful season under the direction of Coach Jeff Johnson. The philosophy? To get ahead in the field events and coast through the track events. That's exactly what they did. Led by seniors Louis Booker, Shawn Akers, and Freeman Burks; juniors James Hickenbotham, Jerome Cook, Mike Stevens, and Shannon Stroop; and sophomore Chad Hauk, the team stomped the competition.

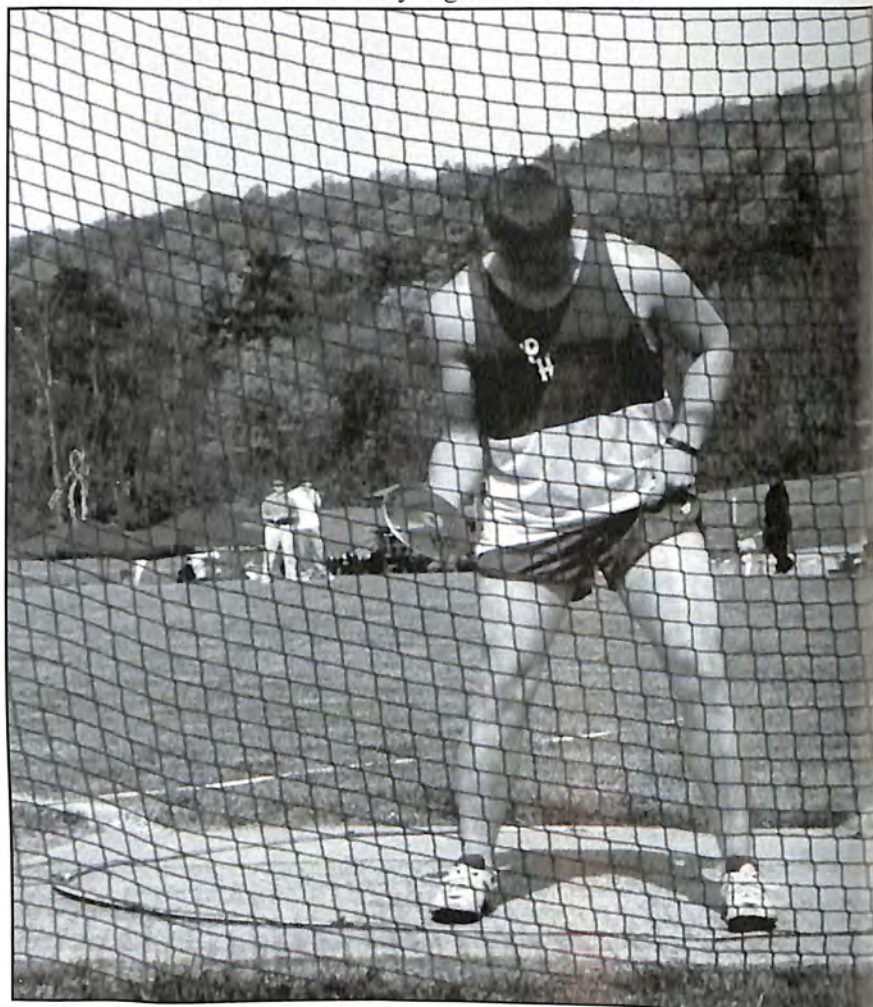

Field events strengthened the Patriots, giving a minimum fifteen-point lead at the beginning of each meet. The dynamic pole vaulters swept the district meet, taking all six places and headed to regionals and state. Lightning-fast relays and races added points to the district title. Of the numerous athletes that went to regionals in Charlottesville, eight qualified for state competition.

Throughout the season, Coach Jeff Johnson led the team to individual successes as well as team unity. With the power and talent of the underclassmen, the 1997 season appears to be a fearsome challenge for RVD contenders. Zephren Turner

Boys' Swim Team Strives For Excellence

The boys' swim team put forth a great exhibition this year as they came before a highly competitive district. Starting the season with a win over GW Danville, the team felt immediate success which was to be a driving force for all future meets. With senior Doug Hartman leading the team, sophomores Stephen Herman and Zlatan Stambol helped give the boys' swim team the boost they needed. The eight-man team showed that perseverance and skill made them a potential district contender. With summer training camps just around the corner, freshman hopefuls Charlie Hunter and Jesse Hsing seem to offer the team great hope for the future.

Swimming Over the Competition

The girls' swim team had a great season with a steady record just under .500. With a record of 3-4, they finished second in the RVD championship. The team demolished North Cross as well as Salem but struggled against EC Glass and Cave Spring. The girls' swim team is a fairly young team with Dabney Edwards and Margaret-Hunter Turner leading the squad. Sophomores Lorna Bell and Allison Hurt should have few problems next year in taking control of the team and leading them to a district and regional championship. No one can deny the strength of this team, and, as the rising freshmen become more experienced, the girls' swim team should become unstoppable. The RVD had better watch out for the PH girls' swim team as they are not to be taken lightly.

Patrick Henry Boys' Tennis Team Remains
Undefeated in the Roanoke Valley District

Under the watchful eye of Coach Flanagan, the Patrick Henry boys' tennis team demolished virtually every team in the valley, with the exception of E.C. Glass. "E.C. Glass was the only team that defeated us. Coach Flanagan led our team to a blowout season, which is a testament to both the team's unity and the coach's ability," said Drew Dickinson.

The year began with returning seniors Addams England, Bryan Glover, Erik Wishneff, Keedick Coulter, Greg McCray, and Drew Dickinson, as they crushed their weak opponents from Cave Spring to Franklin County. The 1997 seniors have never lost the district title during their four years at Patrick Henry. Even more impressive is the fact that the tennis team has not lost a district match in two consecutive years. Senior Addams England rose to the limelight as he went undefeated his senior season. Addams returned to Patrick Henry after one semester spent in Hilton Head, South Carolina, at the VanDer Meer Tennis Academy, concentrating on his tennis game. The Roanoke Times highlighted Addams's season with an article capping Addams's tennis career with, "Weight Loss, Net Gain."

The rising sophomores, juniors, and seniors have a tough load to carry, as they will try to continue the winning tradition left by the departing seniors of 1997, but the seniors still agree on one thing: "We're still the best," says Bryan Glover.

WE GET 'EM UP...

The 1996 Patrick Henry girls' volleyball team proved that they were as impressive as last year's District Region's Champions and state finalists. Despite not achieving the final titles, the volleyball team certainly surprised a lot of people. Coach Rhonda Wheeler was determined not to make this just another rebuilding year, which everyone expected, but the Lady Patriots ended up with an eight-win seven-loss season. The volleyball team displayed a lot of talent with tremendous skill level provided by the starters: Erica Moore, Stefanie Ellison, Lori Dillion, Beth Miller, Nicole Kent and other players. Sarah Mercer & Erica Moore made first team District. Stefanie Ellison joined the 2nd team district and Annie Eure led the district in serving. Overall, the team had a great year, and the Lady Patriots soared over the expectations of others.

JV Girls Volleyball Team Has Winning Season

This year's JV volleyball team turned into a big success in the 1996 season. With a squad of over 20 girls and a new coach, Kelly Robinson, the girls finished second in the district. Their record, which was 9-4, was the best since the 1993 team. The only losses were handed to E.C. Glass, Cave Spring, and William Fleming. This team's winning record was due to the return of height. Michelle Paiement and Rudy Alisauskas controlled the middle hitter position and had the ability to hit high above the net. These two averaged a large amount of the team's hitting and blocking. Freshmen middle hitter Ellen McGrath and outside hitter Jennifer Gray added a lot of height to the freshmen class. The team improved on basic skills that JV teams in the past had lacked. PH exhibited excellent defense throughout the year. Passers Rebecca Zayas, Ashlea Barritt, and Sarah Partington ran up the passing percentage. The team had impressive wins over Franklin County twice and E.C. Glass once. In both of these games, the team rallied back from a one-game deficit to win the match. These wins came from the performance of setters Anna Powell and Lorna Bell, who controlled the offense during the match. Many of these players will move up to varsity next season, including some skilled freshmen. Hopefully, PH will reinstate their district title in 1997 and move into regional and state finals.

The PH wrestlers had a great season despite a 3-9 record. Seniors Gouss Joseph and Khamsouk Chanthavixay had an excellent season, winning second and third place in the RVD. Junior Rob Mangus tore the RVD apart with a record of 17-4 winning the title in the 119 weight class. Rob Mangus should have no problem in taking the title again next year. Newcomers to the federation, Tyler Godsey and Mike Copt, make their debut with pride and determination. This year, Patrick Henry student life was alive and kickin' with pep rallies, a revival of the Winter Dance, a blazing bonfire and a return to the great outdoors with a Hawaiian luau. The 1996-97 school year offered more opportunities for students to get involved than ever before.

Seniors had a chance to show their pride with fieldtrips to the skating rinks and bowling alley. From classes, clubs, and sports to dances and special trips, students at Patrick Henry had a lasting and memorable year.

THE FINAL FRONTIER

Student Parking Lot Offers Adventure and Challenges

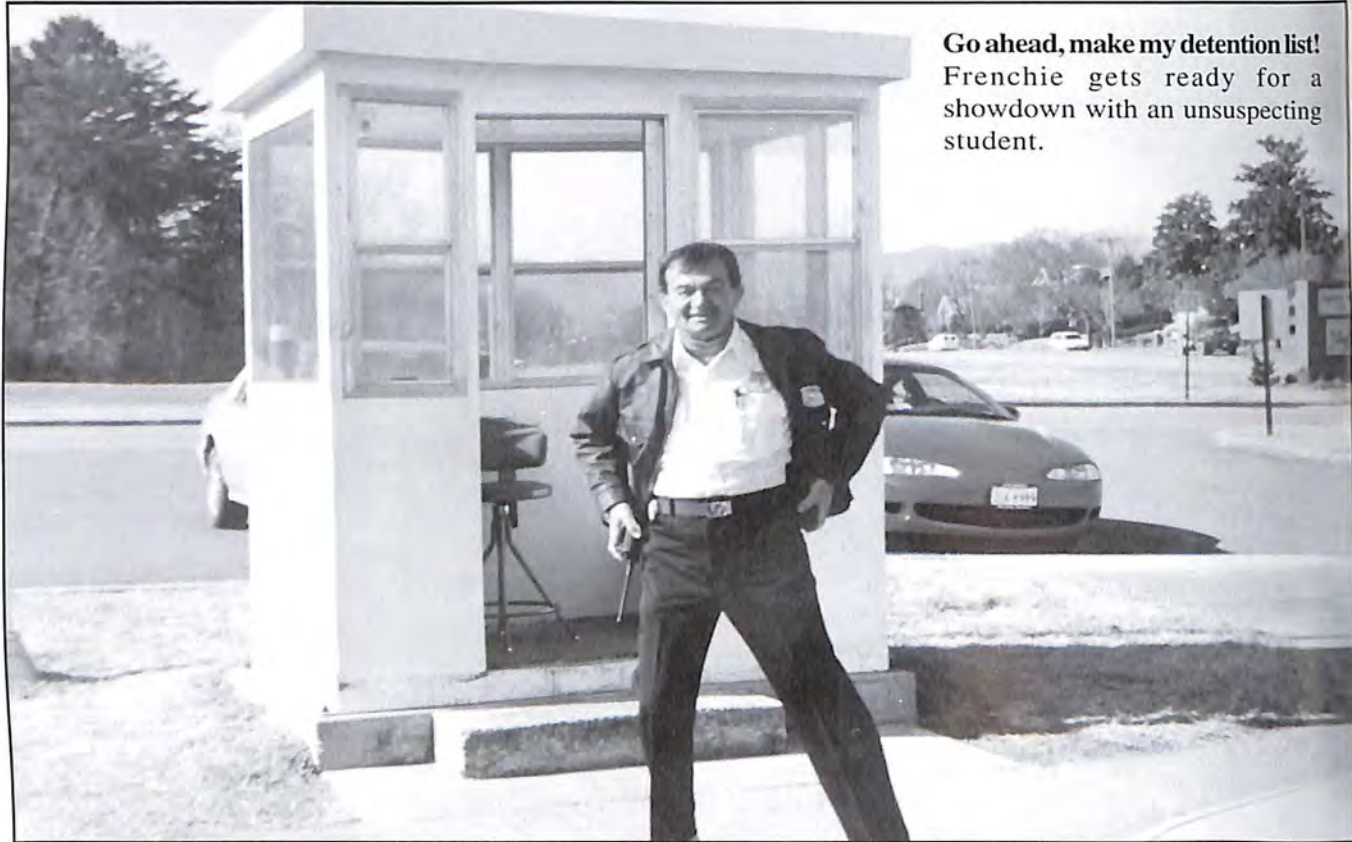

There is only one place on the Patrick Henry campus where the inside world meets the outside world. Where seniors must abandon their beds early to battle underclassmen for space, where pedestrians must dodge the blitz of oncoming traffic, and where gangs of teenagers plot their evenings. That place, for better or worse, is the parking lot.

This year has seen such bad overcrowding that some students have been forced to park in the grass. The lack of senior spaces has led to some tension between seniors and the other students, but the resourcefulness of the security officers has kept the problem under wraps.

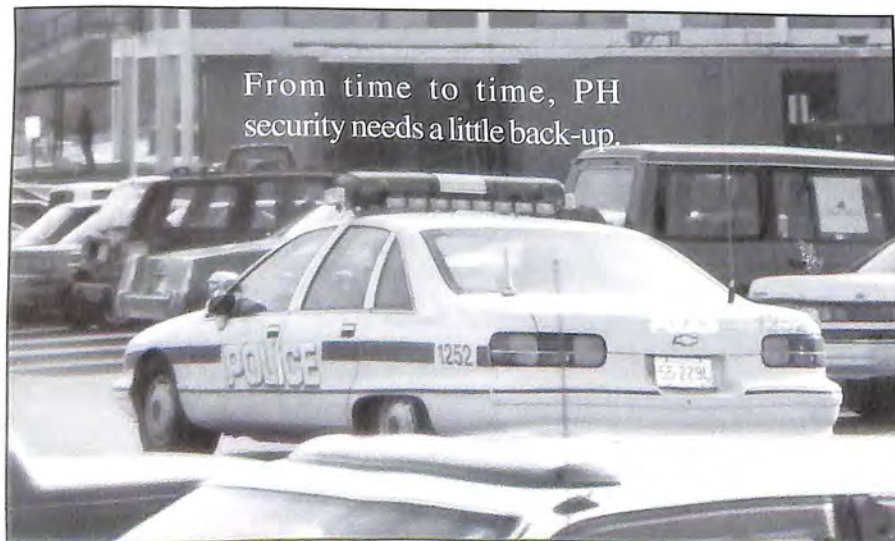

Parking disputes are not the only problems the security officers must handle. They have to guard against reckless driving, unauthorized people entering, and, believe it or not, they have to prevent some troublesome students from skipping class.

The untamed frontier of the parking lot is quickly being civilized. Rising seniors are looking forward to the possibilities of a parking lot expansion and another exit. Till then, everyone should experience the wilds of the parking lot while they still can.

After going five hours without eating, you smell the aroma from the lunch room and your eyes glaze over. But unless you are a senior, it's hard to find a hot meal. By the time underclassmen get to the cafeteria, lines stretch all the way to Persinger. But, despite the long wait, visitors witness a lunch room full of people stuffing their faces and having a great time with friends. Whether you pack your lunch, go to the Deli, Potato Bar, or challenge the mystery meat line, you'll always get a tasty meal. On chicken patty days, rumors buzz around the new circular tables that the missing spirit chicken was mixed into the chicken patties. Nevertheless, students race to get the last sandwich before the bell rings. The absence of Fuji saddened returning students at the beginning of the year, but considering the great food, long lunch lines, and spacious, clean dining facilities, everyone seems to keep coming back each day.

Let's Get Pumped Up!

Pep Rallies Are Back and Better Than Ever

"J-J-J-U-N-I-I-I-O-R..., S-S-S-E-N-I-I-I-O-R..., P-H-S...!" This was just one of the cheers coming from our gym as the SGA held more pep rallies than ever before. Due to the large population at P.H. the pep rallies had to be split into two groups, yet that didn't seem to stop the spirit. If you weren't one of the students who skipped class to attend both pep rallies, then you probably heard all the commotion of students screaming and drums beating while your teacher tried to make you finish your work. Our pep rallies could definitely get out of control with the cheerleaders working the scene, Max yelling at the top of his lungs, or the sports teams running across the gym strutting their stuff (cough, cough, Tiran). However crazy these times were, one thing is for sure, a Patriot pep rally is nothing to be missed!

Spirit abounds in all grade levels including rising seniors.

Students may have a little trouble showing up for class, but the chance for a pep rally brings everyone out.

"P-H-H-S!" The varsity cheerleaders never cease to amaze the crowd.

It's a full moon tonight! PH students have spirit like no other school.

Tiran Stewart and Drew Dickinson get pumped up for the big Homecoming game Friday night.

Consider The Music

One of the newest and perhaps most popular events that went on at PH this year was the conception of the PH concert series. The first act to perform this year was Radar Rose, who played to a crowd of about 200 students. A performer who repeated his performance from last year was Jimmy Thackery and his band, "The Drivers." Jimmy Thackery and Radar Rose have hopefully started a trend that will be continued and expanded as new incarnations of the SGA and Center continue to come up with programs and entertainment for the students at PH.

CONSIDER THE SPIRIT

This year the SGA revived an old tradition, the bonfire. The bonfire was a gathering of students at the end of spirit week in support of the football team the night before this year's homecoming football game against Cave Spring. The bonfire rally included multiple cheers, lots of school spirit, and the incineration of a Cave Spring mannequin to the cheers of the crowd. The overall opinion of the students seems to be that they enjoyed it and that they would support it again. If all goes well, this may become an annual event to promote the Homecoming football game.

SPIRIT WEEK

The 70's revisited

It was that time of year again, folks! Kids sported their favorite hats, college gear, 70's garb, and of course, there were the unforgettable cross-dressers. With more excitement and involvement than ever before, Spirit Week '96 was a blast. On Monday, it was hard to tell who was who as students wore matching outfits for Twin Day. Tuesday was a favorite of hat wearers: for once it was OK to wear a hat in class. Hat Day was definitely a success. Competition was in full swing on College Day with the annual UVA-VA Tech game in the Quad during all three lunches. The unofficial favorite day was the first ever cross-dressing day complete with individual competition and a mock Homecoming Court. Spirit Day would not be complete without a flashback to the '70's. Platforms and polyester were the rage. Thursday afternoon gave students a chance to boogie down at the disco. Friday was full of purple and gold in the PH hallways. Painted faces and football fever brought Spirit Week to a fantastic close at the Pep Rally. The presentation of all the athletic teams and the Homecoming Court received huge responses from both students and the faculty. There's no doubt that Patrick Henry has definitely exploded with spirit.

Makin' Midnight Magic! Homecoming '96

Even the cool, rain-driven evening could not keep the crowds away.

Hey, Macarana! Students realized that the Macarana is the biggest dance hit of the year.

Consider Patriots in ball gowns and suits. Consider a celebration of an exciting football victory over district rival Cave Spring. Consider an anxious Homecoming Court awaiting the announcement of "Queen." Now, consider all of this excitement confined to the Patrick Henry cafeteria. Consider Homecoming '96.

From 8:30 to 11:30 P.M., the Patriots threw their hands in the air to old favorites such as "YMCA" along with the more popular "Macarana." The students danced and sang into the night, creating one of the most successful Homecoming dances ever sponsored by the SGA.

Weather prohibited the Homecoming Court from being presented at the football game, thus the Queen and maid of honor were announced at the dance. The anxiety of the candidates rose as they floated across the cafeteria. Finally, Shekeira Brown was announced Homecoming Queen and Betsy Roberts was announced Maid of Honor. The '96 Homecoming proved to be a magical event.

Betsy Roberts

Girls just wanna' have fun! Caroline Roberts and Marcie Petrocci clear the floor with their rendition of the "Macarana".

HOMECOMING VICTORY

"Patriots Fight!" Peter Do and Buck Nord lead Patriot fans in the traditional fight cheer.

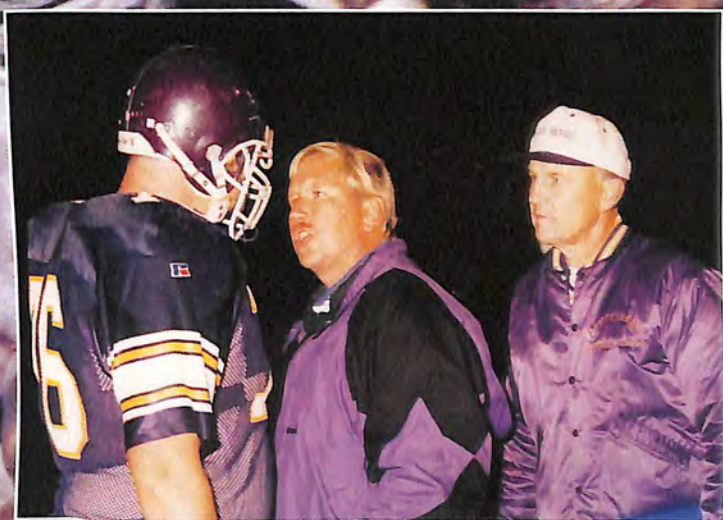

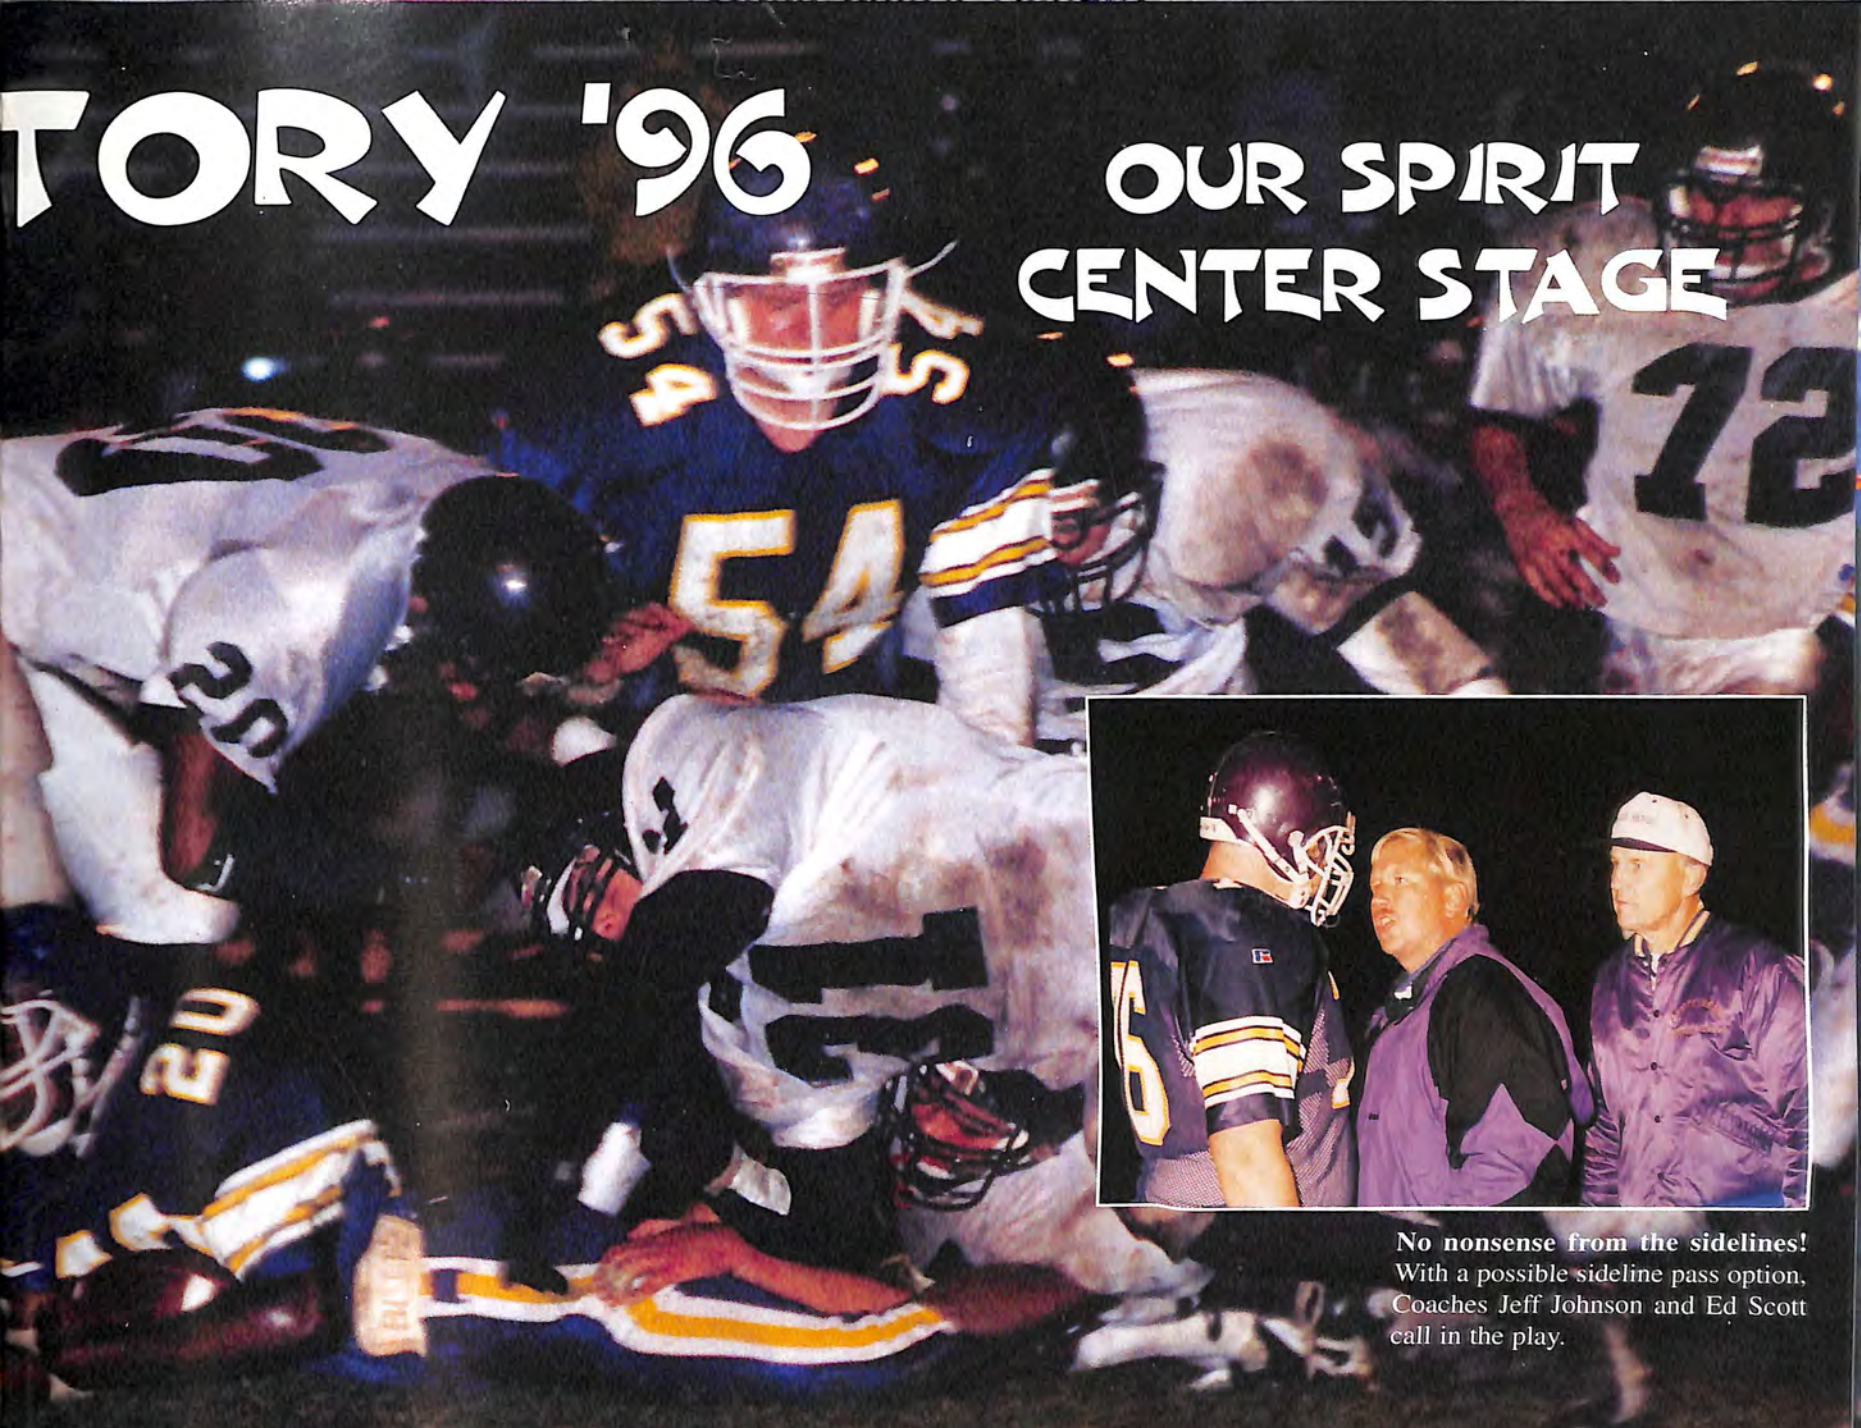

No holding back! On a reverse play, Dennis Dunneville charges through Knight territory as the Cave Spring players try to bring him down.

We're #1! Even with the hint of occasional rain, Tara Cronin still shows her Patriot spirit by leading the crowd in "soggy" cheers.

TORY '96

OUR SPIRIT CENTER STAGE

No nonsense from the sidelines! With a possible sideline pass option, Coaches Jeff Johnson and Ed Scott call in the play.

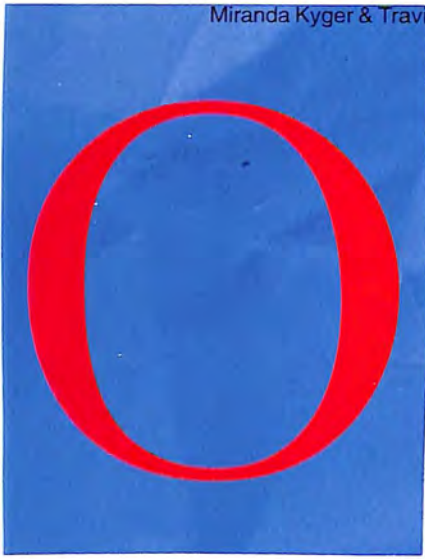

The 1996 Homecoming football game created an unforgettable night. Despite the incredibly cold temps, our victory against Cave Spring with a score of 35 to 13 raised school spirit to a record high. Fans packed the stadium sporting Patriot wear from face paint to the famous purple and gold Cat-in-the-Hat hats. The senior chants and tunes from the PH band echoed through the stands and Patriot signs waved in the air. A surprise appearance was made by the Men Of PH In Action-an enthusiastic crossdressing cheerleading squad. It was clear from the early departure of the Cave Spring fans, and the Patrick Henry chants of "Warm up the bus!", the night was an overwhelming victory.

Patriots Aren't Afraid to Get Down & Dirty

Whether at the beach, on the slopes, or on a raging river, PH students are never afraid to take it outside. Students at our school display a wide variety of interests in different outdoor activities. Many popular ones include biking, climbing, kayaking, hiking, skiing, turfing, and just chillin' at the beach. PH students will never find themselves bored with all the outdoor excitement that surrounds them. If the weather is nice they head to the Parkway, Dragon's Tooth, or any other trail in the area. If it's a cold Thursday night and they need a study break, one can head to the climbing wall for a quick recess. Weekends are prime time for ski trips with all the slopes that surround Roanoke, and if they happen to be stuck in Roanoke on a weekend night, any river or quad provides a prime spot for turfing. When spring rolls around, students head up to Smith Mountain Lake to quench their thirst. Any time of the year, any time of the day, you can find PH students taking advantage of all the outdoor activities available in this beautiful valley.

Reviving the age-old tradition of the LUAU at P.H.

On Friday, April 25th, a legendary tradition at Patrick Henry was revived, the luau! The night was balmy and candles lit a pathway to the Hawaiian celebration. Upon entering the luau, each guest received a colorful lei that complemented the festive mood. As students climbed the stairs to the site of the luau between McQuilkin Hall and the library, they were greeted by the musical strains of the Key West band. The tropical decorations transformed the Patrick Henry campus with over twenty blazing tiki torches, palm tress blowing gently in the breeze, white lights strung between buildings and beach balls flying through the air. Although, the temperature was not quite as warm as the islands, several male students were obviously in the Hawaiian spirit, sporting grass skirts and coconut bras while leading a congo line and the infamous limbo. The band played a wide variety of music and knew just when to speed up the beat for the group of frenzied dancers or slow the pace to wind down the mood. Around ten o'clock students and teachers alike witnessed a special moment as a popular security guard, affectionately known as "Wolfman Jack," proposed to his girlfriend in the midst of a cheering crowd.

PH students invade Costa Rica

During spring break of 1997, a group of Spanish students and teachers traveled to Costa Rica for twelve days of excitement, discovery, and adventure. For Lauren Willis, Beth Rhodes, Grace McCown, Neeley Minton, Matt Cleveland, Kathy Weaver, and Mrs. Leslie Cleveland, the curriculum-in-action field trip was a memorable experience.

Students visited many natural wonders including active volcanoes, white-sand beaches, and forests filled with toucans, three-toed sloths, monkeys, and other wildlife. Traveling on dirt roads through mountains and countryside, swimming in shaded lagoons, snorkeling in the Gulf of Nicoya, and sampling fresh sugar cane and coffee gave them a taste of the Costa Rican culture.

Students experienced the life of an average Costa Rican teenager by spending three days with their exchange students. By living with them and attending their school, they established friendships that will last a lifetime.

Memories of swinging through the canopy of the rainforest, horseback riding along the beach, and swimming in lava-heated hot springs will be with the students for many years.

It was the year of Olestra, the year of the Macarena, and the year The Chicken was kidnapped. In China and in American politics, it was the year of the rat. Style Takes Prom With Surprise

ITALY

The Land of Romance

For fourteen Latin class members, this spring break will never be forgotten. Not because of lost luggage, cramped bus seats, $5.00 Cokes, the pick-pockets of Rome, or the Indiana Jones style leadership of sponsor Mike Andrews, but from the adventure of invading the culture of Italy. The group set off on their adventure in Venice, where they stood underneath the balcony where Juliet once professed her love to Romeo. Other extraordinary sights included floating down the famous canals of Venice. The group also ventured through Florence; the birthplace of the Italian language, the Renaissance, and opera. Traveling through Assisi, Pompeii, Sorrento, and the Isle of Capri, the students were thrilled to finally reach Italy's capital, Rome. There they toured the mighty Colosseum, the place where Julius Caesar was assassinated, and saw the stunning ceiling of the Sistine Chapel. After ten fun-filled days, the students were able to verify that Italy is the land of romance. Through the beauty of its landscape to the enchantment of its history, the students have captured a part of Italy in their hearts and minds.

PH Students Enjoy Return of the Winter Snow Dance

The icy wind was blowing, but the heat and volume were pumped up inside. Even though it wasn't the very first Winter Snow Dance ever (the first was in the early '70's), ours was a sure hit. Patrick Henry students and their dates poured into the Holiday Inn at Tanglewood to warm up to the tunes of UB40, Smashing Pumpkins, & Spice Girls. Students came dressed in semi-formal attire, and a few had corsages pinned to their dresses and jackets. Our D.J. managed to play Coolio, No Doubt, and Alan Jackson all in one night. Before the dance, some couples went out to restaurants while others gathered at friends' houses for dinner. During the middle of the dance, the Snow Queen & King were presented along with the Snow Prince & Princess. Overall, the dance was a blast and everyone had a good time. Let's hope our SGA president next year will keep this new tradition going for the Winter Snow Dance '98.

AFTER PROM

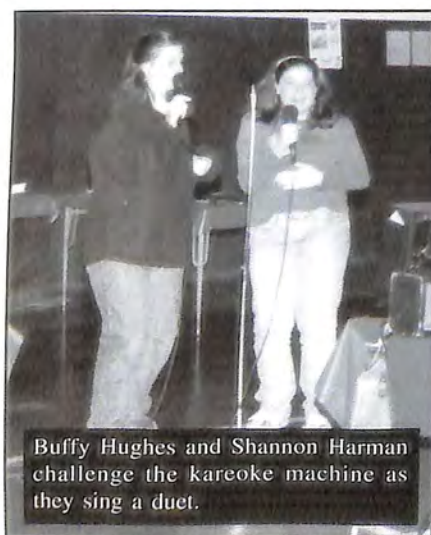

As the clock struck midnight, the glass slippers were tossed, the pumpkin vanished, and the coachmen went to bed. Cinderella, however, saw that the night was still young and departed for the annual After Prom ball. Not your typical story book fairy tale, this was better. For the first time ever, the After Prom festivities were held in the gym at PH. With support from area businesses and parents, the gym was turned into a wonderland of games, food, and good times. From the bungy run to the karaoke machine, students partied into the early morning hours. Exhausted, tired, and ready to hit the bed, students soon found hidden energy and headed into the rising sun for numerous breakfast parties. After a few Egg McMuffins and a gallon of coffee, we were revived and ready to take on the new day. Sleep? We don't need any! We're students. Esber Nassif

Mr. Gary Leah and Brian Herndon (sound assistant) challenge each other on the bungy run. Brian lost!

Students found the gym full of games and numerous activities after leaving the Prom.

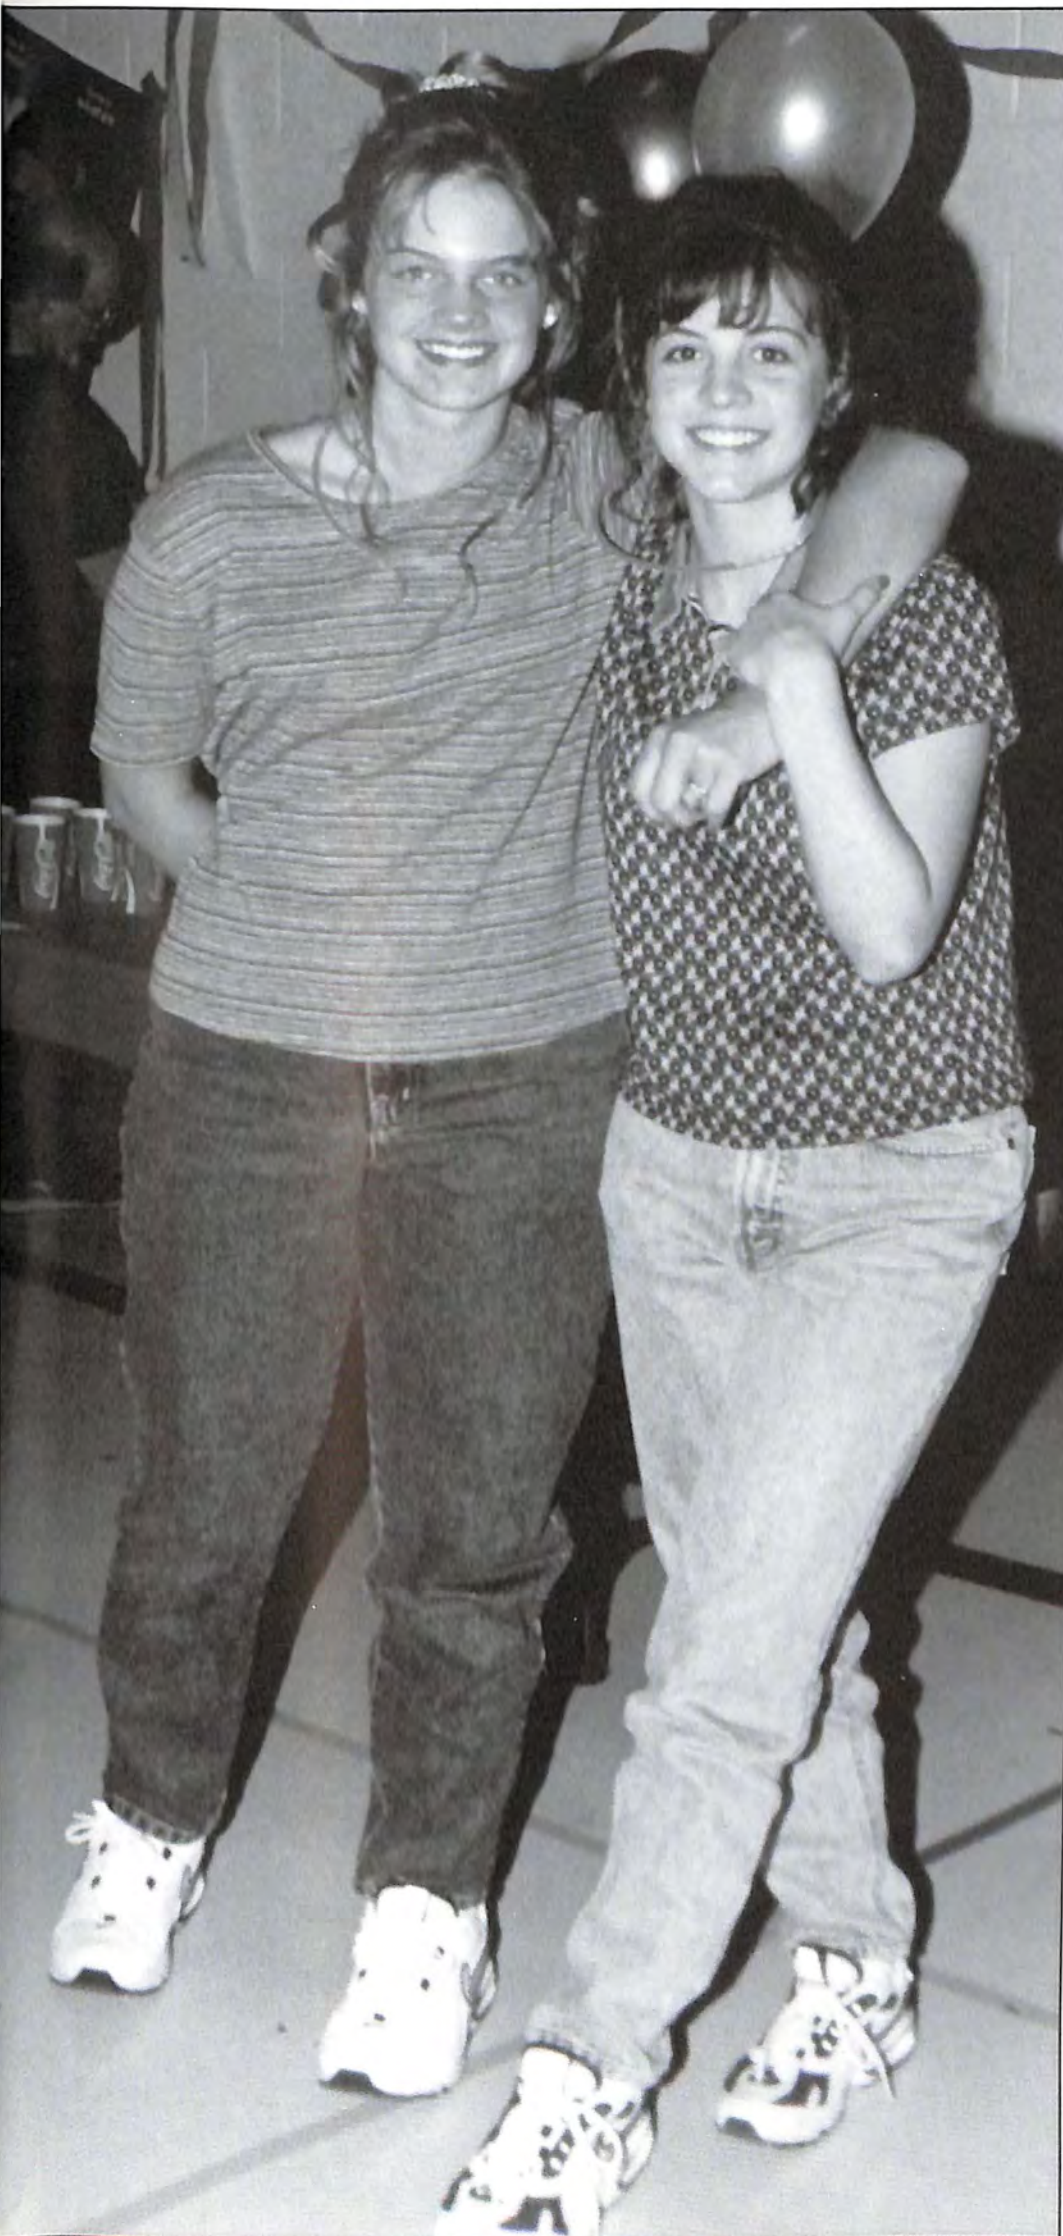

Buffy Hughes and Shannon Harman challenge the karaoke machine as they sing a duet.

Ms. Kim Hamilton and Charlie Chan deal cards at the poker tables.

Mary Beth McClung, Cinnamon Amos, and Tara Cronin enjoy the refreshments brought in for the evening.

Betsy Roberts tries not to disturb the faithful and dedicated chaperones for the evening.

Sarah Mercer, Barbara Evans, Margaret-Hunter Turner, and Hunter Flannagan.

William Parker sings a country ballad with the assistance of a friend.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES

Beyond Belief

From the sunny days of summer to the freezing temperatures of winter, anyone could see that Patrick Henry students were always involved in something. Whether school sponsored, or just out on our own, we always had a good time. With new friends just around the corner and different events all the time, the days of our lives were exciting and fun. With the close of our senior year, we stop to reflect on the past but now look to the future for the better times. But wait! Maybe these were the best times of our lives.

Trend Fashions Abound Petters On The PH Campus

Hangin' out - John Harris, Dan Brooks, & Lloyd Harris

With over fifteen hundred students on campus, the chance for extreme diversity is great. Many students express themselves through organized participation in clubs and sports; however, many of us express who we are through the clothes we wear, special jewelry, hair styles, facial gestures, or favorite hats. From the popular North Face jackets and fleeces to prominent Nike symbols,

PH has it all. For some fashion pioneers, the sometimes bold and daring expressions are soon the craze of the school. As each student begins to establish his/her own identity, the unique, different, and sometimes questionable appearances of some quickly become acceptable by many. Looking at the rising seniors for next year, we predict the fashions are sure to be wild.

Last Memories for Seniors

Mock Graduation, the last event students look forward to in their senior year. The night before, seniors get together with friends to make creative graduation caps. Caps have the school colors and logos of colleges the students plan to attend. Some of the caps just have some symbol of any future plans. On the day of mock graduation, all students are invited to the cafeteria for a nice breakfast. Then all seniors gather in Clara Black for the senior slide show, where pictures compiled from this year are shown. After this trip down memory lane, seniors head out to the Civic Center to practice for the big day, the real graduation. In the past, seniors used to have some sort of senior skip day. But now, with new rules and concern for students' safety, mock graduation is a great substitute for senior skip day. Mock graduation is an event where seniors can make one more memory before ending their high school years.

We Will Make It Happen

Four years of classes, tests, "A" lunch, tardy bells, and class changes float foggily through our minds. These four years of high school were spent on what?? To get into college - another four years of school. But Patrick Henry students seem to think that all of the hard work was worth it. We are considering our futures by looking ahead to college. This is a huge new experience where we will once again be the new kid on campus but finally with new found freedoms - and responsibilities. We will leave PH knowing that it has helped prepare us for the world. Who ever would have believed that the day has finally arrived?

businesses support PH yearbook

Given the magnitude of the 1996-97 yearbook, the staff realized they had an immense job in funding their efforts to produce a 314 page publication. With revenues drawn from individual book sales totaling half the outlay, the students looked to the community for support. Through the challenge of adding color to the senior section along with a total of 68 color pages overall, the students set out to sell over 25 pages of advertisements. Welcomed by the surrounding community, the ad spaces were quick to be filled. With the far reaching effect of advertising potential, students were able to sell ads to businesses in Salem, Vinton, and Franklin County. Along with business support, parents and students saw the opportunity to express themselves or their child in a non-traditional pose. With creative pictures and personalized messages, each was able to have his or her individual piece of the PH yearbook.

Consider

Preparing now for

adventures next year

As seniors close out this chapter in their lives, they take with them the fond memories of friendships, growing up, and setting goals for the future. For them, the final year of their high school lives is over. They have built upon the legacy of all former graduates and leave the torch for us to carry. As underclassmen, we are getting closer to the end, but we still have a responsibility to make Patrick Henry High School the best place in town. From freshmen to juniors, we applaud the seniors in their successes and cherish the day that we will join their ranks. Our legacy is just beginning.

Senior Rita Rhett makes sure that the flowers are carefully prepared for next year's senior class.

Using the Past to Move Toward the Future

The 1996-97 year at Patrick Henry High School proved phenomenal. The resurgence of tradition and spirit created a unity within the school that few other classes have witnessed. A unity that will continue to echo through the halls, long after the classrooms have emptied and the bells are silent. This year we have considered who we are as individuals: whether a freshman trying to adjust to the world of high school, a sophomore seeking a place to fit in, a junior introduced to the responsibilities of being an upperclassman, or a senior preparing to set off into a world with limitless possibilities. We have also considered who we are as a school, we have considered the fact that the diversity within the walls of Patrick Henry will be used to enrich our experiences and high school years. The close of the school year tells us it is time to move on, for some that means tackling yet another year of high school and for others it signals that graduation is upon us, a time where beginnings and endings run together. Wherever your path takes you, always remember the friends, the work, the tears, the laughter and the accomplishments. This is the Patriot experience- ALL THINGS CONSIDERED.
