WHAT'S IN A NAME?

The Patriot 1984

Patrick Henry High School

2102 Grandin Road S.W., Roanoke, Virginia 2401

Volume 23

P.H. — At the source of every name is a meaning. This would lead us to wonder . . .

What's In a Name?

Shakespeare once wrote; "A rose by any other name would smell as sweet." In 1961 when Patrick Henry opened its doors to a new student body, it was a different rose entirely. Due to a miscalculation, there was no furniture on the first day, therefore, the teachers and students had to make the floor an all-purpose work area. Boys were required to wear socks and girls were forbidden to wear sandals. Cheerleaders cheered the Patriots to victory wearing culottes. It may have been the cheerleaders who first turned Patrick Henry into "P.H." because it was easier to chant. It was only natural that P.H. would become the school's nickname and thus provide a sense of unity. Since then, times have changed. P.H. has come to represent high standards in education and the desire to reach beyond.

This is what you call "True Patriot Power"!

As everyone watches the game intently, Susan Latsko and Teresa Hundley share a joke.

As Alvis Tucker looks around for his teammates, he's thinking, "Didn't they say Friday at 8:00 o'clock?"

Making A Name For Ourselves

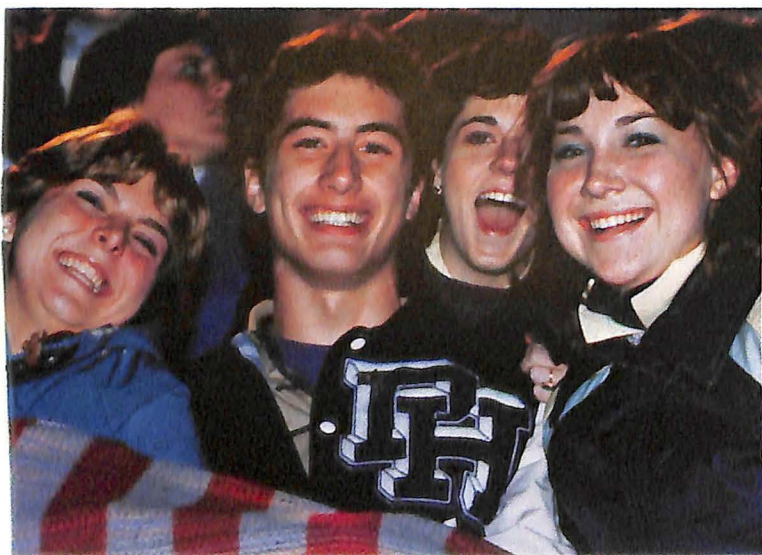

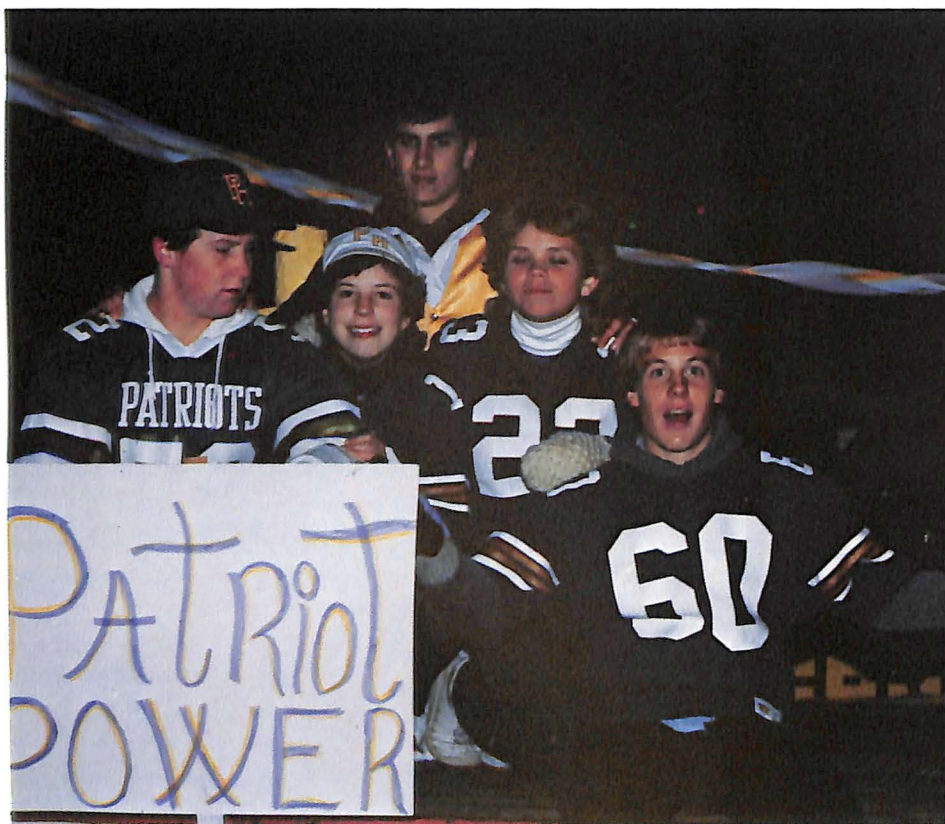

Throughout the school year, no matter how different we each were, there was one special closeness that brought us together. Whether we were happy or sad, formal or informal, serious or silly, and friends or lovers, we were all Patriots. We all shared that Patriot spirit and Patriot power. This represented togetherness with a flow of spirit that never ended. A Patriot was always there to shine in all occasions and stand by the name that portrays pride and power.

Nancy Hutchinson, Charlie Kuehn, Susan Harrison, and Tracy Smithson huddle for warmth at a Patriot football game.

“H ow do you like our new exchange student?” asks Sara Beamer.

W

anda Manns smiles proudly at a special moment.

“R abbit season huh?” thinks John Eakin. “Which one shall I shoot, Jamie Fore, or Greg Widdowson?”

nap to it,” says Kris Edwards, “I need my cane.”

Seniors Take Charge

The daytime activities of Homecoming week started out slowly but gradually progressed as the week went on.

Starting with the ingenuity of our Patriotic students, we came to school Monday to find the halls decorated with purple and gold streamers and posters telling us of the upcoming events. The competition of the halls is a contest not to be taken lightly. Though the reward is only ten dollars, the recognition of "the best decorated hall" is reward enough for those who worked for it.

The next day brought a different show of feelings for most Senior and Junior "women". Yes, today was the big day to break the mold of stereotyped femininity. Nothing could match those sly looks and cruel sneers as Seniors matched wits and strength against the fiery Junior "women", who are eager to show their place in the school.

The buses were beginning to line up and people were starting to leave and finally the last whistle blew, the Seniors won! The Juniors, as they walked away, get pats on their backs from friends and hugs from the coaches. They seemed happy that it was finally over. Only one more thing to be ridiculed by, by the upperclassmen.

"This little piggy carries senior books!" thinks Robbie Rich as he walks across the Quad.

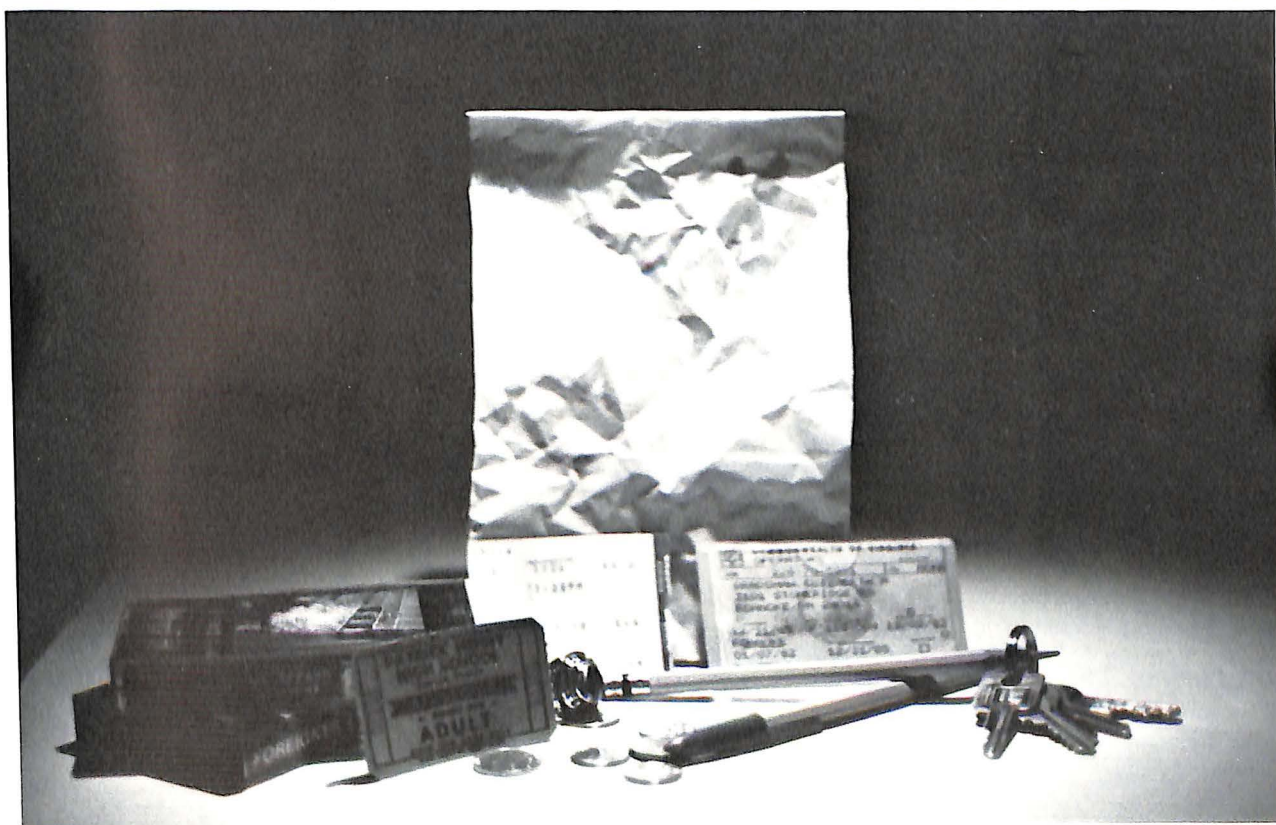

Though Halloween is over, Suzanna Field, still in her costume, poses with Ann Shore Tucker before leaving for class.

Providing entertainment, Chris Vaughn and Kim Harris cheer on our Powderpuff Football players.

"Which way did the Arthur Murray teacher tell us to turn now?" asks Chris Edwards of his date, Jenny Repass.

Homecoming Queen Mary Catherine Ewart patiently waits for Duke Baldrige to finish his punch.

Holly Phlippen not only seems to find slow dances a time for dreaming but also a time for watching others.

Homecoming Court

Homecoming in November was an occasion to remember! It was a cold, windy evening when the Homecoming football game against Pulaski was held. The introduction of the court at halftime brought a shivering group representing the three classes at school. The senior representatives from each district were Mary Catherine Ewart, Sara Thomas, Wanda Manns and Kelly Blankenship. The Juniors included were Donna Cooper, Tina Mills, Terri Stout and Kelly Mason. The sophomores were Karen Maxey, Carrie Hall, Grace Edmunds, Michelle Bishop. Maid-of-Honor was Wanda Manns and Mary Catherine Ewart was named Queen. These ladies had to brave the chill while trying to smile warmly.

I COULD HAVE DANCED ALL NIGHT

Homecoming week swept to its conclusion with the traditional Homecoming Dance. However, this year, tradition was broken. The dance was moved from the Patrick Henry Cafeteria to the Ballroom of the Patrick Henry Hotel. The school buzzed for days with the news of the change and tickets sold out within the first two days. The question of the week was "What am I going to wear?" As expected, the feminine population turned out in its finest.

Though the crowded conditions caused many to vacate the floor during the faster dances, it gave the men an excuse to hold their dates a little closer during the slow numbers. With an exciting band, RAZOR, playing a wide variety of music and the elegant setting of the ballroom, it's little wonder that They Could Have Danced All Night!

"1-2-3, 2-2-3", counts Walter Andrews as he sweeps his date across the dance floor.

There's nothing
we can't do because . . .

This Is Our Life

Lab partners, Jim Justice and Susan Leonard, work closely during physics class.

Senior Drum Major Jill Callaghan, shows her pride.

Not all the spirit is in the stick with Senior Todd Elkins as "The Patriot."

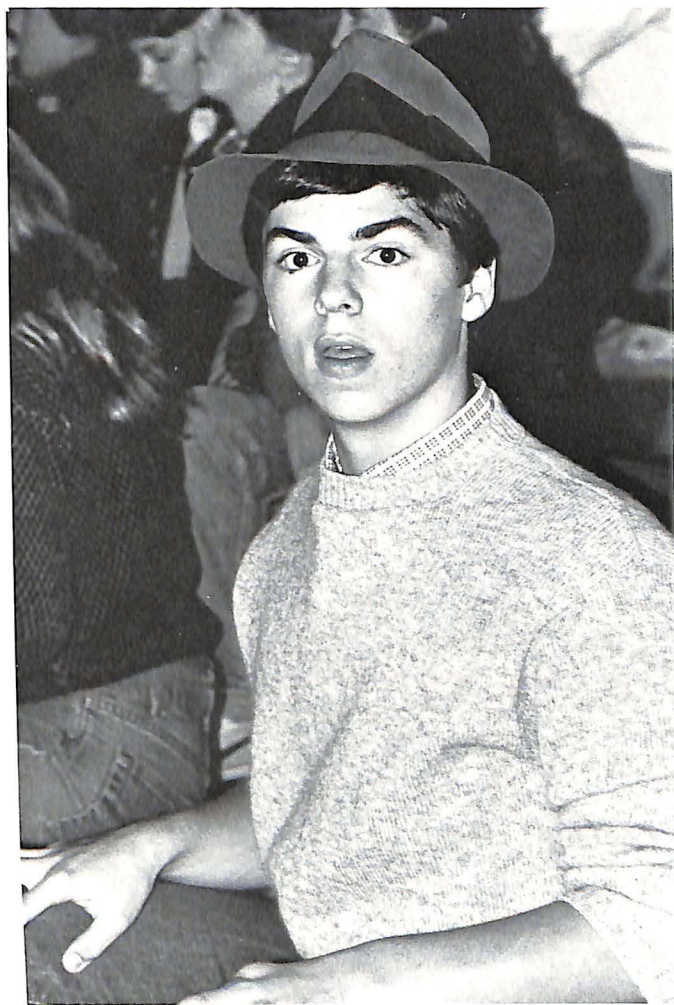

"All right men, I want you to get out there and . . ." informs Coach Dent.

"Raindrops aren't falling on our heads" say Sophomores Sharon Holdren and Brenda Byrd.

"I can stay up 'til midnight but my hat has to be in by 10:30," says Senior, Allen Wilson.

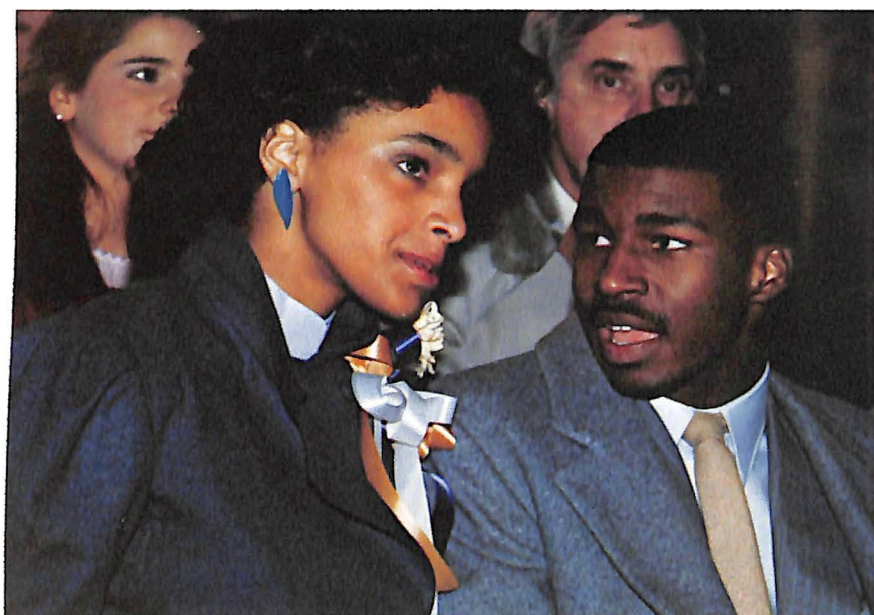

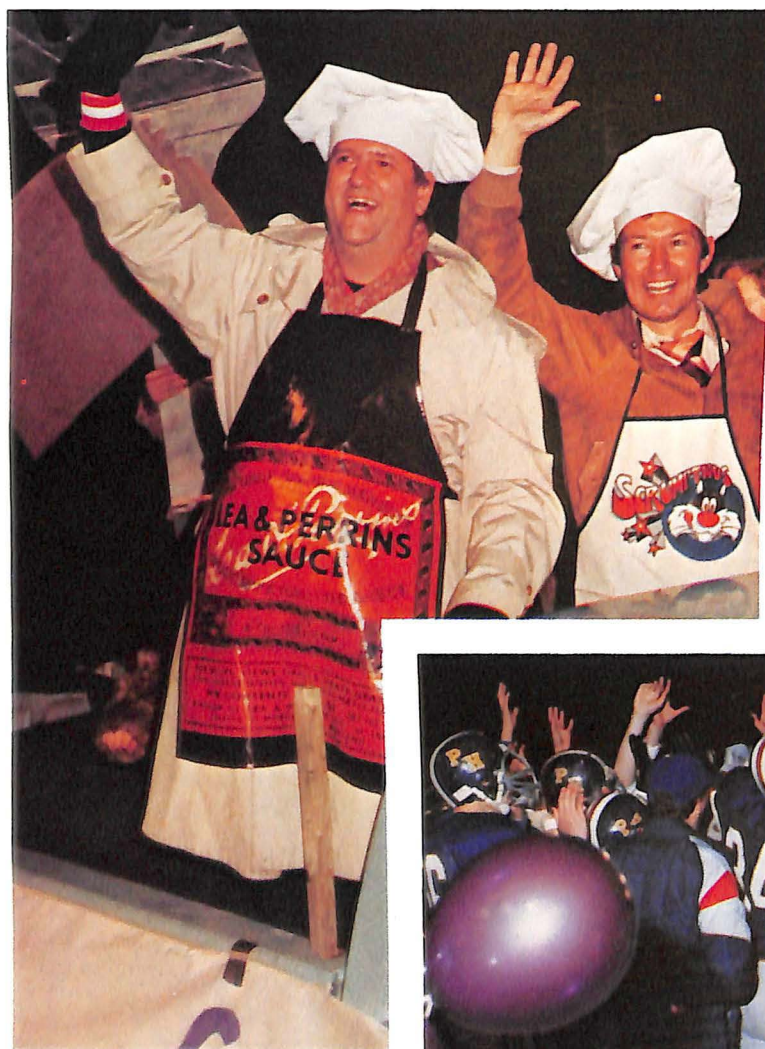

Having planned ahead for the cold weather, Crystal Manns and Patrice Hollands brave the blustery breeze at the homecoming game.

There is no doubt which team Kim Harris favors.

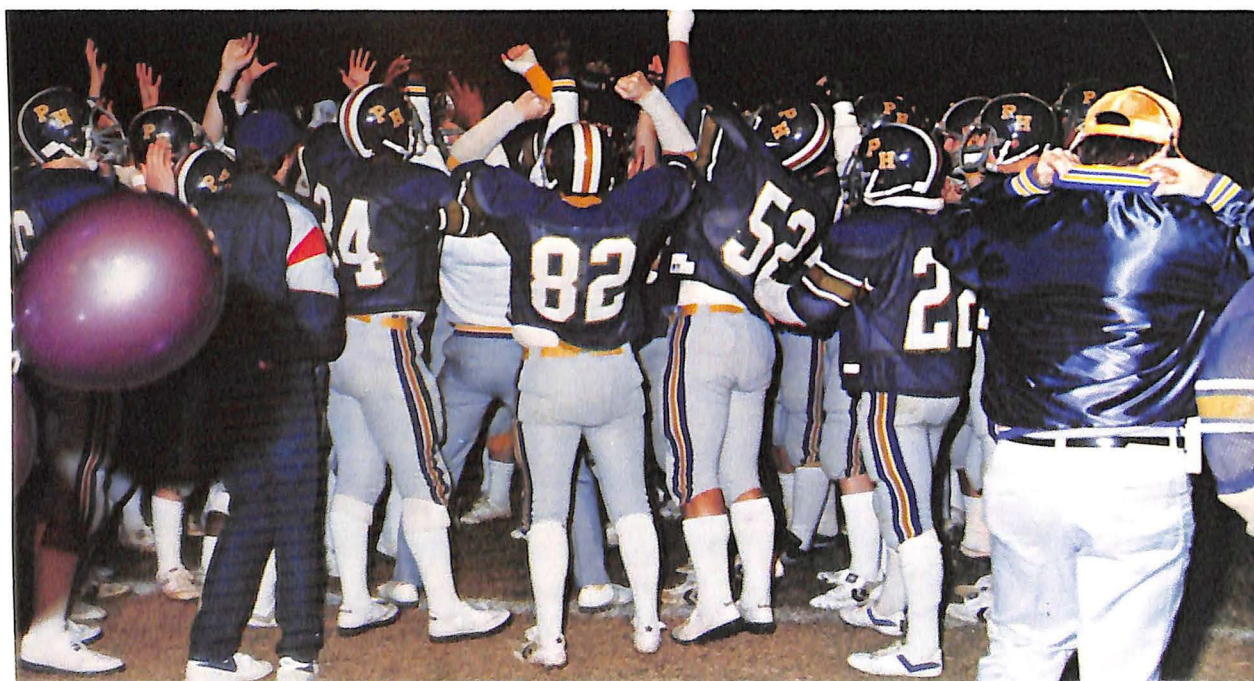

Facing freezing temperatures, Neil Brenner asks, "Volleyball anyone?"

If you ask Laban Johnson and Larry Bly, "What's cookin'?", they'd tell you, "Cougar Stew!"

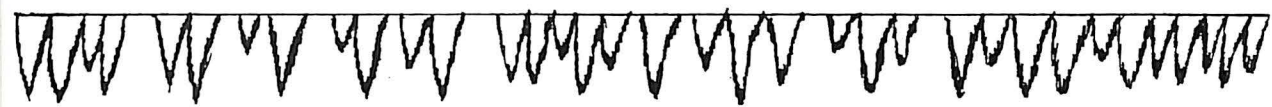

Kelly Crouse and friend discuss plans for the upcoming evening.

Getting fired up for the second half, the Patriots huddle together for warmth.

The Dance That Almost Wasn't

1983
Christmas Court

The night of December 21, 1983 was a cold, icy night. Would the dance scheduled for nine o'clock still be on? The band was the Dynamic Upsetters and the place was the Patrick Henry Hotel, downtown Roanoke. The outcome was better than expected, while couples came in out of the cold to dance the night away.

Senior attendants were Andrea Marshall — Princess, Clifford Jarrett — Prince, Paul Gee — King, Jennie Nease — Queen, Stephen Kepley, Lisa Kelley, and Missy Mack.

Junior attendants for the 1983 Christmas Court were Lorenzell Wilson, Deborah Stuart, Robbie Rich, Krissy Snipes, Ben Comer, Elizabeth Vail, Chuck Beasley, and Angie Wakeland.

Sophomore attendants for the 1983 Christmas Court were C.W. Connors, Anne LaMay, Stephen Waskey, Anne Paige Thomas, Barry Ducherson, Meredith Smith, and Mark Hackler.

King Paul Gee and Queen Jennie Nease, of 1983 Christmas Dance.

SUNDAY	MONDAY	TUESDAY	WEDNESD
	Week	end Han	gouts

The Canopy restaurant was full of the P.H. crowd dancing away on Sunday nights.

Scott Avis tries to out-do Ralph Sampson as he towers over the others.

After a rough week at school, P.H. Patriots looked forward to the weekends. Patriots did a variety of things throughout the weekends from attending sporting events to going to parties. Look almost anywhere and you can find Patriots. Walking around Tanglewood, going to movies, or just a group of friends gathered at Hardee's catching up on "the latest." No matter where they were or what they were doing, P.H. Patriots knew the meaning of the word "fun."

A crowd-pleasing Friday night game always brought the fans out in force.

THURSDAY	FRIDAY	SATURDAY

Placing an order at Hardees, J. T. Stone and David Parker wait for the rest of the crowd to arrive.

Yawning from too much dancing, Kim Stanly gets back to it on the dance floor.

Skiing on the slopes of the Homestead, Andrea Dixon and Liz Bradshaw pause for a "cool" look.

The Hardee's sign marked a famous landmark on most weekends.

$tudent Earning

"It's mine, all mine!" exclaims Holten Austin.

"They didn't leave a tip," thinks Alvis Tucker at the Holiday Inn Tanglewood.

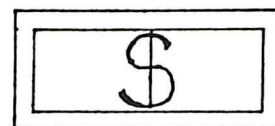

During the school year, it seemed to be important to have a job. Many of the students did.

Tanglewood, with its many stores, was a popular place for students to find work. Having money was one thing, and spending it was another. It was much easier to spend money than make it, especially on weekends and during a R o a m i n g through Tanglewood, caught some students working and buying.

Lisa Kelly looks tired after a long days work at Sidney's in Tanglewood.

and $pending

Oh no!, Here comes the Cookie Monster!," exclaims Beth Keenie and Kim McMillan.

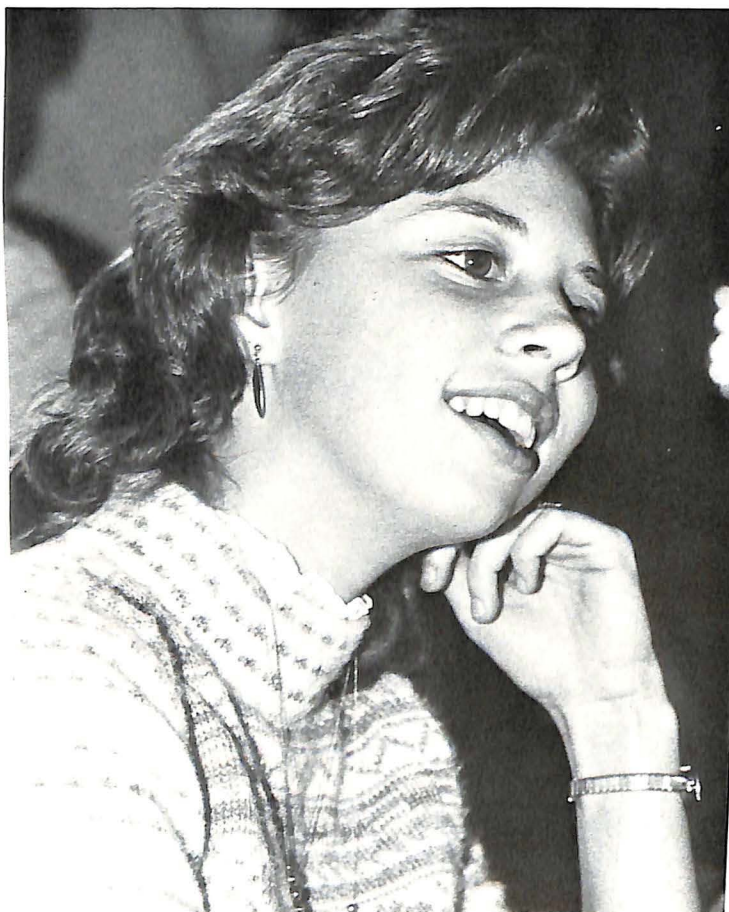

"Wow, this is just like the one Luke Skywalker had!" exclaims an excited Bryan Meador.

Robbie Rich spent some of his hard earned money at Spencer's in Tanglewood.

"This is Lane Bryant's finest selection," says Simone Grogans.

NAMES AND NUMBERS

A Tribute To Our Principal Man

Known affectionately as "Pops" to some, Mr. Graybill is no ordinary man. He is the backbone supporting Patrick Henry High School. When asked about his hobbies, he replied "My real hobby is Patrick Henry." An avid supporter of both the athletic and fine arts programs, Mr.

Graybill finds his calendar filled with plans pertaining to these two fields. Mr. Graybill candidly remarked, "I have always been better at watching than playing."

Born and educated in Roanoke, Virginia, Mr. Graybill furthered his education by graduating from National Business College in Roanoke and Roanoke College in Salem, Virginia in 1956 with a BA degree in history. He also obtained his Master's Degree in school administration from Virginia Tech, in addition to graduate work at UVA and George Peabody College in Nashville, Tennessee.

Mr. Graybill's diversity has been demonstrated throughout his career. Not only has he been Principal of Patrick Henry High School for ten years, but he was Principal at Jefferson High, Breckenridge Junior High, and the original Dean in Smith Hall at William Fleming. He also taught History and Government, and was a guidance counselor at William Fleming.

He has served as: Vice President for the Roanoke Education Association, Chairman of AAA Principals, treasurer and member of the Board of Directors for VEA. He was also a delegate to the 1972 World Teaching Conference.

He was active in Jaycees and is a Roanoke Valley Council of Committee Services Board Member.

Other hobbies Mr. Graybill enjoys away from his profession include bridge, and working on old cars. He has a '54 Woody station wagon and three Pontiacs, one a '61 and the others '64's. "The problem with my away from school hobbies is finding time for them!" exclaims Mr. Graybill.

Day in and day out, Mr. Graybill continues to dedicate his time and energies to the students. It is with great affection and pleasure that we dedicate the 1984 Patriot to Mr. Jack Graybill.

A familiar sight around campus is our leader, setting an example of how to keep P.H. beautiful.

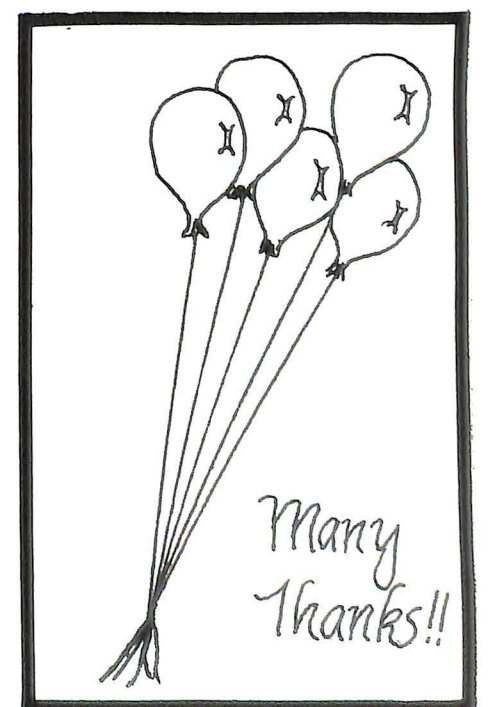

Mr. Graybill congratulates the award winning AFJ ROTC staff.

Mr. Graybill proudly displays a souvenir from the Patrick Henry Players production "A Christmas Carol."

Mr. Graybill shares a joke with Homecoming Queen Mary Catherine Ewert and her escort.

Hobbies of Teachers

Many teachers at Patrick Henry have interesting hobbies. Ralph Knight is building an airplane in his basement "because it is just a thing no one else would think of doing."

Mike Sisler loves to snow ski, work on his Triumph and go to the beach to "watch girls in their bikinis."

Beverly Smithson enjoys tennis, bridge, antiques, aerobics and of course people.

Who knows? You could end up beside Mrs. Smithson on an aerobic's mat, or find you are the one being watched in your bikini by Mr. Sisler!

PH Sweeties

The faculty of Patrick Henry boasts a pair of sweethearts, Martha and Gene Ferguson. Mrs. Ferguson is an English teacher, and Mr. Ferguson is the choir director. Both are graduates of Jefferson High School, though they did not attend at the same time.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson are fond of teaching at PH. "I've always wanted to teach and I still want to teach," said Mrs. Ferguson. She thinks that PH is the best school in which she has ever taught.

Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson have been married "for a long time." As for Mr. Ferguson's opinion of marriage, "I've been married a heck of a long time — all my life. It better be good!"

Complete With Art Displays and Meaningful Media, Our Library Is More Than Just Books

The library serves the students in more ways than one. The students of PH often go to the library to do research, check out books, or write papers. Or do they? The library is used by the students as a reference center and a Junior Achievement meeting place; but there are also other ways. It is often used as a rendezvous place. Gossip is told behind the books. Students have even found ways to hide from the ever watching eyes of the librarian in order to hold hands, to sneak food or even to kiss. The library is open at the beginning of each school day until 4:00 p.m. But don't be too obvious, check out a book every once in a while, otherwise the librarians may become suspicious!

It's about time Theresa Derrow found that elusive book!

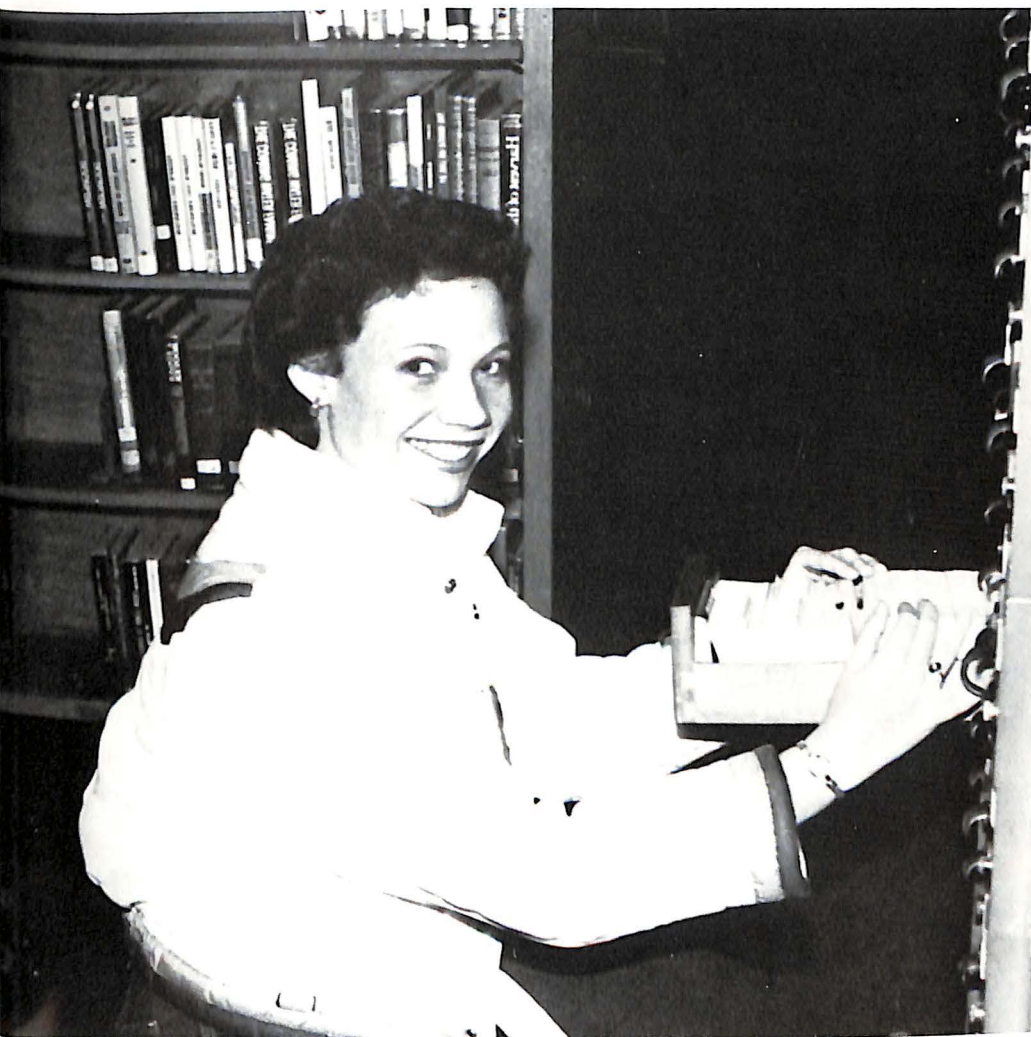

Seeking sanctuary in the library, Clifford Jarrett puts the final touch on his CITY School paper.

Always delighted to get books back before the due date, Mrs. Paye congratulates seniors Danet Bratton and Willie Hightower.

"You say you're looking for the cliff notes to WHAT?!" Mrs. Paye responds in astonishment.

If reading puts David Williams to sleep, he might as well be prepared for a comfortable snooze.

"William, Williams, Williamson ..." Mrs. Pitzer, Head Librarian, searches for the right book.

Paperwork is the main body of a librarian's work! Ms. Caldwell can tell you all about it!

The Guidance Department Always Gives

A Helping Hand

What makes a good guidance department? A group of five hard-working people, who like to work closely with young people. These people are an important part of PH. Though the responsibilities have grown over the years, nothing seems to stop these workaholics.

The four hall counselors, seeing a total of three hundred fifty students or more each, try to steer them into the direction of their goals. It's not an easy job. The year starts off with setting up schedules and schedule changes. After doing this, the counselors start figuring out senior credits and senior class ranks. The schedule changes flow throughout the year. Setting up programs on college information for seniors, as well as juniors, is next on the list.

Mr. Kepley, the head of the guidance department, feels that his main responsibility is to coordinate all programs, such as testing, and seeing that the programs are carried out. Preparations for this job are essential. Many times, the job runs over into the night.

The guidance department requires quite a list of credentials from its guidance counselors. While obtaining a B.A. in Guidance, they must take psychology, sociology and other courses during their college years.

Guidance isn't all work. Often people come in to ask for advice. "You don't even have to answer them. Sometimes all it takes is for someone to listen," says Mr. Hancock, counselor of Penn Hall.

Mrs. Miller, counselor of McQuilkin Hall, works closely with the educational, personal, and social aspects of counseling.

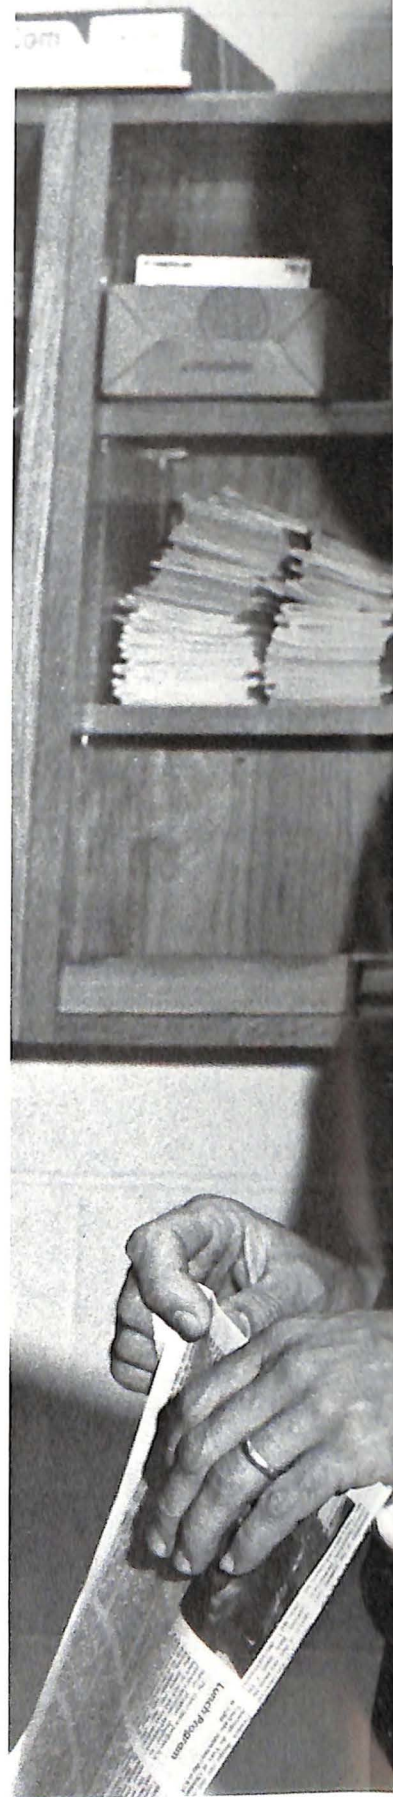

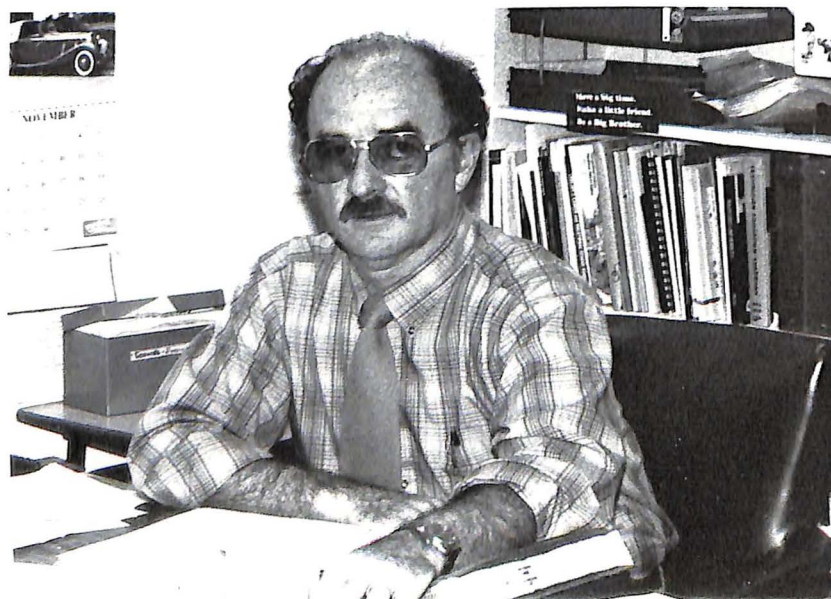

Ms. Brown, counselor of Parsons Hall, also feels that the responsibilities have grown over the years and she has seen a lot of changes taking place in past years.

This year Patrick Henry added a new member to the guidance staff. Miss Divers says, "I like to see students learn." Miss Divers is a former English teacher who wants to work with students and help them grow and develop into what they want to be.

It is obvious that John Bradshaw knows Mrs. Miller is right.

Helping out is the only part of Mr. Hancock's job description.

The phone serves as a direct connection between Ms. Brown's students and the outside world.

Heading the guidance department is not always such a breeze for Mr. Kepley.

It looks as if Miss Divers really enjoys her new job.

The desire to learn in a new and exciting setting found the CITY School students Going the Extra Mile

CITY School
Many CITY School students from Patrick Henry went hungry this year. Instead of using first lunch for its intended purpose, CITY Schoolers scribbled answers to reading quizzes, government worksheets, journals, and any other assignments due at 12:15 when they reached the Center for Instructionally Talented Youth.

It seemed that the hardest thing about CITY School this year was not so much the "lunchtime shuffle", but the attempt to achieve a balance. Balance was necessary between CITY School homework and homework from other classes, between time spent on extracurricular activities and even between socializing with CITY School friends and socializing with those friends who stayed at P.H. in the afternoons.

One thing that made CITY School different from Patrick Henry was the additional course requirement of Honors Seminar. Few minded, though, as it was a favorite of the students. Honors Seminar is divided into two parts: a 100 hour internship with a local organization and a lecture series. The lectures cover topics as diverse as "Co-education in College" and "Understanding Art." The students are also given creative projects such as stock investment and arranging art shows. Though quite enjoyable, Honors Seminar added many hours to the dedicated students' study time.

CITY School was a lot of hard work with little glory. The teachers, Louise Patterson, Nancy Patterson, Shirley Wingo, and William Houser teach at CITY School because of their joy in teaching rather than the ease of the hours. At times, the hours can be tedious and extend far beyond normal.

CITY School has its benefits also. It provides an opportunity to try something new. The thoughts of Louise Patterson sum up what CITY School is: "There are two distinct things that I like about CITY School: the variety and the intimacy. These are two qualities that are very important in education."

Would the students do it again?

Probably.

Was it worth it?

Ask again in a couple of years.

A thirst for knowledge motivates Linda Sims in A.P. English.

CITY School students take time out for a group picture.

First row: Jaison Annarino, Elizabeth Ewert, Beth Levine, Teresa Warren, Alex Apostolou, Sarah Handley, Rhonda Shepherd, Linda Sims, Ann Claire Johnson, and Robin Jamison

CITY School students Tracy Smithson, Susie Harris, Mark Boone, and Ty Witt work diligently on their assignment.

Contemplating the existentialist's philosophy, Howard Boggess is puzzled.

"You've got to be kidding me!" seems to be Ty Witt's reaction toward a fellow classmate.

Ready Or Not This Is The Computer Age

Computers are the keys to success and can perform multiple functions. The amount that they can do depends upon the sophistication of the computers. They can be especially programmed to do certain jobs. Computers already run companies and give advice on major problems. Computers are only as smart as the person who programs them. They can be programmed to do such things as averaging, listing names and numbers, producing lengthy programs and other time-consuming tasks. Computers are the most efficient way to solve problems in today's world.

As people are realizing the computers are needed, teachers are also realizing this. Our data processing teachers go to classes to learn more about computers.

With computers running our needs in society, a great space has been opened in this field. The computer age is only beginning and it opens a new experience with many opportunities for everyone.

"Computers are human tool!" believes Brian Adkins as he checks his IBM against his trusty calculator.

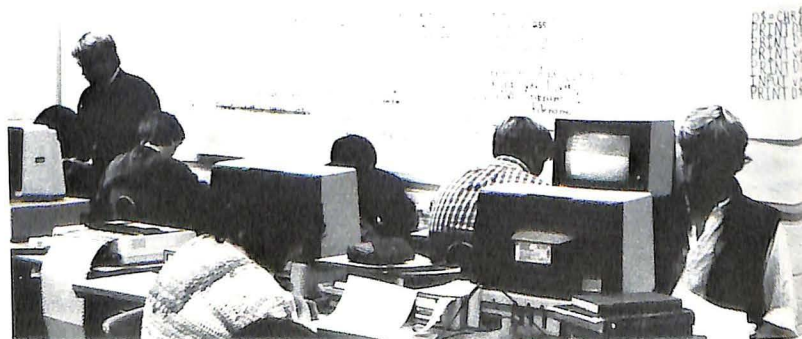

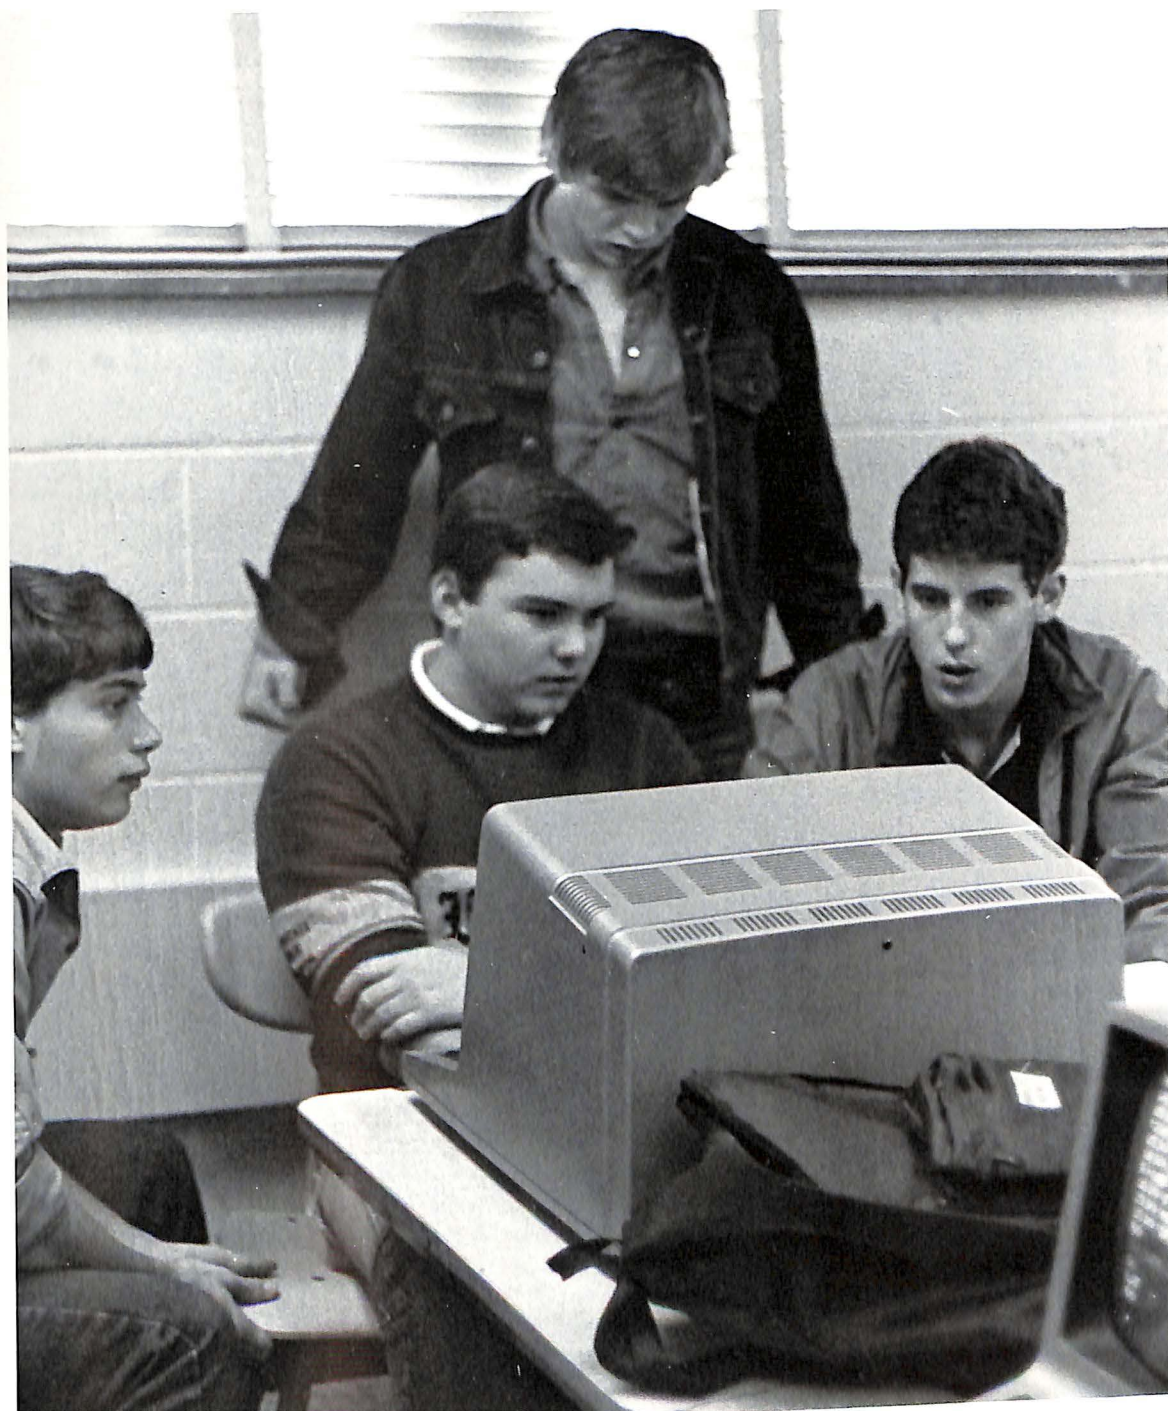

Confident in what she's doing, Jenny Smith programs her source code.

It takes two to compute as Howard Boggess shows Susan Leonard exactly what to do.

Words of the wise have to be listed on the walls for quick reference!

Totally engrossed in the abilities of their little box, Holton Austin, Tim Hawk, Mark Moss and Clifford Jarrett can't believe their eyes.

Getting this last program in on time is Kim Harris' main objective.

Sometimes even the simplest programs can drive anybody, even Jim Justice, over the edge.

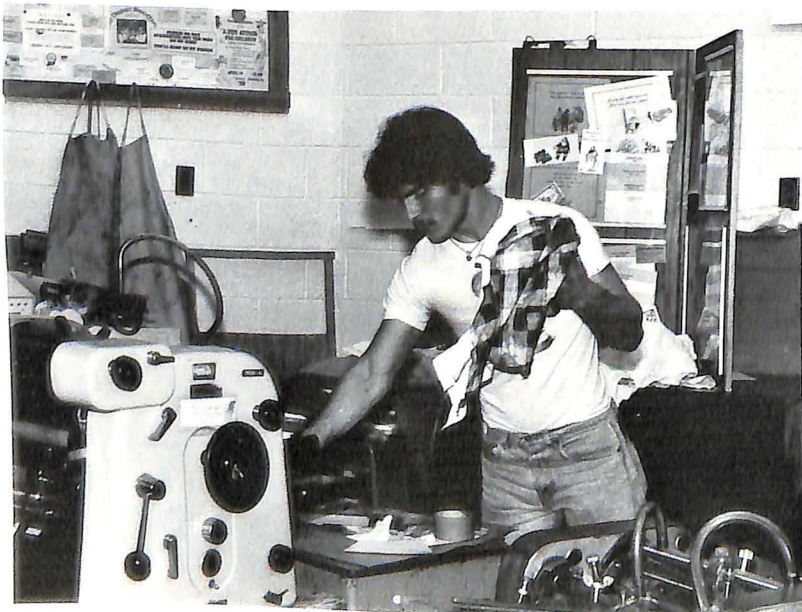

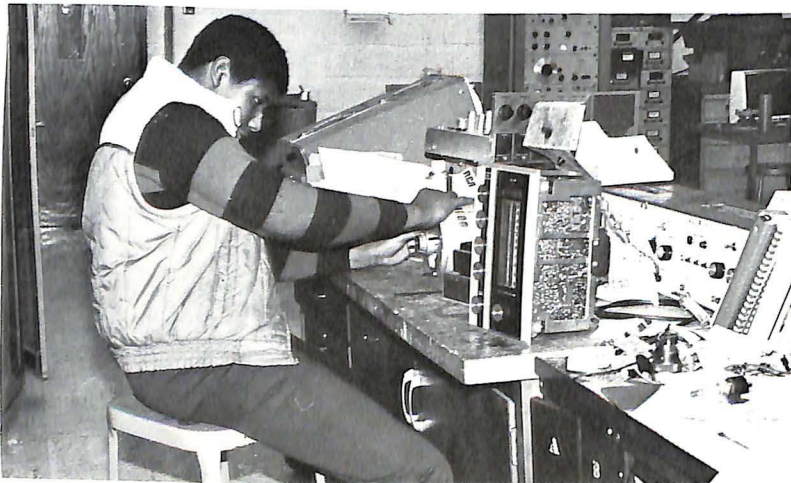

Careful thought and determination are essential for the success of Mack McGhee's computer program.

VoTech

Vo Tech is a job training program that began six years ago. The classes are held in Gibboney Hall in conjunction with the Lawson Center at William Fleming. Electronics, welding, Health Occupations, machine shop, printing, cosmetology, auto body repair, auto mechanics, and carpentry cabinet making are only some of the skills offered. Students get on-the-job experience by offering services for very low prices. Some of the services include haircuts, car painting and repairing.

Skills for tomorrow are learned today.

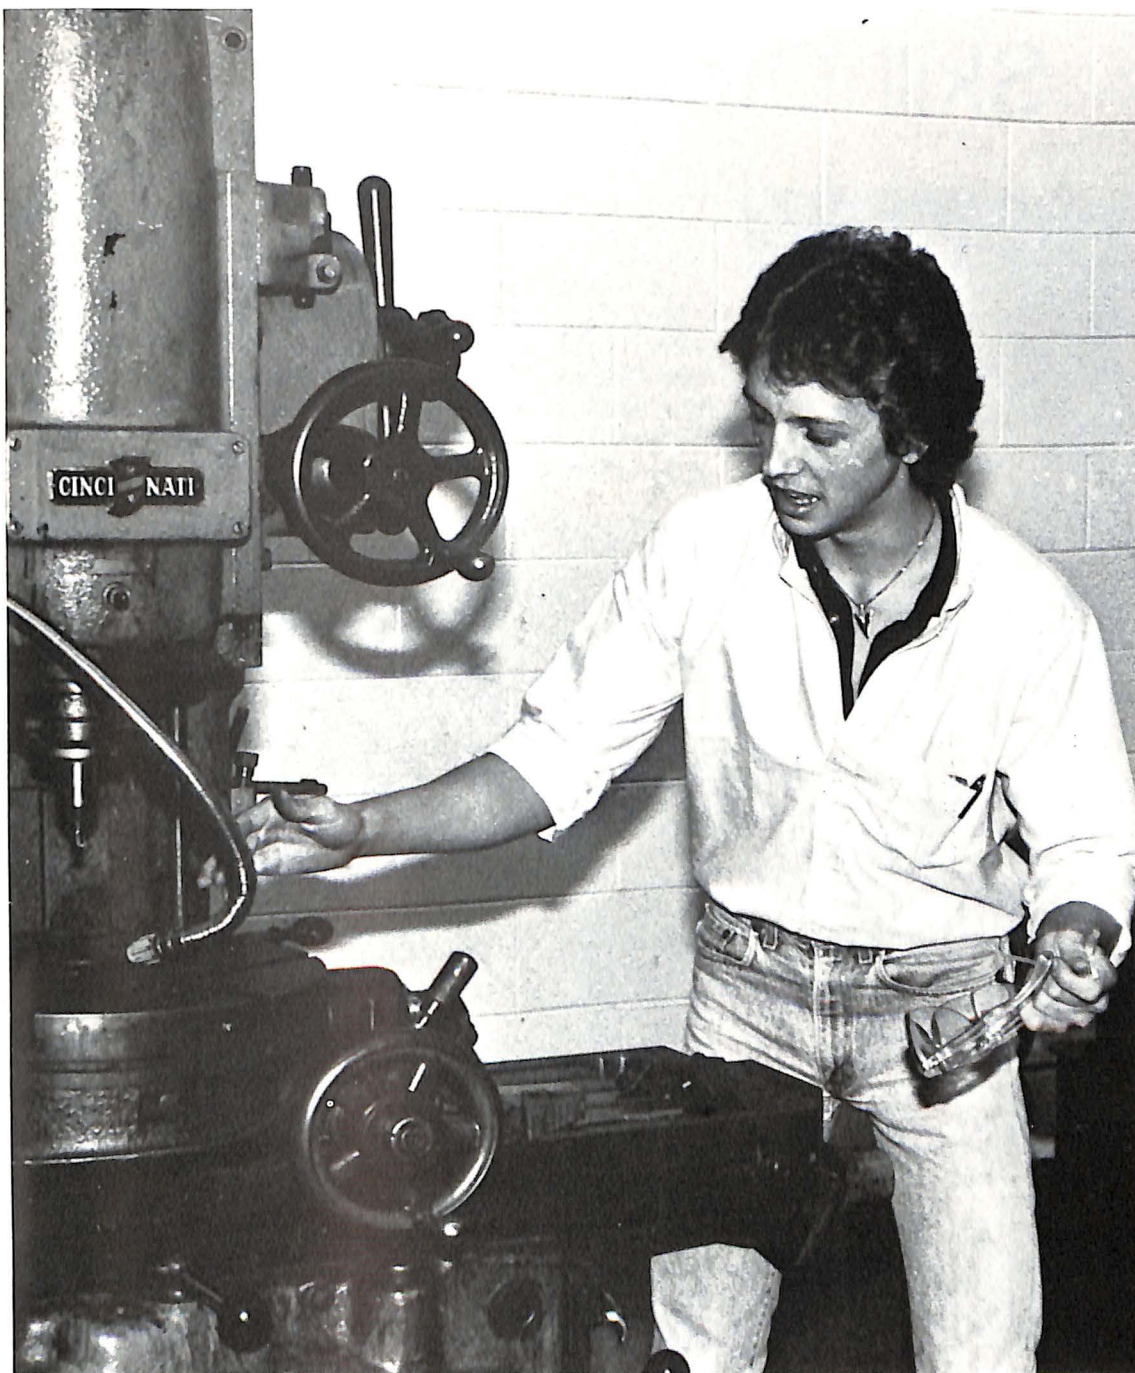

It's amazing the little maze of copper that makes Nathaniel Write's box talk.

Attending classes at Vo Tech has taught Carl Beckner how to service mechanical equipment.

Heeding the warning, Glenn Hilton is cautious of his safety.

A clean machine is a happy machine, believes Tommy Bruce.

Under total control, Glenn Hilton attacks this machine from behind.

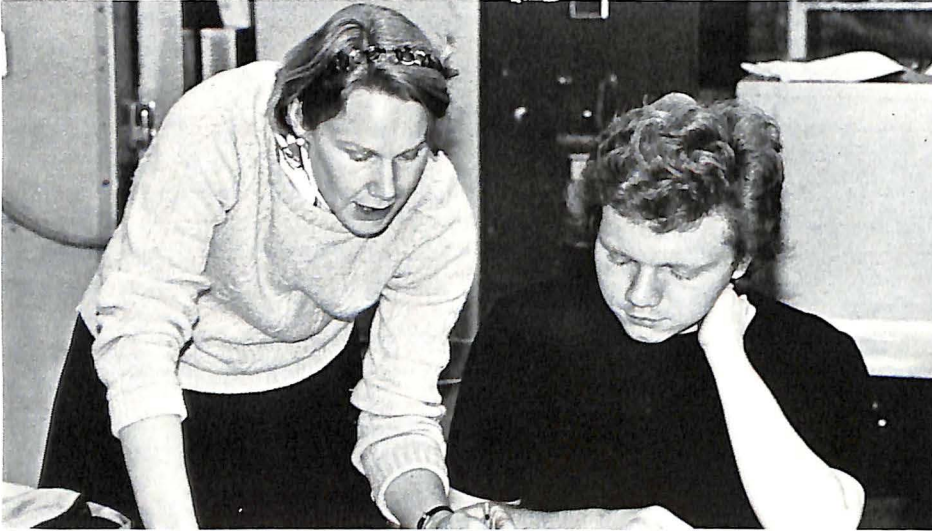

Seeming angelic, Sam Hughes would never dream of being mischievous.

"Look! Both hands all clean!" boasts Ray Sterns as Jeff Phillips and Jimmy Moran don't seem to show as much enthusiasm.

Skill Out!

Art

When scheduling time rolls around each year, many students question their course choices. If they would only take a little time to explore Patrick Henry's Art department, they would find that the question is not so difficult after all. The high quality of the students' work makes an art class a must on the list of priorities.

Much of the art department's success is due to Mrs. Felty, the department head. Because of her, the school has seen many young artists develop and go on to utilize their special talent in careers.

Though academic courses are necessary, a broad education is always enhanced by courses of other types. The excellence of the art department makes it an intelligent option.

"UmmHumm . . . I see what you mean" says Tony Underwood as the teacher helps him get the right effect.

It's back to the drawing board for Ronnie Bowles' in Architectural Drawing.

Gym

A requirement for the sophomores was gym class. Gym class involved many activities, some of which included golf, lacrosse, football, volleyball, basketball, and sports including field, team and both individual, and dual programs. Gym was taken as the second half of the Health and Physical Education course.

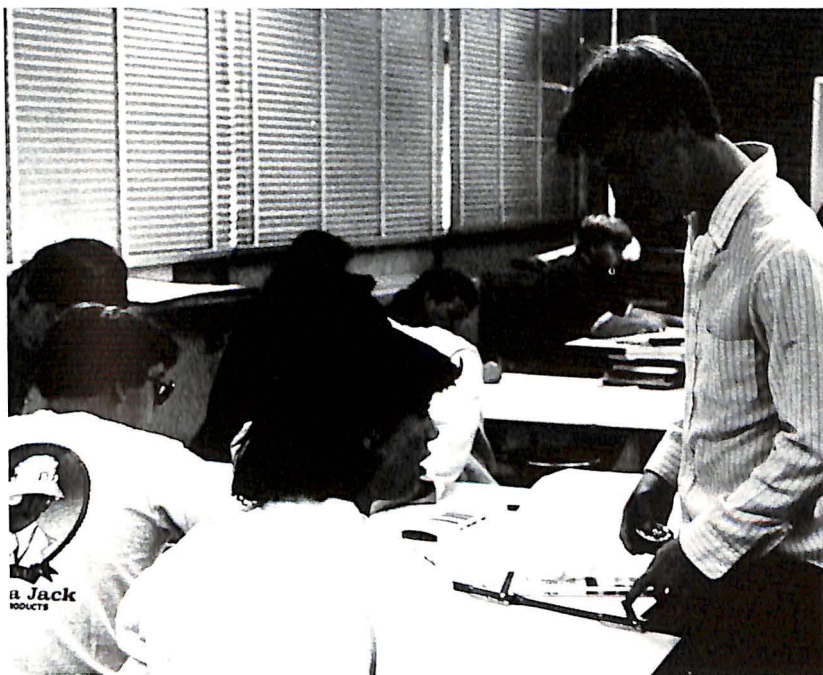

Home Economics

Home Economics has been a class worth taking this year. Students learned to take care of children, run a household, and much more. Once thought of as a class for girls, guys can also learn the importance of taking home economics. Taking home economics can benefit a person's whole life.

Health Education

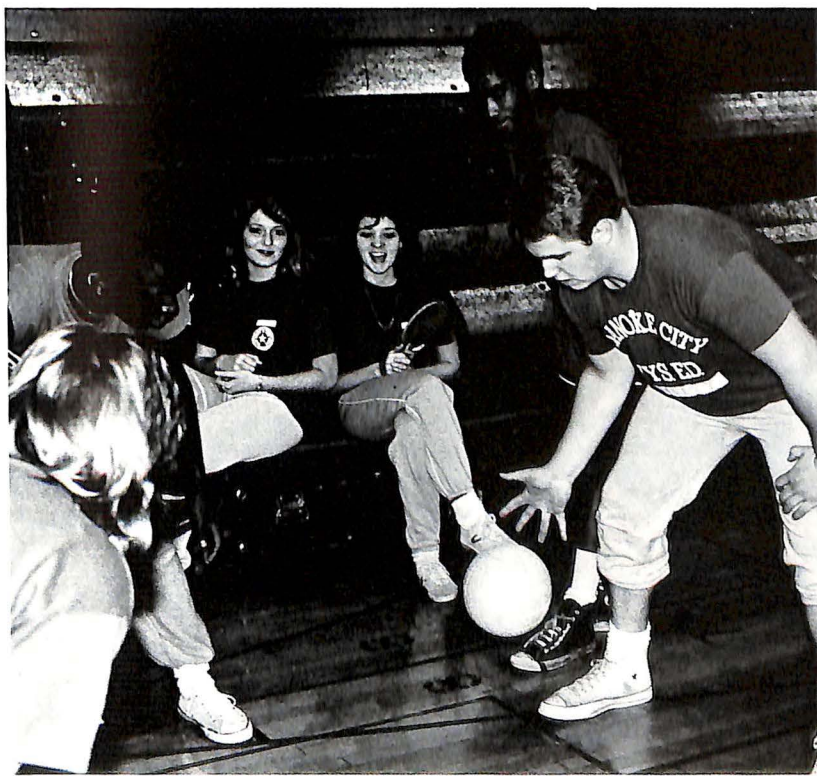

Health Education is a Virginia Graduation requirement. Taken one semester of the sophomore year, Health Education covers the areas of consumer health, mental health, and the prevention and control of disease.

"NO I don't have any charcoal that you can have" insists Kathy Kistler.

Architectural Drawing

Architectural Drawing is a course that is taught by Mr. Andrew McClung. The course is offered in two periods consisting of a total of forty students. Those students can obtain up to a three year degree in architecture. In architecture, blueprints are drawn up and projects consisting of constructing and building houses are completed. Mr. McClung plans to take a few field trips this year, and admits "Architecture is a course that's growing."

4-square has never been so much fun as it was for Tim Barger, except maybe for spectators Sharon Holdren and Patty Neighbors.

MEMO: Business Department

The business department at Patrick Henry has a lot to offer students. Its purpose is to prepare students for the challenges of the business world and to "whet their appetites" in case they decide to major in business.

There are various courses offered to students in this department, such as Shorthand, Typing, Accounting, Business Law, Computers, General Business, and Data Processing. Depending on the courses a student takes, he or she can prepare for General Office and Administrative Support, Secretarial and Word Processing Support, or Business and Data Processing.

Business courses are designed to help the student with occupational preparation which includes individual leadership training, basic business knowledge and career exploration.

Three groups are associated with this department. FBLA (Future Business Leaders of America)

Business department head, Mrs. McMinnis works diligently to keep ahead of the paper work.

is a national organization open to any student enrolled in at least one business class. Students have the opportunity to learn more about the business world and leadership. The Office Services Club promotes better human relations and gives students a chance to learn what it's like to work in an office. DECA is a distributive education program which lets students participate in community affairs.

The business teachers are proud of their department and all that it offers prospective students. Knowing about business is an important step in planning for one's career and a step that should not be taken lightly.

Giving herself a break from the computer, Elizabeth Ewert wonders if it will ever end.

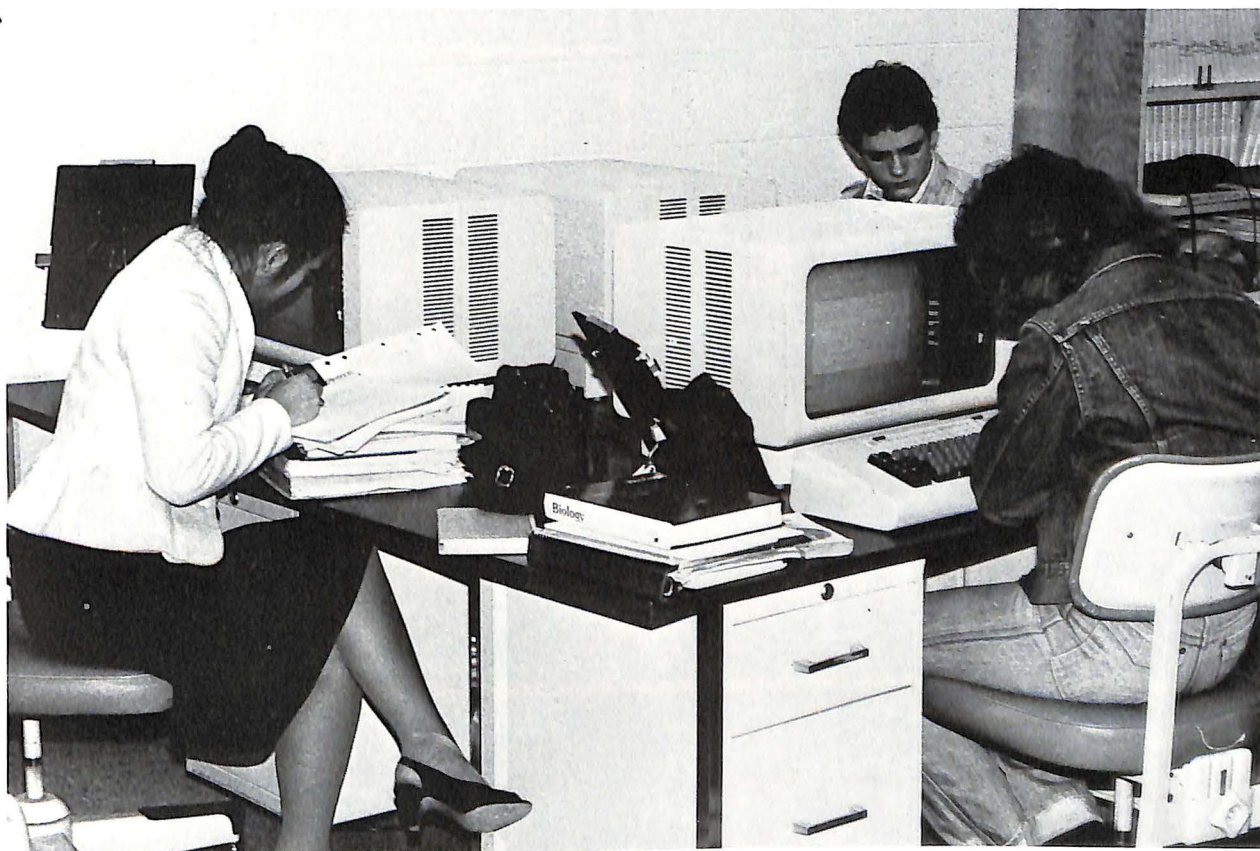

"A secretary's job is not all work, you have to relax sometime," insists Sandy Goode.

"Shorthand due when?!" expresses Pam Kelly.

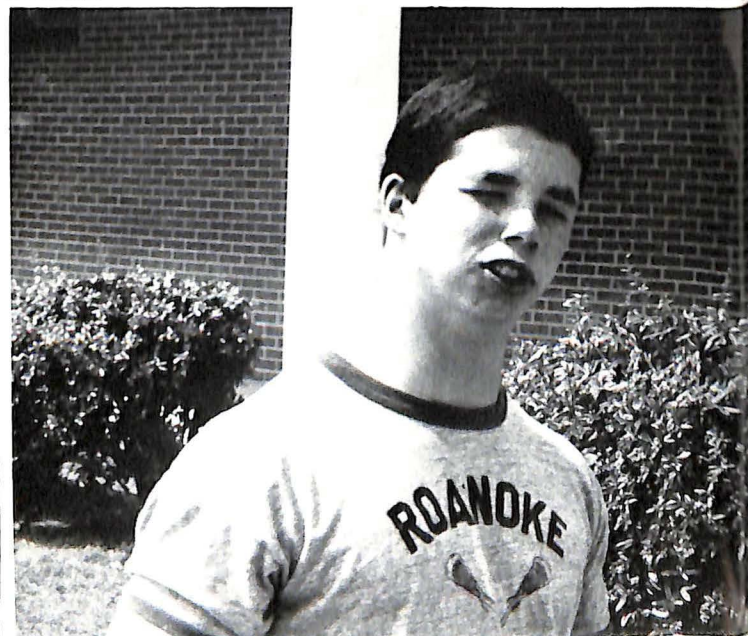

What is the world coming to when Ivory Combs has to use the computer for her everyday homework?

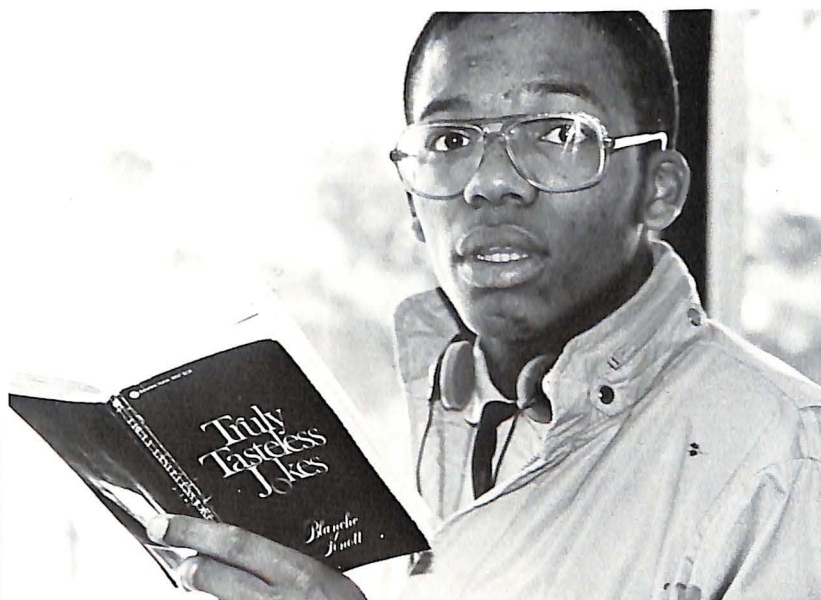

Even seniors Susan Shober and Richard Scully take typing to prepare for college.

Mrs. McMinnis helps Rhonda Hayes with her Data Processing.

THE NAME OF THE GAME

Our 3-7 Season
Paved the Way to

A Time For Building

Before P.H. students even thought about school or homework, our Patriot football players were out practicing plays and strategies for the upcoming season. Most people don't realize the hard work and dedication that football players have to their team. Be-

Beginning the season on a heated Saturday night against William Fleming our team proved victorious and started the season off right.

The leadership of these coaches proved to be difficult to adjust to at first but they became well-respected as they proved themselves. Our head coach,

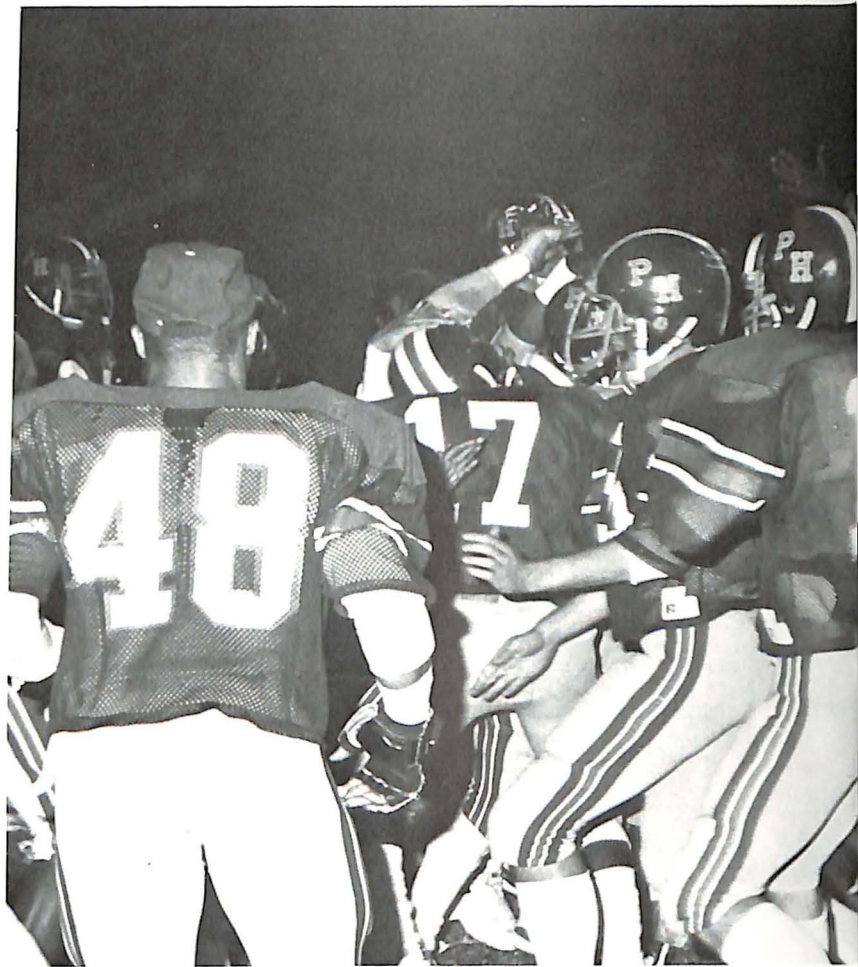

Coach Larry Carter, from Hopewell seemed to fit right in as a leader and became the force of the team. Our other coaches; Lou Barlow, Michael La Brie, Joe Fraley, and Frank Dent are all new to P.H. but became true Patriots as they lead our team. Our one remaining Coach from last year, Coach Mike Andrews was an "inspiration" to the team and always had confidence throughout the season. One coach commented that he felt that the staff was "close knit" and the team was "well organized."

Beginning the season on a heated Saturday night against our top rival, William Flemming, our team proved victorious and started the season off right. The Colonels higher ranked in the polls than the Patriots made the victory even better. Other rival games, Cave Spring and a second meeting with the Colonels, this time counting for the district boosted our team with two more victories.

Our coaching staff that was depleted after the 82-83 school year was replenished by 5 new coaches.

Even though our Patriot team didn't have a winning season, the motivation and effort was there in every game. The last yard run in the Pulaski game was just another yard gained for the P.H. pride now and in the future.

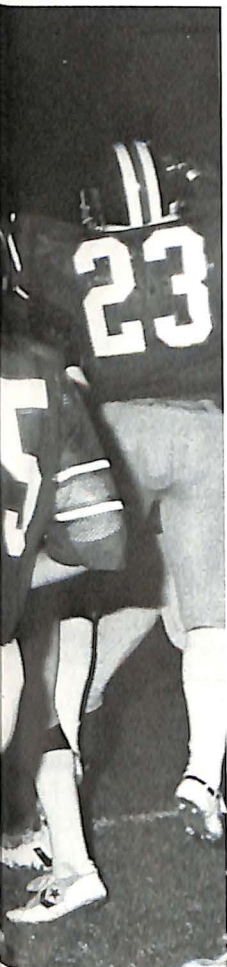

Sometimes it seems as if everyone has to get into the Act!

The Patriots get to the center of things.

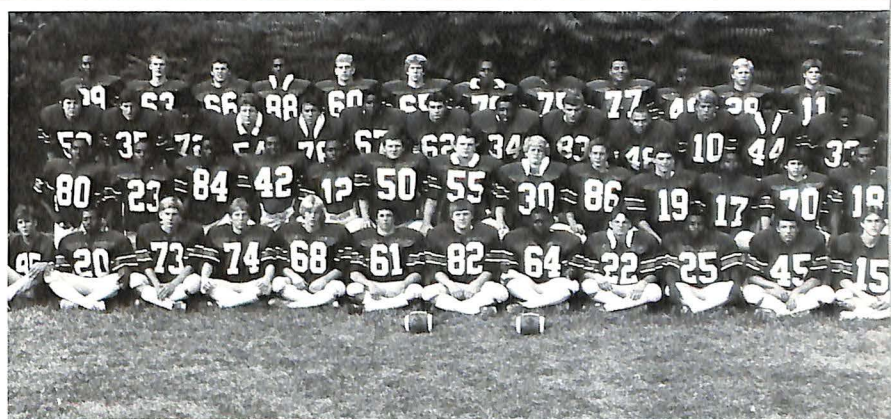

Catch me if you can!

Hidden Talent

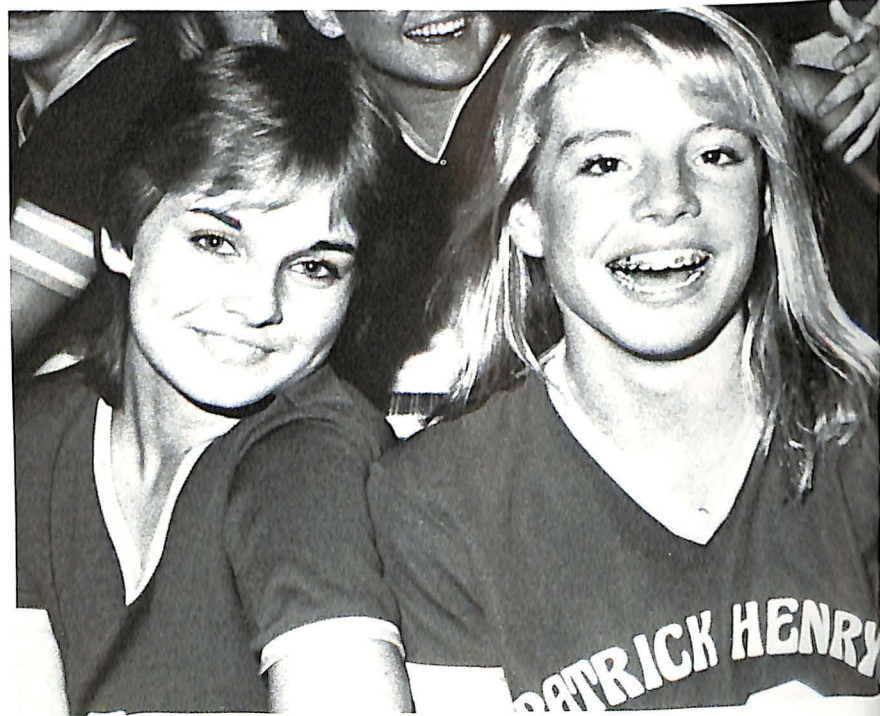

This season has been described in different ways — relaxed, nervous, and nonchalant. Though the team worked hard all season, it never reached the peak that was obtained by winning the district title last year. Though only reaching runner-up position, the lady Patriots showed their stuff. Whoever coined the old cliché, "You can't keep a good team down," must have been thinking of the Patriot volleyball team. Ranking fourth out of seven before tournament games, gave the impression that the team had "nothing to lose". This attitude gave them a hidden strength. Though only ranked fourth, there was a deep desire to finish in a blaze of glory. This desire to win, without the fear of losing, carried our team through a great victory in the first of three tournament games. The second game, against first ranked Pulaski County, seemed to be a scrimmage. The attitude of "nothing to lose" shook the Cougars. "They were so psyched-out that they couldn't keep up. They had everything to lose and they knew it. After this upset, the second ranked team — Franklin County, thought that they had it made. The Patriots' attitude shone through again and made the perfect setting for an exciting game. "Wanting to win the district title again went straight to the heads of our players." Realizing what was happening to them, the Patriots stuck with Franklin County. Bringing themselves from fourth to runner-up for district title made the players recognize their hidden talent.

Terry Hatcher and Suzanne Blackburn show how scared they are of the opposite team.

The team huddles together to discuss their awesome game plan while Michelle Kirby seems interested in something else.

Friends through thick and through thin, Melinda Taylor, Amy Wood and Michelle Kirby show the close bond that exists between volleyball players.

Determination To It's Height

Our Patriot Pride led our basketball team to a season that could keep us happy. Our seniors returning from last year were David Fields, Nate Martin, and David Parker. Even though this year was listed as a growing year, our Patriots showed the fans what they were made of. Coach Woody Deans, moving up from J.V., provided the leadership that took our Patriots to a winning season.

Not Too Young To Win!

The strong, supportive direction of the 83-84 coaching staff aided the players in their attempts. The team was made up of all new talent in the basketball category.

The members' determination proved strong enough to drive them for perfection in their playing. Each member of the team put forth his own efforts to form an unbeatable group of able sportsmen.

The J.V. players will advance to the varsity team next year adding strength and versatility to the varsity team for 1984-85.

Patriot Women on the Ball

Under the guidance of Ms. Wright and assisted by Mr. Woods, our "Lady Patriots" had an outstanding season. Gaining many new players and learning along the way; brings back memories of last year's grand victories.

Bringing forth their experience the juniors and one senior, practiced and taught the sophomores the skill and agility that won so many games last year.

This year stopped spectators hearts more than once. When P. H. was losing and time was running out, our players came through and we had the final upset. Maybe, our team, likes to score the audience. Evidently it keeps them coming back for more.

"A team that plays together stays together," expresses the team, in their huddle.

This Year, To The Golf Team The Grass Was Always Greener On The Other Side

This year has been a transitional period for the Patrick Henry golf team. Regardless of how hard they tried, it seemed to the golfers that the grass was always greener on the other team's side. Even though the team ended the year in 6th place, they remained undaunted by the season.

The team has high hopes for next year. This year, though, the team worked well under Coach Ferguson. Hopes fell a little short of the mark. John Sellers, the team's captain, says that "the team is young, but promising." Next year, Patrick Henry will be the team to watch. Through this year's experience the grass is going to get greener on Patrick Henry's side, too.

Contemplating his next move, John Sellers decides how he is going to make a hole in one.

The P. H. gymnastics team lacked the depth and experience to have a winning season. Jenny Repass, team captain, was the only senior and all others who competed were sophomores. However, individual wins were outstanding. Jenny had her best year of competition at P. H. with 12 first places, 7 seconds, 4 thirds, 4 fourths and 5 fifths. She placed in All-Around and in each event in every meet of the season.

Kelly Noell, had 2 firsts, 3 seconds, 1 third, 1 fourth and 2 fifths and was often second only to Jenny on the beam.

Amy Baker had 2 second places, 2 fourths and 1 fifth place.

Robin Richardson scored 1 third and 1 fourth place.

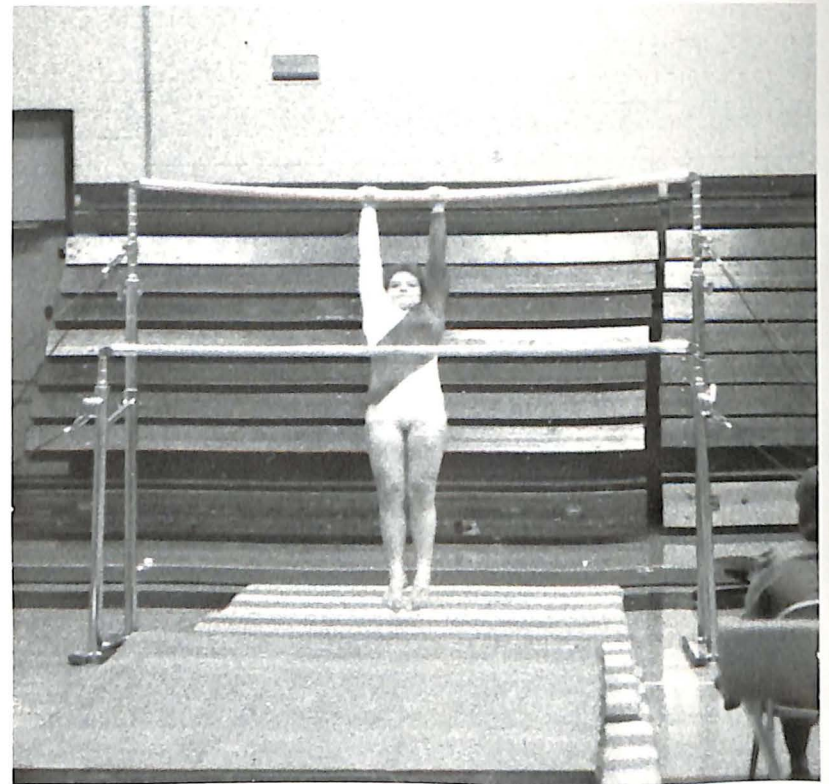

The team placed fifth in the Roanoke Valley District Meet. Jenny Repass was first on beam and third in All-Around and Kelly Noell tied for sixth place on beam. Both these gymnasts competed in the Northwest Regionals Meet.

The Take Down

This year's team, although young, showed enthusiasm and determination. Replacing the seniors from last year's district championship team was a "difficult task" but our young wrestlers (many in their first year of varsity competition) showed a great deal of improvement. Co-captains: Steve Hale and Bernard Lavendar helped Coach Sisler coach the young team.

This Year's Boys' Tennis Team Showed Their Style In

Courting Victory

The 1983-84 boys tennis team, in the words of coach George Carper, was "the best looking team I've seen at Patrick Henry in the past five years." At the beginning of the season it was obvious that being on the P.H. tennis team was something to be proud of with twenty-four students competing for a spot. Seniors, Alan Crookenden, Todd Elkins, Paul Gee, and Tim Hawk returned for their last year on the tennis team and ended it in style, displaying the excellent sportsmanship that is characteristic of fine players.

Before their first match with Franklin County on March 23, Coach Carper predicted that P.H. would come out "one of the top teams in the district." With the promising performances of sophomores John Gardner, John Houseman, Bryan Neal and Jeff Noce, P.H. can look forward to two more years of an intensely competitive team.

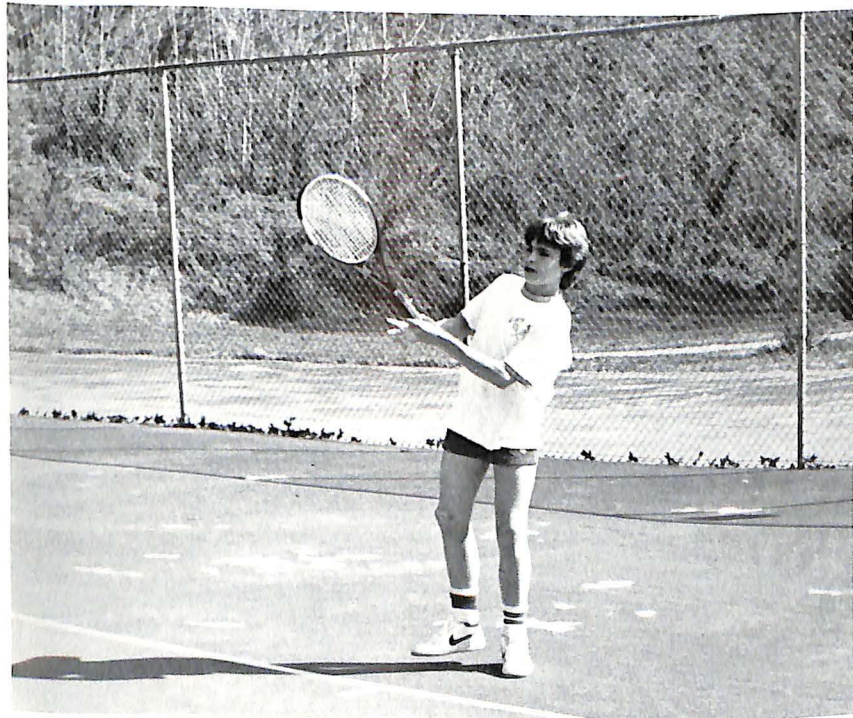

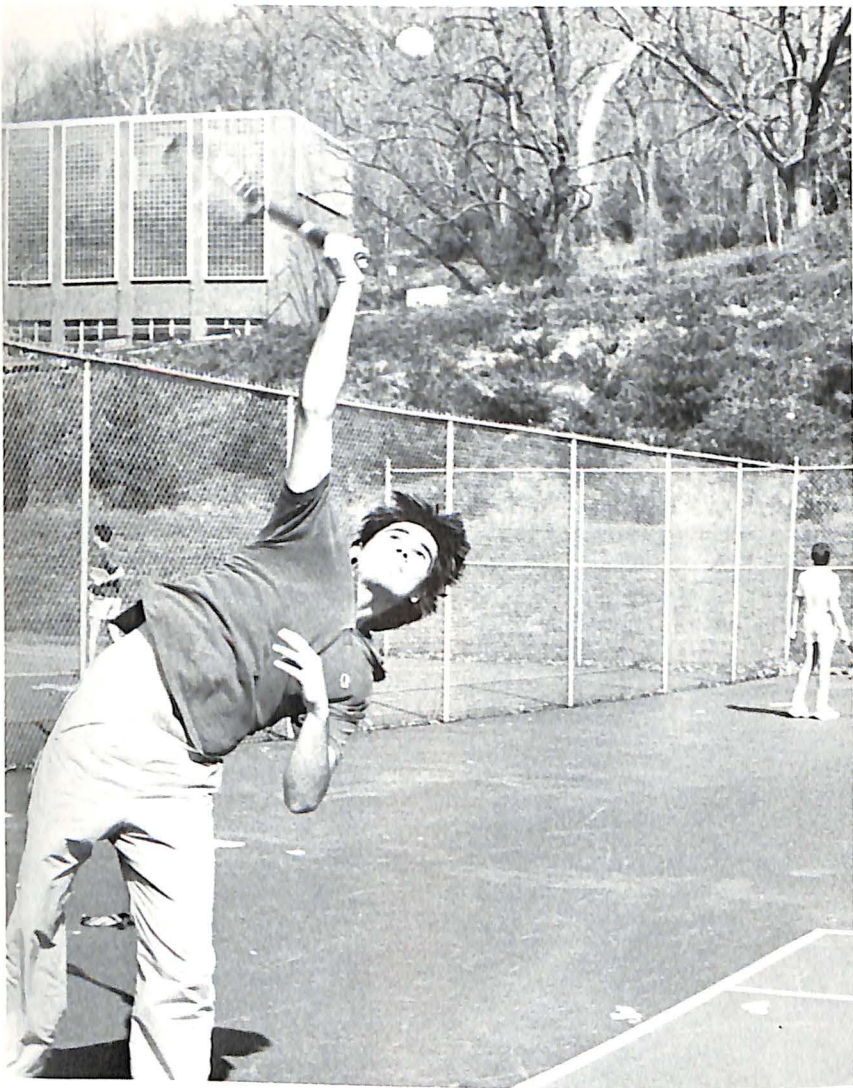

"To put the proper English on the ball, one must hold his breath first," thinks Brian Epperly.

John (McEnroe) Hasselman makes his final debut.

Sure-shot John Gardner prepares himself for his next play.

Determination is what tennis is all about, as Todd Elkins demonstrates.

The 1984 Tennis Team

That's The Way The Ball Bounces

Girls' Tennis had an up and down season this year, placing third in district competition.

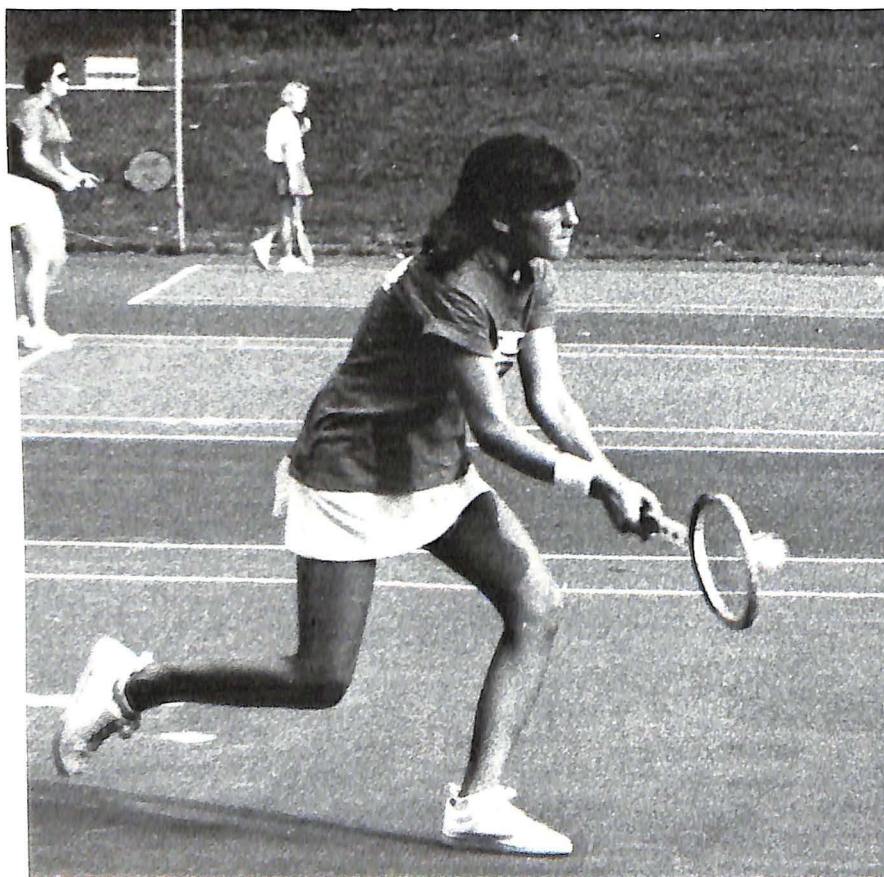

Finishing "smack in the middle" was somewhat of a shock because the team had not done well overall in matches against other schools." We had an all right year, but expect to be better next year." said Coach

Carper. Individually, the players did quite well with Amy Powell placing third in singles and Julie Guilliani and Amy Powell placing first in doubles.

There is no way this ball is going to get away from Amy Powell.

"This one is going in the left-hand corner for a win" predicts Susanna Field.

"Just one more 'acer" like that one and I'll win this for sure", thinks Regina Huffman.

Intently waiting for her opponent's serve, Mary Comer holds her stance.

This Year the Soccer Team Was Still Kicking

The P.H. soccer team entered this season with high expectations. After having won their third Roanoke Valley District title in as many years, the Patriots expected to repeat this year.

Coach, Mike Sisler, had a pair of senior two-time All Metro players, Mike Harig and Clifford Jarrett, but the championship fell to Cave Spring when we lost by one goal.

"Look Ma, no hands!" says Malcolm Young.

"Take me to your leader!" exclaim David Gilmore and Johnny Sarber.

The 1984 Soccer Team

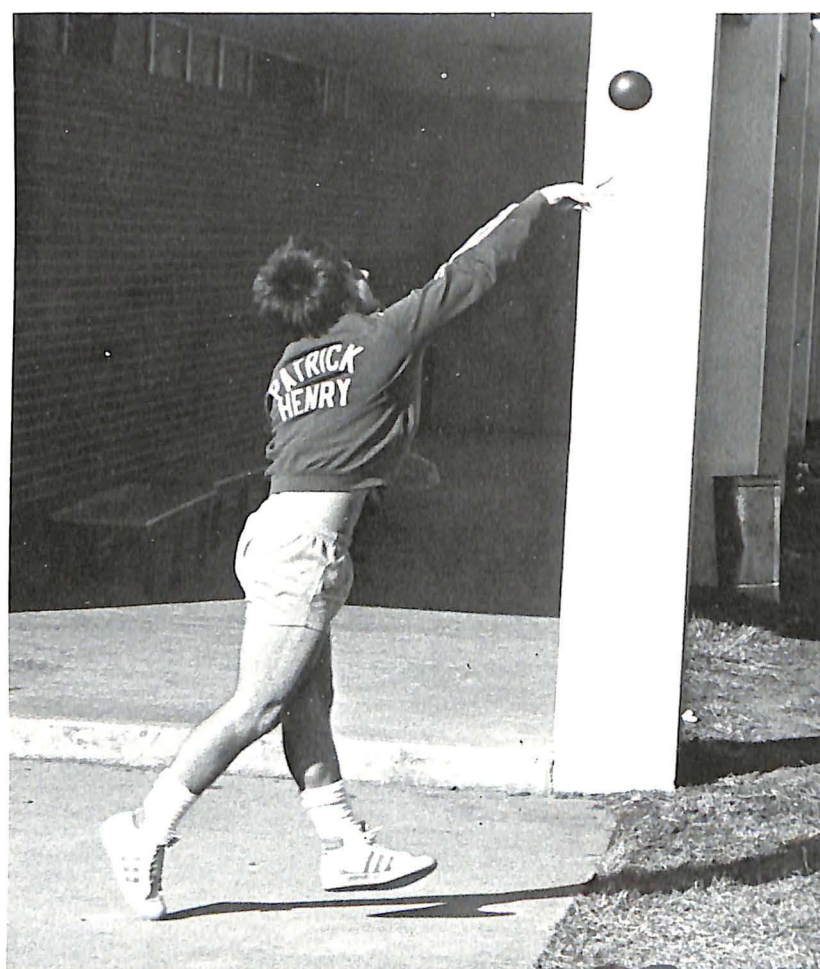

The Inside Story — On The Right Track

This year's Indoor Track team consisted of Coach Carter, Coach LaBrie and some "exceptional individuals". They worked hard, showed a lot of potential, and built a powerhouse at P.H. Each member strove for personal success. For girls indoor track, Paula Basham did the high hurdles, and Becky Stokes performed in the relay, to name just two. With track it's not quantity but quality that counts.

"Watch out! I'm going to throw it!" yells Paula Basham to Rebecca Stokes, Shetla Parker, and Brian Davis.

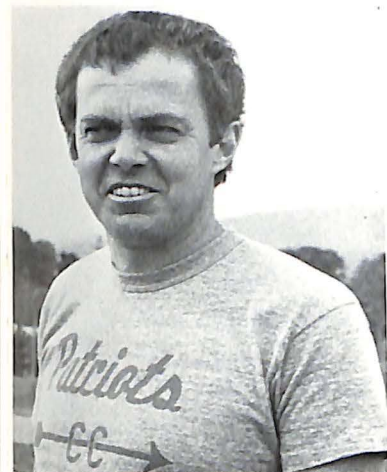

Delores Jones, Wanda Brown, and Rebecca Stokes look anxiously as they await results.

"Practice makes perfect" and Richard Bryant takes it to heart as he practices his throws.

The 1984 Cross Country Team

Putting Their Best Foot Forward

Though having a young and partially inexperienced team, Cross-Country managed to be the only fall sport to qualify for regionals. Greatly improved since last year, they have ranked fourth in Metro and fourth in District. Good leaders helped the J.V. team come in first at the William Byrd Invitational Meet.

Boasting their egos and their desires to run, the Cross-Country team was invited to a lot of invitational meets, two of them were William and Mary and UVA.

The two most notable achievers were Chris Edwards and Blake Blackwell. Some of the honors that these two won were; Chris Edwards, first team all-metro, first team all district, first team all regionals, second team all state. Blake Blackwell was selected for second team all-metro.

With the Experience and Skills of the Veterans and the Promise of the New Members, We Started the Season With Bases Loaded

Under the close leadership of Coach Andrews and of demanding practices, the eighteen member team strove to give their school a "good season" this year. Of the eighteen member team, there were three dedicated players that have been a major part of the Patriot team since their sophomore year; Charlie Kuehn—pitcher, Jimmy Saunders—catcher, and John Calhoun—outfielder. Along with the players returning from last year, there were ten fresh members that "showed potential."

John Calhoun expressed his feelings this way, "I want to play my best out of pride in athletics and for my school."

Showing the fearless side of a catcher, Jimmy Sanders takes his stance.

Getting back to basics, Coach Andrews instructs the less experienced players.

"It's all in the timing and the way you hold your mouth!" discovers John McCloud.

"Pitching a fit", Charlie Kuehn warms up for the game.

Outdoor Track

The response to outdoor track this year was overwhelming. The season began with all new coaches and many new runners. Coaches Dent, LaBrie, Carter, and Lemon helped the team make a name for itself. At the first meet, our Lady Patriots took home the first place trophy. This was the only time in many years that P.H. had beaten Fleming in a meet. Hard work and determination took our Patriots to the finish line at full speed.

"Up and over," thinks Delores Jones as she slips over the high jump.

Waiting for her event, Susan Shober watches patiently.

Confidence is shown on the face of David Parker as he leaps over the high hurdle.

Straining to pull himself up and over the pole vault, Mike Preston gives it his all.

Determination is shown on the faces of Blake Blackwell and Chris Edwards as they approach the finish line.

With Incredible Enthusiasm
The Varsity Cheerleaders
Kept Us All

In The Spirit

Spirit has always been a must at Patrick Henry High School. At every game through rain or snow, shouts were heard from the Varsity Cheerleaders. As sponsor, Mrs. Swank, worked with the girls, beginning the season with varsity football. The team, consisting of eleven members, cheered for varsity boys basketball. Kris Edwards was head, Jenny Repass, co-head. The other nine members were Kim Harris, Martha Newton, Romelle Fullen, Rhethia Phanelson, Beth Umberger, Tina Mills, Leigh Bond, Kim McMillian, and Lisa Talley. It didn't stop there either. Girls volleyball was also on the list. The Varsity cheerleaders never sat. They worked on pep assemblies and spirit raisers; the Varsity Cheerleaders made spirit a success at PH.

Head Cheerleader, Kris Edwards, smiles at the Patriot crowd as they take over the cheering on their own.

Flashing their pearly-whites, Martha Newton and Stacy Sickels represent the seniors on the cheerleading squad for the Homecoming Float.

On Homecoming night, Kim McMillian tries to "grin and bear it" through the cold weather.

Last row: Martha Newton, Lisa Talley, Kim McMillan, Kris Edwards — captain, Leigh Bond, Kim Harris, Jenny Repass — co-captain. First row: Rhethia Phanelson, Beth Umberger, Tina Mills, Romelle Fuller.

Impatiently waiting for the next cheer, Kim McMillan and Leigh Bond cast their attention elsewhere, as Beth Umberger amuses herself with the enthusiasm of the sophomore crowd.

Cheerleader, Tina Mills, keeps the crowd in Patriot spirits.

"Three, we are the Patriots!" shouts Jenny Repass.

Reflecting on the Patriots' efforts, Kim Harris shows a different side of cheerleading.

Group Dedication Creates

Graplettes

A team of seven, young energetic girls was the motivation for the wrestlers and soccer players. As one Graplette put it, "It's tons of fun!" Graplettes do more than cheer for the team, they believe in and support it. The Graplettes' enthusiasm helped to boost the team's morale through the good times as well as the bad.

These sophomores cheered enthusiastically for the J.V. football players, J.V. basketball players, and the girl's basketball team.

Both J.V. cheerleaders and Graplettes cheer for girl's basketball, although it's primarily the Graplettes job. The Junior Varsity squad cheers for the basketball team when Graplettes are cheering at a wrestling match, or other events, and aren't available.

J.V. Cheerleaders

Every year Patrick Henry is introduced to a group of new cheerleaders. The squad consisted of girls from various junior high schools, however, not all girls who made the team were former cheerleaders.

Being a J.V. cheerleader was a fun experience and many of the cheerleaders used their sophomore year for gaining experience in hopes that they will make the Varsity squad next year.

Precision of Movement

Caught off guard, Stephanie Corrie turns around to notice the camera.

"Rock Steady!" cheers Michelle Bishop.

Last row: Jayme Fore, LaWanda Shouvley Row 2: Not a Member, Amy Brown, Stephanie Corrie First row: Kristi Hedrick, Kerri Hamblett

Kelly Noell — Captain, Mary Beth Allen, Kathy Smith, Sue Kwak, Vurgess Dent, Michelle Bishop — Co-Captain, Stephanie Marshall.

R.O.T.C.

This year R.O.T.C. met first period in room 2-103. The group commander, Colonel Reed, said that the purpose of the club is to enhance the spirit and morale of the student members and to organize club activities such as rocket and model aircraft building, field trips, fund raising, and awards banquets. The goals set for this year were to fulfill all plans as projected according to a schedule submitted to the principals in June 1983. These plans included Christmas parades, two field trips, and drill competitions. Another goal was to renew the Air Force's recognition of this organization as a honor unit.

Student Government Association

The Student Government Association has been around for years as the backbone of Patrick Henry High School. It is composed of the Executive Council, House of Burgesses and Judiciary Council.

The Executive Council leads the other councils and members in the House of Burgesses. This year, the SGA planned the activities during Homecoming Week as well as the Christmas Dance and the Homecoming Dance which were held at the Patrick Henry Hotel and acted as fundraisers for the association.

The SGA also organized the sale of gift wrapping paper and sent representatives to the Presidential Classroom. With many plans on the agenda, SGA strives to meet the needs of the school as a whole.

Welcoming Susanna Field into French National Honor Society are Holly Burford and Mike Spangler.

French National Honor Society

This was the first year that Patrick Henry had a French Honor Society. As the National Honor Society's purpose is to recognize students of outstanding potential, French Honor Society's purpose is to recognize students who excel in the study of French. Those who maintain an A— average in three consecutive semesters of French are eligible for the society. They must also maintain a B— average in all their other subjects. The club sponsor, Arby Frost said "The club is to recognize those who excel in the study of French and to inspire them to stay in French classes at more advanced levels."

The club's activities included a Christmas party, activities during "Foreign Language Week" and a visit to a French restaurant. The students also sponsored a booth at the City Market's Mardi Gras at which they sold Louisiana style coffee and belentes (French donuts).

National Honor Society

Some students have said that getting into National Honor Society's a part-time job and that staying in, is the other part. Though entrance requirements are not easy to meet, they are not impossible. In order to be tapped into National Honor Society, students must maintain a 3.0 grade point average beginning with the ninth grade and have no semester grade of F. They must also show leadership and service qualities. Good character is another important consideration. All students who apply must be voted on by the faculty before being offered admission.

The Band of Gold underwent many changes this year, beginning the year with a new director, Ben Schuhart. Mr. Schuhart came to Roanoke and to our Patriot Band "because of the good reputation of a good band."

Though Mr. Schuhart got a late start with the band, they were still able to put on a show at every game and even took a first place trophy at the Peanut Festival in Emporia. The band also marched in the Roanoke and Salem Christmas Parades.

Yet, something happened in our Band of Gold this year. Many problems arose and it was decided that for the benefit of all involved, the marching band would be "disbanded" for the second semester.

When Mr. Schuhart was asked about the situation this year, he answered, "This was a year for change, for doing things that have not been done before, such as adding the jazz and concert bands to have a well-rounded program."

The jazz and concert bands finished the second semester and it is hoped that the marching band will be back next year with the pride, devotion and determination that has kept our Patriot Band of Gold marching in recent years.

The March of Change

Stepping in time, Jay Rice and Donald Willson perform with the precision for which our band is well known.

Poised at attention, band leader Jill Callaghan waits for the next move.

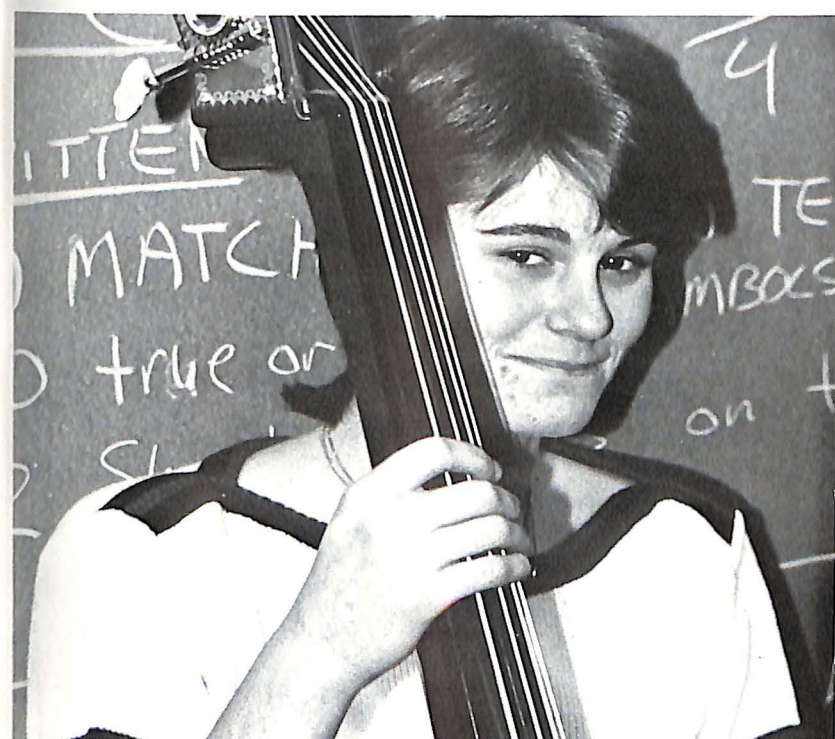

Showing their pride and holding their banner high, the Patriot Band marches on.

Orchestra

The fifteen member orchestra at Patrick Henry participated in the District Festival at E.C. Glass. Martha Newton and Melinda Spickard were members of the Regional Orchestra while Barbara Long received a place in the Regional Band.

Pi Lambda Sigma

Chance, luck, concentration, strategy, and unpredictable moves were all a part of the game. One roll of the dice decided your future.

Pi Lambda Sigma specialized in playing games. It gave the student a chance to have fun by using their minds instead of their money. Some students chose to use this time to invent their own games. Using their own imaginations and skills from playing other games, set the basis for their newly invented games. One of these games could be the next top selling game on the market.

Art Club

The Art Club, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Felty, has done much to brighten the school. The club is responsible for the painted trash cans and the murals that fill the walls of each hall. This year Eric Fitzpatrick came to speak with the club. Mrs. Felty also scheduled visits to art galleries in Washington for the fortunate members.

"You've got to be kidding me" exclaims Vicky Hurley

Latin Club

The Latin club sponsored several activities this year. They gathered money to be used for the Spring Latin club banquet by selling doughnuts. The Latin Banquet is a time to relive the past by dressing in togas and putting on skits. Latin students from Junior highs are used as slaves who serve the P.H. Latin Students. The Latin Club also sings Christmas carols at the Liberty House Nursing Home.

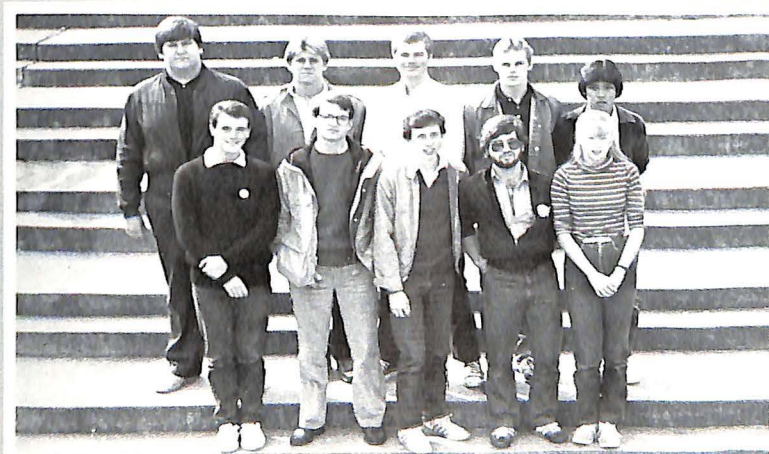

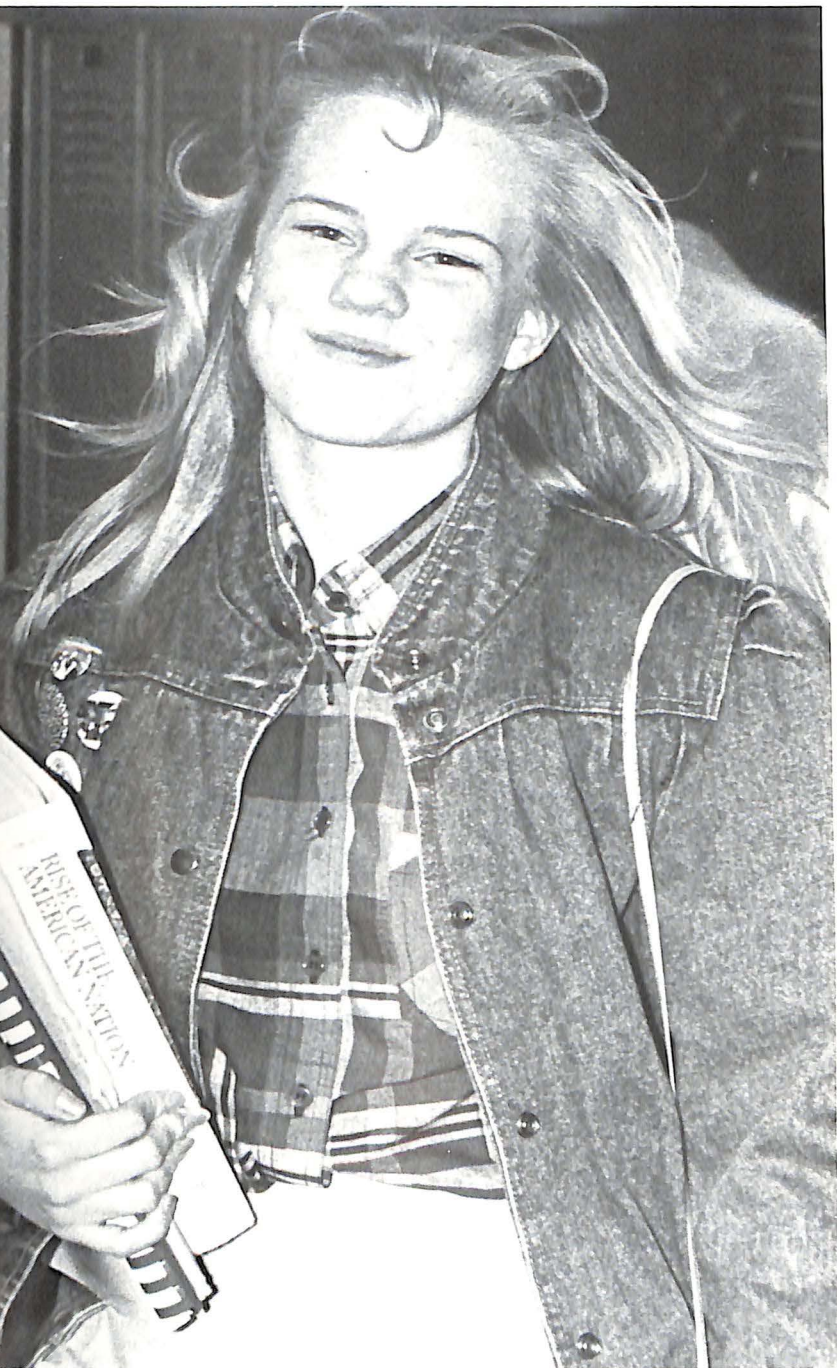

Russian Club

Russian Club, sponsored by Natasha Petersen, was a group of students that enjoyed learning about Russia and its language. The students learned the alphabet and conversational Russian. They found Russian hard to translate but interesting, "It is a very demanding class," commented Missy Mack.

Senior Steering Committee

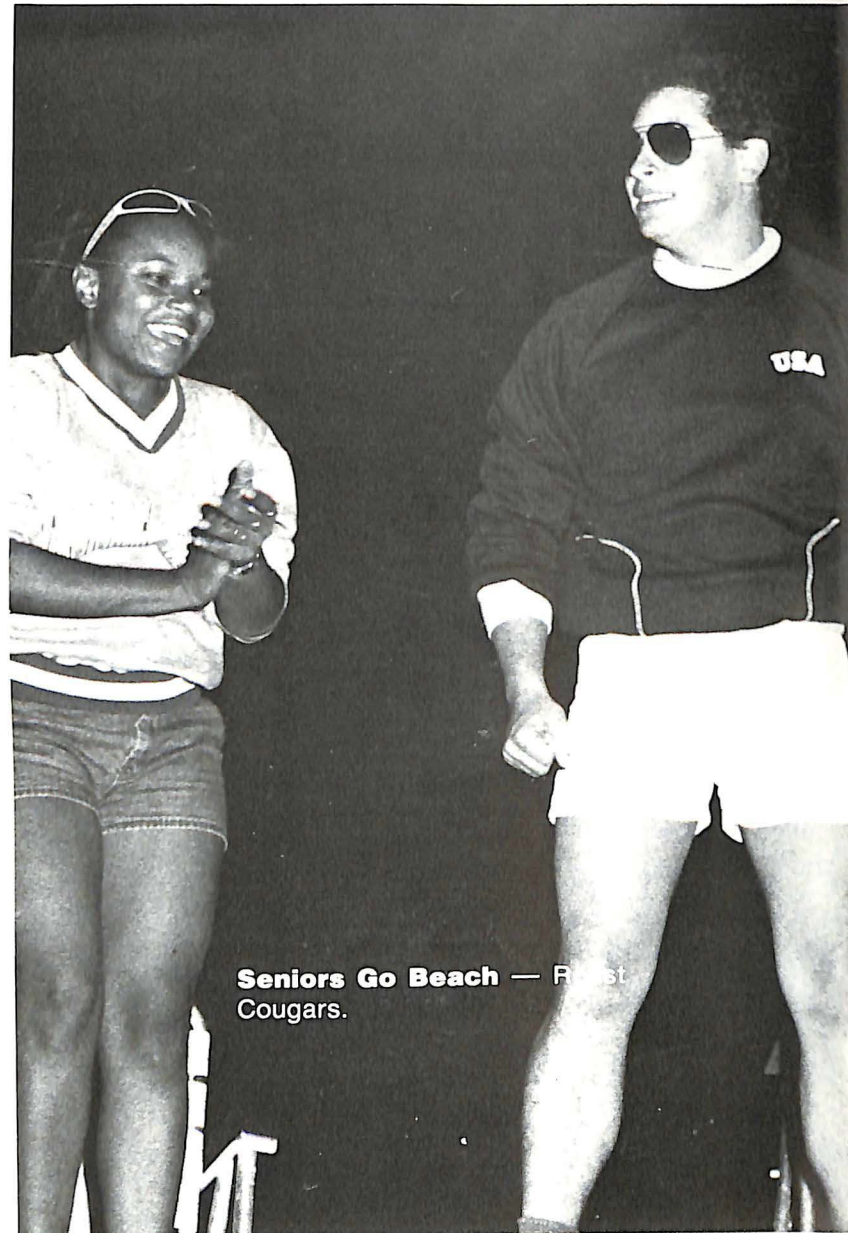

Under the direction of Mrs. Paye and Mr. Woods, the Senior Steering Committee organized events for the class of '84. During Homecoming Week, they put together a first place Beach Float and an awesome Powder Puff team that was victorious in the game against the juniors. The committee also planned events leading up to the long awaited Graduation Day. It selected speakers for graduation and planned the Baccalaureate service. The Senior Steering Committee was basically responsible for guiding the seniors through their final year in high school.

Senior Hill Raisers

This year P.H. re-enstated its Ski Club. The club consisted exclusively of members of the senior class and was sponsored by Mr. Kevin Dill. Plans for the year's activities included two trips. The first trip planned was to Wintergreen. The second trip was an overnight trip to Snowshoe. The Senior Hill Raisers was just another example of the unity felt among the Class of '84.

Junior Involvement

Perhaps one of the most active clubs at Patrick Henry this year was Junior Involvement. Their main goal was raising money for and organizing the prom. This was an extremely time-consuming assignment. Not only was there a problem of funds but of theme, color scheme, band and location. Once these problems were solved they still had to bring it all together for the May 11, 1984 Prom.

Sophomore Steering Committee

Sophomore Steering Committee, under the leadership of Mrs. Vella Wright, aided the Sophomore class in becoming part of and active in Patrick Henry. The Club began the work that would be continued in the next school year in Junior Involvement. The committee started to gather funds for the 1985 Prom by projects such as selling honey and jams in decorative canisters from door to door. Class officers, President John Hasselman, Vice President Tim Craft, Secretary Ann LeMay, Treasurer Tracy Bradshaw, and Elections Board Representative Doug Poff filled the class leadership roles.

The Liberty Singers and Choir Fill the Roanoke Valley with The Sound of Music

Liberty Singers and Concert Choir

Before other students even thought about school, the Liberty Singers and Concert Choir were already at work. They were asked by Superintendent Frank Tota to sing for Convocation at the official opening of school. This year's Liberty Singers were joined by some members of the Class of '83 to start the year with pizzazz.

The talent didn't stop there. The Liberty Singers worked with the Concert Choir to perform a difficult and exciting Christmas show. Right after Christmas, both choirs were back to work on a spectacular show for the spring. Under Gene Ferguson's experienced direction, the combined show choir turned out an impressive program full of chilling harmony and thrilling choreography.

As the Patrick Henry Concert Choir and Liberty Singers traveled both in and outside the Roanoke Valley, they received enthusiastic responses which filled the members with a real sense of Patriot Pride.

President of the choir, senior Beth Bryant works on some future choir business.

Krissy Snipes, a junior, sings a solo during the Christmas assembly.

The P.H. choir varies in performance from singing to dancing.

Dwight Harmon, Diane Altizer and Ellen Swartz are the instrumentalists for Patrick Henry's choir.

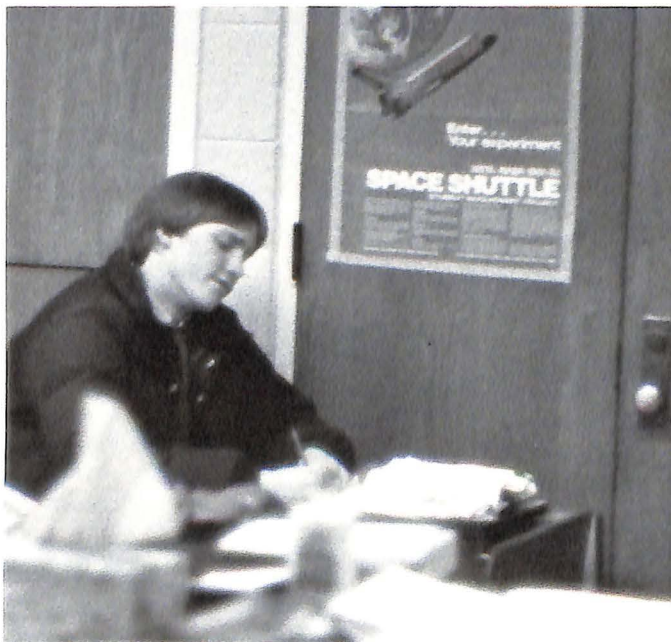

Barry Beckner and Pam Taylor take a turn at the microphone for a small part.

Science Club

The Science Club is a fairly new organization at Patrick Henry. In fact, last year was its first year. Intended for students interested in the sciences, the club provides speakers and activities dealing with matters of interest to its members. Sponsored by Mrs. Foard, the Science Club has become a very special part of Patrick Henry.

Seeming to enjoy science, Tony Handy studies his book, while Tony MacDonald casts his attention to the front of the room.

Charles Hale is caught in the midst of students who appear to be just as excited as he is.

"It's rough having to study, but somebody has to do it," thinks Craig Anderton.

Student Exchange

The Student Exchange is a group of students who enjoy meeting people from other countries. Sponsored by Mrs. Wreden and Mrs. Ratcliffe, this year they operated an exchange with Israeli students; and in the spring with German and Japanese students. This spring the students were also honored to be one of few schools offered a chance to make an exchange trip to Spain. Mrs. Wreden spent her entire year working on the exchange trips. She is a true Patriot!

Raising money is a big part of the Student Exchange as demonstrated here by Kim McMullan and Brenda Moore.

Deaf Awareness

The purpose of the Deaf Awareness Club is to make the students and teachers of P. H. aware of the problems of deafness and to help make the environment of P. H. more normal to deaf students. Sign language is taught to students so that they may better communicate with the deaf students in order to build friendships.

One of the goals set by the club this year was to learn approximately 300 signs. Another was to promote friendship and assistance between the P. H. learning impaired and other students. The president was Melissa Divers, Vice President — Tim Craft, Treasurer — Lori Dillon and Secretary — Karen Dodson.

Taking time out from his studies, Donald Haymaker plans for Deaf Awareness Club.

Red Cross

The Red Cross Club is a service-oriented organization affiliated with the American Red Cross. This year's activities have included coordinating bloodmobile day and providing food and clothing to a needy family at Christmas.

Health Occupations

HOSA, which stands for Health Occupation Students of America, was sponsored this year by Mrs. Romona Williams. The club went to Liberty House and the nursing home twice a week the first semester, and went to the rehabilitation center second semester.

They also made a trip to Williamsburg for the annual HOSA meeting at which the students attended workshops. Mrs. Williams said "The people in this club really take everything they do very seriously and are easy to work with."

ICT

Industrial Cooperative Training (ICT) is a club to prepare students for leadership in the world of work. The goals of the club this year unify the entire VICA chapter and to include a variety of students in competition. The sponsor, Mr. Michael Jones, made these two goals projects for this year.

Mary Jo Sapp, Beth Reifendeiffer, and Kim Arthur prove that Health Occupations students are also involved in Homecoming activities by participating in the parade.

Office Services

The Office Services Club, sponsored by Mrs. Woodliff and Mrs. Walters can be found in room 1-107, fifth period on club day. This organization helped expand our office and clerical careers through competitive activities, guest presentations and member interaction. Their goals for this year aimed to provide opportunities and atmosphere conducive to the active participation of every member. This was to make certain Patrick Henry hall and main offices were the best they could be.

Looking very full after a DECA dinner meeting, Nelson Stevens decides to take it easy for awhile.

FBLA

Sponsored by Wanda Hancock and geared towards students enrolled in business classes, FBLA (Future Business Leaders of America) offered business students a chance to work toward developing characteristics that are important in the business world. These qualities include business leadership, individual character, and an understanding of the American Free Enterprise System.

During the year, FBLA members attended a Fall Planning Conference and the Regional Conference. Members also attended the State Leadership Conference. The monthly meetings included speakers from businesses and colleges who provided information on careers, equipment and job requirements.

Voice of Christian Youth

The Voice of Christian Youth under Mrs. Laurie Peery is an organization designed for students who wish to share their Christian ideals. Throughout the year, the club schedules special speakers to come and share their knowledge on subjects relevant to the Christian way of life. The Voice of Christian Youth also made contributions to the community by helping needy families with food boxes at Christmas time as well as caroling in nursing homes.

Promoting Christian principles through athletics is the main purpose of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. The club, under Mr. Woods, plans retreats to various locations such as the Peaks of Otter and Smith Mountain Lake. The entire group does service projects, and during the meetings special speakers talk about how they have used athletics to serve God. Scott Waskey, a member of F.C.A. is quoted as saying, "I believe it shows a good purpose. Christians can show their believe in God through athletics."

Sometimes it seemed to the Players that it was all work and no "play" while they were

Patrick Henry Players

This year the Players have been quite mobile. Hired to perform a one act drama Who Says I Can't Drink by the Family Services of Roanoke, the 4 casts have traveled to elementary and junior high schools. The play presented a message about the dangers of teenage alcoholism.

The players also staged a workshop production of Oedipus Rex. This play gave the drama classes a chance to have on-stage experience.

The first major production done by the organization was an adaptation of Charles Dickens', A Christmas Carol. The show incorporated members of the Players ensemble as well as guest performances from the community. Staged December 5-8, it gave a fitting prelude to Christmas.

The next endeavor of the Players was its entry into the

One-act Play Festival. Laban Johnson and the cast took the play form of Shirley Jackson's The Lottery and re-wrote the script. The final result was travesty production of the play that shed a different light upon the story entirely.

The greatest diversity of participants that players has ever had.

The final production of the season was Oliver! which encompassed the Players Company as well as elementary age children from the Roanoke City School System. The guest artist for the production was D. Clinton Patterson as Mr. Bumble.

This year the Players had the greatest diversity of participants that it has ever had. Mr. Johnson said "This year we have the most academically inclined group we have ever had." In fact, one of the four casts of Who Says I Can't Drink had a combined grade point average of 3.8.

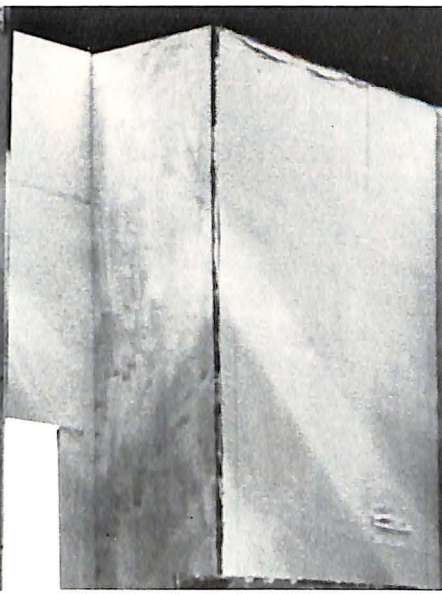

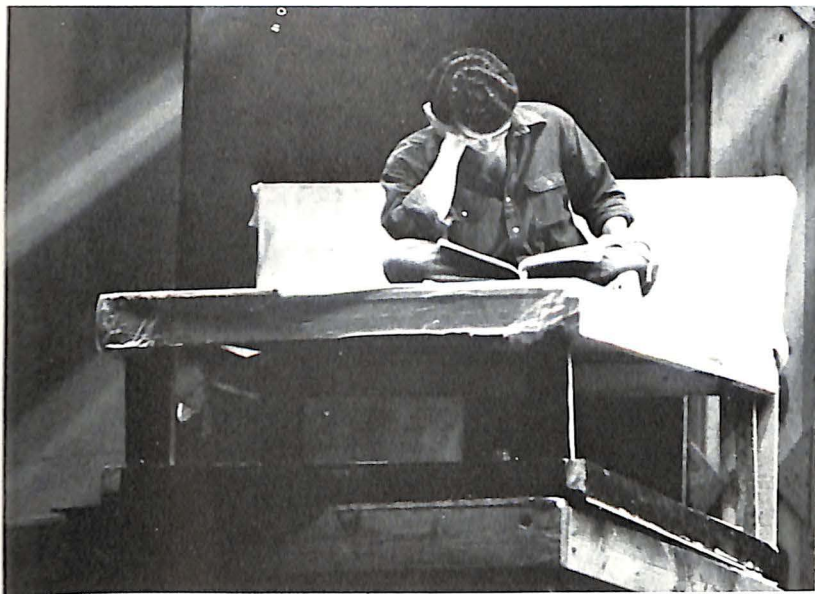

"O.K. gang, if we just hit Scrooge over the head hard enough, then he's putty in our hands."

Has Peter Lefkowitz lost his way on the vast set of A Christmas Carol?

Word Power

Ask certain members of the yearbook staff and they'll tell you it consists of a lot of hard work and sleepless nights as deadlines draw near. Writing copy, taking pictures, designing layouts, and typing captions are just a few of the tasks that must be accomplished for each deadline. Students who chose to take yearbook didn't do so because they thought it was an easy credit, members have to work to make the grade. Anyone who works on the yearbook does so because of a devotion to the school. The purpose of a yearbook is to capture memories of the year gone by. In order to do this in an effective way, students attended a two day workshop. There the staff learned the basic principles which it would use throughout the year. Putting together a yearbook is definitely an experience and one that the staff will never forget.

"But you have to use MY copy!" argues Susie Shober to Liz Bradshaw.

"What exactly is a pica?" asks Debbie Ringler during the first few weeks of yearbook class.

"Okay staff, let's try it again 1, 2, 3 . . ." says Mrs. Smithson.

Quill

Quill has always been a special part of P.H. Sponsored by Jacquelynne Arnold and edited by Donald Willson, the Quill is the literary magazine of the school. Its purpose is to provide an outlet for creative expression. Each and every Quill magazine is a unique production. The stories and poems are written by students at P.H., so every year the Quill is different. The Quill provides enlightening entertainment for those seeking good literary art.

Statesman

Our school monthly newspaper, the Statesman, has informed our students of activities and interests around our campus.

Under the guidance of Mr. Laban Johnson, the reporters develop their talents and produce an interesting and enjoyable newspaper.

The Best of Both Worlds

Deciding on a health career is only the beginning.

Selecting where to prepare for a career in nursing or respiratory therapy is a serious and difficult choice.

Is a hospital-based program for you? Or are you interested in the kind of well-rounded education only a college can offer?

The Community Hospital College of Health Sciences offers both for well-rounded, technically-superior, professional training.

The college offers two-year associate degrees in respiratory therapy and professional nursing. You'll receive the finest clinical training along with the student activities and diverse classroom study available only in a college.

After graduation, you'll be ready to take a licensure examination. And you can transfer your credit to a four-year baccalaureate program. To make the most of health career education, there's really no choice. You can have it all at the Community Hospital College of Health Sciences. Call for more information.

*The college has made applications to the appropriate accrediting agencies and to the State Council of Higher Education for Virginia seeking degree granting status for associate degrees in nursing and respiratory therapy programs.

Behind Them They Left a Name

Carrying on the Name

*Class of '84
Need We Say More?*

"You mean you want to use THIS water fountain?" says Frank Hancock.

"Milk is it, the greatest taste I've ever found" thinks Jennie Nease as she finishes off another carton of that wholesome vitamin D.

"Sometimes I feel like a nut, sometimes I don't," says Susan Harrison.

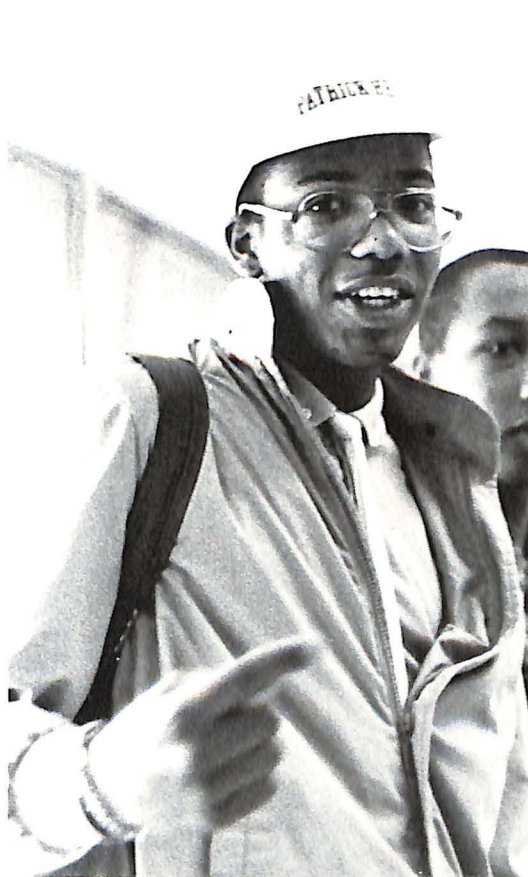

"Too cool for words," thinks Mary Guilfoyle.

"Oh my gosh, would you look at that!" seems to be the expression on Jane Busby's face.

"Don't you dare tickle me!" states Debbie Winchell.

"So what if we lost, P.H. is still number one," brags Amy Graybill.

"No cavities mom," says Dawn Stuart.

"He went that way," directs Anthony Whorley and Cleveland Davis.

"Andrea, did you see what happened to my Jello brand pudding?" questions Ty Witt.

"I've got to hide this sweater, it's Mom's and here she comes!," plots Tracy Smithson.

"Shoot, I just bit my lip again!", exclaims Steve Hale.

"Jolly Green Giant told me these are good for you," says George Green

What's In A Name?

A name consists only of what is put into it. Patrick Henry would be two meaningless words if it were not for the people who have given the school its excellent reputation, strong sense of spirit and rich tradition. These people give the name meaning through their love for and pride in their school, thus creating . . .
