GRAND OPENING

A stream of cars and a caravan of buses make the first of 180 days of turns off Grandin Road into the home of the Patrick Henry Patriots.

As upperclass students and teachers rush for the best parking spaces, none fail to recognize the new welcoming sign donated by last year's senior class. Everyone rushes to beat the 8:30 bell with one class period less than the usual seven period load for the majority of the Patriots. For Seniors, the days to come are full of anticipation and excitement with the thought of graduation in June. Juniors look forward to becoming Seniors and the Sophomores and Freshmen continue their journey upward at Patrick Henry. Together it is their time to be "Making a GRANDin Entrance."

The Grand Prix — Sitting poised in the front parking lot, cars belonging to upperclass Patriots waited to make that "Grand" exit.

A student? A life? What exactly do these entail? To the Patrick Henry Patriots it means boogying down at the Homecoming Dance, cruising GRANDin Road for Saturday night entertainment, or warming up for the Junior vs. Senior Volleyball game. Their title of "student" was well exceeded by the lives they led on the side. They were students by morning, hard working athletes and business entrepreneurs by afternoon, bookworms by night, and party animals by weekend. They were the prime examples of how life was GRAND!

SPLISH, SPLASH, SUMMER'S A BLAST

June 12, 1991 was a day of excitement and anticipation across the Patrick Henry campus. Exams were finally over and summer had officially begun. Many were dreaming about going to the beach, others were thinking about going to the pool, and others were dreading having to work a summer job. As Dana Dibling said, "I hate getting up early, but at least I'm making money."

While some people worked, others rode the waves of Myrtle Beach, and some desperately searched for entertainment in Roanoke. Some people went to Smith Mountain Lake to get away from parents, siblings and Roanoke night life. As Jimmy Mullens put it, "It's the next best thing to the ocean; water, boats and babes."

The summer flew by and soon it was time to head back to good ol' Patrick Henry High School. Bethany Austin entered the 1991-92 school year with a good attitude by saying, "It was giggin' and only 180 more days until the next one."

Set, Spike, Seniors Slam

The Junior/Senior and Senior/Faculty volleyball games didn't make ESPN this year, but they were the talk all around PH in the fall. There were no all-star or championships at stake, so why was there such intensity? The games were played to develop school spirit, Senior pride and a camaraderie among all people at PH. It wasn't important who won as long as the seniors did ... and they did; Twice. The senior team was led by PH volleyball team members Kathryn Repass, Casey Kesler, Christi Hanna, and Bridget Basile, along with the other Seniors. They were coached by the indomitable Dave Lauck. Of course, because the Seniors had class, they made the competition look good ... somewhat.

In the Junior-Senior games, the Seniors opened with a 16-14 victory. The Juniors came back in the second game, however, to defeat the Seniors 15-7. The Seniors showed their clear superiority by defeating the Juniors in the third match by a score of 15-10.

It isn't necessary to further humiliate the creaky faculty team in its straight-sets loss to the Seniors in what was a clear mismatch of youthful vibrance against creepin senility.

WE GOT SPIRIT YEA, YEA

"Go, fight, win!" The crowd was pumped up for the Pep Rally! As PH students rocked the gym, the Patriot football team began to feel the thrill of the big game that was approaching. The Pep Rally included a speech by David Lauck, the Senior Class President, and an introduction of this season's teams.

The teams featured in the Pep Rally were the girls' volleyball team, the JV and Varsity cheerleaders, the golf team, and the infamous football team. The Varsity football players that were Seniors escorted the cheerleaders onto the gym floor. Then the cheerleaders got their chance to perform.

When the cheerleaders were finished, the Homecoming

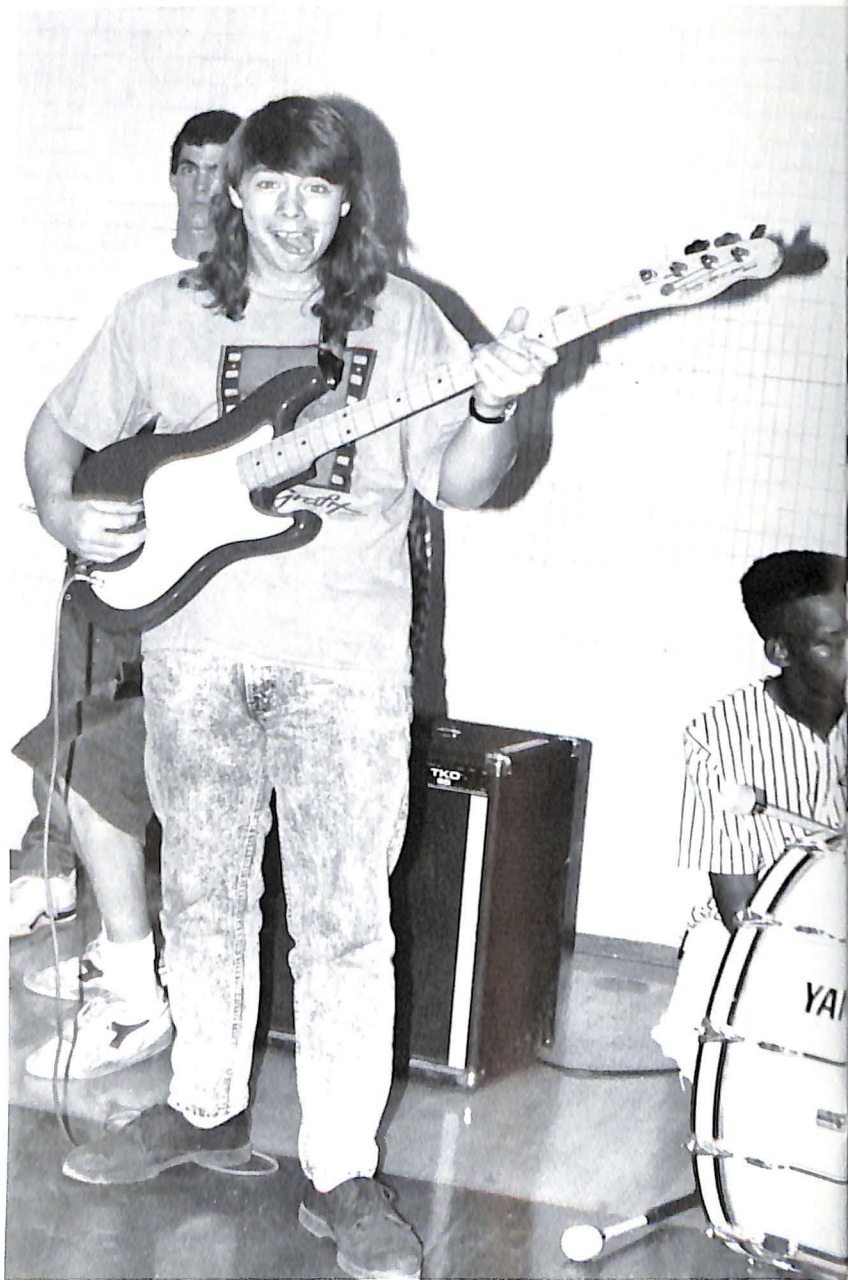

Court was presented. Then the level of excitement was taken up another notch when two PH students did a dance for the student body.

Of course, the Pep Rally was given twice. One time for the Freshmen and Sophomores and once for the Juniors and Seniors. After the Pep Rally, a Senior band member felt the band had done well. "The Pep Rally was nifty, and the band was great," said Mike Hooper.

All Dressed Up and Nowhere to GO

Shut eyes opened at four o'clock. Students were already awake for the most awesome day of the year, Eagle Day. Seniors got the opportunity to purchase underclassmen to relieve the tension of the years and be praised by their Eagles.

The fun started early in the morning as Seniors dressed up their serfs; but this was just the first thing on the agenda. Next, all of the participants arrived at Hardee's on Brambleton, a traditional meeting place of the Seniors on this day. Underclassmen got the chance to talk to their friends and discuss the "terrific" things awaiting them, while the Seniors discussed what sort of challenges they should arrange. After Hardee's the Seniors decided to see just how strong and fast their Eagles were. The Eagles were required to push the seniors' car (that coincidentally had stalled along with five or six other cars) for three blocks and up the hill by 7-11.

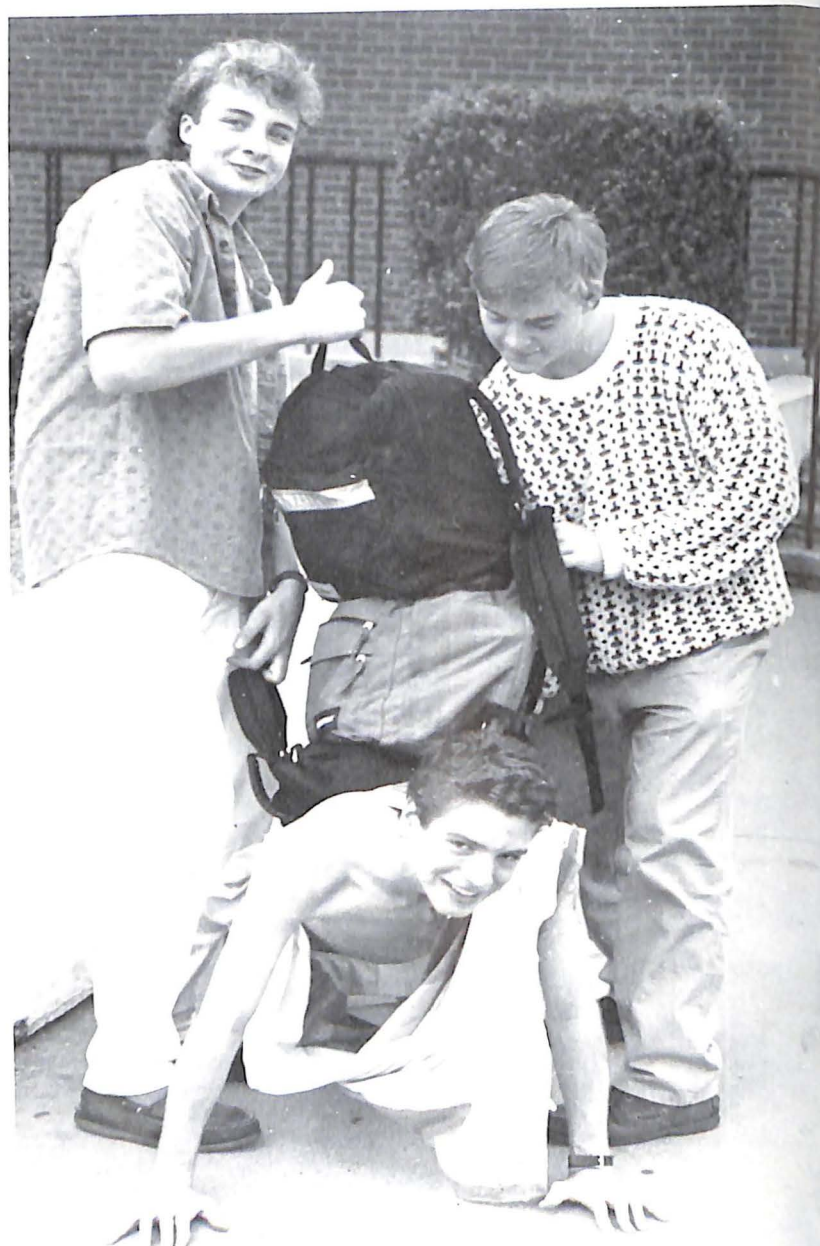

During the school day students got some chance to recuperate. At exactly 11:10 a.m., however, more fun began. Rows of Eagles dressed in drag, or as ladybugs, thunderbunnies, little red devils, and many more exotic costumes that their "masters" had thought of, all lined up. Underclassmen got on their knees praising their owners, building human pyramids, and doing the hokey-pokey. After the full day of excitement, the Eagles sighed in relief that this day was over.

Junior Philip Wertz commented "I never, ever, want to remember this day!!!" Sophomore Chris Andres was heard saying "Man this was cool, but the ladybug suit had to go. All I want to do now is go home and sleep!!" Ashley Kinsey contributed, "Is this what I have to look forward to for the next two years?!" Many students enjoyed the day (especially the Seniors). The memories of Eagle day will remain in the minds of many Seniors and their Eagles for a lifetime.

Eagles Soar No More

A caravan of loyal Patriots decorated their cars and paraded to Victory Stadium for the Homecoming Game. By the time eight o'clock rolled around, the Patrick Henry Patriots had pulled in an enormous crowd.

Fans, students, and alumni came to the game and witnessed Patrick Henry clobber the Franklin County Eagles, nineteen to six.

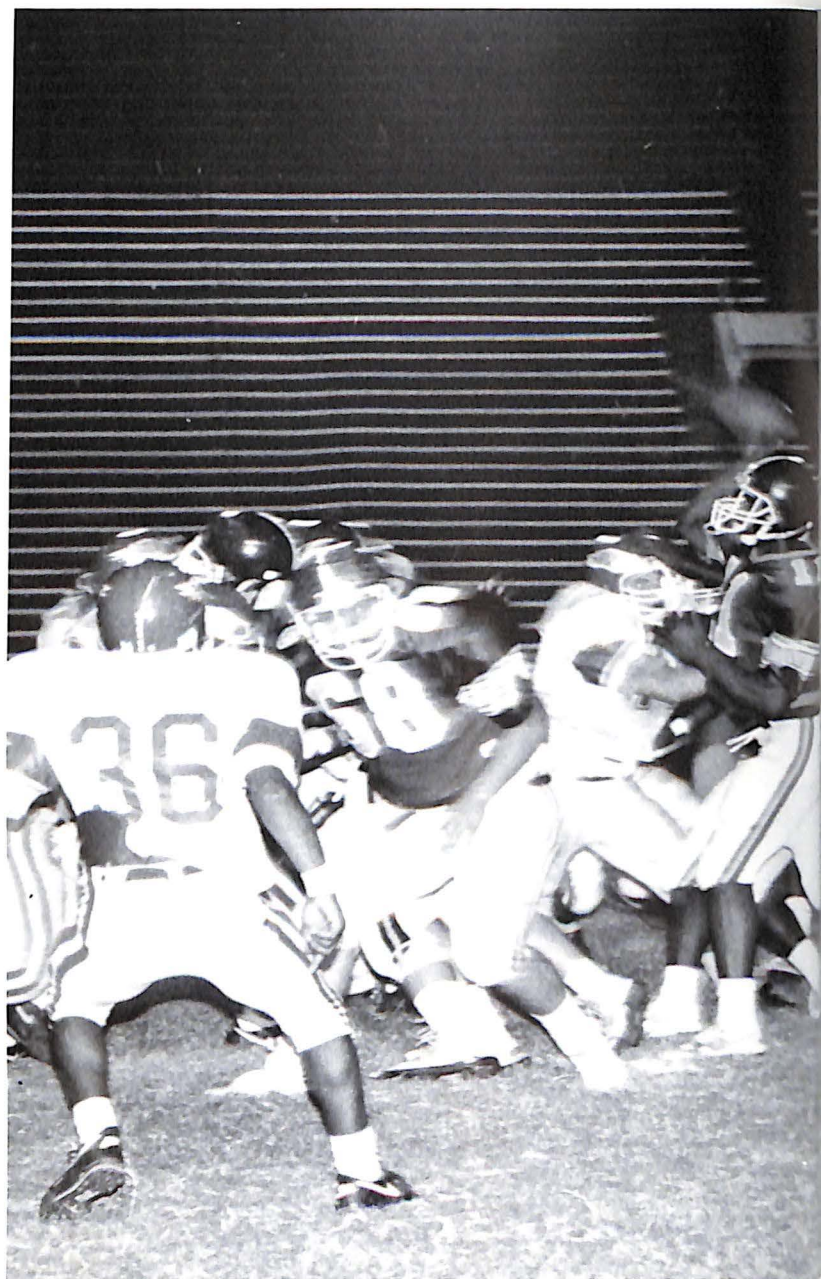

During half-time, thirteen young ladies representing the homecoming court waited on the field in anticipation. Seniors Kathleen Vance, Tiffany Kelso, Sara Chapman, and Vicky Chapman waited anxiously to find out who would be crowned Homecoming Queen, while the rest of the court was escorted onto the field. Freshman Homecoming Court Members were Abby King, and Susan Lawson.

Sophomore court members were Garland Smith, Kathryn McGrath, and Erica White. Junior court members were Brooke Ramsey, Courtney Lambert, Nikki Price, and Ingrid Allen.

From the crowd's reaction it was obvious that it was a tight race among all four candidates. The moment came . . . Maid of Honor . . . Kathleen Vance. The 1991-92 Homecoming Queen . . . Tiffany Kelso. The fans cheered as Dr. Lee placed the crown on Tiffany's head. As Homecoming Maid of Honor, Kathleen Vance said, "It was an exciting game this year. I'm really glad we won." As for the Patriots, it was a night to remember for years to come.

SUCH GOOD VIBRATIONS

Marky Mark danced on the video screen and the Patriots boogied on the cafeteria floor, as the 1991 Homecoming Dance began. From doing "Da Butt" to shaggin', Patriots enjoyed an array of dance moves. "Everybody enjoyed getting down," said Senior Chad Barbour, when looking back on the dance.

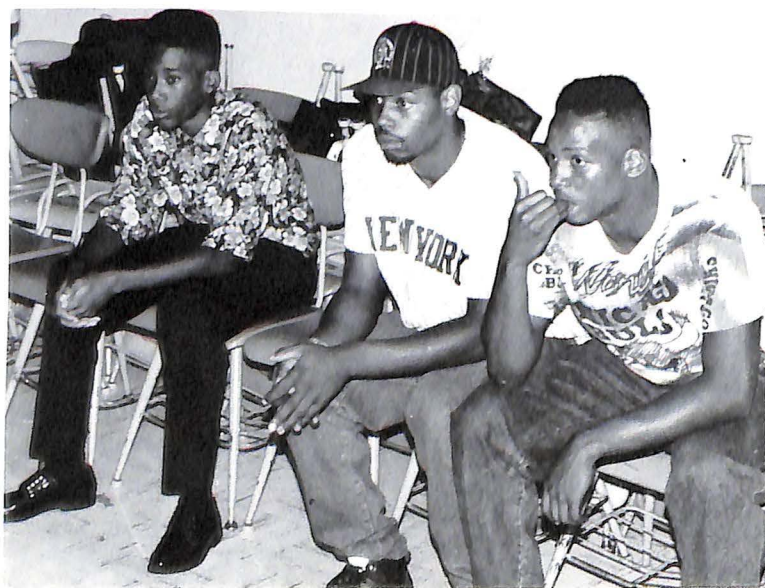

As the Homecoming Court gathered for pictures, the crowd cheered as Senior Tiffany Kelso was crowned Homecoming Queen, and Kathleen Vance was crowned Maid of Honor. The court led the dance to the theme Van Morrison's "Moondance" and fellow Patriots joined in. "I thought the court was a FINE selection of women," said Junior Jermaine Hall.

As the evening came to a close, the corsages began to wilt and shoes were no longer worn but carried. The memories of the 1991 Homecoming Dance were filed away. For the Seniors it was a great ending to Patrick Henry Homecomings, underclassmen couldn't wait till next year's dance. Looking back, Senior Jason Gregory said, "It was a great way to end the week."

Get Your Motor Runnin'

"All we need is music — sweet music." Music was everywhere. If people were riding around on a weekend night visiting the star, eating at the nearest fast food establishment, jogging with their Walkmans, or just being with friends, everyone seemed to have music with them. Pump up the volume seemed to be synonymous with pump up one's spirit. It certainly helped to keep feelings high.

"Where's the party? . . . Do you know what is going on after the game? . . . Don't worry, just grab a few friends hop in the car, and cruise around until you find someone." The nearest Burger King or McDonald's did fine. "Cha-Ching!" We may have been out of money, but we were with friends and the music was great.

"Cruising" was a great way to make things happen, especially when the cooler weather prohibited groups from gathering at the Fire Station. But wherever you went, the great beat of the music always helped to create a good time with friends.

What's Hot At Patrick Henry High?

What's hot and what's not; from vest jackets and jean skirts to big sweaters, boots, and cowboy hats. The styles from prim and proper to short skirts, long hair, and tight jeans, were a quick change. Anything worn, driven, played, watched, cheered for, or admired was a good bet. These were the years of opinion and everyone seemed to have had their own; the times when fads rolled around.

"Doing what you choose is what I think is in. One day I'm in jeans, a sweatshirt, and boots the next in Duck Heads, a flannel shirt, and bucks," said Jimmy Mullens when asked what his opinion was.

Troy Manns also answered this question when he said, "Sometimes I feel like looking nice but most of the time I feel like just being comfortable."

From the A's to the Braves and from the Giants to the Redskins even favorite sports teams change frequently.

"I usually stick to one team. One season I am agreed with, laughed at in another," Tate Guelzow exclaimed when he was asked about his teams.

Sometimes things change but not as much as some people would expect. Sure playing your guitar is popular, but people have been playing for years. Certain cars were more popular than others but any type of "wheels" that started and got you to your destination was accepted.

To people some styles are better than others but individual opinion was what mattered the most.

There's Life After the Bell

Patrick Henry students can always find somewhere to hang out. I am serious, it is possible to find nocturnal activity in Roanoke! After all, there is always the T.T. (Texas Tavern) for those late-night hunger attacks.

This year students enjoyed going to the local "Iroquios" Club where a band that included several PH students played. Another night club spot that was popular was the "Coffee Pot."

On those nights that nothing seemed to "go on" you could probably count on a school sponsored sporting event to see your friends and discuss what you were going to do after the game. Usually smaller groups of people would decide to go to one of their houses and just talk or watch a movie. However, sometimes there were larger parties that offered students a chance to meet new people or catch up with friends.

Even though Roanoke's night life is not exciting, perpetual action — there are things for students to do. From bowling to cruising, PH's partiers are offered many opportunities to get together and relax, and simply to plow off steam from a loong week of school.

Rebel Yell — Many nights the hockey rink was filled with PH students cheering on the RV Rebels. Jeff Wright, a rebel player, is ready for action.

THE YOUNG WILD MONDAY NIGHT LIFE

Close to a hundred teenagers jammed in a room singing Crosby, Stills, and Nash's "Southern Cross." Listening to an inspirational talk, and popping balloons tied to other people's ankles are among the many exciting activities that go on at Young Life. It is a great way to hang out with your friends, take a study break, and learn about who Jesus Christ is on a personal level. "There is nothing finer," commented junior Kristen Wilhelm about the Monday night activities.

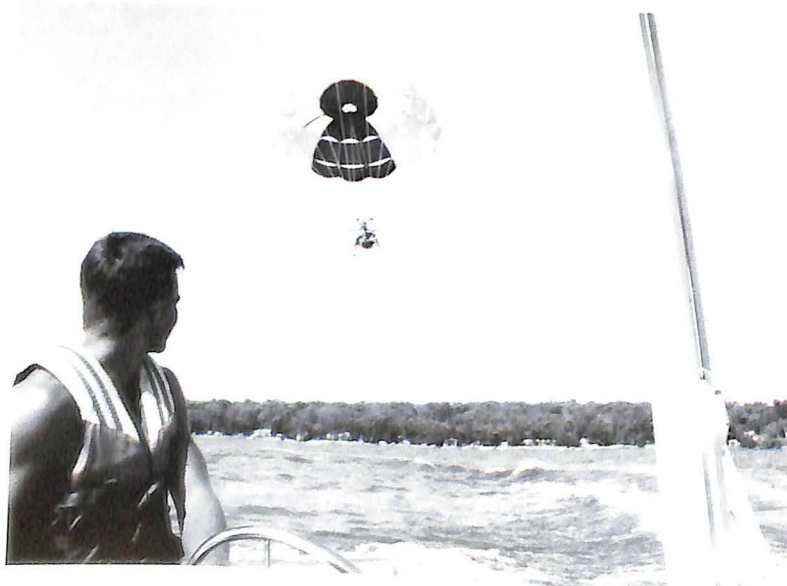

Young Life is a Christian Organization that, in the process of building relationships, shows high school aged people the person of Christ. "It's one of the few places that I go and really feel accepted," said Senior Macye Kinsey.

You cannot go and not have a great time. From blobbing at the week long camp on Lake Champion, New York, to the annual volleyball tournament at Windy Gap, to eating banana splits on a Monday night club, everything is fun. Also, there is a more serious Bible study on Thursday nights that provides an even closer look at Jesus Christ. "It's the best night of the week; 'Beverly Hills 90210,' and Jesus," said Melany Bundy.

All The World Is A Stage

Live music, ripping headaches, and high spirits were what many students thrived on. What better way to do that than to listen to bands from P.H. This year there were bands who have been around for a while as well as new bands on the scene. The music they played ranged from Country to Hardcore; many of them even wrote their own music.

Transit Locomotion is probably the most popular headlining band from P.H. this year and has developed quite a following. "Being on the club scene is great. We can't get enough gigs to play for, and we're always looking forward to playing again," said Senior drummer Ian Thompson. Transit has played at many clubs all over Roanoke, private parties, weddings, and even at Festival in the Park.

Daily Grind is described as a Speedcore band who are the self-proclaimed "fastest band in Roanoke." They are growing in popularity in the underground scene. The band writes their own music, and says bass player Jason Hodges, "Our lyrics deal with what's happening in the real world."

Zimmerman Telegram was among the newer bands at Patrick Henry. The band has recently begun to play a wide variety of engagements this year. "We felt really nervous before we got on stage the very first time that we played, but once we started to play it felt great!" commented Freshman Mike Sisler.

Loyal student fans have often been known to follow their favorite local bands from the Iroquois to the Coffee Pot. "Not only is the music great, but we also know the band members which really enhances the experience," said Senior Art Fuller.

— Evan Smith

Dazed and Confused — Transit Locomotion guitarist Bill Levy is mesmerized by the crowd as he plays to perfection.

Keep It Rockin' — Transit Locomotion, one of the biggest bands out of P.H. this year, plays for a large crowd of people at the Iroquois Club.

Ain't Work GRAND

2:45 finally rolled around. Ten seconds to go. Five, four, three, two, one, RING! They were off and running. The parking lot was crowded and traffic was slow moving. For some who were lucky and didn't have to be anywhere, there was no problem; but for the ones who had to be at work, the day wasn't finished.

The students who had jobs got up, went to school, then topped the day off with work. There were cars to make payments on, insurance due, places to go, and numerous other money wasting rituals, like the release of a favorite band's new CD.

Most of the students worked the afternoon to evening shift, but every once in a while you'll find an exception to anything. In this case, the exception was Junior Erin Thomas. When asked what her job was and what she liked most about it, she answered, "I work over-night for a lady that works night shifts, and make thirty dollars a night. The thing I like most is that I only work two or three nights a week, and still have enough money. It's not a high paying job, but it's enough to get me by."

Although students didn't have the highest paying jobs in Roanoke, many had an opportunity to gain valuable work experiences that would hopefully help later in life.

Hitting The Escape Key

At 6:00 AM on Sunday, January 19, 1992, the Roanoke Regional Airport was filled with the sounds of thirty anxious students anticipating a week-long trip full of sun and aquatic fun to the Florida Keys. The students arrived at their destination, Newfound Harbor Marine Institute on Big Pine Key, around 6:00 PM. The week involved snorkeling ventures, plankton and algae labs, and a night trawl where many interesting fish and crabs were found. "My favorite part was being followed by a barracuda!" said Senior Dana Dibling.

One afternoon the troupe ventured to Key West to experience a different type of living. They enjoyed Jimmy Buffett's Margaritaville and Sloppy Joe's, but the highlights of the day were tattoos and earrings. Another afternoon they went to the Dolphin Research Center and saw the many dolphins perform tricks and talk.

The days were cloudy and windy, and although the weather was not appropriate for achieving the savage tan many wanted, the week was enjoyed by everyone. As Senior Bethany Austin put it "When we were boarding the plane in Miami, I realized that even though the water was cold, I would go back in a heartbeat."

— Jill Sisler

Workin' for a living — Sarah Bennett passes wasted time during a track meet to get caught up on her homework.

MAKING FACES

Dan Smith

For thirty-one years the halls of Patrick Henry have greeted an array of students; from the naive Freshman to the seasoned and sophisticated Senior. By taking a look back to the early years of Patrick Henry it is evident that the model Patriot has changed his image. Today's Patriot has a new style with more responsibility than that of previous years. The way in which people live has changed since the existence of Patrick Henry High School, but the caliber of the students has remained constant by being the best.

Wild Thang — Rebellious Evan Smith goes hog wild as he gets his Senior portrait taken for the year-book.

Time Flies — Past Patriots portraits prove how "the times they are a changin'!"

— Troy Jamison

If I could describe the perfect teacher . . .

"Doesn't give homework, and prefers the beverage of their choice to an apple."

— Sarah Bennett

"Bigger than a bread box, faster than a speeding bullet, able to leap tall buildings in a single bound, a non-smoker."

— Mike Doherty

"36-26-36, long legs, blond hair."

— Russell Doyle

"Keeps control of class. One that feels the same way I do about the school system. Someone who can teach in a fun and interesting way. Like Mrs. Cleveland."

— James Steahly

"Way cool."

— Troy Jamison

"Invisible."

— Jackson Light

"One that didn't care that you skipped."

— John Hearn

"Young enough to understand the stuff we do, and they have to be funny."

— Trez Sebrell

"A tall blonde."

— Walter Sharpley

"Mr. Nichols because he's a great role model for students. He's done a lot for the school this past year. And I think he understands students."

— Scottie Harris

"You got me. I haven't met a perfect person, much less the perfect teacher. Perfection is relative."

— Zach Spencer

"Cindy Crawford"

— Mike Bamber

"Mrs. Debra Cook"

— Lee Smith

Dr. Lee and Mr. Mosser take a break from watching the game and chat to each other.

Mr. Kinzie demonstrates a piece of music that he had given to his students to practice.

— Eve Metayer

"Doctor's office, so I could help people when they are sick."

— Wendy Hall

"An Italian Restaurant, so I could eat lots of noodles."

— Kris Greene

"L. L. Bean, so I could own all of the latest outdoor fashions."

— Angie Spradlin

"A hospital, so I could give people a place to stay when they are sick."

— Sarah Craft

"Timberland Company, so I could own a pair of all the Timberland shoes."

— Shannon Martin

"My own radio station, so I could play only the songs that I wanted to."

— Ms. Wentworth

"A music shop, because of my deep infatuation with music."

— Jason Simmons

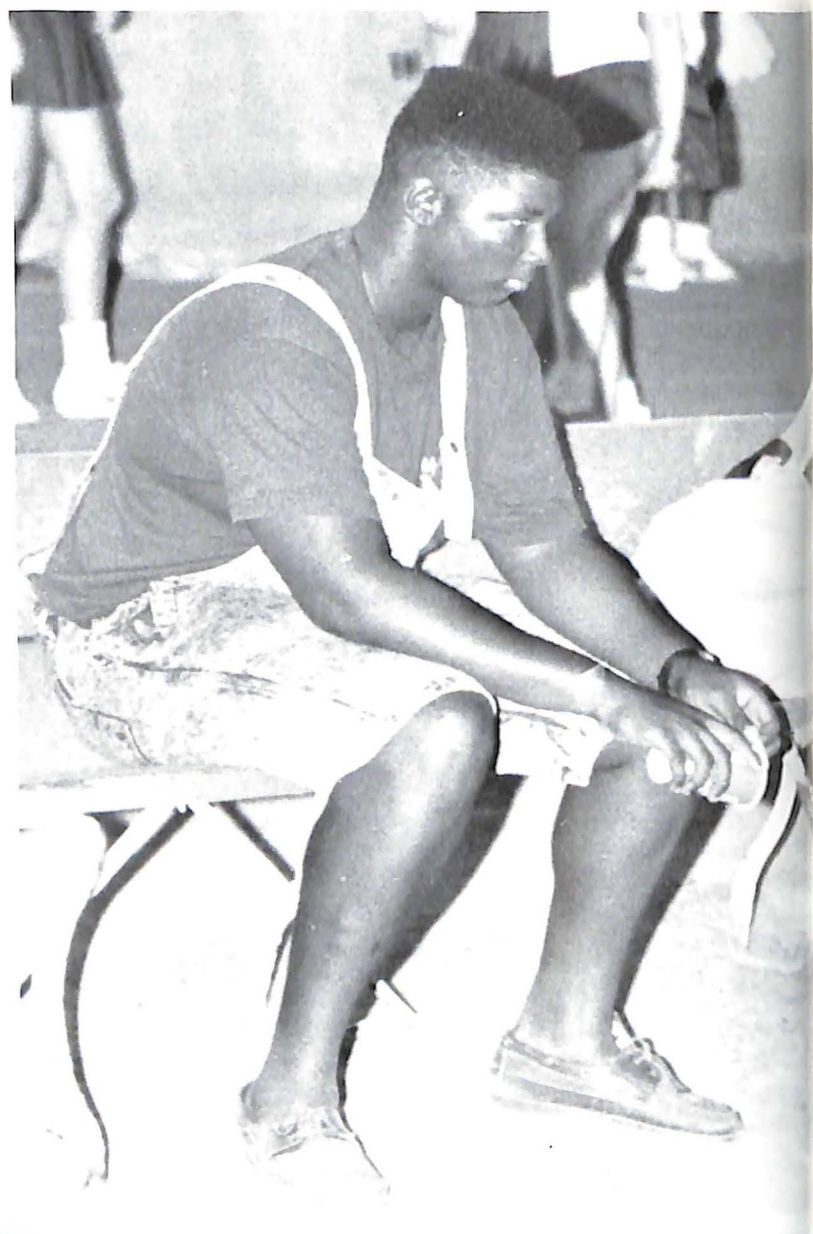

"I would own a comedy club on a college campus in order to bring laughter to all of the scholastically motivated."

— Rob Ruthenberg

"An exotic car dealership, so I wouldn't have to buy my own car. I could just drive one off the lot."

— Lee Smith

Sitting on the side — It looks like it's been a fairly rough game. Kenneth Burns sat on the side line out of uniform, due to injury.

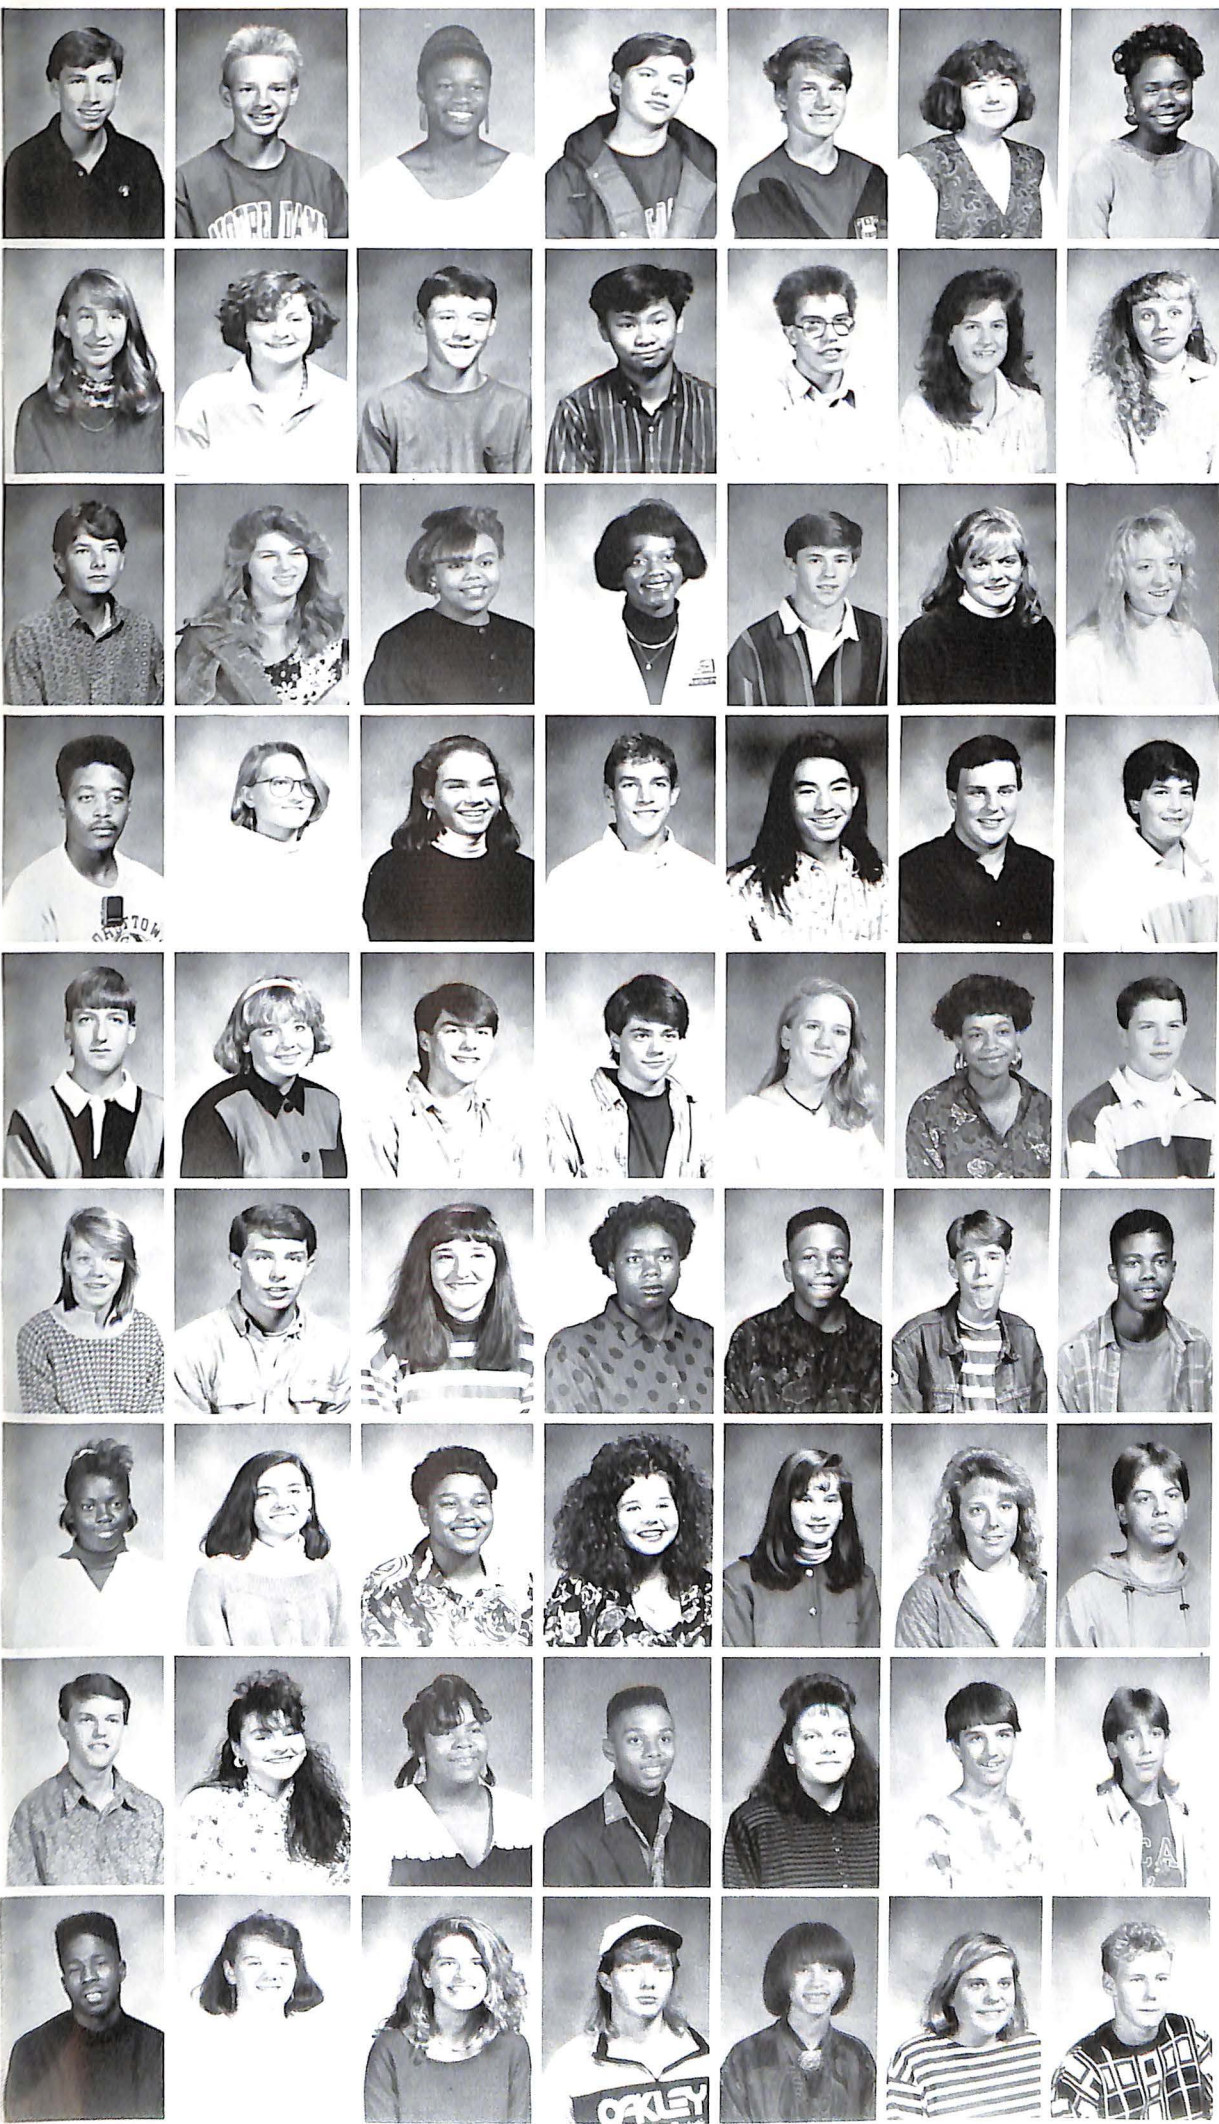

Erich Stephens

Squeeze play — Ouch that hurts! Coach Scott experienced a cramp in the back of his leg during a football game.

Oh that's hot — There's nothing better than bringing your own breakfast to school. Albert Nogue ate a biscuit before first period bell.

If I had an unlimited amount of money, I'd . . .

"Go on a trip to the Bahamas with my friends and no parents."

— Ayisha Whitenack

"Go on a trip to Australia, stop off in Paris to shop, and then off to New York and California for the last bit of shopping."

— Amanda Bounds

"I would buy a house, a car, go to college, and be happy for the rest of my life."

— Brian Keenum

"I'd feed all the hungry people in the world."

— Lenny Rittberg

"I would buy the country of Japan, so my unlimited amount of money would stay unlimited."

— Kyle McMahon

"I'd buy all the hottest guys in the world and make them be my eternal love-slaves."

— Michele Noell

"I would buy a blue Miata, a condo in Colorado and live there with a ski instructor forever!"

— Michael Herman

"I would open an orphanage for all the homeless kids in the USA, and I'd pay for my sister's leg braces."

— Kerry Hess

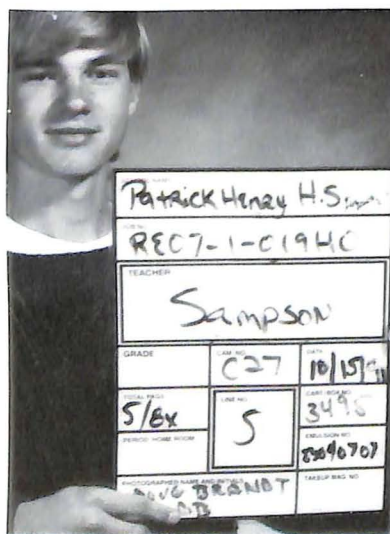

"Travel around the world on a sailing yacht."

— Mr. Gelburd

"Buy me a BMW and some girls and stay at home."

— Stacy Carroll

Solorama — Freshman violinist Sally Orfield practices a song by herself so she can keep her concentration. Great concentration is a must in playing a musical instrument, especially the violin.

Doug Brandt

Mug Shot — Lucky Junior Todd Slaughter gets to hold up the information charts for his class. It was a thrill for all underclassmen to be chosen for this duty.

Forget frisbee, let's throw Summer. During a free time in their hectic day of school, Juniors Summer Baker and Truc Nguyen, and Sophomore Stafford Turner try to decide what's better, playing frisbee or wrestling in the quad.

From starring in the school performance of Romeo and Juliet, to playing first chair violin in the orchestra, Patrick Henry students selected an organization that displayed their talent or interest. Some students spent countless hours aiding fellow students in the Peer Support Group while others preserved the environment in the Earth Club. The Quill, The Statesman, and The Patriot all allowed students to exhibit their literary expertise. Patriots interested in steep hills and cold air were members of the Ski Team. With over forty clubs to choose from, the Patriots could pursue a range of activities. So whether you made beautiful music or made tracks in the snow, Patrick Henry had the club for you.

What To Do?

Beta Club and Interact Club have done many activities to benefit and help our community. Both clubs were filled with people who enjoyed doing things for others.

The Interact Club sponsored a Skate-a-Thon to benefit the Special Olympics and raised over 300 dollars for the charity. They helped the Literacy Foundation by hosting the Corporation Spelling Bee which raised about 10,000 dollars for the Literacy Foundation. The club also hosted parties for foreign exchange students and sent representatives from the Interact Club to schools around the area to promote the club and get chapters started in other schools. Many things the club did were in conjunction with the Rotary Club which sponsored Interact. "The Interact Club was a place where a group of people who felt the same about helping others could get together and do just that" said sophomore Chris Andres.

"Beta Club was enjoyable and did many worthwhile things for community service" said senior Sean Bowden. Among Beta Club's services was the Save-a-Sweetheart activity which collected signatures of students who promised not to smoke. The club also sent Christmas cards to the Friendship Manor Nursing Home and collected food from homerooms for Ram House. One thing that makes Beta Club different from all other clubs is that it requires a student to have a certain grade point average to be selected to join.

Cleaning Up the Act

The Earth Club here at Patrick Henry was founded to help project and preserve the earth. Each day the members of this organization took on a responsibility that was not taken lightly.

Many people felt that just one person could not possibly make a difference. It was that kind of attitude that put the environment in the condition it is in today. Members of the Earth Club felt every person should do something to help out, not just a few. Cleaning up the planet should be something that makes people feel good about themselves; they have contributed to help insure that our future generations inherit a better place to live.

Each week the Earth Club went around campus and picking up litter and collecting discarded aluminum cans. The cans were taken down to Cycle System, a company that paid cash for recyclable aluminum. The money that they received from the cans went toward more social activities and supplies for the club.

Reanne Jones summed up the Earth Club perfectly when she said "The Earth Club is the most important club here at Patrick Henry because the people really care about the earth and all of its inhabitants."

“Ain’t Writin’ GRAND?”

“Deadlines, deadlines, deadlines!” The term that most literary clubs are most familiar with. The sound of typing typewriters, rustling papers, and the teacher reiterating the deadlines. All this hustle and bustle in order to bring out the best in Patrick Henry, as shown through the Patriot, the Quill, and the Statesman. The Photojournalism class is always busy learning pica space as well as taking pictures. For many of the photographers, journalists, and editors, literary clubs have been said to be the best class they have ever taken. Patriot staff member, Ryan Garst says, “Other than learning discipline, and becoming more organized, it looks good on your (college) application.” One of the Quill writers, Melissa Thomas states, “The Quill is definitely a means in which students at PH can express themselves through a formal publication.” The Quill is a booklet that comes out with the Patriot annual, displaying many of the artistic drawings and poems by the students. The Patriot yearbook had to meet the deadline before the end of the year, mainly because this will be the last of its publication. The overstacked shelves of past yearbooks, represent the school budget, wasted, from unbought books. So to all the people who have not purchased a book, BUY THEM NOW!! Besides, what’s a year without those GRAND memories?

Career or Hobby

If you were a person who loved working with your hands and wanted to make a career out of it, then ICT (Industrial Cooperative Training) helped in refining your skills. If you did not prefer to make a lifelong career of working with your hands ICT opened up many new possible hobby choices; such as photography or woodcraft. In order to be in ICT you had to be at least sixteen-years old for most classes, and for certain courses you had to be at least eighteen-years old. All applicants must have completed the minimum requirements of a Junior with at least a 2.0 grade point average. After they had met all of the requirements, ICT students were placed in classes according to their interests. After graduation, former ICT students went out in the working world with the knowledge that many employers sought the skills that they had learned in the programs in ICT. Employers were also paying higher than average salaries to the ICT graduates because they were well prepared and hard working people. If you were a type of person that liked working with their hands, but only on weekends as a hobby, then ICT was still a good skill builder. If you wanted to build that new coffee table but was not sure of how to go about doing it then ICT gave you the knowledge and the confidence to build that table or bookshelf. If your hobby was photography, ICT taught you what type of camera and lense would work best on that shot of a gorgeous view of the sunset right outside of your bedroom window. No matter if you wanted a job or just a hobby working with your hands, ICT prepared you with the skills that it took to be successful with your finished product.

In training — Cosmetology students Lauren Vest and Shelley Knisley perfect the art of perming. Students practiced on dummies before they worked on real people.

“In Order To Form A More Perfect Union”

Serving as a class officer has helped me to better understand the student body's likes and dislikes. Knowing this has helped me and my fellow officers to make the school and its activities better to be involved with," said Emily Tegenkamp about the SGA. If students had suggestions for any school activities they contacted SGA members. The SGA then relayed your message to the administration, and then to the student body. The SGA members served the students and did what they could to make the school year better. The SGA made strong believers out of many students. Working with the administration, they linked to form one body, to serve everyone's needs. The SGA helped to make all activities at PH fun and exciting. In order to be involved you must show your school spirit and dedication, in order to make it their best year ever. SGA members used their school spirit to show their enthusiasm throughout various functions. "We've been in SGA since ninth grade and have enjoyed it because we have been able to participate in many school activities. SGA has helped to increase our school spirit and involvement within the school," claimed Courtney Tucker and Ashley Matthews.

When You Wish Upon a Star

The Patrick Henry Players is a club filled with people who wish upon stars. Whether you are interested in costuming, make-up, stage managing, publicity, or just plain old character acting, you could make your dreams come true within the P H Players.

"When I watched the plays, it seemed to me that the actors always knew their lines and never missed their cues. The actors made it seem real," remarked Christie Bradbury. Even with a limited budget, the Patrick Henry Players always put on a top notch performance that pleased the audience.

"Fred Fuller is the best. Even when he is up to his eyeballs in a play he finds time to listen to his students problems," said Tammy Davis. Mr. Fred Fuller, the drama teacher, seemed more like a friend than a teacher to his pupils. He always tried to be sure that his students fully understood the information he was presenting to them. "The first day I walked into his drama class, I felt intimidated. When Fuller said, 'that we would all be required to do some stage work, including speaking in front of everyone,' I thought I was going to pass out! I have never been comfortable of stage, but he helped me get rid of my fear," said Stafford Turner.

Band is Grand

During the 1990-1991 Football season, the Patrick Henry Patriot Band was at most varsity football games pulling for our team. As the Patriot Band marched onto the field, the crowd directed its attention to the synchronized beat of the drums. All of the band members put a lot of hard work and dedication into their halftime show.

"Keep those chins up and smile!" said Heather Stephenson, the Color Guard Captain. The color guard danced, twirled flags, and tossed rifles to, "sell the show," as Howard Nash, the Color Guard Director, told the color guard before every performance. The members were very dedicated in giving up the time and effort needed to produce all of the memorable shows. For five days in August, the Patriot Band attended a camp at Ferrum College to learn, and improve their skills. At practices and during band classes, all attention was directed toward Sharon Johnson, the band director.

The P.H. Orchestra worked as a unit to perform numerous concerts this year. "Playing the cello takes a great deal of skill as well as a great deal of discipline," said Bethany Austin.

In Perfect Harmony

"Let's start with some scales," says William Kinzie who is the director of the Patrick Henry School Orchestra. Every morning, devoted musicians meet for "zero period" and make great music. These students enjoy playing together and have worked on pieces throughout the year from various musical time periods. Some composers that they have studied this year include Bach, Mozart, and Corelli.

The Patrick Henry Orchestra performs at many places during the school year. They play for organizations that are affiliated with the Roanoke School Systems as well as participate in Roanoke City sponsored events such as the Music Education Week concert. They will compete at District Festival again this year. Last year they received straight ones as their score, which is a superior rating.

The orchestra is especially strong this year and draws a large amount of people to its concerts. Some of the members of the orchestra are also involved in other programs such as the Strings and Bows Club and the Roanoke Youth Symphony. These "dual" members include Alex Wade, Mike Doherty, Bethany Austin, Jennie O'Brien and Michelle Eanes. They are the Patrick Henry Orchestra and they are Grand.

— Bethany Austin

A True Melting Pot

This school year Patrick Henry was visited by exchange students from several countries around the world. Many of these students spent the entire year here in the U.S., while others visited only for a few weeks.

Students came to Roanoke from such countries as Spain, Italy, Japan, Denmark, Germany, Russia, France, and Switzerland. For these students Patrick Henry provided a perfect setting to learn about the lifestyles of the typical American teenager.

Many things that we local folk took for granted in our daily routines often seemed unusual to foreign visitors. "Nobody, especially in Germany or Switzerland, goes to a fast food place in order to have breakfast before school," exclaimed one excited foreign exchange student. The majority of the American school day seemed to be pretty much the same as that in their homeland for most exchange students. After school our American system offers many extracurricular activities such as drama, sports and service clubs. Most other countries do not offer these fringe benefits to school. Many of the after school activities like cheering at ball games different than the customs of many of the exchange countries where school, and everything that relates to school, ends at the last bell. Foreign students began to realize that school in "the States" plays a much more intricate part of daily life than it does in many other countries.

Most P.H. students are so used to these visitors from abroad that it seems quite normal to study along side people from just about everywhere in the world. Anders Moller, a Sophomore exchange student from Denmark, commented, "People really don't treat me any differently here than back home," a comment that should make us all proud to be citizens of the most culturally diverse and democratic country in the world.

All In Step

The Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) at Patrick Henry High School has really come a long way in the past few years. During the 89-90 school year the program was not doing well, lack of student motivation caused field trips to be canceled and the low interest level made the program weak.

During the school year the ROTC went to Maxwell Air Force Base, Alabama, three times. As well as the Langley Air Force Base in Virginia. The ROTC Corps also placed ninth in a drill competition for the Southeast Region. Now that shows school spirit. Senior cadet Steve Collins was chosen for a leadership school in California.

His essay was number one in a contest conducted by the Military Order of World Wars (MOWW). The ROTC cadets once again played the Marines from the recruiting sub-station. The game was a total success; the Corps made over five-hundred dollars from ticket proceeds. The game started out with the Marines in the lead then the ROTC caught up to tie the score. The Marines showed their pride and wound up the game 34-28, Marines favor. After the game the Marines and ROTC cadets enjoyed some cold drinks and laughs.

This year, ROTC cadets also marched in local Christmas parades and other special events. Being in ROTC is a good experience for students. They can go into the Air Force, pay for college, and start a career. All in all, this school year has gone smoothly. The cadets from PHHS AFJROTC learned a lot.

Head for the Slopes

When weekends in Roanoke were slow, many students would head for the slopes. Skiing was a fun alternative to cruising and doing nothing. On just a moment's notice, students could load skis, ski boots, warm clothes and other necessities into the car, pile in, and leave for a fun filled day of skiing. Some students grabbed a few friends, but others chose the Patrick Henry Ski Club. Whether students skied with few or many friends, a blast was had by all.

It didn't seem to matter if the Patriot was a "first time skier" or an "old pro." They all found ways to challenge their abilities. David Robinson, a first time skier said, "I tackled the slopes for the first time this year, I took a lesson and the most valuable thing I learned was how to snow plow." Jon Dunker, a more experienced skier, said, "I love mogels and trying to do neat jumps like the backscratcher and the spread eagle."

Some of the popular spots for day trips were Wintergreen, Winterplace, and the Homestead. Some students wanted to go for a little longer. They frequently drove to Silver Creek or Snow Shoe, in West Virginia. These resorts were best for overnight trips, which gave participants more time to conquer the slopes.

"This year has proved to be a better year for skiing than last year was. Last year ski trips were constantly being cancelled or postponed due to lack of snow," said Junior Emily Tegankamp.

GRADE

The ever dreaded buzz of the Monday morning alarm was heard throughout the valley of the Patriots. After a cold five minute shower, and a power breakfast of Cocoa Crispy's and Jolt Cola, over stuffed book bags were shoved in car trunks and on bus floors; another week of "higher education" had begun.

Some would have argued that the 180 trips down GRANDin Road toward Patrick Henry were for social occasions, sporting events, and a chance to build peer relations. Students often forgot that their main purpose was to walk across the Roanoke Civic Center stage and to receive their diploma; that piece of paper that represents four years of stressful moments and hard work to be Making the Grade.

Six things students do when they aren't paying attention

1. Catch some ZZZ's — Some Patrick Henry students stayed up so late doing homework, that they were exhausted by the time they got to class. They used their classes to catch up on beauty sleep.

2. Homework — When students weren't so studious, they tried to do their homework in class before the teachers called on them. Occasionally, this worked, but other times the students were called on and couldn't give an answer, they just stared at the teacher with a blank look.

3. Gossip — We all know that teenagers gossip, P.H. students were no exception. Students gossiped about nearly everything. They discussed things from whose dating whom, to weekend plans.

4. Burping Contest — This was one of the most creative ways that students passed time. Students didn't declare winners, but they all got a good laugh.

5. Daydream — In nearly every class at P.H. we found at least 3.26 people daydreaming. In the spring nearly everyone was caught daydreaming on a few different occasions.

6. Chew Gum — Chewing gum and blowing big bubbles was an activity that many students participated in. Most teachers didn't seem to mind as long as the bubbles didn't disrupt class.

When you are not paying attention you can always find something to do at P.H., because everyone knows P.H. is the most "exciting place in town."

GIBBONEY GOSSIP

Working For A Living

According to John Horton, "Gibboney is career bound. It helps you proceed with your career choice." Gibboney Hall is a Vocational Technology Center for students who want better job skills.

Anyone who attended a Gibboney class received either one, two, or three credits depending on the length of the class chosen. Students who were enrolled in the classes found that they could take the class they liked most for as many as three years.

The wide variety of classes sometimes made it difficult for students to decide what they wanted to take. For instance, you could have chosen a class in Printing, Welding, Cosmetology, Electronics, or even Wood Technology. The class that most people seemed to be signing up for was Cosmetology.

To many students the classes weren't long at all. "Gibboney classes seemed to go by faster than regular classes. I stayed occupied in Gibboney," claimed Christina Saunders. When asking Recie Muse what he liked about Welding he said that it was a fun class and he had the only woman teacher in Gibboney. "Mrs. J. took us on field trips and entered us in contests," explained Recie.

All in all, Gibboney was a great place for many students to learn how to prepare for their futures. Whether your classes helped you to make extra money or if you planned to make a career out of your choice of classes, Gibboney is sure to be an experience you'll never forget.

CITY Life

CITY School is a program designed to help seniors become better prepared for their upcoming college years. The CITY School year begins with summer reading, writing, and career oriented workshops. Students intern at various professional settings throughout Roanoke to give them a chance to experience the "real world." "Playing with numbers at Sawyer & Company (a local accounting firm) was the last thing I wanted to do on a beautiful July morning; but I look back and really value the experience and knowledge which I gained," said Jennifer Clemmer.

For the sixty students of CITY School from Patrick Henry and William Fleming there is no such thing as a typical day. The schedule varies from lectures by local professionals on topics such as Real Estate Law, Wills and Estate Planning, to Grief Counseling and How to Get the Most Financial Aid. The second hour is spent in some form of in depth English class taught by professors from Virginia Western Community College. "The papers are challenging, and Shakespeare was never easy, but it is great to feel like you are actually getting a higher education," said Jackson Light. Some of this year's novels included King Lear, Les Miserables, and The Great Gatsby.

The relaxed environment of CITY School gives students a chance to use their creative thinking skills in various manners. Trips to London and New York opened up doors of culture on national and international levels.

Looking down Church Avenue, CITY School students are seen sprinting from All Right Parking lots, Tudor's Biscuit World, and the ever loved Texas Tavern. If it is intense studying, catching up on last minute homework, or scarfing on a "bowl with," CITY School life is "the greatest," said Marti Tracy with some serious chili breath.

The Center For Advanced Studies in the Humanities

This year a new program was added to the Patrick Henry curriculum. This program is called The Center for Advanced Studies in the Humanities or commonly called The Center. The Center gave ninth, tenth, and eleventh grade students the opportunity to take classes in advanced history and English while also learning about the humanities. The teachers in this new program were Mrs. Jerry Bourdeaux, Ms. Mara Kennedy, Ms. Lynn Rigby, and Ms. Katherine Stuart.

The Center is the only program like it in Virginia in that it integrates the humanities with advanced history and English classes, offers college credit in history, and also incorporates advanced composition.

The Center gave its' students the opportunity to go on many field trips including a trip to the Smithsonian, a ski trip, and a trip to Broadway in NY.

Ms. Katherine Stuart says "The program is going beautifully." She also feels that students responded well to the amount of reading that was required this year, which believe me was a lot!

Another teacher in the Center, Jerry Bourdeaux, says "Most students in the program felt they had a say in how things were run and they enjoyed having a place to go and a program designed for them." In stating this, she is exactly right. Most students this year learned a lot from this program and most importantly had fun doing it.

The Governor's School for and Technology was a center for the study of advanced courses in science, mathematics, computer applications, and technology. The school now enrolls over two hundred students from across the Roanoke Valley. The students range from Freshmen to Seniors who participated in the half-day program. In the past year Governor's School has become a very important part of Patrick Henry High School and for some students, going to Governor's School has become a part of life. The students who chose to go to Governor's School knew it could be a tough decision, but one that would be worth it in the long run. Students were well aware of the rigorous college-level math and science courses, yet seemed to juggle classes, sports, and friends with determination and style. Sophomore, H. B. Thomas, said, "I'm not quite sure how I managed everything. Just luck, I guess." The great course offerings were another plus for Governor's School students. Classes ranging from biotechnology to microscopy to aeronautics granted students experiences they might have never had. These courses were electives. Electives along with the other required math and science classes. The electives were available for interested students who wanted to receive a credit in science instead of taking a consulting period. With smaller classes and more individual attention, Governor's School students feel they were getting a great learning advantage and a jump on a promising future. The college level courses found in Governor's School are some of the best around, and Roanoke City students who have attended the school have done better in life than those who haven't.

Patrick Henry was introduced to many different types of culture during the 1991-1992 school year. Understanding the culture of a group is very important in understanding their tendencies and their actions.

Students had a chance to meet a group from Spain during the first semester. The Spanish students received a small taste of America during the two weeks they were here. For the two weeks the exchange students stayed in the homes of a few receptive students. By doing this, the exchange students had a chance to look at the United States from every aspect. The exchange students were not the only ones who were receiving a little culture shock. The Spanish students were also able to deliver a little slice of Spain to the student body of Patrick Henry.

Another type of culture that students at Patrick Henry learned more about is the African culture. By learning more about this complex culture every student at Patrick Henry became a better person by being able to break the cultural barrier. One way students at Patrick Henry learned about African culture was an assembly that featured dancers from the West African country of Togo. This assembly was educational, as well as, fun for all those who attended.

Culture is something that must be learned and respected by everyone and at Patrick Henry everyone had the opportunity to learn about it.

Understanding

The class brought to life the cultures of native Africans.

The purpose of the African American Studies class was to provide an in-depth view of African American culture to all Patrick Henry students. The class also helped to foster an appreciation and understanding of African culture among students, both black and white.

This course was divided into three sections: Drama — which presented brought black literary forms to the state; Gospel Choir — performing music from traditional spiritual to contemporary; and Dance — ranging from early African to present day street dance.

The class sometimes took these programs out into the community as social service projects. Performances were given at hospitals, schools, and generally made available to the public.

In addition, the class hosted the Ishangi Family Dancers who visited Roanoke from the country of Togo. The Ishangi family shared a rich cultural experience with many P.H. students who knew little about this genre of cultural heritage.

THE TERMINATORS

The Patrick Henry Football Team showed the determination both on and off the field

Despite our record of 3-7, this year our Varsity Football team's spirit, along with the spectators' cheers, kept up strongly throughout the entire season. To the football team the record did not matter because they did their best; and as long as they gave it their all they would be ok. The highlight of the football season was the homecoming victory over Franklin County. Walter Sharpley even agreed that this game was the best match of the year when he said, "The game was a real boost for the team. We needed a good win."

The season began in August. A month of long hot and gruelling practices was what helped to make P.H.'s team one of the most dedicated teams in the District. They then began to prepare for a new season and a winning record, unaware of the agony that lay ahead. The team had a good attitude, and though their record did not show it, they worked hard and gave it their

Looking To The Future

The 1991 Freshman and Junior Varsity football season didn't go as planned to say the least. Both teams were composed of many new players, each of which had lots of talent, but this talent needed to be developed.

With the help of Freshman quarterback Wilber Smith, the newly formed Freshman team managed a 3-5 record. Two of those wins came at the end of the season when the players were just beginning to show their talent. Freshman Michael Sisler remarked, "We had a decent season and found lots of new talent. We will be stronger next year!"

While the Freshman team struggled, the Junior varsity team followed pace and ended the season with a 2-6 record. When asked what he thought about the Junior varsity team, Michael McMahon said, "We had a strong team with great potential, but our size and timing were against us."

Although the team might not have been the biggest P.H. has had, Coach Jones felt that, "They stuck it out, came to practice, and played hard — REAL HARD!"

It takes experience to reach the top and hopefully next year P.H. will have a strong varsity team with returning players such as Sophomores Eugene Cook, Adrian Moore, Robbie Goenes, Greg Alexander and Danny Graham. The Freshman team must speak for itself and I'm sure they'll YELL! P.H. will be heard next year!!!

Patriot girls swung to a 10-0 district record

1991 served up a good year for the girls' tennis team. A new coach and new players helped to boost the Patriots past Cave Spring rivals to win their first Roanoke Valley District Championship since 1978.

Led by Seniors Amy Roe and Amy Guelzow, the Patriots were unstoppable, ending the regular season with a 10-0 record. When asked about their first place finish, Roe said, "We didn't become number one by accident. It took hard work and dedication to get there and we weren't going to give it up."

The Patriots' success didn't end with the regular season, but continued to follow them through the RVD Championship, where Amy Roe won singles District Championship and Amy Guelzow and Amanda Bounds won the Doubles District Championship crown. # On The Right Track

The Patriot Cross Country team went the distance and finished with pride.

Cross Country running is one of Patrick Henry's most demanding sports. Imagine running mile after mile, hill after hill, throughout the fall months. But all of this grueling practice is necessary due to the high demands of cross country competition. "Times improved due to the grueling practices," states runner Paul Laurey.

Despite the lack of experience, the Patriot runners made several representative showings in meets throughout the season. Due to intense competition the patriot runners beat their rival school William Fleming, and went all the way to regionals which were held at UVA this year.

Freshmen along with upperclassmen seemed to add a lot of growth to our team, promising a better year next year. "It's the biggest team I've seen since I started running in ninth grade," said Paul Laurey.

Despite the lack of attention received by the cross country team, they kept on striding. Senior Jennifer Clemmer commented, "I don't mind the lack of attention we receive compared to other sports such as football. I don't run for the recognition, I run because I enjoy it."

The year was tough, but they stroked through it with a hole in one.

The Patriot golf team, led by co-captains Scott Baldwin and Troy Jamison, faced great odds during the 1991 season. Only one of the seven players had more than two years of experience on the golf team. It was also a learning experience for Becky Bondurant. Coach Bondurant, First year Coach, said as head golf coach, "The team improved during the season and I'm looking forward to next year. All in all it was a good season."

Despite several early season losses, the team remained optimistic. Scott Baldwin commented, "We have an inexperienced team but I believe we can make a good showing in the final standings."

After several hard fought losses, the Patriot golfers ended the season with a fourth place district finish. Two members of the golf team represented Patrick Henry in the regional tournament. Scott Baldwin and

The Volleyball team showed that they could pack a powerful punch.

As spectators of the 91-92 Volleyball season, we were in awe. How could any team possess such an extraordinary amount of school spirit. No matter how the game was going, the players never lost their enthusiasm.

This enthusiasm showed that the girls volleyball team had a strong characteristic that no other team in the District could compete with — TEAMWORK! The team was a whole, like a family, when something went well, or something bad happened, they never gave credit or blamed any one person. After having a 17-1 record in 90-91, this year's team knew that they could repeat their good showing from the years before. "This year was going to be a rebuilding year, after having lost two key passers and setters following graduation," said Coach Williams.

"There were only two returning starters Casey Kesler and Kathryn Repass. Brigitte Basile stepped up and became a setter and one of our more dominant hitters this year," remarked Coach Williams with a smile.

On top of having a good season with a record of 10-5, Brigitte Basile and Casey Kesler were named to Second Team All-District. Kathryn Repass was honored by making First team All-District and also by making the All-Regional team.

Slam Jamming

The leadership of the Patriots within the district was proven in their exceptional season.

"Let's go P.H., P.H.let's go." "When I say purple you say gold, when I say Patrick you say Henry" were just a few cheers heard from the sidelines and the cheerleaders at the Patriots basketball games. The team was led by Senior Captains Troy Manns and Jonas Callis. "We knew we had a good team with so many talented players and we have proved to be the best," said Jonas Callis when asked about the team. Jonas Callis, Troy Manns, Timmy Basham, Turk Smith and Melvin Wilson who started for the Patriots, got the team off to a great start. Sophomores Curtis Staples and Shannon Taylor came off the bench and proved to be the key players in several Patriot victories. The comeback of Turk Smith, after sitting out his Sophomore and Junior years due to a heart condition, has also been a scoring threat on the roster.

With the Patriots slam dunks and 100 point scores, the team attracted many fans. The Patriots' home gym was packed at every home game and the fans traveled to Botetourt, Lynchburg, Pulaski, and Franklin County to cheer the Patriots on to their many victories. The Patriots started off the year with a championship trophy to add to their collection. The Arby's Classic in Bristol, Tennessee was the tournament that the 1988 Patriot state champs won. # A Learning Experience

— John Burrow

— Jesse Dunker

The 91-92 Boy's Junior Varsity Basketball Season was all about gaining experience and learning the game. They fought hard to improve their skills from the previous year.

The Patriots started the season off with a couple of hard but close losses, but even those losses had their good side. The Patriot team improved its strategies and condition after a couple of defeats and corrected its few mistakes. This gave the team confidence and developed talent to win a lot of upcoming games.

At the end of the season the players looked back to a couple of impressive victories against Franklin County, Heritage and Pulaski County and quite a lot of games which literally went "down to the wire."

Coach Franklin remarked that he was "quite positive that some of the JV players like John Burrows, Gary Johnson, Quinton Twine and Vince Mcghee show a lot of promise as future Patriots." Even when the season ended the team was still improving in the off-season, conditioning their bodies in the weight-room several days a week, playing pick-up games in the park, and going to local Basketball camps during the summer.

The Freshman team survived it's initial exposure to Patriot basketball with a good attitude. The team worked well together, hopefully growing closer as friends and teammates. Most of these young men were blessed with the talent necessary to carry on the rich basketball tradition at Patrick Henry. With hard work and dedication, they will be the stars of tomorrow.

Joy and Pain

Practice, practice, practice . . . is what Coach Sheedy thought would help benefit the team. "Practice is what determines how you will play in a game and the more you practice, the more you used to game-like situations," states Coach Sheedy. The girls team this year learned that it wasn't all fun and games. With all the practicing and games the girls also had to maintain good grades in their classes. Varsity and J.V. alike learned how to manage their time wisely with both schoolwork and with playing basketball. The girls were challenged by a lot of teams, a total of 21 games. Winning some and losing some. "The biggest challenge was to be able to play a pro-schedule with four games in one week and only one of the four games was a home game," states Caroline Mays. Though the records don't show it, the girls played their hardest and ended up fourth in the district, but had the opportunity to be third. This year's team was a combination of both old and new players working together to accomplish their goals. Teamwork is what helped the Lady Patriots win most of their games and showed that they had the will to accomplish anything.

Patriot Swimmers Make Their Splash

Going into their fifth year of competition, the Patrick Henry swimmers knew the season would be tough. Last year the girls' relay team won the state meet, but now those four girls were in college and it was left to uprising Juniors and Seniors to retain the number one spot. In addition, the boys lost a lot of swimmers as well. Despite the lackluster turnout, the swimmers remained optimistic about the upcoming year.

The swimmers worked hard under the leadership of first year coach Chuck Braeton, practicing five days a week at the new Gator Aquatic Center. Week after week the Patriot swimmers went head to head with the fiercest competition the valley had to offer. Although they were easily outnumbered in most every meet, time after time they turned in respectable finishes.

The toughest competition came during the District Meet, in which the Patriots faced arch rivals Cave Spring and Pulaski County. The effort was there, but the numbers were not. Despite the honorable efforts, the Lady Patriots were unable to retain the district crown. While the girls' outlook was dim, there was a beacon

"Practices were hard, but the road trips were fun. All in all it was a good year."

— Jeff Wright

of hope for the guys. Leading the meet until the last relay race, the Patriot males thought they could hold on, but they ran out of steam and the Knights took the Roanoke Valley District Crown.

Coach Braeton looked back on the season with a smile, and added "We're losing a lot of senior guys. We'll definitely miss having the Seniors' experience, but the girls had a good season this year and there's the possibility of having a better one next year." When asked why he swam this year, Senior Rob Carson simply said, "I'm too sexy for my clothes, so I wear Speedos."

We all worked for one common goal — to repeat as district champs.

In every track meet held during the 1991-92 indoor season, the Patriots and Lady Patriots demolished, destroyed and dominated. Although the meets were fairly easy, the training was the hardest part of all. "We had to remember that we were the defending RVD champs and we had to prove that the last year wasn't a fluke," Chris Preston said. During the season, they went out to every meet with intensity and a positive attitude causing them to return, once again, as the undefeated champs. Jermaine Ferrell quoted, "We all worked for one common goal — to repeat as district champs." The Patriots were led by

Only judging by the scoreboard, the Patrick Henry Wrestling team didn't have one of the greatest seasons. The team and coaches, however, felt that the team had made a great deal of progress. The entire wrestling squad consisted of only thirteen people and, therefore, many weight divisions had to be forfeited in every match. Truc Nguyen said, "We had a lot of quality for our quantity, but our size was definitely a handicap."

Team and school spirit helped our wrestlers become more and more determined throughout the season. Although the team didn't rank highly in the division, the players wrestled to the best of their ability. The

Pumping It Up

The cheerleaders did an excellent job of pumping up school spirit.

The purpose of cheerleading is to promote school spirit. This meant practicing hard and trying your best. This also meant keeping a smile on your face. "It's hard to be in a bad mood when you're cheering because you have to jump around and smile because you don't want to disappoint the crowd," says Senior Maribeth Ayling.

The first week in August the cheerleaders ventured to Virginia Tech for camp. They learned new cheers, chants, stunts, and dance routines. "By the end of the week I was hoarse, tired, and dying to sleep in my own bed," said Junior Sarah Craft. The week was long and tiring, but each girl

Risin' To The Top

The P.H. J.V. and Freshman Cheerleaders gave a GRAND demonstration of their school spirit.

Junior Varsity and Freshman Cheerleaders had a new great learning experience while they were at Cheerleading Camp over the past summer. They learned some new stunts, how to do new cheers, and new jumps. The cheerleaders demonstrated their school spirit at the games as well as at the pep rallies.

The J.V. Squad attended several away games at places like Cave Spring, Roanoke Valley Christian, and Fleming. "I think that Cheerleading is a lot of fun and it shows true school spirit. At Cheerleading Camp I liked being able to participate in a lot of new things," says Junior Varsity Cheerleader Shannon Clasbey.

The Freshman Cheerleaders usually practiced on Tuesdays and Thursdays. They practiced stunts, cheers, and jumps. They attended some away games usually at places like Cave Spring, Fleming, Roanoke Civic Center, and Salem Civic Center. They

"I liked cheering in the Freshman Cheerleading Squad and supported the Freshman Football Team, as well as the Basketball Team. I liked learning how to do new stunts and new dance routines at Cheerleading Camp this past summer," commented Freshman Cheerleader Wendy Hall.

The J.V. and Freshman Cheerleading teams kept the Football and Basketball teams, and their fans, full of spunk and spirit during the games. Each half-time the Cheerleaders would go out onto the field or the court and do their cheers and stunts, always showing the fans their best stuff.

The constant need for "Mo' Money" is understood by all Patriots, Freshmen and Seniors alike. Many parents were heard saying "Just Do It," just get out there and get a job. The financial tension is especially felt by the new Yearbook Staff. Time and mistakes are money and there never is enough to go around. The Patriot publication, the dark-room facilities, and the Journalism workshops would all be impossible without the support of various companies throughout the Valley of the Patriots. # MAKING A EXIT

RANDIN

Life at Patrick Henry was definitely GRAND during the 1991-1992 school year. For all the seniors the road of 180 turns is all but a memory. A memory full of excitement, hard work, and good times. In the minds of the underclassmen, they could lock away the memories of this year and focus on the events that they would encounter on their road to being a senior. The memories each student and teacher gained would last a lifetime. Students had a chance to ride the crest of victory with many of our sport teams — whether following Indoor Track all the way to state or watching our Basketball Team enjoy a number one ranking in the state for the year.

Sports was not the only GRAND thing that the Patriots excelled in. Along with a long list of honors students, Patrick Henry had three National Merit Finalists. As Patriots made their final turn onto GRANDin Road, many reflected on their memories at Patrick Henry and looked forward to many GRAND years to come.

Making GRANDin Exit — After another grand day, mobile Patriots rounded the final turn on to Grandin Road, reflecting on their GRAND time at Patrick Henry High School.

Wasn't that GRAND — The 2:45 bell sounds as the Patriots flood the busses for their final trip onto GRANDin Road.
