Change of Pace

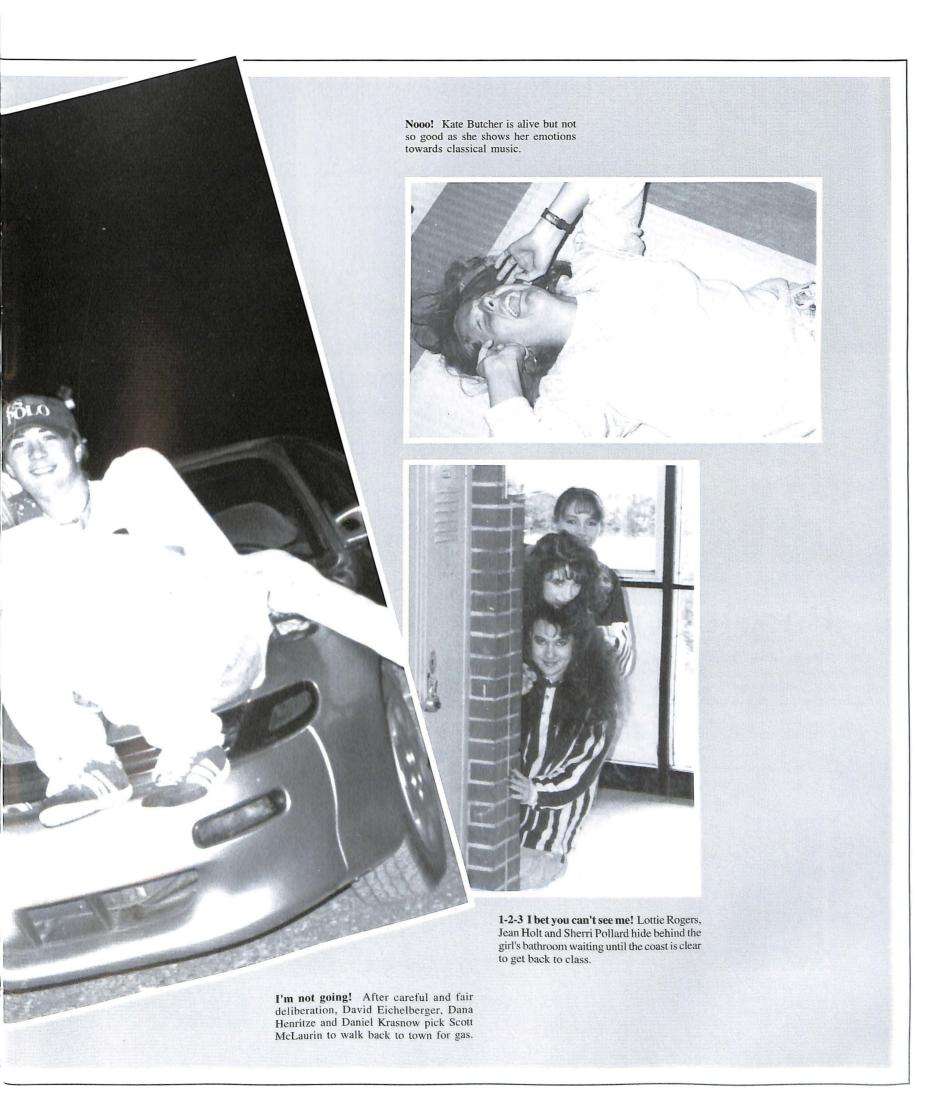

Out and about 94-95! Student life this year consisted of outdoor activities, parties without parents, jobs after school, and many new beginnings.

Friends became closer and relationships got stronger as everyone realized these were supposed to be the best times of our lives. Though we all knew our high school years would soon be over, the underclassmen felt it wasn't coming fast enough. Seniors, on the other hand, looked forward to college life and were psyched for graduation.

Spectators gathered in the stadium to cheer on the PH football team as they took on the Cave Spring Knights. Many students, fans, and alumni turned out for the pleasure of watching the "purple wall" dominate Cave Spring in a rousing 20-7 victory.

During halftime, as the football team planned 3rd quarter strategy, the twelve ladies chosen as the 1994-95 Homecoming Court were escorted onto the field. Although the screaming crowd drowned out the loudspeaker, it soon became obvious that Jamelle Jones had been the students choice for

Homecoming Queen. Her Maid of Honor was Susan Lawson. Other members of the Court included: Nadirah Hamidullah, Tammy

"Just like any other Prom...I should say not!" Why is ours different? Because we were there and it was ours! With a cool evening breeze, the class of '95 embarked upon the Sheraton for an evening of dancing and lasting memories. But wait...the Prom really started that morning with a mad rush to pick up the tux, curl hair, iron dresses, and clean out three years of trash from the Volkswagen.

After a quick run to the store for film and mom's constant "expert" photo skills, we were off to dinner. Not just any place...only the best.

With date in hand we danced to our favorite tunes until the bells tolled midnight and the doors of the City Market opened for a full night of gambling and fine food. After a few rounds at the karaoke machine, sudden losses at the Blackjack table. and 36 pieces of pizza, the wee hours of the morning began to take their tolls. Not on the senior class...just on the chaperones.

As the lights grew dim and the sun began to break, we packed our goodies and started to head for home. Prom '95 was about over. Hold-on! There's a breakfast party at....

So, how did we like OUR Prom? Instead of a lot of words to describe our adventure, let the pictures reveal our memories.

Blazing new trails through the narrow passages of the Roanoke Civic Center, over 250 PH seniors prepared for one of the most exciting events of their life, GRADUATION '95.

This was not just any ordinary graduation. Sure, thousands of students had passed this way before us but this night was special because it belonged to us. And what a beautiful night it was. At 7:00 p.m., the evening sky never looked better and the sweet smell of a summer air was the best yet. Seems kind of odd that we would remember little things like this but for some reason, every aspect of this event became a lasting memory.

For us, graduation did not begin at 7 p.m., rather, it started in the early morning with a quick wrinkle check of the gown and a mad rush to the store for film. After making final plans for the party after graduation and packing our emergency kit of chewing gum, hair pins, tissues, and candy bars, we were off.

As we entered the auditorium, thousand of anxious parents were waiting with an endless supply of film, cameras and video machines. With programs in hand we smiled in anticipation of having our names pronounced correctly and wondered if we would trip as we went across

With all the speeches completed, the time had finally arrived; the awarding of the diplomas. After twelve long years, our goals of completing high school were about to be fulfilled. But wait, our deodorant was not living up to its > 12 hour limit, the emergency kit mom packed was gone, and our palms were sweaty. Nobody prepared us for this moment.

Standing in line took forever. As we walked across the stage, the hands "congratulations" seemed huge and the audience looked like a Super Bowl crowd. Now, only to make it back to my remarks were made, we realized that our future goals were just getting underway. Leaving the auditorium to a crowd of relatives and well-wishers, we embarked upon a future of new challenges and ideas. No matter where we go or what we become, we will never forget one part of our life...

As the final name was called and the closing that of a Patriot at Patrick Henry High School.

Graduation '95! Truly, a night to remember!

Remember what happened...

Topping tonight's story....became a familiar phrase as 1994-95 was an action packed year for lasting memories. What was the main stage for this year? You be the judge.

Not even Forrest Gump could steal the thunder from former NFL great O.J. Simpson. Viewed in over 100 countries and seen by millions, the trial of the century led us into a world of intrigue, mystery, and doubt over a shrinking jury pool. As we become experts on DNA testing, we are shot down with a missing duffel bag and Kato's apparent book deal.

Changing the course of political history from 40 years ago, the Republican Party takes reins of the largest corporation in America...the U.S. Government. Promising to bring reform within the Course of the course form within the first 100 days of "power", Americans anxiously await higher paychecks and increased moral standards. Watching the chain of command alter from Bill to Hillary and then to Gingrich, the viewing became better than a rerun of "I Love Lucy!"

Testing our national security, assassination attempts are made on the President with gunmen shooting semiautomatic weapons through the White House gate. Fortunately, no one was hurt but Socks, the royal feline, refuses to use the outside kitty-box.

If you are planning to travel, be careful of subways. Within a 45 second barrage of gunfire, Colin Ferguson killed 6 passengers on a busy New York subway. In an attempt to defend himself. relatives of victims watched as a jury convicted him on all accounts. The system does work.

Speaking of terror, Americans were awakened with the tragedy of the Oklahoma bombing. With over 200 confirmed killed, we became aware that we are vulnerable to terrorism in "our own back yard". As rescue workers from all over the world methodically saved lives, the horror of anxious waiting for recovering bodies held America at bay for days. Did Terry Nichols really set the explosives? This trial may go longer than O.J.'s.

Japan jumped into the news frenzy as deadly chemical bombs were set off in subways. With an international manhunt for cult leader Shoko Asahara, the Japanese government vowed to end national terrorism. Three weeks later, another chemical bomb is found. No injuries, but the threat continues to haunt the people.

Traveling at the speed of light back across the Atlantic, we found that a father in Canada was arrested for spanking his child in public. Hey! This may have possibilities in America. Nah, Newt Gingrich is in power now.

Do you remember what happened 50 years ago? Well, millions of people did by celebrating the liberation of concentration camps from Nazi Germany. With worldwide activities and parades, we were reminded of the suffering and mass annihilation of certain cultures in Europe.

The largest bank in England goes for broke as an investor makes a couple of shady deals. Poor investment? Maybe, but the British courts didn't take any chances as they had all parties arrested.

Could this have anything to do with the fact that the Royal Family had a lot of holding in Barron's Bank? Who knows? Princess Di is still not talking to Prince Charles and Prince Phillip stays in Monoco most of the time.

After a brief trip across the Iraq border, two Americans were captured and sentenced by an Iraqi court to eight years. With diplomatic negotiations going nowhere, the wives get permission to visit their husbands in jail. No release, but the U.S. State Department was "ticked-off" because they were not involved. "Sic 'em Newt!"

Along with government deals, the CIA had it's own troubles as a double agent was arrested for selling government secrets to the Russians.

Guess who's Mayor of Washington D.C. again. After an undercover police operation caught Marion Berry using cocaine, he was convicted and sent to prison. Upon release, he comes to light and won his post back.

"This is Howard Cossell..." the legendary sports announcer dies of lung cancer. Remember the dance sensation of the '20s with Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers. After a long illness, Mrs. Rogers died leaving a lasting memory of the roaring '20's and elaborate Vaudeville acts. Jeffrey Dahmer is killed in prison while serving 5 life terms and Mexican star Selina is slain by a disgruntled fan. The matriarch of the Kennedy clan, Rose Kennedy dies at age 98. The great storyteller and solemn actor Burl Ives dies of natural causes. Elizabeth Montgomery of Bewitched died in Hollywood and Jessica Tandy died at age 90. Kurt Cobain died of an overdose and John Candy died of a heart attack.

The night lights were dim on the playing fields this year as the baseball strike seemed doomed to last forever.

Hang on! Bill & Hillary stepped in to offer an arbitrator while Newt stayed in the dugout. With 3 weeks left to game time, extras are brought in to start the season. Just wasn't the same though...watching minor league baseball on major league fields. But, without despair, the strike ended and the majors returned however, the fans are reluctant to jump back in the stands. Seems as if we found out just how much these guys were getting paid...at our expense. Play ball!

The Super-Bowl was great. The 49er's beat the Chargers with a record 50,000 in attendance and the Houston Rockets went up against the Orlando Magic for the coveted NBA Championship.

Mike Tyson was released from prison and heads for the arena. Not yet, though. Don King had to get the right price while allowing HBO to run a film on his career.

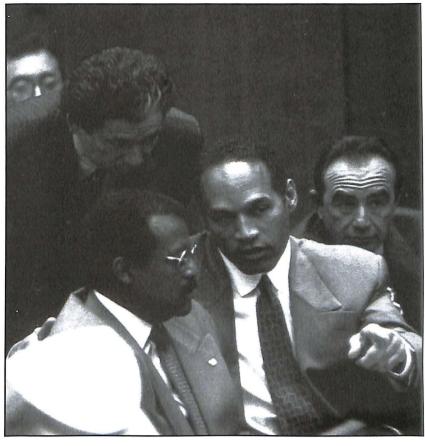

Michael Jordan made a triumphant return to basketball after losing out in baseball and Nancy Kerrigan got engaged to her manager.

Back on the farm, Parsons Hall got a new paint job and Otis Spunkmeyer cookies created a brand new taste in the cafeteria. Supported by parents, the PH baseball field got a whole new look. With grass skirts and coconuts, the basketball team studied hard on the Big Island. As an entourage of players and coaches embarked upon Hawaii, the players took to the courts against Kamehameha, Punahou, and Iolani high schools.

Roanoke jumped into the realm of heart- grasping news as mini-Graceland was about to go under. Through the help of local residents and diehard Elvis fans, the Roanoke monument was saved. Just in the nick of time, too. Elvis was spotted last week.

Roanoke went through a barrage of unexplained fires as Historic First Baptist Church goes up in flames. The I-81 killer was caught in Bristol and five people were brutally shot on New Years' Day. Governor George Allen signed into law a new bill for non-parole, Susan Smith was charged with drowning her two children, and Barney the Dinasour was beat up at the opening of a Texas shopping center. Tragedy struck the motion picture screen as Superman (Christopher Reeves) was thrown from his horse. In Charlottesville, VA doctors have given high hopes for a partial recovery of his paralysis. Also, the Brady Bunch re-entered our lives with a modern day remake of the 70's popular show. Greg is older and Marsha gets a fat nose. Terrible! Much to our surprise, Connie Chung announced that she was breaking up the duet with Dan Rather on the CBS Evening News. Rumor has it that corporate offices made the decision.

Finishing out our year-in-review: Richmond has the second highest homicide rate in the U.S., rapper Easy-E died of AIDS, the Hubble Telescope was repaired, Star Trek introduced "Voyager", the Madonna stalker was shot in her front yard, Simba was back in the popular movie "Lion King", a new Power Ranger made the scene, and David Letterman's mom toured London.

Don't forget the trivia: a lady sued McDonald's for $750,000 and won. Seems as if her coffee was too hot and burned her leg. Elvis and Marilyn Monroe stamps were introduced by the Post Office, Rodney King was pulled over again for speeding, Sega Saturn hit the market as the latest craze in video warfare, Boeing introduces the new 777 and the Tour-de-Pont hit the Virginia roads for a second year in a row.

Topping tonight's story, June 12, 1995, a record number of students enter a world of challenges and dreams as Patrick Henry High School holds its' graduation ceremony at the Roanoke Civic Center. It was a great year.

Vital Force

With over 1700 students filling the halls, it is easy to see why Patrick Henry is the largest school in the Roanoke Valley. Through a mixture of diverse cultures, students join together in developing lasting friendships and overall good times.

While the student population has grown over the past few years students have been able to find a place within the school for success and recognition. With the transition from middle school to high school, freshmen enter a world of friendly faces and numerous opportunities.

Through the creative talents of all students, Patrick Henry High School is recognized as a vital force that prepares individuals for the future.

eniors reveal activities held for four years

From National Merit Scholar winners to participation in a school sponsored club, Seniors leave a legacy of great accomplishments and fond memories. For the past four years, Seniors at Patrick Henry have been involved in many activities, both on and off campus. Through a variety of opportunities offered, students have found that they can become involved and make a difference for themselves and our school.

Looking back to our freshman year, the seniors of today were stepping out and becoming individuals as we started to make our mark at Patrick Henry. Whether we showed our spirit through the pep club, marched in the band, played a variety of sports, or supported a local community organization, we quickly became noticed. Now, four years later, we expose our efforts in making Patrick Henery High School the number one school in the Roanoke Valley.

Challenged by coaches, teachers, parents and the demands of increased work loads, we move to the ranks of the "varsity" and make our mark with Patriot pride.

Many monumental events take place during our glorious year: last year of gym and health, driving is a new experience, prom is only one year away, and the big 11:30 curfew is just around the corner. The only setback of being a sophomore is that we don't know what to do at per rallies and games when the Juniors and Seniors do their cheers "Sophomores" is just too hard to spell in rhythm. S-O-P-H-O M-O-R-E-S

Fin The Beginning...

"The change from middle school to high school requires you to become more responsible but, at the same time, it makes you more subject to change"

Abby Fifer SGA Freshman Class President

As Freshmen, we began the year with high expectations. We walked through the doors with dreams of freedom and independence, as well as fears of being the "low man on the totem pole". Fortunately, most of our fears remained unfounded. Even though the upperclassmen assumed we were in awe of them, most Freshmen had a hard time figuring out why the Seniors placed such a big emphasis on their grade level.

Although grades, block scheduling, and work load were quite different than in middle school, the main change was the diverse group of people that we encountered. In middle school, we were with the same kids who we had gone to school with for years. High school forced us to intermingle with many different kinds of people, and thus re-evaluate our original social circle.

Overall, the transition from middle school to high school was a lot easier than we had imagined. We adjusted quickly, eased into the high school routine, and are now looking forward to the final three years.

TEACHERS

Block scheduling provides more instructional time for students.

Throughout the day, teachers keep busy inspiring students to learn. During class hours, they appear strict (rather normal) but as lunch time draws near, they become uninhibited and release all their tension into positive energy...they flock to the safe haven of the "Teachers Lounge".

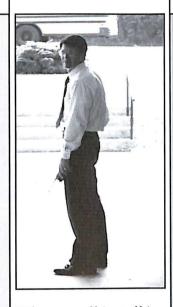

Inside sources tell us that upon entering the doors to the lounge, a parallel world of joy and happiness exists. As soon as the 2:35 bell rings, teachers crowd to the back of the lounge as they pull out their cards and poker chips and blast Metallica from confiscated walkmans.

After completing this research on the fringe benefits of teachers at PH, we've come to the conclusion, we want to be teachers!

Alternate Course

This year, Patrick Henry continued its constant endeavor towards Academic Excellence. For five straight years, PH has had at least 2 students win the National Merit Scholarship Award. This year, Russell Heywood and Susan Hord hold that honor. Also, Kristi Alger is a semi-finalist in the Fifty-Fourth Westinghouse Science Talent Search. In addition more students from PH attend the Roanoke Valley Governor's School than from surrounding districts, and 30 seniors attend City School each year.

Patrick Henry High School offers numerous Dual Enrollment and Advanced Placement classes that help prepare students for college. The Center for Advanced Studies in Humanities offers classes for academically talented and motivated students that wish to excel in the areas of History and English. Twenty years ago, these courses were not offered. As change constantly pulls us through the years, PH continues to broaden and expand its' students minds.

Sally Orfield

"I think I'm having stress." Carrie Moore is feeling the effects of "Junior Year" while working on her 15 page report in Mr. Leah's Humanities class.

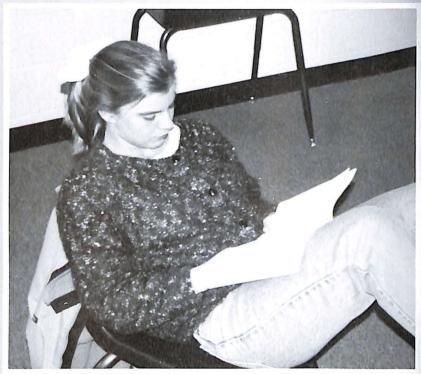

0174 SOAOOL

At City School, behind the black and white silhouettes, across from the Texas Tavern, dwell 60 students of an unusual caliber. The typical City School student, if you can call any of them typical, is a hard working PH or Fleming senior with a high level of determination and an amazing ability to cope with stress.

The students take class in College English, U.S. Government, and Honors Seminar. Between the English and Government lessons, traveling teachers drop in and teach mini-units including art, poetry, sci-fi writing, stress management and an assortment of other strange and unusual topics.

City School is a lot of work, but in the long run, it will all pay off...we hope!

pportunities for perfection abound at Governor's School Sally Orfield

Housed on the Patrick Henry High School campus, the Roanoke Valley Governor's School offers numerous advanced learning activities for selected students from regional schools. What is the "true" meaning of Governor's School? I guess the best depiction comes from Eric MacDuffy as he states: "It's a brief trip into the mind of a typical, average, ordinary, Governor's School Student. This section is devoted to the understanding of us, the hope of the future. Us kids who were smart enough to come but crazy enough to stay.

has a diversity of home schools...

The morning session is the melting pot of the Governor's School experience. The school has a diversity of home schools from Cave Spring to the rural Staunton River and Franklin County and all stages in between. Ideas come from anywhere and everywhere with this mixture of backgrounds. This diversity adds to everyone's knowledge in the end. With that said let's see the average Governor's School student: ...has a one way drive time > of 25 minutes, ...must provide own transportation,...is in the top 10% of their class, and is bound for college."

Although stressful at times, Governor's School is well worth the effort in terms of the security, respect, self-esteem, and education that students receive.

Brooke Shoenfeld, Sally Orfield, & Abby Fifer

"Locked Keyboard?" Jessie Shires gives a look that says, "Help" as she works on one of the many computers that are at the school.

"My impression of Governor's School!"

"There's a lot of extra work, but it all pays off in the long run."

Sara Wray

"This has been a long strange trip!"

Seth Levey

"Not only has it been fun, but quite an experience as well."

Catherine Dalton

"There's been lots of extra homework and stuff, but it's been worth it."

Stephanie Ellason

"Where are your safety goggles?" Lisa Hermann gets almost too close to a mixture she's stirring in a lab.

"The Three Muskateers!" Erin Rutherford, Carrie Moore and Jennifer Mann carefully examine Einsteinium (Es) for their lab titled: The effects of (Es) on Hog Atoms.

The Center for Advanced Studies In Humanities

Video productions, medieval festivals, Shakespeare productions, Trojan Wars, Trips to New York, Washington D.C., the Charlottesville Film Festival, Baltimore, and the National Story Telling Festival. These are just a select few of the Humanities Center's yearly activities.

The Center started in 1990 as a project to integrate courses in Social Studies and English and to provide a flexible time frame for students to pursue special projects.

Rising 9th, 10th, and 11th grade students that hold a strong interest in the Humanities are carefully selected from a large pool of applicants in February. The students that are chosen must be willing to read college level books, fine tune their writing skills and document 75 hours of outside work in a comprehensive seminar log. Outside hours come from volunteer work, seminars, competition papers, and trips. Students then receive college credit for courses in World History and U.S. History and another 1/2 credit for Seminar hours.

rom an early morning planning session to an afternoon reception, the School Exchange class brings the world a little closer to our doorsteps. With sponsor Mrs. Velva Wreden, chairperson Yaron Rachlin and a full staff of dedicated students, the staff works from early August to late June in preparation for visiting students and chaperones from countries all around the world. Due to an increased demand for "home-stay" trips abroad, the staff not only hosts visiting students but organizes exchange trips to many European countries. "I believe that the hardest and most confusing part of this experience is setting itineraries and preparing airline schedules", said Michelle King.

This year, Patrick Henry students welcomed students from France, England, and Korea. As host families were set and students began to make lasting friendships, it was time for one group to leave and another to arrive. "I enjoyed meeting my guest from France. We seemed to hit it off from the start. Even though the "language barrier" was a problem at first, we learned quickly how to communicate...student style", said Margaret Hunter Turner.

With a full schedule planned for next year, students are already preparing for visiting schools from Japan, England, Germany, and Italy.

Interior Motives

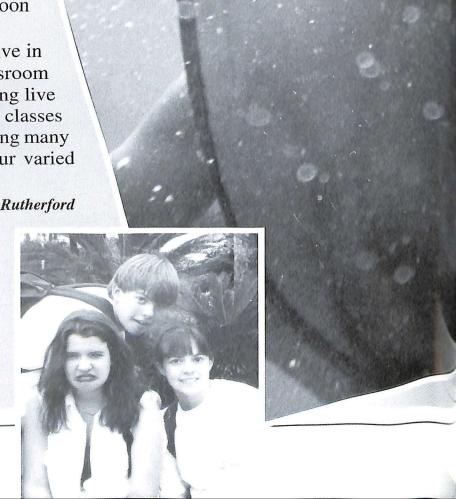

From service clubs to fun clubs, Patrick Henry clubs and organizations open the doors for all types of exciting activities. At PH there is an organization for every walk of life.

As an active force within the community, Patrick Henry service clubs are noted for their involvement in various projects. The DECA chapter sponsors the Festival of Lights Winter Parade, FBLA conducts food drives, the Interact Club assists in providing supplies for the homeless, and the Key Club provides afternoon activities for children.

Along with volunteer work, many clubs are active in curriculum based field studies that enhance classroom learning activities. With the Patriot Band conducting live performances in Orlando to the College Biology classes scuba diving off the Florida Keys, students are finding many opportunities available through membership in our varied organizations.

Student Government Association

The Student Government Association is an association that works consistantly throughout the year to make our school and society a better place. They are involved in community projects and public relations activities. Some of their responsibilities for school projects include: student-faculty sports events, homecoming events, Teacher Appreciation Days, and sponsorship of the Patrick Henry Blood Donor Drive. Many SGA members volunteer for organizations such as Adopt-a-Highway and RAM House. The SGA works diligently to provide our school with spirit and entertainment for which their efforts are greatly appreciated.

rganizing activities for students and alumni is not an easy task but many groups have taken on this responsibility with pride and dedication. Included in the various organizations are: Key Club, Interact, Pride Team, Terra Club, Voice of Christian Youth, FBLA, DECA, Student Government Association, and VICA.

Activities for this year included a Halloween party for the handicapped and Christmas gifts for a local retirement home, as well as service for Festival in the Park and West End Center. Interact lended aid this year by sponsoring the St. Patrick's Day Dance, from which $5,000 was given to local charities. The Pride Team, a club organized to help prevent substance abuse among students, made a contribution by putting on performances at various locations throughout the state. The Terra Club set up recycling bins throughout the campus to collect drink cans.

The PH DECA chapter operated the Festival of Lights Parade for the citizens of Roanoke and sold box lunches to help the League of Older Americans. FBLA donated time and effort in supporting local civic groups and the SGA made sure that spirit abounded on the PH campus.

As a new year approaches, club sponsors are already making plans for exciting activities that support community projects and activities.

Leaders of America is the elite group of teachers and students that plan social events and fundraisers. This organization also gives students the experience they need to be successful in the business community. They also learn more about iob opportunities and the skill needed to survive in the competitive world of business.

FBLA members are always on-the-go. They travel from state to state, competition to competition, all over the country. Competitions consist of math, computer technology, typing, public speaking, and job interviews. While at competitions, students enjoy interesting seminars and other social events and meet with students from across the country. While in Roanoke, students plan parties, dances and other events to raise everyone's Capturing the memories of a school year is not an easy task. With a wide array of activities, the encompassing image of a school is not determined by the authors of its publications; it is set by the culmination of many talents and creative activities.

As a "collector" of these activities, the Yearbook staff pursues all avenues of student life from academic study to sports. With a seemingly endless supply of events, the staff provides a collection of memories that will last forever.

Through the creativeness of skilled writers, the Quill opens the doors for students to portray ideas in an award winning publication. With poetic and narrative expertise, the Quill becomes an expression of thoughts and ideas.

African-American Culture

ineteen ninety-four ninety-five marked the sixth year of the African-American Culture Class. Like a wedding, this class had something old, Fletcher Nichols and Robin Neamo-Parker as the teachers, something new, a textbook (The African-American Experience), and something borrowed, Clara Black auditorium as the classroom. The something blue was the challenge of having class in the auditorium and of six weeks without Mrs. Parker while she completed an administrative internship at William Fleming.

As in previous years, students were busy during the month of February helping other schools and organizations celebrate Black History Month. Performances were given for students at Forest Park Elementary and Salem High schools and for the Regional Meeting of the Veterans Administration at Green Memorial United Methodist Church.

While the class enjoys traveling to other locations, the biggest thrill has always come from sharing with our friends at Patrick Henry as we did on March 9. This year also marked the third collaboration with Fred Fuller in Drama and the Fine Arts department. "Purlie Victorius" was a huge success (May 19, 20 and 21). The cast was outstanding and if we could, we would have taken the show on the road.

In May, thirty-eight of the students traveled to Washington, D.C. and were privileged to spend ninety informative and entertaining minutes with Supreme Court Justice Clarence Thomas. It will be an experience remembered for a lifetime. Just ask an African-American Culture student about the significance of a "full glass". All in all, it was another rewarding year and we're anticipating wonderful and exciting things for the next year.

The critics reviews are in for "Purlie Victorious"!

"Purlie Victorious", a comedy written by Ossie Davis, was the highlight of the theatre season at Patrick Henry. Co-produced by the departments of Fine Arts and Theatre, the play starred senior Phillippe Randolph in the title role. Starring also were Eula Nall, B.J. Jones, and DeVar Thompson.

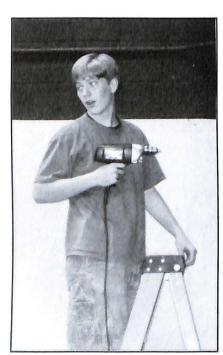

Rounding out the cast were Nathan Musselman, Domonique Edwards, and Fred Donaher. Also in the cast was the theatre director, Frederick Fuller who played the part of Ol' Cap'n.

"Purlie..." centers around the title character who returns to buy a building which is traditionally the church for his people. He runs afoul of Ol' Cap'n, the land owner, and the fireworks begin.

The play was produced by the Africian-American Culture Class with Mrs. Robin Neamo-Parker, and directing was Art Teacher Fletcher Nichols and Theatre Director Fuller.

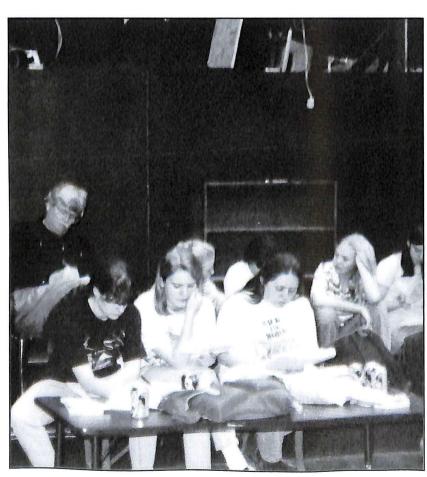

Earlier in the season the Theatre department did "Blind Date" by Norton Foote as its offering in the annual VHSL One Act Theatre Festival. It starred Adam Doherty, Carrie Dixon, Theresa Bernier and Michael "Drew" Dowdy.

"What did you say?" The Theatre Arts boss, Fred Fuller, makes an advance toward two of his interns, Eula Nall and Phillippe Randolph, during another thrilling scene from "Purlie Victorious".

The Patriot Band is a long standing part of Patrick Henry High School. With early morning practices in the summer to long marches in windy and cold weather, the members remained dedicated to making the Patriot Band the pride of the school.

This was one of many years that the band performed for Victory Stadium crowds during football games and pep rallies. Worth Jenkins performed as trumpet soloist for all halftime shows and, along Nathan with Felty and Ivan

Herman Whether onperformed the National Anthem. stage or on the marching field, the band was constantly on the move. At James Madison University, they competed at the Parade of Champions. While at the Bassett Competition, the Patriot Band was recognized with eight trophies and numerous certificates. Drum Majors Ivan Herman and Jennie Wise led the ensemble at the Liberty High School Bedford County Band Competition and took second place. Also, Kara Chandler. Flag Captain, led her group to a second place finish for the Flag Corps. With stiff competition at the District level, Mellissa Blankenship won a seat in the All District held at Salem High School in February.

his was a banner year for the Patrick Henry Orchestra. In November, the orchestra and school hosted the Western Regional String Orchestra. Carrie Mullen, cellist, Ross Wilsie, violinst, and Kelly Rosenberger and Sally Orfield, violists, represented PH at this event. Earlier in September, they had successfully auditioned for this honor

There was a performance for the PTA function following the Regional Orchestra concert and a midyear formal concert that was prepared.

In March, the PH Orchestra joined Fleming's strings to form the Roanoke City Strings for competition at District Festival. In the most advanced category of performance (Grade VI) the orchestra received a Superior rating from each of the four judges. This certifies the Roanoke City Strings as the pacemaker for the public education instrumental music program in Roanoke City Schools.

Later, Ellen Troland, cellist, violinsts Amy Cunningham, Lori Hylton, and Sarah Wray, and bass, Justin Crawford, were selected to represent PH at Junior Regional Orchestra.

There was a late Spring performance for a city-wide awards ceremony and a culminating formal concert.

Ross Wilsie was a concert master for 1995 and Carrie Mullins was the outstanding Orchestra member.

Knocking Down The Door

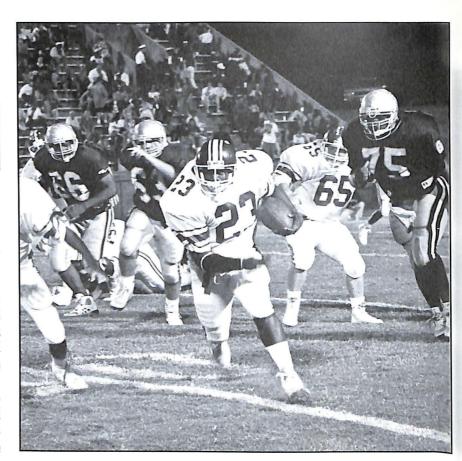

This year the 94-95 varsity football team had a winning season with 8 wins and 4 losses. The Patriots won their first playoff game in 9 years and went to the Northwest Regional Championship game. Even though they did not bring home the trophy, they showed G.W. Danville that they were a tough competitor.

The Patriots put up some pretty impressive stats. They outscored their opponents 251 to 182 thanks to Mike Sisler, T.J. Tate, Luke Bush, Ryan Johnston and Braxton Naff. Jamie Price was the leading rusher with 837 yards and he had an average of 21.13 yards returned on the punt team. Chris Combs led the team in receiving yardage with a 323 total and 11.5 sacks. Richard Mason averaged 35.75 yards a punt with Enoch Williams and Martin Brown totaling 6 pass knockdowns each.

The Patriots will be returning 20 lettermen next year and plan another blockbuster season.

eginning cheerleading season with an enlarged varsity team of 17 members set the busy schedule for an exciting season.

Participation in a private summer clinic allowed the cheerleaders to run a summer program for Roanoke City Parks & Recreation League cheerleaders and get ready for the Fall football season.

During the Winter, tragedy struck the varsity squad when Christina Pruitt's family had a terrible fire in their home. After a time of recovery, Christina was able to return to the squad and maintain her position as a leading cheerleader. In recognition of her positive spirit, Virginia Tech invited the squad to attend the Tech-UNC Charlotte basketball game.

After a full schedule of cheering for the boys and girls various teams, the squad was invited to compete in the East Coast Finals of the Eastern Cheerleading Association in Williamsburg, VA. As the only team invited from the Roanoke area, the squad represented our region extremely well as they competed against 2000 cheerleaders from seven states.

1994-95 was a busy and exciting year. One that we will always remembered.

With strong showings from the younger starters, there are great expectations for next year's season.

However, it was not until the District Tournament when all their hard work and determination began to pay off. With an outstanding tournament record of six matches won and only one loss, the Lady Patriots proved that they were among the best around. In fact, senior doubles team, Catherine Roe and Kate Butcher were honored with the distinction of first team all-district after their most successful season, highlighted by qualifing for the district finals.

The 1994 Cross Country team continued its tradition of having a small team in numbers but still competing against the larger teams. Under the reign of Coach Ray Lewis, the team rose to even greater expectations than what they had envisioned. Cross Country is a sport of hard work and setting goals. Many of the Patriot runners achieved their goals and made strides toward having a successful season next year.

The girls and boys teams finished 2nd and 3rd in the Roanoke Valley District and qualified for regional competition. "We put in a lot of time and hard work but it definitely paid off in the long run. I ran Cross Country because it is a challenging sport," said Bill Speas.

this season showed the rest of the Roanoke Valley that they were a team to years. The Patriots were led by senior forward, Artrice Webb. "Artrice is a well respected team leader whose athletic abilities will be missed in the future", said Erin Rutherford, Junior forward for the team. Carrie, Moore, Gene Kent, and Erin Rutherford make up just a few of the players returning next season from the 94-95 team's strong nucleus. The team has already been picked to finish near the top in the Roanoke Valley District next season.

The majority of the team has played together since their freshman year but have not had the opportunity to taste the sweetness of victory all that often. "This season was very difficult to go through considering we did not have a winning record", said Gene Kent. The hunger for the taste of victory is leading members of the team to attend summer skills camps in order to perfect their playing abilities.

The junior varsity team proved that they are ready to move up to the next level. If the players moving up next season can blend with the varsity players, then the possibilities are endless.

The most impressive aspect of wrestlers started the 94-95 season under new head coach Tommy Jones. Coach Jones had only two seniors to lead the group of young wrestlers: 130 lb. Eric Katz and heavyweight Ritchie Mason. Unfortunately, Mason had to sit out because of a football injury leaving Katz alone at the helm. Along with team captain Katz, Junior 140 lb. Mike Boyd stepped out to assume a co-captain position.

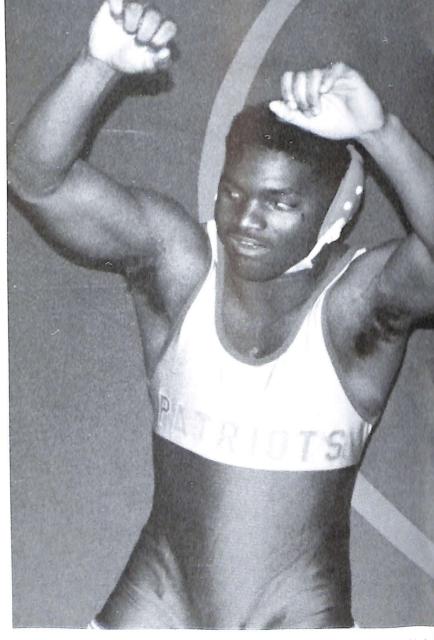

Most valuable wrestler, Khamsouk Chantavixay helped carry the weight with an impressive 15-6 season. PH sent several wrestlers to the Region Tournament this year and with a relatively young team returning, the Patrick Henry Wrestling program will soon be a state contender.

INDOOR TRACK RUNNIN' LIKE THE WIND

The boys and girls IndoorTrack Teams were successful in competition this year. Both teams put a lot of time and effort in the weight room and practice that carried to competition. The boys team showed real charisma and strength as they won convincingly the RVD crown. The girls showed great spirit and effort even with limited numbers.

The Patriots had many qualifiers for Regional, State, and even National Competition. On the guys team, Ritchie Mason won regionals for shot-put,

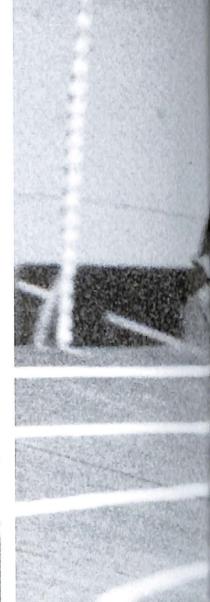

"Not on my foot!" Ritchie Mason tries to move the shot with his mind. After two hours the ball won.

Larry Jones also won regionals in the 55m hurdles. Jamie Price won regionals in the 55 m sprint and was the State Champion in the event. Jamie qualified for the national meet at Syracuse University as well.

On the girls team, Shana Waller finished first in the regionals shot put event and qualified for State. Even with a limited number of runners, the girls team did remarkably well.

Not Just Stayin' Afloat!

This year's swim team was filled with many shining moments and attractions as being one of the top teams around. Through hard work at practice and in the weight room, success was evident in competition.

Eight Patriot swimmers were named to the All Roanoke Valley District Swim Team. Chosen to the girls' team were Lauren Feldman for the 50m & 100m freestyle; Kate Butcher, Sarah Martin, Margaret Hunter Turner, and Lauren Feldman for the relay team. Trent Johnson was selected for the boys' team for the 50m freestyle and 100m backstroke. Trip Creech, Chad Cronise, Jeff Young and Trent Johnson made up the All Roanoke Valley District Boys' Relay Team.

Lauren Feldman and Trent Johnson were also nominated for All State honors for the 50m & 100m freestyle and 100m backstroke.

Both teams showed great charisma and dedication that will continue into next year's season.

his year's Patriot Lacrosse team was aiming high and achieved what they set out for...success.

In its 6th year of existence, and for a relatively new sport in the area, it is very popular. PH Lacrosse is lucky in that they are currently the only varsity team in their league. The team got off to a slow start but as popularity has grown, so has the caliber of play. The program has had many different coaches in the past, but this year, it has gained two new invaluable, experienced coaches, who both played at the college level.

Coach Hays McCarthy and John Wilkerson have improved the level of play immensely throughout the year, and "The new coaches were a challenge, so we adjusted to the situation and made the best of it!"

Eric Shoenfeld

hopefully will stay with the program to boost it in the future to a league championship. Next year looks promising with only five seniors leaving the squad, and an array of talent spread throughout the lineup. With returning juniors Clark Williams, John Hardwick, Sanders Wilhelm, Andy Johnston, Gordon Lawson, Taylor Jones, Jeremy Carter, and Patrick Wright, the team shows strong contention for next year.

Hopefully, Lacrosse will continue to grow in the area, and Roanoke Valley Lacrosse will be able to compete with other schools in the nation.

Taking to the field against strong district teams is a challenging task. The JV boys and girls soccer teams were ready for any obstacle as they entered the season with many returning and new players. New to the coaching staff for the boys was David Haymond. With insight and a history of the game, the coach was able to utilize existing talent to make a strong showing in district play. "The individual talent seemed to come together to form a strong offensive team", said coach Haymond.

claimed first year coach Mark Foard. "We have become a potentially dangerous team." Highlights during the season include Eric Rheinheimer pitching a no-hitter against Fleming, a come from behind, extra-inning victory at Pulaski

County, and strong efforts against Cave Spring.

As the season progressed, many leaders advanced the Patriot cause. Chad Hyatt, Caleb Shires and Jason Goad lead the offensive attach. Andrew Tegankamp, Rob Mangus, and John Clemmer anchored the defense. The Patriots were also strong on the mound with Eric Rheinheimer and Jared Gardner teaming with steady Jason Green.

With continued growth and effort, the Patriots promise to return our team back to the level of champions.

"Up and over!" Zephren Turner reacts to the pressure of not only defeating the Fleming opponent in the pole vault but exceeds his previous record as well.

In a league of his own! Jamie Price leads the pack by many strides to "win the gold".

"What do you mean, rain delay!" C.J. Walker heads for the lockers during a rain delay in a meet against Fleming.

"Rising high!" James Higgenbotham reaches amazing heights while competing in the pole vault event.

"Leading the pack!" Bill Speas leads in the 1600 meter run at the Duel Meet with Fleming.

"Don't argue with the ref." Rebecca Hogan calls the ball foul as the teachers take on the students in an afternoon game of volleyball.

Dynamic Components

Since 1961, Patrick Henry High School has stood as a symbol of educational opportunities for thousands of students. As each graduating class enters a world of new experiences, an ambitious group of freshmen prepare to make their mark on the PH campus. Through their eyes, talents, expressions, hopes, and dreams, the legacy of Patrick Henry High School remains alive and continues to grow.

One of the most integral components of our successes is the support we receive from parents, civic groups, businesses, community leaders, and team sponsorship. As the constant force for better educational opportunities, they strive to make PH the best school in the Roanoke Valley. They have opened their doors when we ask for sponsorship, donated time and money to our projects, and let us use their water hoses when we had a car wash. Thanks to OUR community, we ARE the best school in Roanoke.
