Mrs. Meagan Potter is Madison's Teacher of the Year

Each year, the faculty members at all of the Roanoke City Schools select a Teacher of the Year for their school. The city then chooses an overall winner as well. This year's Teacher of the Year for Madison is Mrs. Megan Potter. She was also a finalist for the city award. Mrs. Potter has been teaching for 12 years, including one year in Bedford, two years in Botetourt and the remaining nine at Madison. She received her undergraduate and masters degrees from Longwood University. This year, she is teaching Civics, US History and Reading Recovery. Her other responsibilities include serving as Social Studies content chair, Grade Level Chair for the seventh grade, and as a member of the Leadership team. She is also a member of the collaboration to write the new alternative assessments for History and Science in the 6th District. Mrs. Potter grew up in Botetourt County, is married to her husband, Michael, and has two daughters, Alexis, 8, and Erin, 4. In her spare time, she loves to spend time with her family outside fishing and traveling. Of course, she also loves reading and visiting historic sites! Congratulations to Mrs. Potter for receiving this honor from her peers!

James Madison's Staff Rocks!

Congratulations

to Mrs. Cheryl Hambrick on her retirement from Roanoke City Schools.

Mrs. Hambrick has taught for 38 years and 34 of them have been at James Madison. Her warm smile and caring way with her students will be greatly missed!
