The art work on the cover of the twenty-ninth publication of the Stonewall was created by Sandra Brunk of Roanoke. Ms. Brunk's work is available on the market and at New Mountain Mercantile at Tanglewood Mall. She has sketched almost all of the valley schools and many important landmarks. Mrs. Brunk kindly allowed us to use her sketch as a tribute to the original Stonewall Jackson School which was built in 1923.

PENNIES FROM HEAVEN

The SCA sponsored a "penny drive" at Christmas. The idea behind the drive was to collect money for the needy and to arouse the spirit of giving in all of us. Mr. Kennedy and Ms. Wrobel had the job of carrying buckets of pennies to the stage for the final presentation.

ACTIONS SPEAK LOUDER THAN WORDS

Jason Roye gives the winning speech in the race for Vice President. Maybe, wearing a tie and dress shirt sent a message to the student body that he had respect for the position.

SCA ELECTIONS

The Student Council Association was revived this year and with it came opportunities for leadership along with new and fresh ideas from a council of students.

Beginning in October, plans were made to revive the student council at Jackson. The purpose for such a council was to involve students and give them a voice. Activities were enhanced by their voice and decorations once again adorned the gymnasium during hops.

The process began with each TAG electing two class representatives to serve on the Student Council Association. Those chosen had to have certain requirements such as representatives had to have met certain financial obligations. Since students did not have to pay for textbooks that year, most students filled that requirement. Each Tag teacher then impressed upon their class to elect responsible people.

Soon there after an election of officers was held and posters plastered the halls asking for votes. Each candidate wrote and gave a speech stating how he would enhance the council. The speeches were delivered in the auditorium in front of the entire school. Students then returned to TAGS and exercised the right to vote once again. At the end of the day, the winners were announced and it became evident that eighth graders swept the officer election.

RUNNING FOR SECRETARY

Audrey Catherine Udell, better known as Katie, delivers her winning election speech to the student body. She ran against sixth grader, Tabitha Gardner and seventh grader, Cary Bunner.

AN EIGHTH GRADE SWEEP

Below: The four elected SCA officers are V.P. Jason Roye, President Cory Bunner, Secretary Katie Udell and Treasurer Sarah Burns. Cory is also pictured giving the Penney Drive check to the Salvation Army.

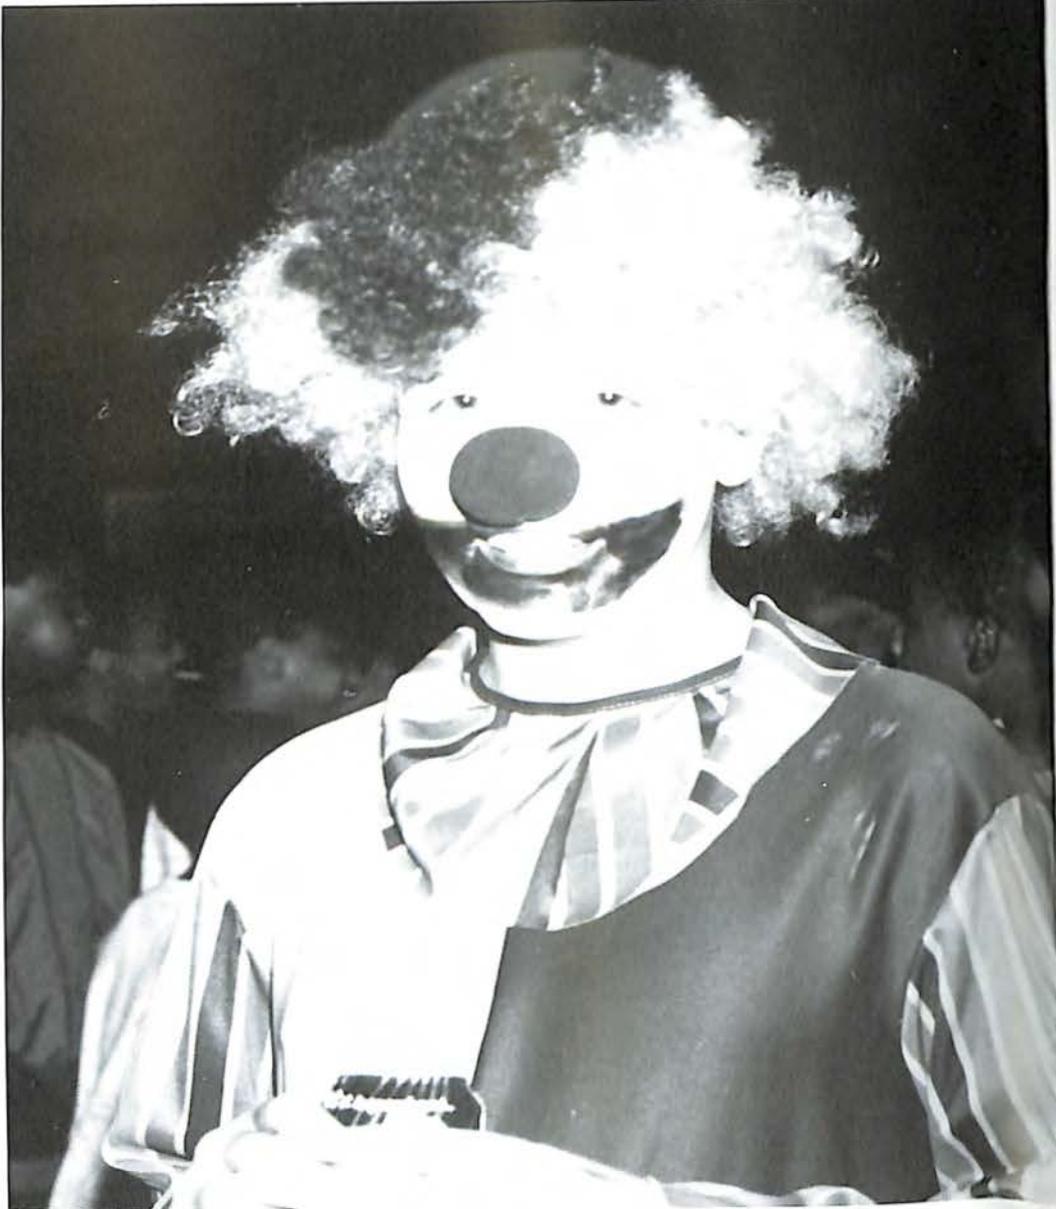

On the seventh grade hall, it's sometimes hard to pick out the students. Looking very much like a character from the Broadway musical Cats, is Mrs. Jones and with her is a very cute clown, Mrs. Molnar. Seventh graders love their "Young at Heart" teachers. Even, Casey Bowe is moving up for a better look.

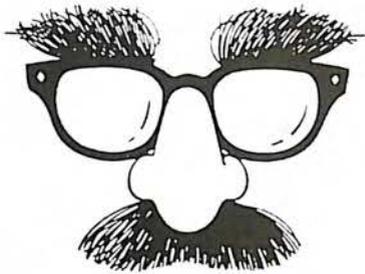

One, two, three o'clock, four o'clock hop. In the mood for a true fifties hop is eighth grader, Jessica Doss decked out in a pink poodle skirt. Jessica is manning the refreshment table.

Want to clown around? Blue eyebrows and a big red nose definitely gave eighth grader, Travis Keith "class clown" status for the day in Mrs. Cole's Tag. His costume makes you wonder if he and Mrs. Molar aren't related.

Halloween Disguises

The SCA sponsored Halloween
Hop was loads of fun for those of us who wore costumes!

What do a ghoul, a blue flower and a devil have in common? Friendship. Sixth graders, Amy Roye, Leslie Davis and Monica Bedsaul proudly wear their costumes. These girls were really looking forward to going trick-or-treating.

Strings at school this year, has been nothing less than spectacular. It has exposed students to a whole new realm of music for which they were unaccustomed and it has built their self confidence.

Seventh grade violin students, Timmy Mills and Jeremy Harris can play Beethoven's "Ode to Joy" an impressive feat for first year students.

After thirty years with the Roanoke Symphony, Bill Kinzie, now spends a great deal of his time, teaching youngsters, to play the violin.

STRINGS ARE A CLASS ACT

Students are learning to play violins this year and the enthusiasm has created beautiful sound waves.

First year, seventh grade students, Angela Minnix, Cary Bunner and Valerie Meloche practice playing in unison as the class begins working on a new piece of music together.

As a member of the orchestra at First Baptist, Mr. Kinzie still practices and performs every week. He is especially busy in November and December preparing students at various schools for concerts and practicing nightly himself for the annual First Baptist Christmas Pageant.

Above: Cathey Rhodes and Tim Mullins practice getting the movements right, watching their fingers and getting a feel for the rhythm of the music.

In the midst of students diligently finding their way musical synchronicity, the picture of Atasha Stacy playing her violin seems to say it all.

The band marches just wouldn't be the same without eighth grade foursome: Chad Ricker, T.J. Simmons, Josh Tiller and Jason Roye pounding a reverberating beat in the auditorium.

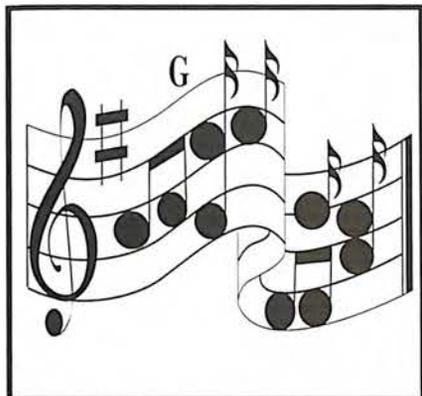

Jackson has a pretty big saxophone section. It could be that sax player, President Clinton, influenced Lacy Wilbur, Bradley Stump and Angela Minnix more than we know.

Bryan Rowell and another seventh grader identified only as Scott, are supplying a lot of wind power while playing trombone. Sitting on the right, near the back, these two may not have been seen, but they were definitely heard.

THE BAND PLAYS ON

as new members learn to read music and play instruments in time for the annual December concert.

Sixth grader, Jennifer Strom practices a few notes before going on stage to perform for the daytime assembly in front of the entire school.

Band Instructor, Mr. Danny Felty is conducting the annual Holiday Concert for the Parent Teacher's Student Association. As with every year, he amazingly prepares sixth graders in less than one semester for the performance.

OM

The key to the OM team is cooperation. To be a member you must be open to others ideas. Here the team shares ideas for the competition in March.

ODYSSEY OF THE MIND TEAM. Amy Martin, Lisa Hart, Angel Hall, Chad Ricker, Juan Kuilian, and behind the scenes Coach Michele McLeod. Below, Angel Hall is working on a script for the competition.

Lindsey Musser, a member of the Odyssey of the Mind team missed the team picture. At right, the team plays around with different beats and rhythms.

Johns Hopkin's Invite

Three sixth graders qualified this year to apply to the Johns Hopkins University Center for Talented Youth.

STUDENTS QUALIFY TO APPLY

Sixth graders, Curtis Thompson, Dawn Cuddy and Matthew Kelly scored over all in the 90th percentile on a city-wide standardized test qualifying them to apply to the Johns Hopkins University Center for Talented Youth.

Seventh graders were invited to take the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT), a test normally taken as a college entrance exam.

TALENT SEARCH

Seventh graders, Brad Zimmerman and Stacy Sowers scored so high on standardized tests that each received a letter from the Johns Hopkins Center for Talented Youth telling their parents that are invited to take the college entrance exam. Hopkins annually holds a talent search.

OM member, Juan Kuilian is listening closely to another's idea for props.

One of Dawn Cuddy's talents is writing. Here she is holding her personal portfolio of collected writings from Mrs. Donahue's class.

The education representative from N.A.S.A. came to our school in December to speak to each grade. He is holding a model of an airplane that will leave the earth's atmosphere. The plane has no windows but the pilots and travellers will get to see where they are going by putting on glasses that will produce an image called "telepresence" making one feel like they are looking outside.

Academic Competition

The School Spelling Bee was held in February. Bees were held in each Tag and winners competed against each other.

FIRST PLACE WINNER
Seventh grader, Stacy Sowers from Mrs. Anthony and Mrs. Jones' tag is the first place winner in the school spelling bee. That makes Stacy the best speller in the school. Stacy said she really didn't study that hard, that spelling comes to her naturally. Anyone care to challenge her?

Sixth graders can compete. It was a sixth grader who was among one of the top three spellers in the school!

SECOND AND THIRD PLACE WINNERS
Eighth grader, Lisa Hart placed second and sixth grader, Tabitha Gardner placed third in the school Bee. Don't let it be said that sixth graders cannot compete against older students. Way to go Lisa and Tabitha!

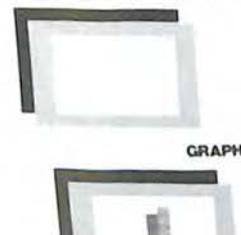

The eighth grade Tag team of Simmons and McLeod produced all of the first place winners in the science fair.

REFRESHING SCIENCE FAIR COMPETITION
Feeling a sense of accomplishment after hard work and placing first in their category are eighth graders Katie Udell and Brian Hungate. The two did a study on the effectiveness of commercial versus natural breath fresheners.

BACTERIATOR II
THE EFFECT OF COMMERCIAL AND NATURAL BREATH FRESHENERS ON BACTERIA GROWTH

PTA REFLECTIONS CONTEST.
Seventh grader, Bradley Witt won first place at Jackson for his interpretation of "Dare to Dream Your Dream." His drawing was entered in the city and he won second place.

FIRST PLACE SCIENCE FAIR WINNERS

Katie Udell, Laura Habeck, Michelle King, Lisa Hart, Sarah Burns, Brian Hungate, Bradley Stump, Chad Ricker, Jeff Thomasson and Gabrielle Harley.

FAST CARS

Jeff Thomasson excels in both sports and the classroom. He took one of his interests and turned it into a "first place" Science Fair project.

SCUMBAG

Bradley Stump and Sarah Burn's project was just what it should be. Eye catching.

SETTING UP

Half the fun of the science fair is when all the work is done and you get to set up in the library. That's when you get to see what everyone else has done. Randy McDaniel, Greg Creasy and John Moles are busy checking out the competition.

Happy sixth graders, Jessica Guilliams and Sherry Graham share a laugh and smile big for the camera while descending the stairs.

Part of being an SCA president is fulfilling duties. Cory Bunner is rising to the occasion by introducing the head of the Salvation Army to the school following the Penny Drive.

Socializing is as much fun during lunch as eating. Enjoying their time in the lunch room are sixth graders Tony Borden and Melody Crowe.

Helping Coach Poff after school with wrestling points and keeping track of the boys' stats are eighth grade beauties Stephanie Helmick, Katie Udell, Jacquelyn Sutphin and Laura Habeck.

Familiar Faces

There is something about a collection of individuals pictured together in a year-book that is timeless. Whether we know the faces or not, the portraits are always familiar. We look at them nostalgically, and in them we find comfort because we are reminded that our existence counts both collectively and individually.

Listening to the N.A.S.A. rep., Mark Campbell, Charles Spencer, Terry Taylor, Steven Rickerson and Donald Mattison were drawn in by facts such as: Future airplanes will leave the earth's atmosphere, will be covered with pencil lead, and will cross the U. S. in fifteen minutes and fly to Tokyo, Japan in an hour and a half.

ON THE RUN

Going For the Goal!

It takes patience and quickness to play this position and eighth grade goalie, Chad Ricker possess both while he awaits a kick for a point from Madison's team.

Soccer was coached this year by seventh grade teacher, Mrs. Tami Molnar. Girls joined the boys for the second year in a row making soccer again a coed sport.

UP TO THE PLATE

Nobody's Batter

Coached by Kim Townley and Cindy Delp, the fall softball team at Jackson is one of the city's best.

Practicing her style is team member, Lisa Hartsock. As a second year player, she knows just what she's doing.

It's a Girl Thing

Playing with Heart

"I got it." In position for a rebound are Chargers Katrina Barton, Takeeda Hale and Crystal St. Clair.

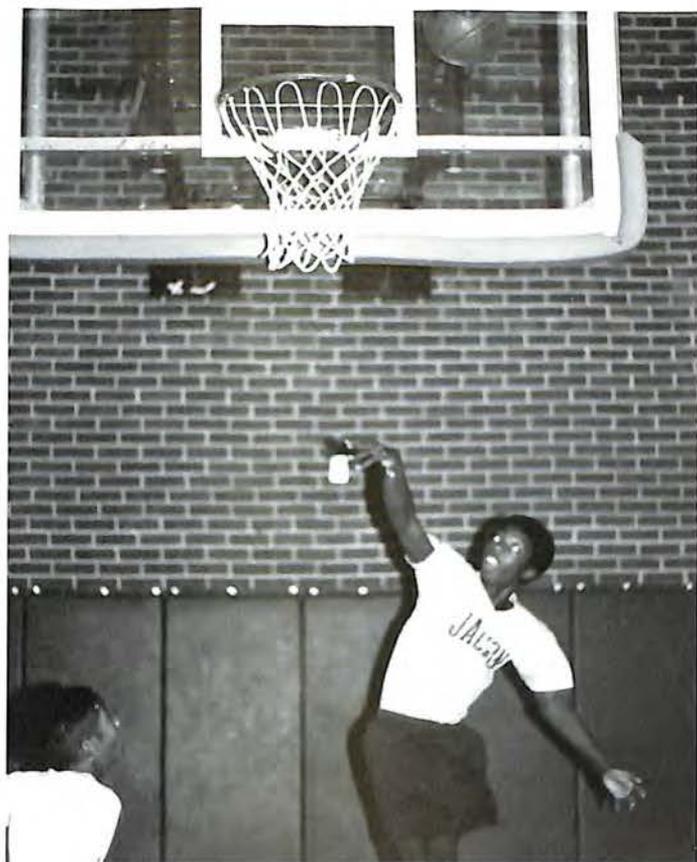

Lead by an experienced coaching team; Kim Townley and Cindy Delp; the lady Chargers' are a small group, but are made up of talented girls who love to play ball.

"Yeah!" Caught twirling in the air after delivering a lay-up is eighth grader, John Edwards while Ben Harper waits under the rim for an offensive rebound.

MATCHLESS

In Team Strength

Coached by Ron Poff, Robert Stewart, Brian Lawrence and Dwayne Shepherd, the wrestling team grew in number by adding sixth graders to the team.

In good position, Jason Angles is trying to put his Madison opponent in a half nelson to gain control before the two hit the mat. Jackson held a match that day against both Addison and Madison.

PEP SQUAD

A School Tradition

Sponsored by seventh grade teacher, Jill Hanes, the Pep Squad is a source of pride at Jackson.

The squad is practicing their cheers before a basketball game in the gym. Up close are Mandy Beckner and Michelle King.

Ann Hagy Jones sure looks sweet in her Hershey's Kisses Halloween costume. And though you can't see exactly what Ron Poff is up to, he is actually beating eggs for the faculty breakfast.

Teachers at Work

Middle Right: Word Processing instructor, Betty Leonard is in charge of turning off the music during musical chairs. She is having loads of fun fooling the students.

Right: Sixth grade teachers, Mrs. Harris and Ms. Draper are smiling at the Halloween Hop while dressed in black and orange with ghostly pins and batty earrings.

THE ADMINISTRATION

Has Stonewall Jackson's best interest at heart.

Mr. Charles E. Kennedy, II
Principal

Mr. Kennedy was named principal of Stonewall Jackson in 1990. During his five years as principal, Mr. Kennedy has encouraged academic achievement, positive student self esteem and has designed a framework for addressing truancy.

Mr. Kennedy grew up in southeast Roanoke, attended Stonewall Jackson, graduated from Jefferson High School, earned an B.S. degree from Roanoke College and a master's degree from Clemson University.

Mr. Kennedy was also a teacher and supervisor in the system for twenty years.

Mr. Stanley M. Parker
Assistant Principal

Mr. Parker was named assistant principal of Stonewall Jackson Middle School in 1991. In that capacity, Mr. Parker has encouraged cooperative discipline as a classroom management tool for teachers.

Mr. Parker holds a bachelor of science degree from Appalachian State University, where lettered in wrestling for four years and a master of science degree from Radford University.

Mr. Parker spent three of his seventeen years as a teacher, at Stonewall Jackson.

Both have ties to Stonewall Jackson.

Excitement is Building

Will the whole school be completely torn down this summer?

A

No, the gymnasium and auditorium will remain. However, the front of the school will be replaced and the new school will face Montrose Avenue instead of Ninth Street.

---

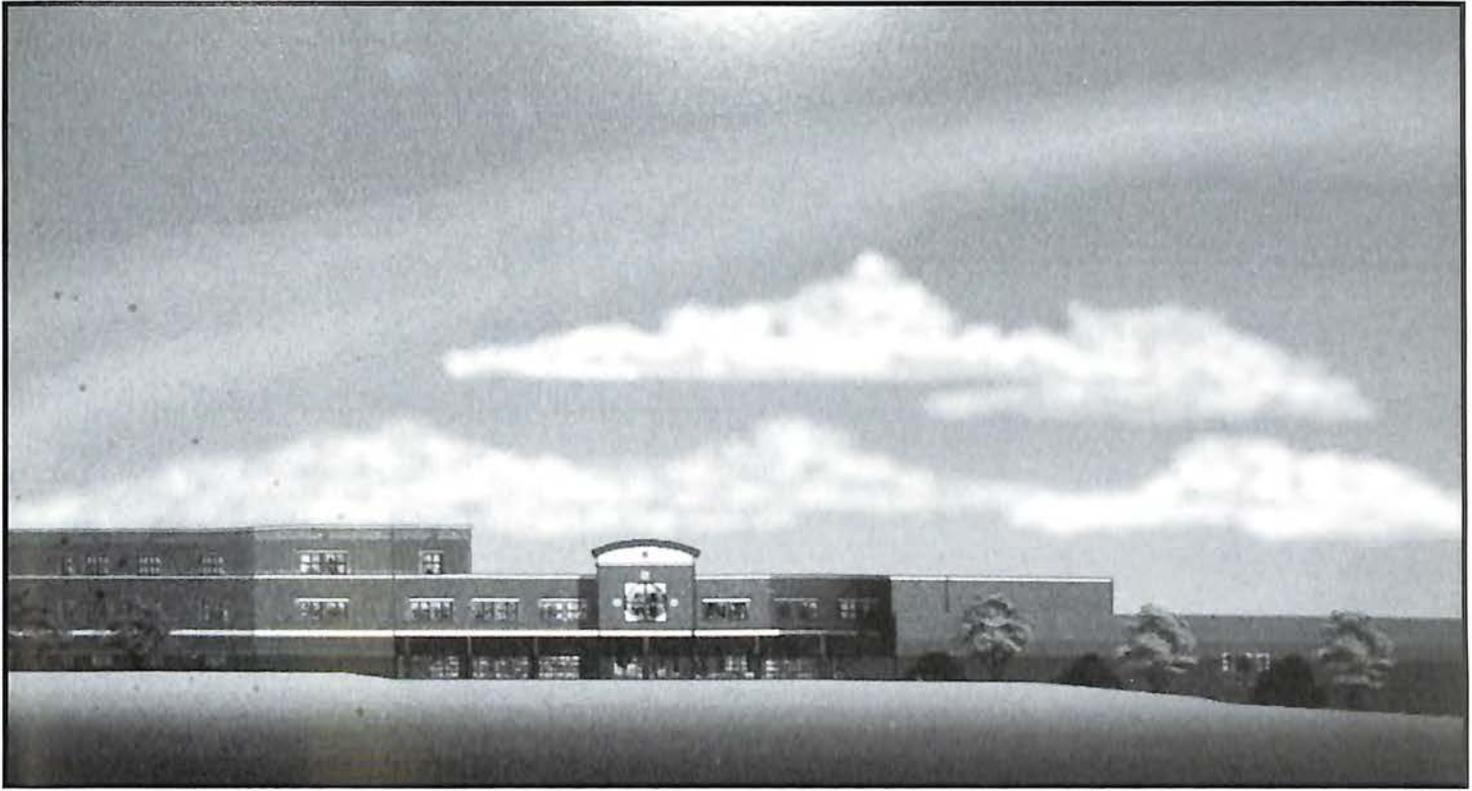

Architects have designed a magnificent new Stonewall Jackson Middle School. The construction is set to begin in the summer of 1995 and is scheduled to be completed by the fall of 1996. For financial reasons and modernization, the original 1923 and 1927 construction will be torn down and rebuilt, however, the present gymnasium and auditorium will remain. Approximately 5.25 million dollars was allocated to this project after the city of Roanoke passed a bond referendum in November.

The new school will face Montrose Avenue. This change was made as a safety measure in order to provide a bus lane with the least amount of traffic, located for the first time, in the front of the school. As an added bonus, the existing trees on Ninth Street will not be harmed.

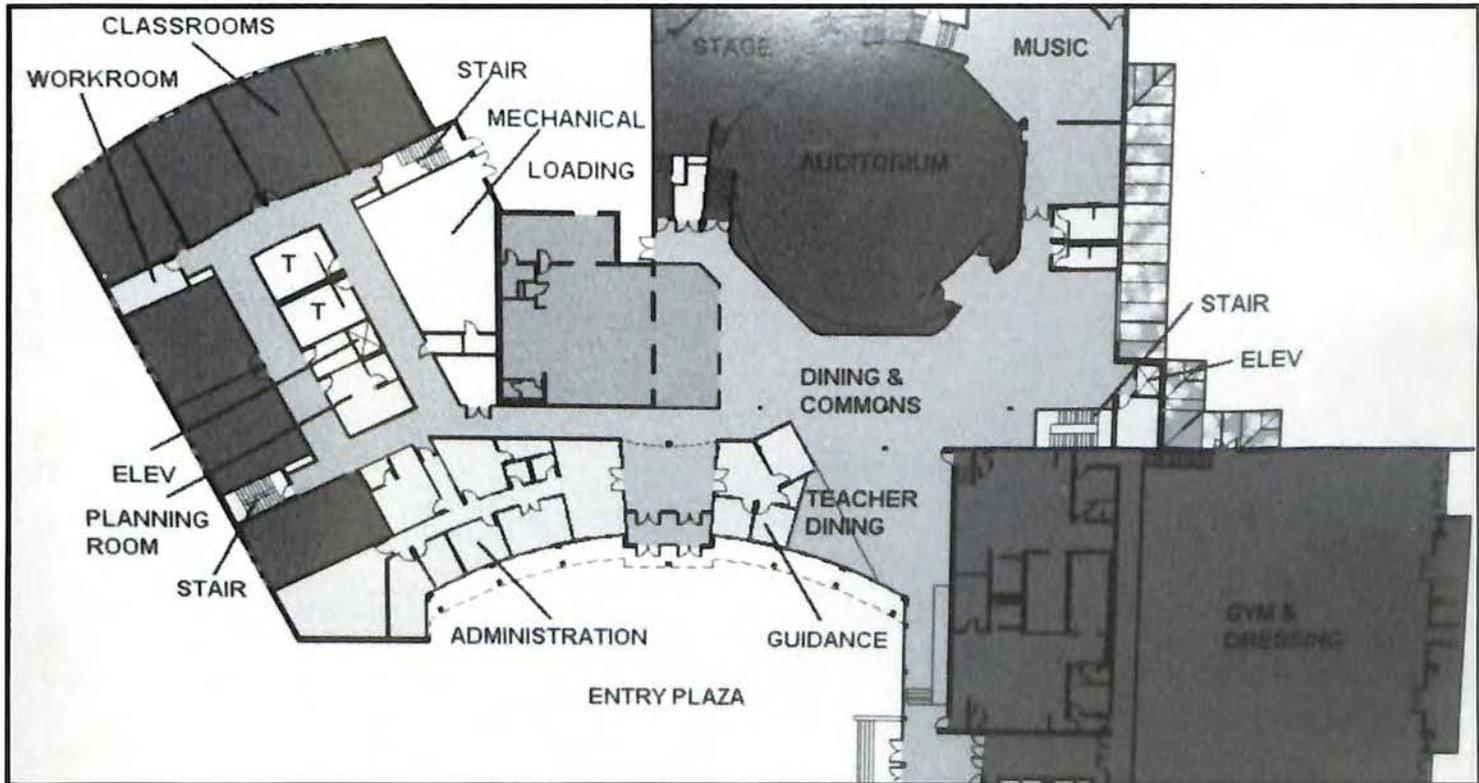

The design of the school that is visually appealing. It's style is traditional yet modern. It will meet all the new safety codes and standards. All classrooms will be electronically equipped for the technology that is and that which is to come.

Still, there is no getting around the fact that the old school will be missed by many. Just driving by Ninth Street will be strangely different. And, the size of the new school will be smaller. Maybe Southeast needs that change. Maybe it doesn't. But whatever, your point of view, you can't help but be excited by all that will be gained by having a fresh new school for children to attend. One with a brand new library, new desks and lockers, new computers, dryboards instead of blackboards, telephone jacks for modems in classrooms, a sophisticated intercom system and last by not least air-conditioning. Yes, students can't help but be excited by the prospect of going to a brand new school to learn. One which will be better equipped to take us into the next century and into the coming world of technology.

THE NEW STONEWALL JACKSON MIDDLE SCHOOL. Above, is the architects' front entry design. The school will face Montrose Avenue. The library is located to the far left and eventually, it will be a library without walls. Imagine if you will, a student sitting down to a computer and hooking up to the "information highway." Using a computer with a modem students will eventually be able to call up any library in the country, both public and college libraries. Information will truly be at their fingertips. Below, is the first floor plan.

Moments in Time

Seize these moments. Get them fixed in your mind. Never forget what this place once looked like. Soon these walls will be torn down, but the memories of this place will last as long as someone is around to remember. All of us who were here at the end of its history share a commonality with everyone who came before. For those of us who once walked these halls, and sat in its classrooms and knew its people are a unique part of Stonewall Jackson's history. One you can be proud of. No one who enters its new doors will know Stonewall Jackson quite like you did. Some of you attended this place, as did your mother, father, aunt, uncle, grandmother or grandfather. Some of you spent the better part of your teaching lives here. Mr. Kennedy, our principal is a particularly special person in Stonewall Jackson's history for he came back to become principal after having gone to school here as a young man as did his mother. Yes, a school such as ours, is truly a special place having touched so many lives. So cherish and keep these moments. They will never come again.

The baby you see here is Mr. Kennedy with his mother. The year is approximately 1946 and Phyliss Kennedy is holding her son Charles on the front steps. Little did she know that one day he would grow up to become principal of the very school she attended in the late 1930's. Mr. Kennedy attended Jackson himself, approximately twelve years after this picture was taken.

It is With Great Sadness That We Say Goodbye
To a School
That Has Meant
So Much
To So Many ...

Endings

The say all good things come to an end and we have sadly come to the end of what is but a long chapter in the story of the original Stonewall Jackson School.
