. . . learning about people and love but most of all about ourselves. We spend seven hours a day in school, which is most of the day. This is the day life, the time we are in school is a big part of the Record of the Year 1979.

FUNKY FAVORITES

CSHS students were asked in a poll taken by the Yearbook Staff to express their opinions on various subjects. Several observations were made from the results obtained. For example, except for parties, sports dominated the favorite pastimes list; and students favored the small economical cars instead of the larger gas guzzling ones.

It was also discovered that many students had problems following directions or difficulty in making one choice. When asked to specify "yes" or "no", often the answer was "maybe" or "sometimes".

TRUE FRIENDSHIP

. . . no one can define it. The richest man can neither buy it, beg it, nor command it. The poorest man may have it all his life. The selfish can never attain it; the unloving cannot give it.

A living thing with no substance it is enduring, sentimental, and cherished. Friendship is never taken. The more it is given away, the more the lender is overwhelmed by friendship.

With common goals and longings people laugh, love, play, lose, and win together. These are the true friends. Around the corner are the days of the unknown future, but the memories of friends are always there.

Grab it . . . Hold it . . . Cherish it . . . it is given to only a few to understand it, to appreciate it. Rare are those who once held it firm in their hands and watched it die without knowing they had.

Drama Club Thespians Act It Out

The Drama Club performed a mime show at Fall Festival and video taped a mime program at Virginia Western Community College. Drama Club members staged a one act play for the Virginia High School League festival. In the spring, two one act plays, one directed by students, were presented.

The Thespians, a national drama organization, worked with the Drama Club on all one act plays, sponsored Drama Club awards and participated in workshops and conventions.

Choirs Provide the Sound of Music

The Chorale and Knight Knotes, under the direction of Mr. Larry Bixler, practiced hard during the school year.

The Chorale, composed of 23 members, performed for several clubs and schools.

The Knight Knotes consist of 10 girls who practice weekly after school.

Both the choir and Knight Knotes presented selections in the Christmas and Spring Concerts. The Knight Knotes sang at the Roanoke Memorial Rehabilitation Center and at a faculty tea.

Members of both organizations raised money at Fall Festival with a "Slay the Dragon" board and a Jell-o throw. The choir also had a rummage sale and held a talent show.

The work paid off in the form of a trip to Canada and a $$ 200$ scholarship, presented to a senior choosing music as a career.

Espanol?

What do hot dogs, pinatas, and squirt guns have in common? All three were part of the Spanish Club's contribution to Fall Festival. They sold hot dogs and sponsored two games - a pinata break and a water gun game. The club made over $$ 200$ and were one of the top five profit-making groups.
Several parties were held during the year. They also entered a float in the Homecoming parade.
The club, consisting of approximatey 30 members, is sponsored by Mrs. Linda Carter and Ms. Julie Baldwin. John Ryan is the president.

Parlez-vous Francais?

Un Cafe de France, a Christmas boutique and pastry shop, was the French Club's part in Fall Festival. They sold assorted crafts and French pastries.
During the Christmas season, they visited the Mary Louise Home to spread holiday spirit by caroling and presenting gifts to the patients.
Epiphany was celebrated on January 6. Activities included a party where a bean was hidden in a cake. The boy who discovered the bean in his slice of cake was crowned king, and he then chose a queen.
Another party was held during French Week, known as Mardi Gras. The whole club participated in the Spring Banquet. Mrs. Betty Hosp and Mrs. Elaine Shatter are the sponsors.

At the Latin toga party, Chris Sallee, Eric Sallee, Pat Walsh and Julie Carter take part in a play.

Laeti Latini

Toga! Bow, slave! Hail, oh Apple Butter Queen! It was not uncommon to hear this and more as you walked through the halls during slave week. Sponsored by the Latin Club, Laeti Latini, slave week served as part of the initiation for new club members. The slaves' duties consisted of performing tasks for their "masters" and bowing to club officers and initiation committee members.

A "Toga" party in September introduced new Latin students to the club, and 69 chose to endure slave week and become Laeti Latini members.

The Homecoming float, featuring a working catapult, won first prize in the parade. A fund raising project, selling Wendy's gift certificates, raised money for the club. Funds went to help finance the annual Latin scholarship to the most deserving senior Latin student.

Sponsors for the Latin Club are Miss Karen Dalton and Mrs. Lurlene "Mama" Todd.

Sounds of Silence?

During the fall, the hallway off our main lobby is far from silent.
With the marching band practicing for their Friday night appearances, Band 1 learning to play for their new teachers, and the stage band playing their assortment of jazz arrangements, silence is certainly hard to find.
The marching band had the opportunity to perform along with the Drill Team at Virginia Tech and at Wash. ington and Lee. They were also honored to march in the annual Salem Christmas Parade.

The stage band was another awardwinner. Patrick Henry was the site for the competition of local state bands, and in which they brought back all ones.

Band 1, commonly referred to as the "scrub band", proved themselves to the other bands. At the Roanoke College festival they played for the judges and were presented with high ratings.

Under the superb direction of Mr. William Svec the bands have won high honors and ratings at the local festivals and exchange programs.

Roanoke College was the site for the District 6 competition between local bands. The symphonic band and con cert bands received superior ratings from all judges.

A trip to Canada on May 9.13 in exchange for the Canadians trip to Roanoke proved to be rewarding and eventful. The bands sold citrus fruits for Christmas presents which brought forth the money needed for the trip.

The year ended with the annual spring concert held in May.

The Drill Team was a group of 36 girls that marched, practiced as much as the football team (even ran hills), froze themselves to the bone, and could charm a football stadium packed full of spectators. Along with the featured twirlers the drill team was honored to perform at Virginia Tech's and Washington and Lee College football games.

S.C.A., the student government, is a hard-working and dedicated organization.

During Cave Spring's winning football season, members served as ticket keepers at the games, entered a float in the Homecoming Parade, sponsored door decoration contests, and organized a caravan to the P.H. game.

They also sponsored a tea for the teachers, food drives at Thanksgiving and Christmas, the Mr. Legs contest, and helped with various elections.

This year, the S.C.A. brightened the mornings a little by selling doughnuts and giving out orange juice to nervous sophomores before the minimum competency tests.

The annual winter dance was changed to a Valentine's dance and held on February 17. Their largest money-making project was Fall Festival. Exchange Day was held in April. This provided a chance for area students to get a look at other schools.

The S.C.A. held general meetings every month so first period representatives could voice the opinions of their classes. The officers met during first period to formulate new ideas. Mrs. Mason is the sponsor.

Promoting

 the Two Party SystemDonkeys and wagons were symbols used to distinguish the Cave Spring Democrats from the Young Republicans in the Homecoming Parade. This was the first year the Republicans have had competitors and what tough competitors they were!

The Democrats, supporting Andrew Miller, paid him a visit at his downtown headquarters. Many club members appeared in the local news and on local television stations with Mr. Miller.

The Young Republicans aided their candidate's cause by manning phone banks and handing out campaign literature.

As a foreshadow of the November 7 election the Republicans beat the Democrats in a Sunday afternoon football game. The campaigning efforts of the Democrats proved to be futile as the elated Republicans emerged victorious with their candidate, John Warner, seizing sixty percent of the votes in the mock election held on November 3 at school.

Behind their favorite donkeys, the Democrats "ham it up" on the Homecoming float.

Pep! Spirit!

Two words that are synonymous with the pep club. The air of spirit has led to many activities. The team members eating suckers and the colorful posters throughout the halls were evident of this.

Did you ever sponsor a caravan? Sneak into someone's locker during Homecoming? The pep club did. On September 29 Victory Stadium was swamped with pep club caravan riders and all during Homecoming scrumptious goodies cascaded out of the athletes' lockers.

For the last game of the season a new cheerleading squad appeared at the pep rally. The mothers of the football players led the school in a rousing version of "Knight Mania".

DECA involved many students this year
F.B.L.A. is a club consisting of 64 students presently taking a business class or who have completed one in the past. Its purpose is to promote business education and create more understanding of business occupatrons.

Delicious cookies, cakes, and brownies were on sale at F.B.L.A. bake sales after school and at the polls on Election Day. Profits from a candy sale helped pay club dues.

Mrs. Jennings is the sponsor.
The purpose of DECA is to enhance job skills and gain on-the-job training. The club has 100 members.

They concentrate on four main areas - civic projects, vocational understanding, leadership development, and social activities.

During the year, DECA members investigated a community problem and competed with each other in areas such as job interviews and sales demonstrations.

Stirring Events Spark FHA

F.H.A. members did much more than cooking and sewing. They entered a float, "Cook the Hilltop. pers" ${ }^{\prime \prime}$, in the Homecoming parade and received honorable mention in a door decorating contest. The F.H.A. dungeon was a popular event at Fall Festıval.

During the winter, the members participated in a fund raising project, sponsored a needy family, and worked on a Christmas project for their own home.
A banquet was held in the spring. Members helped serve refreshments at school activities, such as Prom.

There were workshops, programs, and guest speakers at meetings throughout the year.

The club has approximately 30 members. Mrs. Martha Cobble, Mrs. Yvonne Harrison, and Mrs. Alicia Wise are the sponsors.

Vo-Tech Students Learn Trades

Most students aren't aware of the many courses that are offered at Roanoke Countr Vocational and Technical School. Students at Vo-Tech develop a vocation or trade while completing all of their high school credits.

Many skills offered at Vo.Tech were exhibited in the lobby in the fall. All of these programs prepare the students to go into the working world after high school, although some also go on to college.

Ornamental Horticulture and Child Care are two new and exciting courses available.

and body work, preparing them for jobs in the community.

If computers fascinate a student, he or she can take data processing. Students learn to operate key punch machines and sorters, as well as other computer gear.

Vo-Tech's commercial arts course gives students a chance to try com. mercial advertising. Among other activities, the members of this class have a lot of fun designing and putting up billboards.

A popular program is Practical and Clinical Nursing which prepares students to work both in hospitals and on private duty.
For those interested in running their own beauty shop, the hair styling course sends them well on their way. Students learn to set, style and cut hair in the most modern fashion.

One of the most commonly known courses offered at Vo.Tech is Masonry, a highly developed skill which, when learned properly, can provide an excellent living for the student.

Other courses offered are drafting, commercial foods, small engines, and industrial wiring. Students who graduate from Cave Spring High School at Vo-Tech are prepared with a saleable skill which enables them to get much better jobs than the average high school graduate.

Baking bread dough ornaments and cutting up pumpkins may sound like Home Economics class, but actually it was the Art Club who engaged in these activities. Grotesque faces stared down at students from library shelves, where pumpkins were being displayed before Halloween. Decorated bread dough ornaments were sold during Fall Festival.

A gigantic fire-breathing dragon appeared in the Homecoming parade as the Art Club entry. Many long hours were spent in building the float which won third place in the contest.

The Art Club was sponsored by Mrs. Lynn Mooney and Ms. Pat Carr. These sponsors set up guest speakers for their 23 club members. Speakers included were Mrs. Catherine Liu and a representative of the Art Institute in Atlanta, Georgia. The Art Club painted a mural in the library and took a spring trip to Washington.

Striving Scientists

What is a black hole? . . . How does it feel to be hypnotized? . . . Does biofeedback affect me? . . . These and other questions were answered by guest speakers during this year's Science Club meetings.

Cave Spring High School was selected to host the Roanoke County Science Fair. The fair was well represente by Cave Spring students.

To raise money for their club, they distributed bird seed for the Science Museum and held a cake walk at Fall Festival. Some of the money raised was placed in a scholarship fund.
Field trips took club members to Hollins College, Dragon's Tooth and Washington, D.C. One of the highlights of the Washington trip was visiting the Smithsonian Museum.
The Science Club was sponsored by Mrs. Rebecca Dechow and had approximately 30 members.

STAFF

Students' Creativity

 Flows"The theme in this poem is great, but the meter stinks!"
"Oops, I made another 'blurp.' "
"The whole purpose of this thing is to inform the public of the pathetic human condition."
Such statements were heard throughout the year by various members of the Idylls literary magazine staff as they read student work, typed, did "paste-up", and argued their own literary theories.

Though Idylls has been in existence for fifteen years, most students aren't aware of the meaning of the name literally a narrative tale about a rural subject. The book is also named for Tennyson's Idylls of the King, which is about King Arthur and the Knights of the Round Table.

Students had one month to submit work to Idylls. Then, a committee of six read the work and commented on it.

Mrs. Ann Scott, advisor, was the final voice that determined what would be printed. Then, the staff began to type all copy, without any mistakes allowed.

Though the staff sometimes neg. lected $T$-squares and red pencils to listen to Jon Manteuffel's guitar or laugh at Steve Summers' puns, they basically worked hard. Associate Editor Rodger Huff spent hours handling money in the cafeteria with Krispy Kreme encrusted fingers. Art Editors Risé Peters and Jeff Hawley examined student artwork.

For the past three years the magazine has won first place in the Virginia High School League competition.

In addition to early morning dough. nut sales, staff members also earned "printing money" with a ping pong tournament at Fall Festival.

Even though the magazine has a limited student appeal, it serves as an important artistic outlet for student writers.

"Hilltoppers Knightmare", the grand prize winner of all Homecoming floats, began a most eventful year. During Fall Festival, an international smorgasbord produced a variety of palatable delights. Sixty-six new members were formally welcomed in an evening candlelight ceremony. The new members were selected on the basis of their willingness to be of service to others, their particpation in extra-curricular activities, their achievement of at least a 3.5 grade point average at the time of induction, and their demonstration of good character as a school representative.

New Honor Group Formed

Quill and Scroll is an international journalism honor society. Students are chosen for outstanding achievement in journalist endeavors, are in the top third of their class, and have served on school publication staffs for two years.

New members were inducted in November and honored at a luncheon. Members receive "Quill and Scroll" magazine which includes helpful articles on journalism. The organization sponsors various contests and scholarships.

Knight Letter Keeps Students Informed

Every day during seventh period, a number of budding journalists met to compile the Knight Letter. The staff produced nine issues plus one senior issue this year.

Stories appeared in the limited (by finances) four-page format under controversial headlines like "College Education - Why Bother?," and "Maintaining the OI' GPA." Subject matter ranged from movie reviews to articles about improved school spirit, and front page news tried to emphasize upcoming or recent events.
According to staff members, producing a newspaper every month is not an easy job. Not only must reporters write copy, photographers take pictures, and section editors "lay out" pages; but also all must do these within the framework of snow days and a six-school-day printing schedule. In fact, final copy usually had to be at the printers two weeks in advance of publication!
"Laying out" pages was grueling work as staff members camped out at the editors' homes over the weekends to get the job done. Sometimes, it was necessary for them to eat dinners of cokes and cookies standing up. However, the staff had plenty of laughs as they juggled picas, column inches and headline counts.

Under the sponsorship of editorial sponsor Ms. Jane Ambrose and business sponsor Mrs. Lurlene Todd, everything was kept in order. According to the editors, the "sophomore couch" was often vacated and there were fewer cries of "can we get drinks?" this year, as the staff worked harder than in previous times.

Editors Lisa Davis, Pat Walsh, Lita Handy, Elizabeth Ferguson and Cathy Petrini review articles of last month's news.

Senior Editor Sandra House, along with Susan Allen and Mela. nie Mallen, accomplish the impossible task of coordinating Senior data with Senior pictures.

The 78.79 year for the Accolade staff was one of rebuilding. Only four veterans returned while thirteen new faces plus a new advisor were added. The actual planning of the yearbook started in August when the staff attended a workshop at Radford.
The staff had its ups and downs this year like anything else, yet as a whole, staff members pulled together and worked hard. The pace was slow at first as the "rookies" learned about things like croppers, picas, quadpacks, and (Uck!) deadlines, but as the year progressed, ideas started rolling and pages began coming in. Equipment left a lot to be desired what with a broken typewriter, decrepit desk, sagging couch, and no dark. room! Familiar lines were: "Where are all the yellow pencils?", "But I need the typewriter!", "What is this a picture of?!, "The deadline is today?!"
The staff was divided into different sections each of which had its own problems like . . .
... The Sophomore Section: they seemed to have problems knowing how many pictures could be on a page
. . . The Junior Section: four people with different ideas that had to come to a meeting of the minds . . .
. . . The Senior Section: they had fun with the moss growing all over the Senior pictures . . .

The Sports Section: Almost everyone quit the staff before the third week of school.
. . . The Student Life Section: This group couldn't figure out who was going to take the pictures they needed! . .
. . The Faculty Section: One person can only do so much - but it was a great job!
So this is how the year went. With the help of Mrs. Ferguson, the advisor, even the bad times were fun. The staff members hope that you will enjoy and cherish these times that they have tried to capture for you - at least they enjoyed doing it .

When you look through a yearbook under the subtitle of "Student Life," you are led to believe that the only things in the students' lives consist of Homecoming, Fall Festival, clubs, organizations, or a list of other events. But this isn't so!
The year of 1978.79 has been different in many ways from any other year.

It's the mad rush from class, to the bathroom, to your locker, to another class (and all this has to be done in a measly five minutes). It's walking through the hall and seeing how many people you can knock down while they are getting their books out of the lower lockers. How about when you turn the corners - there are usually only five or six students tearing down the hall to get to class on time! A person is really doing well if he is able to pick himself up off the floor after such a stampede.

It's reading the backs of the bath. room doors (if you can see through the smoke), "Someone's drowning. Throw out the 'Lifeline!''! How about when you drive through the parking lot or read your desk top and see the infamous "FRED IS DEAD"? There's always the person who says "Who's Fred?' '. I bet there has never been any other squirrel written about so much!

It's seeing a guy who's about six feet four inches tall, with a "Jimmy Carter" smile and receding hairline crawl out of his Volkswagen. It's the continuous question of "Where is your orange pass?'. . (These were the magic keys when you encountered the diligent teachers!)

These are the concrete things that hold together the school year. Without them, just think what a dull time we all would have, but with friends and foes together a person can mold his own year. These pages were reserved just for student life with one thought left in mind: "A memory safely tucked away brings back a favorite yesterday."

Gaining Ultimate Success

Peers Leading to Ultimately Succeed, PLUS, is a group of students interested in aiding young children while developing their own leadership skills.

PLUS provides area fifth graders with an opportunity to develop their attitudes and receive answers to questions through group discussions and activities.

Every other week, members travel to area schools to meet with the students. Some of the fifth graders also attended classes at Cave Spring with their leaders.
Training classes were held for PLUS leaders and they also completed a classroom observation.

The 60 members are advised by Mrs. Faye Martin.

Small Team Makes Big Noise

Forensics is individual competition in dramatic and poetry reading, and spelling.
Considering that there were only two competitors from Cave Spring, Laura Francis and Cathy Petrini, they did remarkably well. Both girls were entered in district competition held in March. Cathy received a good rating, while Laura won first place in prose reading. She advanced to the regionals held in northern Virginia. Laura placed first again and qualified for state. She chose "Snapshot of a Dog" for her selection to recite at this competition held at UVa.

Chapel Meets on Thursdays!

Chapel is a Christian organization that meets every week on Thursday mornings from 8:00 to $8: 25$. It is not a club, but is open to anyone that wants to attend. The speakers are students from our school and people from area churches. These speakers included Rick Brown from Cave Spring Baptist Church, Sarah Dowdy from the Damascus Inn, and Chuck Ward of First Baptist Church. They also had a picnic in the spring.

At the meetings, they sing and hold a bible study. Chapel is designed for personal spiritual growth and to provide a chance to get to know others. The officers are Steve Janosko and Vicky Angle.

On Tuesday April 24, there was a long line of people standing outside the front door of the school, waiting to enter into the school's auditorium to see the preview of the Senior talent show. After all the hard work that was put into the show, the flaws popped up left and right, but "there were no human errors just mechanical errors," explains the participants.

Jimmy Ritchie served as the master of ceremonies of the show, built around a disco called "The Pits." After all the contestants had performed, the judges chose first, second, and third places.

Even though the talent show was not fully appreciated, it was very successful in making money for the Senior class. Thus the talent show was appropriately named!

The talent show was a combina tion of different acts put together Starting at the top is Lynn Cox with her Rosanna Danna imita. tion. Following her is Wayne Thompson on guitar and then Robin Johnson also created into a nostalgic scene with Tommy Moore's Elvis' imitation.

Jeff Ogniz, dater: After days of deliberation I finally decided to call her up and just talk. I eventually let someone answer the phone after hanging up on the first ring the first 15 times. I blew it! It was her mom and not her. The thought of just talking ended up with me asking myself over for a while to be together . . . alone.

Coming from a family with tight security, I knew how dads could be with their "little girls". We both concluded that it wouldn't be a good idea to go to her house. My mind did start to click all of the sudden and I remembered that there was a good movie playing at the Tanglewood Cinema. Clearing my throat I made the offer.

Loose lips sink ships, and I was sinking down for the third time. I figured that she had food on her mind, and all I had was a big $$ 7$ on hand. I mentioned that we could go to someplace . . . "What did you say Jennifer, Graffiti's? Well . . . a that's not exactly . . . what I was exactly thinking but I guess that . . . ah . . . we could find someplace!

Gads, my ship was surely sunk. $$ 7$, no drivers license . . . with the idea that dad or mom would have to drive us where ever we were going. A movie? Hmmm . . I really wasn't in the mood to sit in a hot and muggy theater, but l'm always interested in a box of hot buttered popcorn or else some of that chewy candy. I was thrilled and I hurredly replied 'Sure l'd like to go. What time will we eat?" Good 'ol me and my BIG mouth! "Oh . . ah . . . oh, what time do you think that you will be here?"

Oh, boy, he has more brains than I figured! The idea of going out to dinner wasn't what I was thinking, but l'm not going to complain for sure, "not Graffiti's? Well maybe you mean Figi Island or . . . Oh, Jeff, the Jolly $0 x$ is a great place to eat and you have a candlelight dinner and just maybe we will end up all alone . . . just you and me.
'Jeff, you schemer, you. I bet you had that idea tucked away in your mind the whole time." Boy, some guys go to the moon and back before they finally get down to business. "It sounds grand. You're so thoughtful and romantic to think of going for a walk. I'm sure that there won't be anyone around to pester us then just you and me alone

TO THE SENIORS . . .
Twelve years have waned;
At times, days and weeks Have quickly passed into shadows
And we regret the time lost.
Others have dragged so as
To nearly drive us mad.
But each and every day
Has added to our growth,
Added to the complexity of our personalities. Our lives have met and mingled with others; Enriching, thus enriched.

For the girls in the curlers who picked up their flowers, for the guys who washed the family "gas guzzler". and for those who picked up their hotel keys, night came none too soon. The setting sun marked the beginning of a special evening for the Cave Spring students who attended prom.

Faded blue jeans and T-shirts were momentarily shed. In their stead, young ladies, enveloped in a cloud of cologne, donned their fanciest and finest while their freshly shaven escorts moved stiffly in their rented tuxedos.

After beaming parents flashed the last flash bulb, couples bombarded local restaurants to undergo one of the most grueling tests of the evening. (How does one remain elegant and eat at the same time?)

From dinner, couples made their way to the Roanoke Civic Center to join their classmates. Beyond the Starway, the dance floor swayed to the music of the Fat Ammon's Band.

For many, the night ended all too quickly, for some, the night ended with a breakfast with friends; others simply watched the dawn together. All wearily and reluctantly went home with sore feet and faded smiles; however, they had memories of one of the most exciting evenings in their lives.

I know you're weary
I know your plans don't include me.
Still here we are, both of us lonely
Longing for shelter, from all that we see.
Why should we worry: No one will care, girl,
Look at the stars so far away.
We've got tonight
Who needs tomorrow
Let's make it last, Let's find a way.

The Commencement

We seniors march in robes of black and white,
United with the seniors of the world
By "Pomp and Circurnstance";
but as we march,
Fear of the future hammers in our hearts.
We stand here as the Only senior class.
Each individual will walk alone
Across the stage to what the future holds.
Will my name fade into obscurity?
Will I ever succeed?
Each wonders these,
For tarnished names engraved on rosewood plaques Are omens of fading careers.

The girls,
Wanting equality, are still harassed
By maiden aunts who pick their bridal china.
They wonder if husbands will separate
Them from success.
The boys are not allowed
To fear, though soon they may support children. Amid these obstacles rises turmoil,
For we are parting from our dearest friends, And some of us have lived here all our lives.
The future seems to be so insecure
As we prepare to leave these days behind.
We do not realize that memories
Will never die, but fade into our minds
Like peaceful dreams.
Our "golden" high school days
(residing only in those teenage books)
Are done.
Yet, this will not start the decline
Of life, indeed, new life begins for us.
The speeches echo, hollow drums, as we Assemble for the last time as a class.
Equal? No, for Time changed us in our youth;
Some singled out, if slightly, with awards And golden tassles shining in the light; Others receiving more applause than those Who have not won, or are not yet entered In this life's ceaseless contest for acclaim.
Success may come now for the silent ones,
Because not all potential receives praise:
And those who ve shouted loudest through these years May not be heard again.

For them, this day
Shall mark the end of immortality.
Hope or futility? As Knights, we!l ride
Into our new found freedom side by side

Graduation
. . . this is it! The receiving of numbers the process of lining up ... the speeches . . . the tears . . . the shouts of joy ... life. Every year the process begins as Seniors anxiously wait for the ceremonies to begin.

For many of the Seniors, graduation becomes reality only after the ceremonies, while for many reality begins the first day of their Senior year. Some are happy, some do not seem to care, while others are scared. With the final farewell speech, a tear on a rose, the sheepskin in hand - the ticket out a new life begins for all those on hand.

The willingness to take control of their lives begins after these ceremonies. Somehow they feel freer to make changes that will lead to new, fulfilling life-styles. Perhaps it is because they are growing wiser and more courageous about themselves. Or maybe it is only that they more easily accept the changes that others make around them.

Throughout the years at Cave Spring they were growing. Sometimes forwards, sometimes backwards. Many of them finally grew up and real. ized that all wasn't right!

But this is their final step into the future, and while they did it - it sure seemed right!

This Was the Way It Was .

From toga parties to Camp David peace talks . . . from record ice storms to mass suicides in the jungle . . . this was the way it was in 1978 and 1979. Studded with Iranian conflicts and nuclear accidents, it will be a year to remember in the history books, and we lived it.

The movie Animal House turned high school and college campuses upside down as students roared at the antics of the Delta House gang. Students sent out invitations to toga parties around Roanoke that stated, "come dressed for the occasion" after the Valley Cinema flick.

Clerks of the Norfolk and Western Railway went on strike in mid-July to try to obtain renewable job security. The strike lasted 81 days before the clerks received a court order to return to work in late September. The strike was not officially settled until January 6 , even though the clerks returned to work.

Early August saw the death of Pope Paul VI, who had reigned for 15 years. The College of Cardinals elected the new pope who chose the name John Paul I. Within six weeks the new pope was dead of a heart attack, and the Cardinals again retired to the Sistine Chapel to elect the first Polish pope in history, John Paul II.

A $5^{\prime} 4^{\prime \prime}$ blonde, blue-eyed gal from Galax, Kylene Barker, a Virginia Tech graduate, was chosen Miss America. Cave Spring's own Jennifer Jones won the Roanoke Valley's Junior Miss title, and went on to place third in the state pageant.

President Jimmy Carter made a valiant effort to bring a 2000-year old conflict to an end when he met at Camp David with Egyptian president Anwar Sadat and Israeli prime minister Menachem Begin. They planned to sign a peace treaty by Christmas, but setbacks postponed the signing until early spring.

During the election campaign, Republican Senatorial candidate John Warner battled Democrat Andrew Miller. Richard Obenchain, the original Republican nominee, was tragically killed in a plane crash in early August. Warner, appointed as Obenchain's successor, ran on a similar platform. The vote was one of the closest in Virginia history with Warner winning by a slight $.2 \%$ margin. Miller made plans for a recount, but financial troubles as well as an official count in Warner's favor changed his mind.
U.S. Representative Leo Ryan (D. Cal) went to the tiny country of Guyana in South America to investigate the Peoples' Temple cult. The cult, headed by the Reverend Mr. Jim Jones from San Francisco, had moved to Guyana and reportedly was not allowing its members to leave at will. On November 30 in the middle of a lonely airstrip, Rep. Ryan and three newsmen were shot by snipers as they prepared to leave for home. Investigations at the cult's settlement at Jonestown revealed the tragic mass suicide of 910 men, women and children. Jones, who had either forced or conditioned them into this act, was found shot with family members.

President Carter signed a recognition treaty with the Peoples' Republic of China in December. This broke diplomatic relations with the government of Nationalist China on Taiwan, but brought news of Eastern culture and the potential expansion of U.S. indus. try in Red China. Vice premier Teng Hsiao-Ping visited the United States for two weeks for the signing of the treaty.

Soon after, China invaded Vietnam in hopes of stopping the Vietnamese invasion of Cambodia. Thoughts of a new Southeast Asian conflict crossed American minds, but the situation soon cooled down.

Iranian conflicts also dominated the news this year. In early November the Shah of Iran imposed military rule to attempt to quiet demonstrations. Angry Iranians ousted the Shah, who fled the country in January, appointing Prime Minister Shahbour Bakhtiar in his place. Bakhtiar's regime did not last long, as exiled Moslem leader Ayatullah Khomeini returned home and took power in February. Demonstrations and executions of the Shah's aides continued as Khomeini attempted to establish a religious state.
Late January saw the worst ice storm in Virginia History as 100,000 customers lost electric power for as much as five days. The winter was very severe in the midwest, and in Roanoke several snowfalls caused students to miss seven days of school.

When it wasn't snowing, students went to the movies. An old comic book friend, Superman, came to life on the silver screen. The thriller Halloween had many guys comforting frightened girlfriends (and vice versa!)

A nuclear accident at Three Mile Island in Pennsylvania caused the evacuation of about 50,000 residents. This, coupled with the movie The China Syndrome, caused much concern over the safety of nuclear power plants.

Inflation, primarily in the area of food prices, rose a full 1\% in March. Gasoline prices hit a whopping $79 \not \subset$ a gallon in Roanoke. Experts predicted the price would be $\$ 1$ a gallon by sum. mer.

By the time April and May had arrived, floods had devastated areas of Mississippi and Louisiana. Some of the worst tornados in years hit parts of Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas.

So this was the way it was in 1979. The Pittsburgh Steelers won the Superbowl, Patty Hearst was pardoned from prison and married her bodyguard, punk rock began to die out, and Michigan State's "Magic" Johnson helped them walk off with the NCAA basketball crown. This was the way it was in the rest of the world, and through the media, we were there.

Northside

After traveling down Peters Creek Road - a foreign country to most Cave Springers - another rival and friend can be found. Northside ranks high particularly in the field of sports, and has an academic program similar to Cave Spring.

The Vikings have long been football rivals, and won the district in 1977. The girls' basketball team has been a contender for top honors in recent years. Their wrestling prowess usually dominates the mats. In another field, they have produced an award-winning yearbook for several years.

Northside has 1200 students in grades ten through twelve. Each class has its own hall and holds hall decorating contests. One of their special competitions is on "Green, Gold and White Day." Some of the other Viking events are the North Star Dance, Teacher Games, and the Most Spirited Teacher Award assembly.

Since the main part of the building was built in 1960, Northside students have one overwhelming complaint that sounds familiar. "Northside doesn't have air conditioning," they say, "and, of course, the heat doesn't work well in winter." This was the major complaint of almost all the students interviewed.

Although Northside has one of the oldest buildings, their school spirit is high, making them a very competitive rival . . . and friend.

Patrick Henry

Patrick Henry is the nearest high school to Cave Spring and perhaps its all-around archrival. However, at times the short distance brings the schools close together, and they enjoy a mutual friendship that is unequalled by any other two high schools in the Roanoke area.

Patrick Henry has the largest student body in Roanoke, as well as the largest campus. Two new buildings, the vocational arts building and the auditorium, were opened this year.
P.H. draws on students anywhere from South Roanoke to downtown, and its accomplishments are as diversified as the type of students attending it. It defeated Franklin County in basketball to capture the district championship. Kevin Skelley became the top high school tennis player in the state.

The "Purple and Gold" also enjoys its own drama theatre. Laban Johnson, a member of the Mill Mountain Playhouse, teaches and supervises their productions, which are well received by all those who see them.
P.H.'s half-time shows during football season have earned applause for a long time. The award-winning band, composed of the marching band, flag and rifle teams, and majorettes, is one of the largest in the area.

Two diplomas are offered to the P.H. student - the general diploma and the academic diploma for those taking advanced classes.

Many think of P.H. as a "prep" school. This misconception represents only a small percent of the students, and in no way adequately describes one of the most diversified student bodies in the Roanoke area.

Salem

At the end of a curved driveway lie the two main entrance gates of Salem High School.

Being a newcomer to the Roanoke Valley means that Salem is still trying to become established in the fields of athletics, music and other endeavors. New maroon and silver team and band uniforms are outward symbols of the emergence of a new power in the Valley.

Salem, constructed last year, merged students from Andrew Lewis and Glenvar high schools. Salem encountered some early problems over the name of the school. It seemed that the school would never be unified, but now in Salem's second year, relationships are that of any other high school.

The school is equipped with everything from carpeting and air conditioning to a print shop and greenhouse. There is a computer that will willingly play games like "Star Trek" with Salem's math wizzes.

Salem runs on a two day schedule. Every other Wednesday they have an activities day so that all students have a chance to meet in clúbs. Salem has many of the same clubs as Cave Spring, only with different names such as Keyettes and Bi-Phi-Chem club.

Like all other schools, Salem has its problems. Ranking highest are vandalism and parking problems.

A stroll through the beautiful "Spartan" halls impresses a Cave Spring student. Every subject is assigned to a specific hall, and the effect is that of an indoor college campus.

So this is Salem: new building, new organizations, and a new society. Valley high schools must now share some of the old territory with these new rivals and friends.

Parking is a small problem at Salem since only juniors and sen iors are allowed to drive.

William Fleming

Plagued by the sound of descending airplanes is William Fleming High School. Fleming, which has 1600 students, is built near Woodrum Field, in a campus style with seven separate buildings. Some of the less traditional subjects taught there are nursing, food health and electrical studies. There is a new vocational building, Lawson Hall.

DECA is an important activity for the Colonels. DE students run the school store, selling everything from T-shirts to ceramic mugs. Fleming's R.O.T.C. program is also very active. Among the organizations that meet on special club days are the Genealogy, Chess and Human Relations clubs. They have a national award winning yearbook and a band any school could be proud of. Athletically, their track team shone this year, winning the Cosmospolitan.

Besides having a prom and Homecoming dance, they have a Sadie Hawkins Day dance. Not only do the girls ask the boys to the dance, but they also drive them and take them out to dinner.

Since Fleming does not have a diving range, their Driver's Ed. students use driver simulators instead. Also, everyone at Fleming is in the same homeroom and has the same locker for three years. Because so many Fleming students work, buses are run after fifth period.

Because of the disturbances which erupted in 1977, many people think of Fleming as a "rough" school. This bothers many students, who say that they are more unified than people realize. But, they say, Fleming gets bad publicity: "if anything happens here, everybody makes a big deal of it."

So the Colonels and the Knights remain, despite similarities and differ. ences, rivals and friends.

scores: C.s. 26 - 3 rine. Herming 6 , Northacde 13 - C. S. 14.

William Byrd is the only four year high school in the area. Its enrollment is close to 1000, and freshmen, sophomores, juniors and seniors seem to thrive on their two day schedule. On Day 1, Byrd students take preparatory courses like English, and on Day 2 courses like English, and on Day 2 they switch to electives.

The "Terriers" captured a number of honors on the athletic fields this year. The indoor track and the cross country teams were district champions. In wrestling, they had a state champion in one weight class. The girls' teams did an outstanding job, capturing the district title in gymnastics and coming in second in basketball district and regional competition. The girls' track team won the Cosmopolitan.

Forensics and drama are other areas of interest at Byrd. There are an assortment of organizations ranging from the SCA to the Reindeer. Reindoe Club (the Senior class).

Since Byrd is the smallest of the schools in the Roanoke Valley, there seems to be a special closeness among the students. "There is a good relationship between everyone here," said one student.

Even though the Knights will not see very much of the maroon and orange Terriers since Byrd is a double A school, we do compete in a few areas. Most of Roanoke has heard the bark of this rival and friend at one time or another this year.

The principal is the chief administrator and leader of his school. Everyone knows Mr. Life is in charge of students, faculty, and staff members. But what other things does his job encompass?

He works practically year round. In the summer, he rearranges schedules, oversees the condition of buildings and grounds, and makes staff and program assignments. During the school year, Mr. Life can be seen early in the morning and late in the afternoon working hard. He keeps a good comraderie with students and teachers alike, and one may even find him sitting in on different classes.

Mr. Life has a good philosophy which is that he will never allow teach. ers to make derogatory remarks about students. With this in mind, one can see why Mr. Life always has a positive, cheerful attitude. He works well with everyone he encounters.

To break the daily routine, Mr. Life attends athletic events, cruises through the cafeteria, and occasionally eyes the smoking block. In his second year here, Mr. Life has adjusted very well. The students and staff have also adapted to his administration with enthusiasm and with hopeful thoughts for the future.

Pulling for another victory is Jason Life and his dad

Mr. Arnold Burton has been Superintendent of Roanoke County Schools since 1965. Of the many projects he has undertaken, he looks upon the reading program with a great sense of accomplishment. He believes very strongly in student involvement and feels that a lively class. room produces learning. He also states that he has "great faith in young people" and their abil ity to "exercise sound judgment in their every. day lives."

Assistant principals Mrs. Goodall, Mr. Tisinger, and Mr. Wymer supervise the students and staff members, but most people don't know all the little things their jobs entail.

How many have seen Mrs. Goodall's office around report card time? Boxes and boxes of about 9,000 teacher's IBM cards line the walls. It is up to her to make something out of the chaos and to see to it that report cards are printed. Also, who sees her at 11 at night or 6 in the morning chasing down a substitute for the teacher who called in sick at the last minute?

What does Mr. Tisinger do besides "bagging" skippers? Every August before school he can be seen wandering the halls with a perplexed look on his face wondering what he is going to do with the endless expanse of lockers. Also, it is Mr. Tisinger who coolly and calmly patrols the halls during fire drills lending a little order to the occasion.

Everyone loves the fun and excitement of Friday night football games, but how many know that it is Mr. Wymer who makes these possible? Not only must he arrange home events and secure police and officials, but he is also in charge of selling tickets. There are many times Mr. Wymer faithfully watches over the ticket stand while secretly wishing he were some place else.

But what the assistant principals are remembered for most, especially by seniors, is their part at graduation. As they wish the seniors good luck, all the bad memories are forgotten, and one realizes that they weren't so bad after all.

Mrs. Penny Goodall

Mr. Richard Tisinger

Mr. David Wymer

Secretaries

and Aides

Maintain

 OrderThe secretaries and teacher's aides stay very busy keeping students in order and assisting faculty and staff members. They take care of the little things that make school life more enjoyable for teachers and students alike.

Mrs. Bostian has the tough job of keeping students in the cafeteria during lunch time. On many occasions, she can be seen patroling the parking lot for students who try for a quick trip to Hardees. Every morning Mrs. Hawthorne writes out endless excuses including early dismissals with the dreaded phone numbers which have brought many a student to detention hall. Mrs.Jones and Mrs. Simmons help keep the library in order by banishing chattering students even if they insist that they always study with their mouths open. Mrs. Saunders, the typist, can be found among the unending number of review sheets, test, and (Ugh!) exams.

The pencils, pens, and notebooks provided by Mrs. Harmon have saved the lives of forgetful students. Also, the English Lab make-up test system is far superior to the "Wednesday afternoon in 127" of yesteryear. On the days of the "not studied for" tests and those sunny afternoons perfect for sun-tanning, a sure ticket home was a distressed look and a "Mrs. Jones I feel sick."

The aides and secretaries are not only essential to principals and teachers but also to students as well.

With Mrs. Bowers checking for mistakes, Mrs. Allen types the "Life Line" for the day.

Forgotten Friends

When one thinks about who is responsible for running the school, teachers and administrators would probably come to mind. But some of the most important, yet least reconnized, staff members are the cafeteria workers and custodians.

Students often joke about the cafeteria food, but it is no joke having to cook for around 1,500 people every day. Even on cold windy mornings or in the pouring rain, the cafeteria ladies arrive at school around 7 o'clock to bake homemade cookies. Their imagination and originality turn the blah food provided by the county into the great hot lunches which make lunch time a favorite time for many. Also, their kidding and joking in the lunch line breaks the monotony of endless classes.

The custodians also play an importank part in keeping the school runming smoothly. Without them to fix leaky roofs, keep the cafeteria clean (if that's possible), and generally keep the school in shape, the school couldn't function. Their familiar faces and their helpfulness will be remembered for a long time.

Right: On a cold winter day, George Meador takes a short break in front of the heater.

ACADEMICS

Academics . . . the result of a teacher's effort is a student's attaining knowledge . . . distinguishing a noun clause from a prepositional phrase, designing a dress in Home Ec, speaking French. The result of a student's learning is his wanting to pursue knowledge further . . . doing a special project in psychology, attending poet in the schools, going to college. The result of a student's pursuit of knowledge is that he, in turn, teaches others ... helping fifth graders through PLUS, tutoring in chemistry (yes, a mole is $6.02 \times 10^{23}$ ), Is , students enlightening us about their culture.

Saturday in Olde Europe

After many weeks of preparation for Fall Festival, everyone was pleased with the amount of money that was made. Seniors brought in many contributions for the senior sponsored Country Store in order to raise money for graduation. Raffle tickets for a quilt handmade by the seniors were also sold along with the homemade contributions, among which were many baked goods and canned goods. Many satisfied customers quenched their thirsts with a glass of apple cider. All and all, it was a most enjoyable day for young and old alike.

While only modeling the Senior Class Quilt, Eric Sallee decides that he would not mind having it for himself.

Roving through the halls, Jeff Pendleton, David Hutchins, and Greg Underwood, pause to entertain guests with their lively country music.

MEDICAL REPORT

DISEASE: SENIORITIS

GENERAL DESCRIPTION: An ailment that exclusively strikes the bodies of graduating upperclassmen.
SYMPTOMS: Involuntary absence from classes in order to absorb radiation from the sun. Disregard for homework and other such assignments. Victims display an increasingly comatose and "floaty" appearance, and have tendancies toward crazy or near insane behavior.
CURE: No prescription is available to treat this disease. The only possible cure known to the medical profession is a vacation to Myrtle Beach upon graduation or soon thereafter.

The PITS

Presents

The theme of the Talent Show was Amateur Night at the PITS, a local discotheque, where the Master of Ceremonies, Jim Ritchie, chose volunteers from the audience to perform. The acts were comprised of singers, some performing songs that they had written themselves. Several other performers had made up lively dance routines. Although there was some difficulty with the sound equip. ment at the start of the show, it was soon remedied and the show was a hit.

Donned in satin, Jean Swiercinski dances to "Greased Lightning."

Looks Like

With the arrival of summer comes Graduation, and on the evening of June 6, the class of 79 , held their commencement activities at the Salem-Roanoke Valley Civic Center. Trying to relieve themselves of the unbearable heat, the graduates congregated around the water fountains and breezy passageways. As 7:30 approached, jittery seniors processed into the auditorium while the band played "Pomp and Circumstance."

A surge of panic struck the gradu ates when they realized they were out of order. However, everything worked out as planned thanks to the quick thinking of the marshals and Mrs. Car. ter.

Rings Elate Junior Class

The wait was long, but it was worth it, as juniors ecstatically received their class rings in Feburary. To each, the class ring signified a different meaning.
For many, it meant that they were finally Juniors with only half their time left in high school, for others it meant the traditional "ring-turning" and knocking of the sophomores on the head. For still others, it would be a lifetime memory of their years in high school.
Many juniors grumbled constantly between the end of November when they ordered their rings, and the middle of February when they finally received them. Students were disappointed when they learned that they were not to receive their class rings before Christmas as in previous years. The delay was contributed to the ring committee's decision to change the mold of the ring and to provide the option of a dinner ring.
When the rings finally came, the grum bles were replaced with cries of sheer eleation as each junior received his ring. At the end of the day, the last junior walked out of the doors of Cave Spring, proudly displaying his ring - a symbol of spirit and motivation in the Class of 1980.

Is Successful

for Juniors

Cave Spring fairly shook with the enthusiasm of the Juniors during Homecoming Week, October 9-14. Various Juniors spent many long hours readying their class float for Friday night's parade.
When the final night rolled around, the Juniors took all the problems in stride. En route to the junior high the glass window on the main float, which incorporated their theme of "Bust Glass,'" swayed precariously back and forth, while one participant fell out of a truck.

In spite of all the problems, the Junior class still became one of the few classes in Cave Spring's history to place, with a second prize of $$ 15$.

Good Times and Good Things Enjoyed at Fall Festival

The Junior class provided refreshments and "refreshing" entertainment at Fall Festival on the second Saturday of November, to clear over $$ 200$ for the annual Spring prom.

For only 50申, a contestant was granted two chances to dunk a fellow enthusiast or obliging football player. The highlight of the day came at 2:30 p.m., when a crowd of 30 eager faces gathered to watch Mrs. Bostian go down with a splash.

After making the rounds of the booths, Fall Festival customers found their tired feet leading them to the Junior class bake sale, which offered tempting delights.
At the end of the day those who attended Fall Festival left Cave Spring with a dent in their wallets but with their arms full of prizes, their hearts full of good times, and their minds full of fond memories.

Juniors Work Well Under Pressure

The class of ' 80 endured many tests this year. They took part not only in ordinary day -to day tests, but also SRA, PSAT, exams, and SAT's.

First came three days of SRA tests. Next came the PSAT's. A week later students had visions of dots in their eyes.

This was the first year Cave Spring students had to take exams. There was tension for the Juniors who waited until the last minute to study.

The Juniors took their SAT's for the first time in the spring. This was a test that really counted. It had direct bearing on what a student could or could not do.
Before the Juniors knew it, it was final exam time again. The whole Junfor year was punctuated with more tests than the Juniors had ever taken

Sophomores Hit the Big Time!

From the top to the bottom of the totem pole is a big step down, as the Sophomores soon discovered when they arrived at Cave Spring. After being the "head honchos" and practically running their schools, they had to succumb to the orders of the upper. classmen.

Not only had the atmosphere changed, but so had the scenery. Instead of seeing "'midgets' with squeaky voices they were now faced by grown men with beards.
By the end of the second school day, sophomores were convinced they would never get to class on time. The Annex traffic jam seemed insurmountable. One petite sophomore girl rounded a corner, only to view a large belt buckle staring her in the face.

Laughter spread throughout the cafeteria as one confused sophomore frantically pounded the drink machine. Finally one sympathetic soul informed him it was cut off during lunch periods.

Soon, however, thoughts of driver's licenses and big football games began to make the sophomores feel like they were really high school students now. Anticipation of rides to school in cars, jobs, and even dates with upperclassmen made them feel not so near the bottom rung of the ladder.

Amazing Athletes Spark CS Teams

Sophomores made an important contribution to many athletic teams this year as they filled in the gaps left by graduating seniors.

Tim Wiseman, scrappy defensive football player, was named to the All-District first team.

Lee Custer sparked the girls' tennis team as first seed.
Clark Custer, 98 pound class wrestler, set a record for fastest pin, 12 seconds, in a match with Covington.

Becca Carter wowed the judges with gymnastics prowass, and Kent Boerner continued to win in tennis.

Other outstanding sophomores included David Garlow, cross country, Mike McCoy, track, Robyn McFarland and Laura Coleman, volleyball, and Joey Pugh and Richard DeHaven, wrestling.

A long time ago in a place far away
There was a small spring that ran out of a cave.
Now inside the cave lived the old Cave Spring troll With hair silver-gray and eyes dark as coal.

All week the troll sat in his dark little cave. Except for fall Fridays which he saved
Yes, Fridays were special, for after nigh His very own team came to vie at foot

Now back in the year - oh, yes, seventy Cave Spring had a team. Oh, my, were they g
They had passers and runners and linemen and They had defense, a kicker who made that ball soar.
They had managers, coaches, their fans - let me say The very best fans of that time, of that day.

Well, the troll always went. He missed not one game. He got only wins from the team of his name.
They won over Salem, PH and Fleming, And won over Franklin, and, yes, they kept WINNING They lost not one game coming into that night But they HAD to win this one; the District was tight i

The troll almost took his car which was new,
But the parking was bad, so he walked - no, he flew.
He flew to the scoreboard. He was so glad he came, And he sat right on top of the score of the game.

Now the visiting team was a school called Northside. Very great they were not - but, oh, they had pride. Tonight they were ready to make the Knights kneel And they shouted and cheered as they took the field,
But the field house door opened; the Knights charged out then, And the hairs on that troll stood right up on end.
And his goose bumps weren't lonely, for off to his right Bout five million more goose bumps were gathered that nigh

Well the first whistle blew and it looked mighty tough, But the troll had his faith, and the team had their guts;
And when the dust cleared, and the crowd had thinned out Our old troll was happy, for without a doubt
The Knights of Cave Spring, by a very close score Had beaten the Vikings, 'mid deafening roar!
Now the old troll went home, knowing Knights were now king He took one more drink from the beautiful spring. He would dream of the winning streak his team would keep. Then he went in his cave, and he fell fast asleep.

"Cover four, you - me," shouts Coach Otis Dowdy to his defensive team on the field as Coach Wayne Heat looks on.

It's another big gain for End Mike Barber as he eludes a Robert E. Lee defender.

[^6]Coach Charlie Homes plans strategy for the second half of the Martinsville game with Bob Price and Alan Wright.

With only two seconds to go in the Pulaski game, the Knights are sure of another victory, as the scoreboard shows the biggest point spread of the season.
"Come Together" certainly describes the way the Knights football team put together the unbelievable 1978 season. It was a season that will be long remembered by both friend and foe.

It took three tries, but Glass was finally broken by the Knights. This will always be remembered as a Glass breaking Homecoming.

Knights rained on four other parades. Patrick Henry, Franklin County, William Fleming, and Martinsville had their Homecoming Festivities dampened by Cave Spring's undefeatable team.

There's one thing for sure. Every game was exciting . . . and some almost too exciting. Franklin County and Northside kept everyone on the edge of their seats and the players had not a moment to relax.

It was the first time since 1967 that the Knights went undefeated.
"There is only one way to be a winner and that is through team effort", said line coach Mike Stevens. No one will argue that the offense and the defense have played as a team this year; and through this teamwork they earned the title, Champions of the Roanoke Valley District.

Several players have been singled out for their outstanding records, but one thing is for sure . . . the Cave Spring Knights did come together and put together a fantastic football team.

In pre-game hoopla, Knights "come together" in preparation for the decline and fall of the Vikings.

All regional end Mike Barbery executes some fancy footwork to stay in bounds as he snares another spectacular touchdown pass.

End Bobby Garrett, one of three Knight receivers to garner all-District honors, rests in the locker room at half time at Martinsville.

Knight Mania describes how we won the Franklin County game in the last seconds. Brian Stevens hit Alan Wright with a three yard pass in the last five seconds to score the winning touchdown. That left everybody on the opposing side with their mouths open, not knowing what to think.

Cave Spring, going for the title, had to beat Northside. Alan Wright scored both touchdowns in the first quarter and Bob Garrett blocked Northside's extra point attempt. With a few seconds left, Mike Barbery stopped their drive with an interception. We had won, 14.13 , and were Roanoke District Champions.

Heritage almost ended our attempt to make it to the Regionals, until we tied them and took the game into overtime. With a flip of the coin we got the ball first. We scored on third down, and Brian O'dell got the extra point. It was now Heritage's turn. They scored, but on the two point conversion attempt, Gary Phelps sacked the quarterback, ending the game 21-20.

Knight Mania really broke loose as fans streamed on the field. This was an unbelievable year in football.

The perfect example of a scrambling quarterback, Brian Stevens, most outstanding offensive back in the Roanoke Valley, all. Regional and second team allState quarterback, escaped from the clutches of Patrick Henry's Darryl Jones.

Bump . . . Set . . . Spike has been the traditional sequence used in every volleyball game, but this year the talent and determination behind this combination proved to be disastrous for Patrick Henry. Yes, it's about time . . . for PH.

The highlight of the $1978-79$ girls' volleyball season was the breathtaking victory over their archrival, Patrick Henry. Along with the victory came tears of happiness, feelings of superiority, and most important a feeling of team unity. "They worked together, not as seniors, juniors and sophomores, but as a team," said Coach Joyce Palmer.

The girls' volleyball team was an outstanding mixture of hard work, talent, ability, enthusiasm and various other special qualities that separated the Knights from all the rest.

Just as a game comes to an end, so does a season, neither of which is complete without recapping all of the glorious memories. So it's about time . . . for the team song:
"You can take our spinnin' serve, that no one can duplicate. You can take away our back-hand serves that no one else can make. You can take our fancy set ups and our spikers favorite plays, but please don't take our 'Gusto' away."

The opening of the $1978-79$ school year brought about a number of changes, one being the revision of the Varsity cheerleading squad.

In the past, the Varsity cheerleading squad consisted of eleven members, who cheered at all football, basketball, and baseball games, while the Grapplettes cheered for the wrestling matches.

This year the Grapplettes' job was taken over by the Varsity cheerleaders. The 1978-79 Varsity cheerleading squad, composed of eighteen members, was subdivided into two teams. Team one cheered for football, wrestling, and girls' track, while Team two cheered for girls' volleyball and basketball, varsity basketball and baseball.

They Do It All for You

Two, four, six, eight . . . Who do we appreciate? Our teams! Our students! Our school!

Obviously, the Cave Spring High cheerleaders appreciate everyone at our school. The question is . . . do the students appreciate what is really involved in being a cheerleader?

Throughout the year the cheerleaders give encouragement to all of the teams at Cave Spring. Of course, the cheerleaders are commended for their vivacious performances, but what about the various other activities in which they participate?

Cheerleading is actually a sport . . . yes, a year-long sport! While most people are slumbering in the sun, the cheerleaders attend daily summer practices and a cheerleading camp to master new cheers. Also during the summer, the cheerleaders sell ads for the football programs which they sell at the games.

Perhaps the most celebrated function they undertake is the Homecoming dance. Each year they conjure a theme for the dance and spend months preparing for that one big night. The next day the cheerleaders clean up the remains from the night before. But they don't stop there.

Next they begin planning for the ever-popular haunted house held during the annual Fall Festival.

In between big projects, many cheerleaders spend a lot of time making lockers signs before each game, and decorating the front hall with good luck wishes for all the teams.

So you see . . . being a cheerleader isn't a small task. It takes a lot of dedication and an insurmountable amount of time . . . time that is given to all athletes. Yes, they do it all for you!

The 1978.79 Junior Varsity cheerleading squad, consisting of nine sophomores, exuberantly supported all of the Junior Varsity athletic events.

The Junior Varsity attended all pep rallies and sold programs at the Varsity home football games. They aided the Varsity squad by cheering for some of the Girls' basketball games, and gymnastics matches.

The Junior Varsity cheerleaders began practicing in the summer, and they attended a cheerleading camp in August, where they received first place.

Barbara Lemon and Meg Wagner show their enthusiasm.

Teams are pitted against teams; individuals against other individuals; or one person against herself. The emphasis is on combat and the struggre is for victory.

The girls' tennis team coached by Sandra McCulley displayed a joint effort to acquire an overall $9-2$ record for the $1978-79$ season; but tennis is a more individualized sport where the basic element is achievement. Emphasis is placed on the accomplishment of each individual, not necessarily whether they become victorious or not.

This element of achievement is reflected in the team's logo . . . Go for it . . . Each girl is reminded to give her best . . . Go for it . . . Give your all, give $100 \%$. This way of thinking proved to be effective for the girls, for not only did they have an outstanding season, they had a multitude of memories as well . . . the match against Salem . . . free motorcycle rides . . . 7.11... practicing to the lovely tunes of the C.S.H.S. band . . . sipping Dr. Pepper . . . the friends . . .

With no returning letterme l, this year's Cross Country team tr. ?d to accomplish their best. The schedule ended with two wins and five losses, thus creating the first losing season since 1971. The strong showing of the sophomores seemed to lead to a bright and strong future.

Gray Smith appeared to be the number one runner until David Garlow came on strong at the end of the season. David placed fifth in the District meet to qualify him for the regionals in Charlottesville.

Coach Sam Shackleford commented at the end of the season, "With work and a good attitude, David could become the premier distance runner in the District and one of the best ever at Cave Spring.

Lettermen on the team, with the exception of senior Pat Bateman, were sophomores. They were Joey Pugh, David Garlow, Mark White, and Gray Smith.

Giving it all he has, David Kinder picks up speed as he nears the finish line.

Out on the course Pat Bateman and Kevin Burke remain ahead of the pack.

Cave Spring thinclads start off an enthusiastic meet against Salem.

The Varsity Squad had a hard time getting started this year. They carried out the team spirit of never giving up. The squad of red and black was paced by outstanding seniors John Lichtenstein, Dean Kemp, Tim Bradley, Bobby Garrett, and " T ' Maddox.

By defeating Patrick Henry, Cave Spring proved that they could beat any powerhouse club. Going into the game, the Knights were expected to get blown off the court. By playing a strategic slow game the Knights came out winners, 44-43!

The Knights concluded the year with an overall record of $(5 \cdot 16)$ and a district record of (5.7). They beat every district team they played at least once except for Franklin County. At the end of the season they showed much improvement by winning three out of their last four games.

Coach Lacy, when asked about next season stated, "ten of fifteen Cave Spring players will return led by David Foutz, and I am optimistic about next year."

Playing team ball was the key concept to the success of the Junior Varsity squad. The JV team compiled an honorable record of 16 wins and only 2 losses, both to Patrick Henry.

Every member of the team contributed to the team success in one way or another. Randy Lower was a powerhouse in the scoring department, while Paul Lester was a terror in rebounding; nevertheless, every starter was the top scorer in a game at least once.

This explosive team set records in assists and shooting percentages. Quickness, good defense, and exceptional shooting made up for the only team's weakness, lack of height. The JV's were a truly intelligent ball club that could slow the ball down or play run and gun. Their record proves it!

Coach Garland Berry praised the team effort and quickly added that they were very coachable and worked extremely hard. The club's goals at the beginning of the season included winning 10 or 12 games, they exceeded that goal by winning 16 games.

We can look for many JV players to play varsity basketball next year. The Junior Varsity club fought against fairly difficult competition and put together a winning combination of team basketball.

An appropriate adjective describing the girl's basketball team would be simply fantastic. These fine multi-talented hoopsters dominated the district with their 12.0 regular season record.

Goals this year included making the most out of the girl's potential and working together. The Christmas tournament showed the girls how they stood in the district. This was a high point of the season. The Knights demonstrated their true colors, clinching the tournament championship.

The winning combination consisted of aggressivness, speed, and overall talent. The team depth was a definite key factor that added to the total team strength. Seniors Ann Har wood, Peggy Bowling, Amy Killinger, Robin Smith, and Suzanne Boone will be missed next year because they gave the team leadership and experience.

The entire season made many Knight fans extremely proud. Ann Harwood was voted Metro Player of the Year for the second straight year, and her performance this year was awesome. The girl's sportsmanship was an admirable trait that brought them recognition from fans as well as by other teams.

Coach Susan Dunagan, commenting on the season, said, "It was a very satisfying and rewarding year. Goals were reached. I was glad to be able to get as much as I did from girls."

The perfect 16.0 season finished with a bang as the girls met arch rival Patrick Henry in the District finals, winning 52.42. Disaster struck, though, in Regionals as sure shooting Ann Harwood was injured early in the game. The girls almost pulled it out, but fell short, 55.53 to end their great season.

Even though such wrestling powerhouses as Fleming and Northside were on the schedule, the grapplers proved they were a team to be reckoned with, closing out the season with an 8.2 record.

Going into the match against Patrick Henry both teams knew it would be close. At 98 pounds our team received a forfeit. The rest of the matches went both ways and the score before the last match was 25-20.

The match was left up to Jim Lafser heavyweight. Jim had to face "Bear" Russell, who outweighed him by 150 pounds. If "Bear" pinned Jim it would be over. At the end of the match the score was 7.11, Jim lost, but the team won 25-23.

In the district tournament, a sophomore, Joey Pugh got first place at 132 pounds, and Tommy Moore placed second, Tommy also placed fourth in the Regional.

At the winter banquet, awards were given to several wrestlers, Ralph Wilfong, a senior, got most improved wrestler. Joey Pugh received most promising wrestler, Steve Gay a third year letterman as a junior received most dedicated. Bob Price a third year letterman, and captain received most valuable wrestler. The girl's gymnastic team put together the ideal ingredients for a winning season. They displayed sheer talent and determination.

Each girl played an important role in the sweet success of the team. This team was not paced by one individual but by several.

Amy Lambdon, Becca Carter, and Elizabeth Hardy advanced to the state meet making Cave Spring the only team having three representatives! All three girls gave dazzling performances, with Becca turning in a sixth place all around finish.

The gymnastics team captured the District and Regional titles. The meet with Pulaski County was a highpoint of the season. Both teams were undefeated coming into the meet. Cave Spring came out on top! The girls worked even harder to fill in the gap left when Barbara Lemon broke her leg in a skiing accident.

This year's gymnastics team continued the tradition established by the teams of the last eighteen years. They didn't lose a single dual meet. Coach Sarah Sink summed up the season, "The girls represented the school in a truly first class manner."

My Feeling of Freedom

My feeling of freedom -
Running on a beach,
Running on a track,
Running on a road,
Running.
The long swift strides gliding,
Flowing over the terrain beneath me.
Rhythmic motion, non-mechanical.
A feeling of fluency.
Freedom. My mind wandering.
I take in all the world.
As if I'm not a part of it.
I, an eagle, peer down on the world.
Flying freely as I please.
I am flying. A low flying eagle.
And then, I come back down to earth.
I realize again where I am,
What I am doing.
Who I am.
I stop.
I am a prisoner of my human body. Bonnie Liebal '79

David Garlow, who went to the Regional and State meets, broke the school record for the two mile run. Steve Fleming who throws the shot also made it to Regionals and State.

Gary Phelps, with the toughest schedule of any team member, competed in six events, and in one meet he placed in each one. Also having an outstanding year was Mike Barbery who competed in the 200 and 100 yard dashes and the 880 relay.

They had an overall record of five wins and four losses. All the wins were against district competion. Of the 32 members all but seven are returning next year.

Coach Sam Shackleford is looking forward to having Clayton Fletcher next year. Clayton was unable to compete this year because he had a leg injury. The team also missed high jumper "T" Maddox who became seriously ill and could not participate.

'SAFE!'" is the call as Brian Stevens slides into home.

In the coin toss Gary Oyler expresses his opinion with a shrug.

This was to be the state championship year for sure! The team went $12-2$ during the regular season and played brilliant ball during the district playoffs, beating Pulaski, 6-4, and Salem, 9-5.

It was fifth period back at school Radios were on in study halls and the first Regional game with Woodbridge was on the intercom in the cafeteria score, $4 \cdot 2$, bottom of the seventh - two outs, count 1.2 on the batter. The students listened intently, but the incredible happened and we lost, 5.4. "We were the best team there," said Gary Oyler, ace pitcher and first-baseman, "It's just a shame we lost it."'

The Knights made up most of the AllMetro team with five players making it. Gary Oyler and Bobby Garrett proved to be a fantastic pitching duo. Other AllMetro Players were shortstop, Brian Stevens, outfielder, Craig Williams, and first-baseman, Ricky Radford.

Although a lot of talented players are leaving this year, the team will still have freshman pitcher, Tracy Croom, shortstop, Brian Stevens, outfielder, Kirk Martin, catcher, Bill Martin and second-baseman, Randy Lower who will spark the team next year.

"Throughout the season there have been ups and downs; encouragements, discouragements; a time for rejoicing, a time for sadness; but looking back over the last few weeks of the season I discovered a group of young men whom live learned to admire and respect. Each gave great efforts, some gave maximum and with that we finished second regular season, second in district, and second in Regionals."

These were the thoughts of Tennis coach Bill Clingenpeel following the team's successful season.

The doubles team of Tom Feriss and Kent Boerner defeated the top doubles team of Patrick Henry. It was said that Fariss and Boerner were the top team in the state.

Patrick Henry gave the Knights a rough time, Cave Spring lost 15 out of 24 games to Patrick Henry. Cave Spring had a total of 120 wins for the season.

In the district finals against Patrick Henry the Knights lost in a close 5.4 match. In the Regional the same thing happened again, a disappointing loss went to E . C. Glass.

This year five of the six top players are seniors and the sixth, Kent Boernet is moving; nevertheless Coach Clingenpeel will try to continue the radition of top Knight tennis.

Thanks for the Memories

The 1979 Cave Spring High School Accolade was printed by Taylor Publishing Company in Dallas, Texas. Mr. Dave Kinton served as the Taylor rep. resentative. Mr. Robert Tavenner, Mr. Lynwood Atkins, and Mr. Gary Dannenbaum served as photographers.

The cover was designed by Melanie Mallen and the editor. The cover, embossed, hand-tooled vinyl was done at Taylor Publishing Company. Press run was 970 copes of 256 pages. Paper size: $9 \times 12$; paper style: Enamel 80. The endsheets: red \#30, different designs on either end. Type: all captions and copy were in 8 and 10 pt. News Gothic, justified left and right; 30, 36 pt. Futura Book (Opening, Closing, Student Life, and Organizations); 18, 36 pt. Spartan Italic (Rivals or Friends); 30 pt. Spartan (Faculty and Class Sections); 18, 30 pt. Futura Demi-Bold (Sports).

I would like to give a special thanks to Mrs. Ferguson (I spelled it right), for all the time, love, and work she put into the yearbook and helping us get through a "new" year and a new style book. Mom, thanks for teaching me about yearbooks and putting up with quad paks all over the house. Thanks to the staff for making my senior year more fun and for putting out a damn good yearbook!

Shari Reid, Editor

РНОТОGRAPHY

The fact that any pictures were produced this year is a small miracle. The photographers were beset with problems from the very beginning.

First, the school's darkroom, an undersized closet, behind the Chem Lab, has the unusual habit turning into Niagara Falls whenever it rains. Ever try to print with a steady stream of water pouring into your fixer? In addition none of the photographers had been on the yearbook staff before. So we all had to figure out what we were supposed to do while we were doing it. Fun!

There were bright spots how. ever. Whenever the weather turned sunny or someone was bored, whole sections of the staff (especially the Senior section) would come up demanding pictures. And of course, they had to go along to make sure we did not foul it up. Usually one photogra. pher would end up with one to seven "assistants". It is not as if we did not like it. We loved it, especially when (you guessed it) the seniors pulled someone out of chemistry or, better still, typ. ing.

Still, through inundation, mass confusion, blood, sweat, tears and Dektol, senior assistance, two professional photogra. phers, Lynwood Atkins and Robert Tavenner, ace Ciba-printer Flip Carico, and 100 rolls of film we finally did manage to produce pictures!!

and backwards. A sure hope that these things

We saw the day life all year. For the seniors this was their last fling. There were days filled with reading . . . sitting . . . working . . . making friends . . . laughing . . . crying and learn. ing. And days blended into nights . . . the nights that were filled with fun, hard work and lots of living.

Mixing the nights and the days we always came up with friends. New friends . . . old friends . . . best friends . . . they would always be there when they were needed. If we needed someone to laugh with . . have fun with . . . be silent with . . . or just to cry with, we could always find a friend.

Now, they were off to a new beginning, a summer full of fun followed by fall, and a new year . . . fall which will bring school . . . college . . . or work . . . a new beginning, a new day life, and a new night life.
