MESSAGE FROM YOUR PRESIDENT

Here I go again--another request for our members. We need material for the quarterly. Anyone who has done any research must have copies of records: county, war, letters, etc. We want records that have not been published recently. Of course, if you happen to own or have access to material that was published years ago, we would like that too. Newspapers are another good source--how many obituaries are about people from Virginia? How about family legends? Did I ever tell you about "Indian" Bill Lafferty? Well, he was captured by the Indians and--oh, you have one in your family too?

Write and soon,

Babe Fowler

PROGRAM COMMITTEE REPORT

At our April meeting Mr. J. Randolph West, President of the Roanoke Valley Historical Society, narrated his slide presentation, "Roanoke Then and Now" giving the history of our city.

In May Mr. Charles Burton, Botetourt County researcher and historian, was our guest speaker and gave us a very extensive talk on court house records.

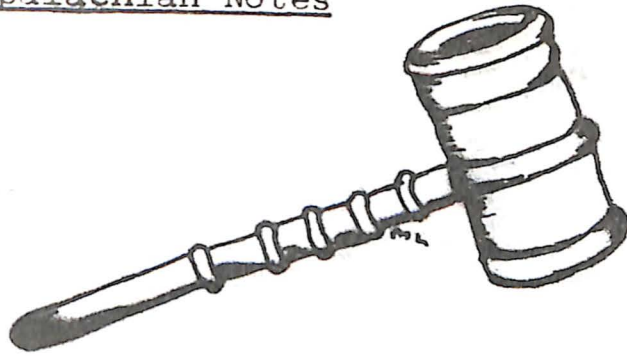

At the June meeting Miss Carol Tuckwiller, Virginia Room Librarian, talked briefly on the do's and don'ts in a library, also on the book arrangement in the Virginia Room: 929.1 - lineage books; 929.2 - family genealogy; 929.3 - records of wills, marriages, birth, etc; 929.4 - names, surnames, and origins.

Gerri Glosch
Program Chairman

FUTURE HAPPENINGS

Marriage Bonds and Minister Returns of Roanoke County, Virginia, Death Register of Roanoke County, and abstracts from early Roanoke County and City newspapers as well as early Lynchburg newspapers will be published in future issues of Virginia Appalachian Notes.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

I'm excited as a contestant on a quiz show. Just found out we have over 200 members! Dreams do come true. One little "complaint" about the members. Pedigree charts. Those who have not sent one in PLEASE do so. You don't have much on it? send it and, maybe, someone is working on the same line and can help you. We do have a Pedigree Notebook placed in the Va. Room of the main Roanoke City Library and ANYONE can place a pedigree chart in it. Send us a chart, and it will be placed in the library. Our Va. Room is well used -- not only by the local "buffs" but by visitors from all over the US plus foreign countries. So help could come from an unexpected source.

My New Year's Resolutions are (1) that I will clean off the top of my desk without "losing" any letters, finding them months later, and (2) that I will answer a letter within a month ---well two months.

My wish for everyone: you will find that elusive ancestor who came from "nowhere"

An Appalachian Afro-American Genealogy:
The Andersons of Montgomery County

by
Richard Dickenson
Blacksburg, Virginia 24061

Introduction

A search of literature on Afro-Americans in Appalachia has failed to reveal an extant genealogy of this group. Therefore, in order to initiate the process of encouraging such genealogical tracts, this study is offered as one that will hopefully be followed by many others. It is not as complete as it could be, given more years of study and research, neither is the writer satisfied that all possible verifications and corroborations have been made. But it is done in the spirit of integrity and as honestly as possible.

The writer came across the Andersons after reaching a plateau while researching his own Appalachian Afro-American roots in Russell County, Virginia. His grandfa ther--Aaron P. Dickenson--was born in Russell Co. in 1874 and had accompanied his (Aaron's) parents, Edmund Clay and Leah (Kiser) Dickenson, west to Kansas about 1883 and then on to Oklahoma in 1889. But except for some census, birth and marriage records of the Post Reconstruction period of Virginia, nothing definite could be found on pre-civil war connections. The current speculation is that E. Clay Dickenson (and his pa rents) had been slaves in the family of the man for whom the last Virginia county--Dickenson--had been named in 1880. The man himself, William Jennings Dickenson, a readjuster legislator, and lawyer, had no slaves, but his father, James Dickenson, a Unionist, did have slaves. This is one of the anomalies one is most surprised to find: people opposed to secession but holding onto the very symbols that caused the rupture in the Union. Such ambivalence in freedom-loving southwest Virginia is not altogether surprising when one considers that the author of the Declaration of Independence also had slaves.

Having come upon the Andersons, it was not difficult to make the decision to research their genealogy. For one thing, they live and have worked in the same county and town in which the writer lives and works. Moreover, there are considerable materials available concerning them: U. S. census records, county court records, Freedmens Bureau (BRFAL) Censuses, newspaper articles over the past seven years, family Bibles, cemetery records, and personal interviews. Moreover, the lucid 107 year Mrs. Anderson was a storehouse of information. The first of two taped interviews was taken on June 4, 1977 with Mrs. Laura Anderson and her daughter, Miss Nettie Anderson. A short untaped conversation was held with Miss Anderson following another interview held with an 87-yearold cousin, Mrs. Addie Jones, who mentioned that there was a Cherokoo Indian ancestry cited in a newspaper article on the Anderson's. Miss Anderson was on the way to the hospital to see her mother, but offered information on which newspapers to research. The second taped interview (with Miss Anderson) was held on August 14, 1977, some five days after Mrs. Anderson's burial.

An acknowledgement of thanks must be accorded Charles "Sonny" Johnson, a local businessman--and relative by marriage to Mrs. and Miss Andersons--who provided this writer with the initial introduction to the Andersons.

The format of this article will be to follow the attached ancestry chart and provide short annotated biographical details, if available. (Editor's Note: An appendix is also provided which is the obituary article appearing in the Blacksburg-Christiansburg News Messenger of Thursday, August 7, 1977.

Ancestry Chart Enumerations

1. Nettie G. Anderson

She received her elementary education in North Carolina, lived with her uncle in Cincinnati, Ohio where she attended high school and took teachers training in junior college. She earned her Masters degree in chemistry from Virginia State College in Petersburg. Moving to Philadelphia during the Depression, she became an Urban League caseworker in South Philadelphia during the day while pursuing courses in pharmacy at Temple University at night.

These were singular educational achievements for a Black woman from Montgomery County, VA. during the pre-World War I to Depression years. It led her to teaching in Blacksburg for 18 years--including two years in Wake Forest--and ten years in Pulaski, before retirement in 1964.¹

She has shared the family home with her mother until her mother's recent death, and will continue to reside there with a cousin who will move in with her. The home, on 3/8ths of an acre, was deeded from S. L. Murril in August of 1896.² It is on Gilbert Street, a street area of Blacksburg euphemistically termed "Newtown" after the Negroes had made it one of their settlements in order to be closer to their work at V.P.I. and in Blacksburg homes. Both Mrs. and Miss Anderson prided themselves on their relatively few domestic jobs they had had in their lifetimes. Miss Anderson had only one such job, her first after high school.³

2. James Preston Anderson

The father of Nettie Anderson and two younger boys (William Jackson Anderson b. Dec. 1892, d. May 16, 1916; and Eugene Harvey Anderson, b. January 14, 1895, a World War II Veteran, who died in an August 5, 1929 West Virginia train crash⁴). He was raised on the Smithfield farm near the Virginia Tech campus, and taught and played in bands of Blacksburg (Virginia Tech YMCA Shops) and Cincinnati, Ohio. He became an assistant city clerk in Cincinnati and died there on June 26, 1936. He was buried as a Veteran of the Sapanish American War.

3. Laura Lee Saunders (Mrs. James Preston Anderson)

Died August 5, 1977 in Radford Hospital, 5 months, 27 days and 107 years after her birth on February 6, 1870 in Mount Tabor in Blacksburg. She was one of eight (8) children--1 boy and 7 girls--of James and Rachel Saunders. She became the bride of James P. Anderson on October 21, 1889. After their separation, she supported herself by operating a catering service, with one of her sisters, for the university,⁵ doing babysitting and some housekeeping duties for Blacksburg families. Upon reaching the century mark, she became the subject of interviews by the press, birthday cards by the President, and home management class interviews at Virginia Tech. She was active in church affairs almost up until her death, which occurred after almost two months hospitalization for surgery on a broken hip suffered in a fall. She is buried in the Westview Cemetery of Blacksburg, where her mother also is interred.

4. John "Jack" Anderson

He was the father of James P. Anderson and was a Union Civil War Veteran. In the August interview, Miss Anderson stated that her Anderson grandparents worked only for the Robert Preston family and they are buried at the Smithfield (Preston) cemetery near the V.P.I. campus. Miss Anderson also reiterated the story about his former master (Robert L. Preston⁶) taking him to Ohio and giving him $50 to buy his freedom. Whereupon, John Anderson shot from a pistol over the head of the former master to show what he thought of him. Nevertheless, though they were on opposite sides during the Civil War, after the War Col. Preston hired Jack Anderson to work for him.

5. Emily Saunders

She died in October 1890, three months before her granddaughter, Nettie Anderson, was born. She was the mother of 13 children, including James P. Anderson. She was a cook for the Robert Preston family and is also buried with them, and her husband, in the Smithfield cemetery.⁷ The 1880 Census shows the following edited listing for her family:

Anderson, Jack	37	Farm Laborer
Anderson, Emily	30	Keeping house
Anderson, James	13
Anderson, Frank	10	(crippled)
Anderson, William	8
Anderson, Nashvill	3
Anderson, Auburn	9/12	(August 1879)

6. James Harvey Saunders

In the 1867 BRFAL Census, a James and Rachel Saunders, 21 and 22 respectively, were working for John Tensley about 5 miles east of Blacksburg. They were newlyweds in February of that year, among the first "colored" marriages recorded at the courthouse of Montgomery County, Va.

7. Rachel Livinia Morrison

She was the mother of 8, including Laura L. Anderson. Her first child, Josephine, died at the age of one in August, 1869. The 1865 Freedmen's Bureau Census indicates that her slave master had been C. Hendrick. Her granddaughter, Nettie Anderson, thought this might have actually been Cecil Hardrick, the slave-master of Rachel, and her mother, Charlotte, who once owned property at Mount Tabor--where Laura Saunders Anderson was born. Her children in the 1880 census included Laura (10, John W. (8), Sara E. (5), Amanda D. (3), and Livinia A. (7/12, born October 1879). In 1900, while residing next door to her married daughter, Laura, and family, two other daughters were living with her: Amanda L. (24) and James Rachel (18). Rachel is buried in the Westview cemetery of Blacksburg, her headstone reads 1849-1929, but other evidence (BRFAL, marriage license, U. S. Census) suggests she was born in 1844, making her about 85 at the time of her death.

9. Julia Dobson

She reported her former master to have been Captain Smith of Montgomery County,⁸ and in the 1867 BRFAL she was working for Gordon Hall, about two miles east of Snowville. Living with her at the time were her father-in-law, Benjamin Anderson (60 yrs. old), Henry (13), Andrew (12), and Alice (10). Apparently, she was widowed at the time, but when is not known.

10. Frank Sanders

Miss Anderson said that he had gone to Portsmouth, Ohio, where he died at over 100 years of age. According to Miss N.G. Anderson, he died after his grandson--James Preston Anderson.

11. Marsha McNorton

Miss Anderson said that Marsha McNorton was the mother of 21 children, and that her family owned property in Christiansburg in what was once Cambria.

12. Samuel Saunders

In the 1867 Census, Samuel and his wife, Lucy, were found to be working for John Tensley, a farmer living five miles east of Blacksburg. James and his wife, Rachel, were also living with them at that time.

14. Simon Morrison

He was a farm laborer in the 1870 Census, living with his wife, Charlotte (52), and his children Delila (21), Charles (19), Mary (17), Cynthia (15), Albert (12), and Alice (10) in Blacksburg.

15. Charlotte Hardwick

She was born in 1818 in the Eastern shore of Maryland where she lost her mother (presumed drowned in Chesapeake Bay), at the age of 5, during an ill-fated escape from their former slaveholder. Her mother was a Cherokee Indian,⁹ her father unknown, her maiden name was derived from Cecil Hardwick who purchased her and her sister and brought them to Montgomery County. In the August 25th 1870 Census, she and her husband, Simon Morrison, were living with their daughter Rachel, son-in-law James, and her granddaughter, Laura L. (6/12). In addition, they had with them the Morrison children: Delia (21), Charles (17), Cynthia (15), Albert (12), and Alice (10). By 1880 she had been widowed and was living with the family of her daughter, Rachel, in Blacksburg.

24. Richard Saunders

He was 83 at the time of the 1867 Freedmen's Bureau Census. He and his wife, Margaret, and daughter, Amanda (26) were then working for Sarah Preston, the widow of James L. Preston.

Conclusion

The relatively small percentage of Negroes living in Blacksburg almost obscures the fact that there is, and has been a Black community there prior to and since the Civil War. This one family has ties to a number of other families, making for a tightly knit, though open, community. The genealogy traced here does not go back to the slave ships and the origins in Africa a la Roots, but what this article attempts to show is the lives of the family members and their connections with some of the White families of Montgomery County. In this case, there is a strong association with the Preston family of Smithfield both prior to, and after, the founding of V.P.I. on the grounds of the Preston and Olin Institute. Also notable is the longevity of a number of the family members, and the highly traditional and identifiable family units of the Andersons, Sanders, Saunders, Morrisons, et al.

PRESBYTERIAN RECORDS

Valuable genealogical data may be found in the records of the Presbyterian churches in Virginia. In particular, dates of membership and transfers (which might indicate migrations), deaths, marriages, and occasional ages have been found. If your ancestor was Presbyterian, this source is worth investigating. The Union Theological Seminary in Richmond, Va. has extant church records of Virginia churches on microfilm. Reels may be borrowed via interlibrary loan at no cost. To find what church records exist, consult Records of the Synod of Virginia... on microfilm, a copy of which may be borrowed from: The Library, Union Theological Seminary, 3401 Brook Road, Richmond, VA 23227. This researcher has had excellent success from this source, particularly when researching Shenandoah Valley ancestors. A grateful word is due the gracious people at Union Seminary for their help.

VILLAGE MAY REVEAL LINKS - by Viola B. Wright, 405 Pennsylvania Ave.,
Salem, Va.

Copper Creek is the fascinating name of a small stream that flows south through folds of high green hills and mountains in Russell and Scott Counties. This is also the name of an elementary school, modern to the last degree, that stands on the prominence along the main thoroughfare from Abingdon to Castlewood and Norton.

A by-road from near Dickensonville to Gate City winds its way south over hill and dale along Copper Creek and among the farm homes and churches that are sprinkled in the valley and coves. Hard surfaced, this road is one such as Grandfather would not believe if he could come back to travel the trails he knew so well.

"Mocking Bird Hill" is the name posted at one country home surrounded by an array of colorful blossoming plants, geraniums, petunias and marigolds during the summer and late fall.

Down the road on a knoll, shaded by aged oak trees, there stands a church, GRASSY CHURCH, Baptist-Methodist, and around it there is a burying ground with many gravestones, some very old, some new. It is an historic place with two denominations occupying the same building which, from its appearance was built of locally made brick.

According to Kegley's Virginia Frontiers, a man by the name of Salyer was among the very first of the pioneers to penetrate the mountainous Southwest. Here in this old churchyard, there are numerous graves marked with the name Salyer, some more than 100 years old. It is interesting to note the way names change. Several old stones spelled one name, Sexson, while right next to it, the name becomes Sexton. Vicars, too was certainly a name belonging to a large family, there were so many stones bearing that name.

Now and then as one travels along rout 71, the eye catches a glimpse of a small family burial plot on yonder high hill. To get there would require a long walk across the fields and a climb to the top which is an indication the now abandoned private cemetery is quite old and no road leads to it.

About half way between Dickensonville and Gate City, there is a village named for the first settlers of the community, Nickels. The village of Nickelsville where the old melds into the new, boasts two large churches, side by side - the Methodist and Baptist.

The First Baptist Church is larger and older, if one judges by the markers at old graves nearby. The present building was constructed in 1922 and a rather handsome structure it is with stained glass windows and front columns. But this is surely not the first edifice of its kind to occupy the site. The Rev. Robert Kilgore was buried there in 1851 according to the marker erected for him and his wife, Jane, deceased in 1861. Rev. Kilgore is said to be the first Mason to be buried in Scott County and his grave marker bears the insignia of that fraternity. However, since his well-known family were of the staunch Baptist faith, and he himself a minister, one must conclude the Baptist congregation existed here in his lifetime.

Not far from his marker is one placed at the resting place of Valentine Bush who is said to have lived to be 105 years of age and his wife Nancy Gose Bush of the famous Gose family of Southwest Virginia. Near this plot one is enclosed with an iron fence where Dr. Wolfe, the beloved family physician to the villagers is interred.

In this same cemetery, numerous markers have been placed at graves to memorialize members of the Bond, Broadwater, Frayser of Frazier, Bush and others. Since it is a quite old burying ground, it is worth a visit if one is searching for family background.

In the early days of this village and many others like it, it was not uncommon for the churchyard to be used for the burial of the dead of the Community. In fact, it was quite the custom among our pioneer forefathers. One group that migrated to this section of our state were so devoutly religious that they would not travel on Sunday but stopped to hold services during the day instead.

If one is looking for history and ancestral links, no better place is to be found than an old cemetery even though some say the dates on the stones are not completely reliable. Nevertheless, they are bound to be within a reasonable span of time and it is exciting to find a great grandfather or even more distant grandmother buried there.

THE LAST WORD

We mentioned in the October issue that we hoped to institute a new department in VAN, whereby books sent to us would be reviewed and placed in the Virginia Room of the Roanoke Public Library. So far, we have received one book, The Darsts of Virginia, which we expected to review in this issue; however, with the rush of the holiday season, our special reviewer was unable to meet the deadline, so we promise it for our April issue.

All members are asked to send us material for publication, but we have one request. Please put your name on anything you send us. We don't want to give the wrong person credit, and we do want you to have the credit for work you have done. Should anyone wish to remain anonymous, we will respect your wishes, but we do prefer to publish names and addresses so that our readers can write directly to our contributors.

Attention all GILES COUNTY readers! Does anyone have any cemetery listings for your county? We have had some requests for these and would appreciate your help. Also, members in other counties should consider sending in any cemetery listings they might have--you never know when you might supply the missing branch in someone's family tree.

How does it feel to be one year old? Great! Virginia Appalachian Notes is now in its second year and growing. (Have you noticed how much fatter we are?) Our growth can be attributed to all who have sent us material (we urge you to send more, both brief and lengthy items are needed), and to our staff, the people who do the work required in publishing a quarterly. Your editor relies heavily on her associate editor, who has assumed the responsibility for getting our local members to help with the many jobs required in moving our printed VAN to the membership. Only those who have worked on this job know what is involved--keeping the mailing list current, stapling the 30 or so pages together (and getting them right side up and in correct order!), typing labels, putting labels on the envelopes, stuffing the envelopes, sealing or putting the flap inside, stamping our return address, stamping postage, figuring weight and postage, taking to the post office, separating by zip code, and, no doubt, a few more steps not listed above. Our associate editor and her workers have done a good job and deserve our thanks.

We also want to call your attention to the index for Volume I, VAN for 1977, which is included with this mailing. Our president, Babe Fowler, has done a fantastic job on this; she had included not only names which appeared in VAN for 1977, but also places and topics. Truly, this is a labor of love.
