There lies the port; the vessel puffs her sail;
There gloom the dark, broad seas. My mariners,
Souls that have toiled, and wrought, and thought with me—

That ever with a frolic welcome took,
The thunder and the sunshine, and opposed
Free hearts, free foreheads—you and I are old.

NORTHSIDE HIGH SCHOOL

Moments of rare solitude lend themselves to hopes and dreams of journeys.

Northside's Junior Varsity head Camilia Hall and Joanie Hoer show their "high-flying jump."

Crew Members Setup A Daily Schedule

When the journey got underway, crew members became acquainted and established their separate daily schedules. Experienced navigators somehow always managed to pass by their lockers on the way to each class. Other landmarks in the hourly exodus were water fountains, rest rooms, and the locker of some very special person.

Times for extracurricular activities were always included in schedules. For many boys, sports filled extra time. For girls, FHA or FTA filled spare moments. Other popular clubs were Pep Club, Key Club, and Keyettes. Grapplettes attracted large crowds of admiring girls during NHS's successful wrestling season, and try-outs for class plays drew large crowds in the spring.

As a Pep Club project, Jill Gottshall sells a pennant to make money for the club treasury.

Disembarking Seems A Dream In Future

There came a time in the journey, shortly after the first long shore leave, when the progress reaped seemed pitiful in proportion to the effort put forth. Duties dragged, assignments seemed insurmountable, and the tendency to loll about in the sun overcame many of the more easily influenced Viking crew members.

A lull in the extracurricular activities of the class made the days pass so slowly. Ingenious Vikings whose teachers did not keep them occupied often devised their own forms of entertainment.

Even though anxious eyes scanned the far-off horizon for some trace of land to signal the journey's end, the disembarking day was only a dream in the future.

Helping to raise money for the Prom, Marsha Landrum, Dreama Hall, and Linda Maloney perfect themselves for the Spring Musical, "My Fair Lady."

The Mighty Vikings all go down in a huddle to capture the ball again.

Sheila Hall wistfully ponders the omens which dreary weather stormily forecasts.

All Seniors Keep Sea Chest Of Memories

One day, long after that memorable first day, the dawn came brighter than it usually did. Crew members appeared on deck with bright, smiling faces.

Freshly tucked away in the sea chest of important events for Juniors and Seniors were memories of the Prom, the last dance before going ashore for the last time.

Last bits of paper and books deserted the lockers leaving them to stand forlornly empty for a new crew.

Seniors were allowed to spend the last day in the stadium, where they could soak up sunshine or rehearse for commencement exercises. As a special privilege, no restrictions were placed on clothing for Seniors on the last day, and as a result, many came barefoot, in comfortable shorts or cut-offs.

Even while showing their devotion to each other, two seniors also seem to be showing their rings.

Pausing, Joyce Nichols blows her final bubble before going to class.

Solemnness and dignity overcome Mike Bennett in his cap and gown.

Searching for a lost contact proves to be a tougher job than these seniors thought.

R.C.E.C. offers many fulfilling golden opportunities to county high school students.

Brick Masonry is one of the beneficial opportunities offered for those students attending the center.

Students Find New Courses At R.C.E.C.

Some Vikings didn't find the training they were searching for at Northside, so these voyagers struck out for the Roanoke County Educational Center. R.C.E.C. prepared Vikings and students from all Roanoke County high schools for a satisfying life on the everyday sea which awaited them in the work world after graduation day.

Among the courses offered, cosmetology, auto mechanics, practical nursing, data processing, and vocational office training attracted larger classes. Besides offering a multitude of specialized vocational classes, the Center offered students instruction in government, English, American History, Biology, and practical math.

Vikings who anchored their dreams at R.C.E.C. during their junior and senior years found their sails high and full with the wind of opportunity in the days after commencement.

Peggy Mills giggles impatiently as she waits to see how Odilee Bales has styled her hair.

Girls at RCEC in training for nursing gain much know-how using make-believe dummies as patients.

Even though separated by a wide space, Mrs. Kirby and Miss Philpott always work diligently together on all school matters.

Assistant principal Hal Johnson begins his morning by making a few copies of absent students.

Competent Leaders Endow Viking Ship

Every successful voyage has a leader who knows how to steer in the most rewarding direction. In the case of the Vikings, Mr. David Urquhart performed this duty as principal. Faced with never-ending problems, the captain often relied on the helping hands of the assistant principals, Mr. Hal Johnston and Mr. Eugene Orr. Policies and new ideas were brought to these two men who always offered guidance in all matters. The S.C.A. also worked very closely with the administration.

Northside was lucky to have had secretaries, Miss Philpott and Mrs. Kirby. They accomplished everyday duties of keeping records, counting money, and having office matters in good working order. These valuable members of the Viking Voyage were always ready for rising problems.

With an open mind and sympathetic expression, Mr. Urquhart carefully evaluates suggestions.

Mr. Orr always proves a very sympathetic and helpful friend to anyone who needs him.

Helpful guidance counselors Mr. Shelton, Mrs. Henderson, Mr. Gallion, and Miss Brammer have an amusing job assisting confused students with their problems.

Vikings' Counselors Chart New Courses

"Mom and Dad go to school with me? A man of thirteen years? Never!" Thus many eighth graders dreaded the day when they met with their parents and guidance counselor to chart a course for the next five years. With such a hazy view of the future, we Vikings did not realize that in five years, they would be grateful for this early guidance.

Meanwhile, the bell clanged and a hopeful student, armed with textbooks, neared the library. His hopes fell as he read, "No Textbooks in the Library." When the researcher returned without books, a locked door greeted him. With nose pressed to the windowpane, another voyager became familiar with the policies of NHS's new librarian, Miss Cronise.

Miss Brammer takes a breather during her busy day as she relaxes in the lounge.

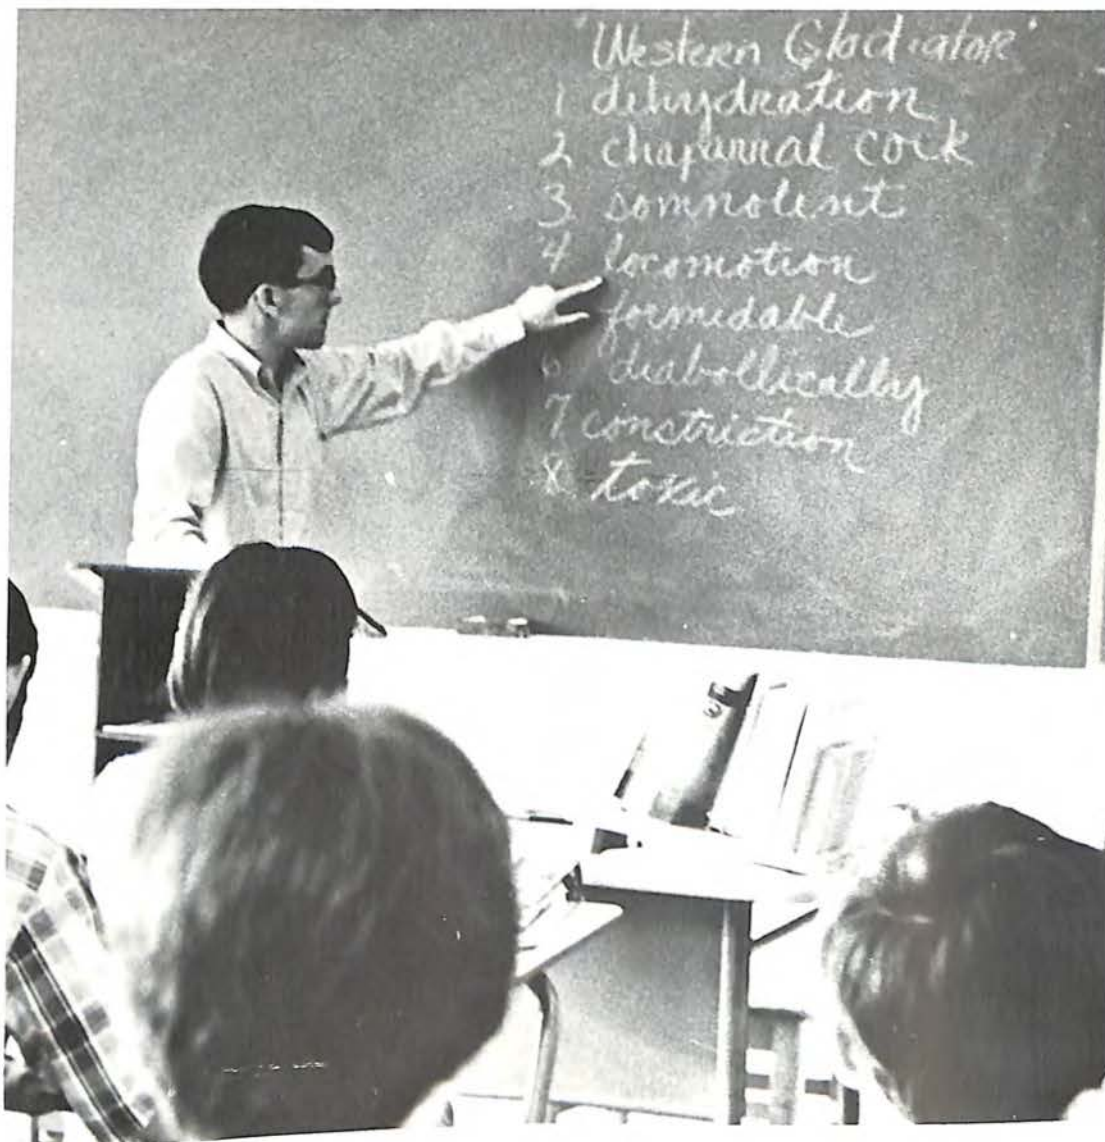

Mrs. Cronise keeps a watchful eye on troublesome students and strictly enforces new library rules and regulations.

Searching for information for her term paper, Keys Bordwine earnestly inspects a book.

Mike Aheron discusses the weekly English words for a vocabulary test.

Steve Lambruscatti clasps his hands in hopes of Mrs. Russo not giving a quiz.

New Literature Aids Speech And Singing

The communications department of the Northside crew was overseen by English teachers who were greatly aided by a newly-christened literature series. The old books having been dry-docked, the new books successfully weathered their maiden voyage from the picturesque town of Sleepy Hollow to the gloomy and forboding Scottish castle of Macbeth.

An invader in the hull of the Viking vessel, being unfamiliar with the Viking ways, often noticed the chanteys filling the air. Besides learning to speak in different languages, students learned to sing in French, Latin and Spanish.

Miss Martin, Northside's Latin teacher, delivers a long-winded lecture on a great Roman orator.

Robert Sherwood and Greg Slusher pin up a beautiful poster of a seaside town of Spain in Spanish class.

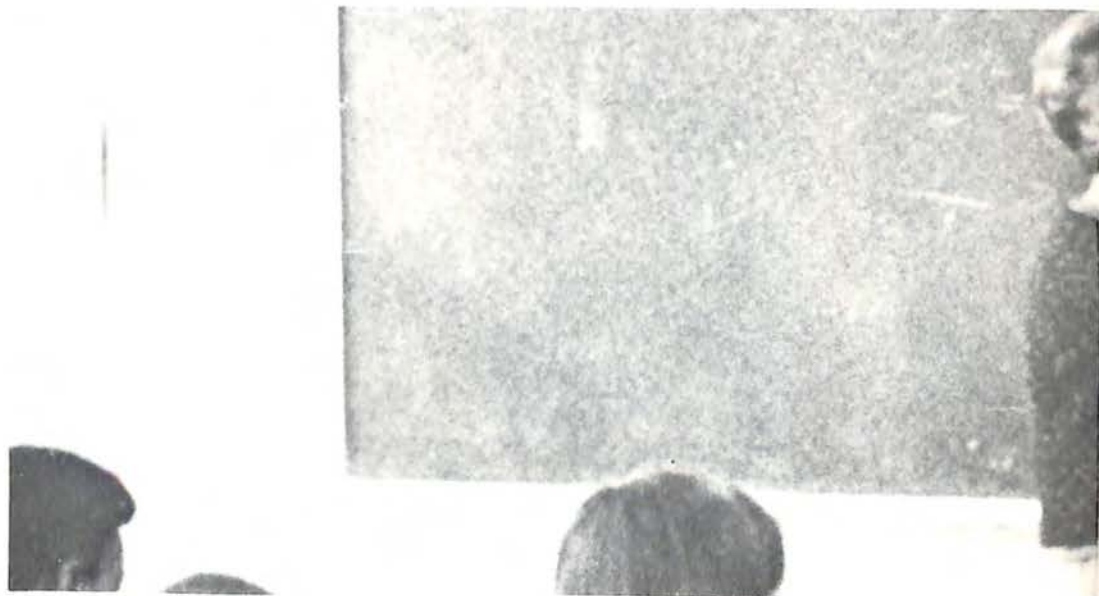

Frank Sharf and Mr. Stuart are at it again exploring new theories in physics.

Mrs. McLaughlin shows her students how to use a graph making stick.

Carol Harlow explains to Ted Trout how to build his own model of a tree trunk.

Students Are Urged To Prevail In Math

The name "Viking" set the light mood for the explorative quests made in the Science Department.

Eighth graders were acclimated to the scientific method of approaching any problem. With this helpful attitude developing, young experimenters could successfully journey through earth science, ninth grade physics and chemistry, biology, and Junior chemistry. Tackling Senior physics presented a challenge to those with the scientifically-slanted mind.

As society became more and more mechanized, mathematics rose in importance. So many jobs depended on computerization and formularization that instead of ending high school math with Algebra II, students were urged to take Trigonometry, and some even took an analytical course in mathematics.

History Students Sail To Foreign Lands

Northside offered a wide field of Social Studies to its crew. Eighth graders sailed to new lands in geography class. World History gave students a view of the world and happenings around them, while the American History and Government broadened the view of our own nation. Juniors and seniors chose from psychology, sociology, economics, and comparative government courses, each lasting two quarters.

Artistic talents blossomed under the discerning eye of Mrs. Harris. Displays always greeted the crew on A-hall.

Dramatics students had fun learning the correct techniques in pantomime and acting from Mrs. Coffindaffer. Stage make-up study also led to memorable class sessions.

Sloppy clothes, old newspapers, and fresh paint can identify Janie Hoer while she is painting.

Using a variety of unusual materials, Pam Pitts and Debbie Rardin experiment with texture.

Karen Malone gives a report on Napoleon the First's defeat at Waterloo in class.

Art II student Susie Smothers cleans away the remains of a festive Christmas window mural.

Sandy Moore and Frances Orange help each other prepare their chocolate frosting for their cake.

'Home-Ecers' Tame Whirlpool On Ship

Amid the turbulent whirlpool swirling around the Viking vessel, domestic tranquility could usually be found in the Home Economics room.

The hopeful "home-ecers" always tried to do their best, for they were required to eat the appetizing meals they prepared and to wear the garments they sewed. Practical training came in sewing on buttons and fixing the hems for much-embarrassed Vikettes during the day.

Fragrant aromas filled B-hall, moistening the hungry tastebuds of industrious Industrial and Mechanical Arts boys. As they worked in diligent precision, drawing and muscle-testing sawing, the hungry workers craved the full-course meals they could imagine baking across the hall. However, they had to be content with polishing their classy clipboards.

"Do you mean I cut it wrong again?" sobs Terri Weatherly as she begins her sixth wrong slice.

With a firm jaw and a strong arm, Jimmy Mills begins work on sanding a rough end of a board.

Allen Journall surprises himself by noticing what the machine does to the board.

While interesting eyes are watching, Mr. Maynard demonstrates how a ball is served in volleyball.

Yoga And Tumbling Keep The Crew Fit

Crewmen sailing toward the business world sought preparation by taking advantage of Northside's fine business department. A commercially-bound student found courses in typing, bookkeeping, shorthand, and office practice to aid in his quest for training. Personal typing was provided for the academic student who would need only the basic requirements of typing for his later term papers and letters.

To keep the mates fit and feeling well, NHS offered a well-rounded Physical Education program. Alternating gym and health classes for the eighth and ninth graders provided both a sea of sports and interesting, enlightening classroom discussions. Sophomore students studied Driver's Training for half the year. Yoga, tumbling, and dancing challenged the physical stamina of the tenth grade crew.

With her newly learned talent, Gail Hedrick desperately tries to translate the scribble marks in her shorthand I class.

Patiently attempting behind the wheel for the first time, David Edwards is assisted by his skillful instructor, Mrs. Garst.

Debbie - With the hope that your entire high-school experience will be rewarding - if not every day, at least most days!

A Teacher's Day Is Long And Hard

The faculty of Northside this year included fifty-four teachers. Duties for teachers ranged from patrolling the halls for gum-chewing culprits to instilling knowledge and the appreciation for learning into those who are aptly described as "shapers of tomorrow's destiny."

A popular belief of most students was that the teacher's day began at the ten-til-nine bell and ended abruptly at the ten-til-four bell. However, a day in the life of a teacher far outlasted one in the life of a banker, or a bricklayer.

Newspaper's new title of "Mutt and Jeff", given to his star players, is amusing to Mr. Gallion.

Teacher's Rewards Surpass All Trials

A great challenge awaited the Northside teacher entering a classroom. He had to have enough patience to deal with well-meaning students who repeatedly asked a question and paid no attention to the answer, chronic bubble-gum addicts, a mass media grapevine of notes, unidentified flying objects, smart-alecs who were going through a difficult phase, and the dull roar of thirty students establishing simultaneous vocal contact with each other. But every so often, when a student's eyes lit up with understanding, or when a much-needed unexpected "A" occurred in test grades, it became wonderfully apparent that the reward far surpassed the trials.

Teachers Are Normal In Faculty Lounge

Even after fighting the horde of hero-worshipping eighth grade girls lurking outside the faculty lounge to catch a glimpse of their favorite male teacher, students still could not get past the lounge doors. They could only listen as their knocks rang unanswered and teachers discussed who should go to the door.

Some said that teachers changed completely on entering the lounge. They became normal, everyday people, reflecting on amusing incidents, discussing "current events," and grading papers.

Northside's Teachers Care About Students

A lot of time and hard work separated sunrise and sunset for Northside teachers. Even after the ten-til-four bell, many teachers stayed on to work in their classrooms or in the lounge. Many were sponsors of clubs which met after school. Sometimes conferences with parents were held.

All teachers had work to take home. There were lesson plans to do, papers to grade, research to do. But students at NHS could successfully face later life because their high school teachers had cared.

Startled Miss Green laughs at being caught by the flash of the bulb of her own camera.

Young Crew Members Feel Nostalgic Pangs

Amid the boisterous confusion and clamorous gaiety of the first days aboard, the younger crewmen often suffered pangs of nostalgia. In spite of their orientation, many eighth graders became lost in the labyrinth of halls at Northside. Quite a few eighth graders and freshmen missed turns merely because their diminutive size hindered them in turning against the current.

Although freshmen were already accustomed to the routines of Northside, and had only a few minor adjustments to make, eighth graders had discovered a whole new world. Here, they could see friends between classes. But a lot of responsibilities were anchored to the new liberties.

"Baby Vikings" Begin An Exciting Voyage

To the eighth graders, September marked the awesome beginning of a five-year voyage. Convening for the first time on a short orientation cruise of one day, the eighth graders hailed from five elementary schools: Burlington, Catawba, Mason's Cove, Mountain View, and Southview. A feeling of unity soon emerged among the Northside Class of 1973 as four hundred fifteen "Baby Vikings" turned their sails to the winds of hope and aspiration on September 3.

Eighth Graders Get To Know Their Crew

The complex routine of the eighth grader involved getting to know the rest of the crew, the top brass, and masses of new friends. Once schedules and combinations had been memorized, and once the tolls were paid, sailing smoothed out.

In spite of its size, the class of '73 was forced to share its own B-hall with four classes of seventh graders from overcrowded Southview. Although not an active part of the student body, the stowaways could be seen marching to lunch in Northside's own galley every day at 11:30.

Eighth Graders Sail To New Experiences

The Class of '73 made up for any lack of rank with its massive size. Having the distinction of being the largest class ever to enter the hull of the Viking vessel, the Class of '73 had more than twice as many members as the graduating class of 1968.

Remarkably enough, eighth graders quickly developed "sea legs" able to scramble through oceans of other eighth graders crowding the halls and reach their classes without being caught by the tardy bell.

Baby Vikings Are Attracted By Sports

The "Baby Vikings" also participated in the sports program, and the sports became as important to the eighth graders as they were to Seniors.

Many eighth grade boys joined the freshmen football team, while others played in the 115 pound sandlot division. In addition, Northside's fine wrestling reputation attracted many of the classes' more able-bodied crewmen. Cross Country, track, baseball, and golf delighted eighth grade sportsmen in the spring.

Now The Class Of '73 Assumes The Wheel

Freshmen Return To Meaningful Places

After three short months in the sun or at the beach, freshmen returned from summer dry-dock with a new rank. Much to their surprise, one year of the voyage had slipped through their nets very quickly, leaving behind a faint wake of memories.

Now freshmen were faced with a clean page to fill, new decisions, new courses, and more meaningful landmarks. Perhaps the new rank bolstered their collective responsibility just enough for the Class of '72 to hang a little closer and face the new year. Spark and enthusiasm were the guidelines in the new freshman scope on life.

Spirited Freshmen Support Activities

The presence of beaming freshmen could be felt throughout the halls on the first day. Their unflagging spirit, which was the backbone of the Vikings, rang out loudly at pep assemblies and games.

In a few weeks, the voyage was well under way, and the Class of 1972 pitched in to help keep everything on an even keel. Even in stormy seas, this crew never lost its spirit.

Freshmen Officers Command At Helm

Sponsors for the Class of 1972 were teachers who had a ninth grade homeroom. The sponsors acted as overseers for the class, which met infrequently.

Class officers were: Russ Rumburg, President; Bruce Dickerson, Vice-President; Betty Gilbert, Secretary; and Colin Hines, Treasurer. With this set of officers at the helm, the enthusiastic freshmen set forth, ready for any weather.

New Courses Keep Freshmen Working

Charlotte Shaw

New courses for freshmen were physics, chemistry, Introductory Physical Science, geometry, and algebra. Many freshmen burned a lot of midnight oil poring over the logic of polynomial factoring or the principals involved in balancing an equation.

Latin, taught by Miss Martin, French, taught by Miss Myers and Mrs. Wood, and Spanish, taught by Mrs. Crucet, Mrs. Wood, and Miss Flora, also greeted inquiring freshmen. At first, the endless conjugations seemed impossible, but by the end of the year, students were miraculously able to converse in another language.

Journey Progresses Rapidly For Sophs

In order to avoid sinking into oblivion in the swirling ocean at Northside, many crew members joined clubs. Besides providing an outlet for creative energy, many of the clubs performed valuable community services. For many of the younger crew, clubs aided in the journey in search of self. Being with others of the same age and experience often lent the younger Vikings a sense of security throughout the voyage.

Sophomores found the journey progressing rapidly. In order to get a head start on the finances of the prom they would present, sophs sold pep buttons to enthusiastic Viking fans.

Second Port Of Call

Grapplettes vote unanimously for "Benefit Day" at McDonalds to support the wrestlers.

Grapplettes Bonnie Foster and Vicki Journell put on a demonstration for their friends on how to grapple.

Clubs Work Hard To Keep Athletes Fit

Whenever sports were mentioned among the Viking crew, the Grapplettes and the G.A.A.'s came to mind. These two clubs worked hard in support and participation to keep the athletic department in "shipshape."

The Grapplettes backed the wrestlers and cheered them on to a great season as well as lending support to the State Tourney. The club was responsible for the "Northside Day" at McDonald's restaurant. Tickets were sold for a dollar and then exchanged for a dollars worth of food on the planned day. Another of the projects included the compilation of a wrestling book for all the wrestlers. The Grapplettes's picture appeared in the National Magazine of Wrestling.

The Girls' Athletic Association provided a large field of sports for any girl at Northside seeking excitement and fun. The Association met on planned Saturdays in each month and had "play day." To boost their treasury they sold doughnuts. The sale of doughnuts put some ballast in the Club treasury.

These G.A.A. girls find that a hip bone and a strong arm are needed to string the taut bow.

Membership Serves As Stepping Stone

Northside's Thespians and Polyfacets offered fellowship to dramatic-minded students. This year, Thespians and Polyfacets attended a dress rehearsal of Euripides' Electra at Hollins College.

Many times, membership in Polyfacets serves as a stepping stone to membership in the Thespian Society. Any member of Polyfacets who had earned 10 points was a qualified Thespian. Points were earned by acting, directing, working back-stage crews, or seeing plays presented.

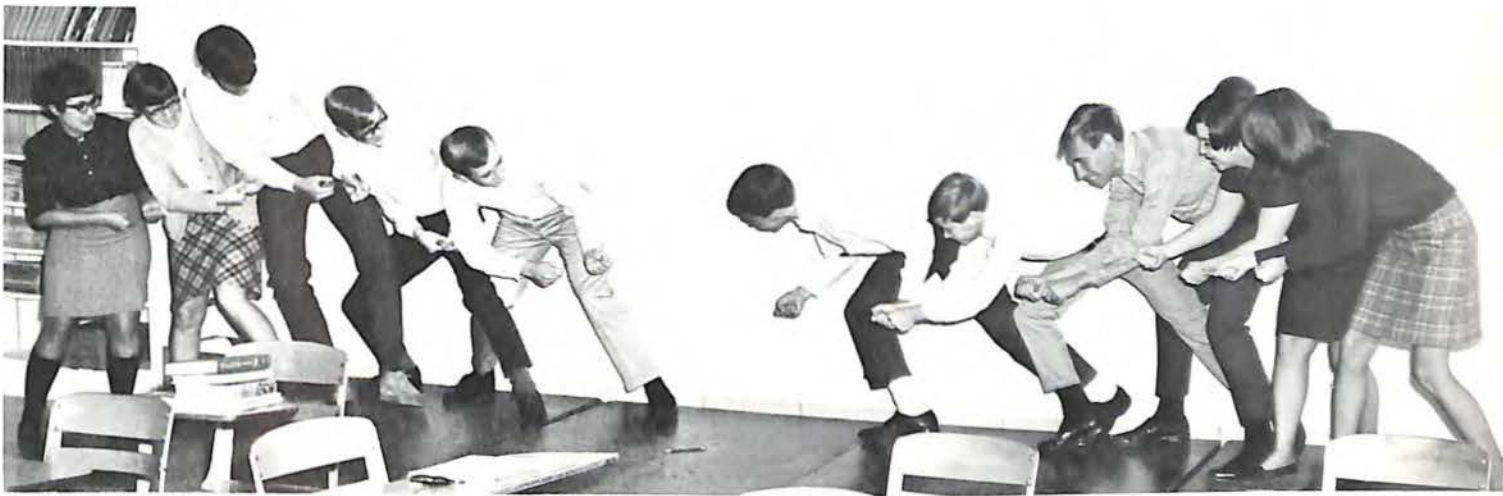

Thespians who worked on plays were rewarded. The applause, the productive effort of the cast, and the creation of good entertainment combined to make every ounce of effort worthwhile. Plays presented by Thespians included Song of Glory, A Voice From Outside, and Nobody Sleeps. The young troupers worked under diligent Mrs. Coffindaffer.

Some are glad; some are sad; others say it's just too bad that Steve Minnich has dramatically passed on.

Vikings Yelled "Fry Their Tail Feathers"

Football spirit reached a peak during NHS's Homecoming. On Saturday before the Week, members of all classes decorated halls in the annual decoration competition. The prize went to the Juniors who made C-Hall into a spirit circus of green and white streamers.

Special activities made the week more exciting. A special lunch for football players, a rousing Pep Assembly, and voting for the court lent an air of building suspense to the coming game.

At six-fifteen Friday night, the parade, with twenty-five entries, began. The winner of the best float award was the Junior Class whose float theme was "Clip the Eagles' Wings!"

A fine band concert at half-time, a "Fry Their Tail Feathers!" poster on the press box, the suspense when Sherry Elmore was crowned Queen, and victory over Franklin County insured that Homecoming '68 would live forever in Viking memories.

Laborious Pep Club Works For Vikings

The hard working Pep Club gave ardent support to the Viking teams. Led by president Jill Gottshall, Vice-President Linda Mercer, Secretary Carol Waring, and Treasurer Cindy Ikard, the club's cheerful and spirited members generated success in Homecoming and spirit promotion.

The focus of activity for the Pep Club was Homecoming Week. Preparations for the big game began soon after school started. The activities of the week ranged from a pep rally to countless spirit slogans passed out in the halls.

During basketball season, the Pep Club cheered the Vikings throughout the entire season besides promoting spirit for the tournament at the Civic Center with mimeographed copies of Viking cheers for every student.

French Club Urges "Patisserie" Buying

The Latin Club offered a touch of excitement to learning a foreign language. During Christmas, this group of crewmen came to the rescue of a family who were not enjoying "smooth sailing". Later in the season they celebrated by treating themselves to a banquet. The first-year Latin students provided entertainment for the evening. The candy and bake sale proved quite successful. The Latin Clubbers also served refreshments to the teachers at the mid-semester break.

Things were always happening when the French Club got together. Early in the season, they held a "patisserie" sale. Members contributed the goodies that were sold. Later in the year, the club attended French plays given at Roanoke College.

"We will respect and obey," Latin Club slaves pledge to their masters during the initiation.

Latin Club President, Jimmy Smith faces the frightening accusations of an inactive member, Steve Minnich.

"I'm too fat," says Mr. Staub as members of the French Club try to sell him bake sale goodies.

Honor Society Joils; F.H.A. Stuffs Toys

National Honor Society held a special place on Viking decks. Members maintained qualifications of Scholarship, Leadership, Character, and Service throughout the year.

On Work Day, some hard-working members were motivated to paint a barn. Christmas found the National Honor Society serving again as members contributed to the Christmas happiness of a woman and her grandson.

Meanwhile, busy homemakers whirred through the frenzy of sewing stuffed animals to sell. Whether learning etiquette, cooking delectable foods, or sewing fine seams, the Future Homemakers of America ran a tight ship.

Wishes, thoughtfulness and moments of contemplation are displayed by members of the Honor Society.

Mary Lynn Hughson—Miss North Star '69

With twinkling eyes against the starry atmosphere Mary Lynn Hughson radiates with visible happiness.

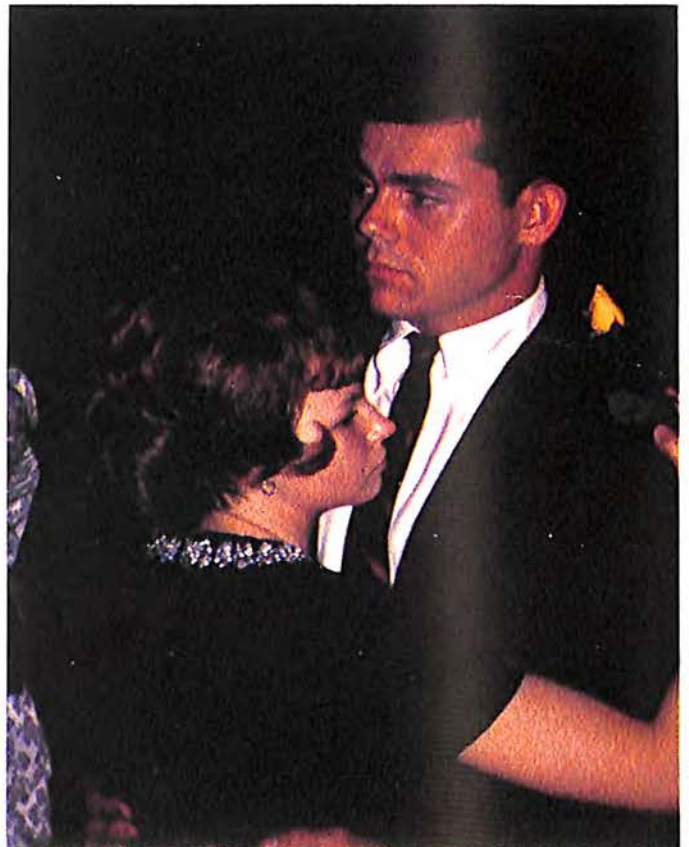

Amid shimmering silver stars nine girls were named as finalists for the Miss North Star contest. Three Juniors, Gladys Sheets, Kitura Wertz, and Ivy Lidstone, and six seniors, Darlene Jones, Julie Baldwin, Sue Kessler, Gayle Henson, Mary Lynn Hughson, and Linda Bocoock, were selected.

"Fly Me To The Moon", the theme, was illustrated with a silvery quarter moon silhouetted behind the band. Whirling couples filled the floor dancing to the music and light show of the fabulous Attractions.

When the memory of the moon had all but faded, in early spring, Linda Jo Macklin, Miss Virginia 1967 and 1968 Peach Bowl Queen, chose petite, friendly Mary Lynn Hughson to represent Northside as Miss North Star 1969.

Mary Lynn, "Best All Around" senior girl this year, participates in Grapplettes and Pep Club. She reigned as Queen of the S.C.A. Sweetheart Dance in February.

The announcing of the Miss North Star finalists made these six senior girls radiantly happy—Sue Kessler, Mary Lynn Hughson, Julie Baldwin, Linda Boccock, Gayle Henson, and Darlene Jones.

Ivy Lidstone, Gladys Sheets, and Kitura Wertz were the Juniors nominated for the Miss North Star title.

Skald Contest Sparks Literary Creativity

At every home Viking football game, people were directed into parking places by one or two brave souls in pith helmets who carried flashlights. These parking-lot marvels were members of Key Club, and they were performing only one of the myriad services of the Club.

On the international level, this noble club sponsored an orphan in war-torn Southeast Asia.

The Skald Staff, with the creative aid of Mrs. Russo, published another excellent literary magazine. Donations to the magazine were collected through a contest in prose and poetry. Winners were Ann Jones in prose and Marsha Kirby in poetry. Through the contest, the Staff hoped to increase interest in the magazine and in writing and art.

The North Winds, Northside's greatly improved newspaper, put out nine issues this year. Articles and editorials were written by Editor Jim Clark and the staff and accepted from students.

Eager Key Clubbers, led by Mr. Coffindaffer, set out to overhaul another car in Viking tradition.

"We've got spirit! S-P-I-R-I-T! Let's hear it!" shout Northside's pep-filled Varsity Cheerleaders, Janie Hoer, Renee Ragland, Gladys Sheets, Pat Fielder, Pat Cassada, Stephanie Turner, Gayle Henson, and Sheila Hall.

Mrs. Henderson seriously advises Pat Cassada and Camilla Hall on the rules of good sportsmanship.

"Say Hey," shouts the Varsity squad while Pat Cassada leads in an after school practice.

Cheerleaders Shape Spirit For 1968-69

The sixteen surprised cries in the awards assembly when cheerleaders were announced and the sixteen crying, overjoyed girls who began in that moment to shape Spirit '69 for Northside were only a part of the story behind the Cheerleaders.

Under the direction of their sponsor, Mrs. Henderson, the Viking cheerleaders performed many spirit-rousing activities including decorating the locker room, the goalposts, and the gym. Banners in the front hall and posters on every hall were also the product of the industrious cheerleaders.

Junior Varsity Cheerleaders gave special support to the growing J.V. Team. Uncounted posters hung in the halls to tell interested Vikings of J.V. games. J.V. Cheerleaders also tried to promote interest in their team.

Varsity Cheerleaders were rewarded for their hard labor with new uniforms, but most of the girls thought that being able to go to all the games and congratulate the victorious Vikings was reward enough.

Junior Varsity display their "Big Green Soul" as they yell to "Fight with all your might."

Keyettes Sail High In Area of Service

Northside's Keyettes expanded their voyage in the area of service to the community. On a local level, the club fed a needy family at Thanksgiving and Christmas. Then, joining hands with sister clubs at Andrew Lewis and Glenvar, Keyettes devoted profits from bake sales to the welfare of migrant workers across the nation.

Distributive Education Clubs of America, commonly called DECA, came into the limelight at Northside this year. The organization, comprised of D.E. students, actively learned the "how-to's" of successful employment. In addition, DECA members competed with peers in business and advertising contests. Barry Roupe was named "Student of the Year" for Roanoke Valley.

The Science Club of Northside, the Viking Discoverers, had a year marked by field trips to the science departments of Hollins College and VPI.

The highlight of the Math Club year was a banquet at the Oasis Restaurant.

Mrs. McLaughlin helps Northside's ever busy senior Keyettes get their donations organized for the needy families.

Interested members of DECA get together to talk about trapping a rich customer.

Officers Tony Payne, Don Hash, Darlene Cook, and Verlin Miller are lost in the midst of other Science club members while examining a telescope.

Math club officers Alta Simon, Secretary; Suzanne Painter, President; and Butch Collins, Vice-President, pause briefly with the rest of their faithful members before having one of their after-school meetings.

Spanish Club's Fiesta Is Highlight Of Year

A mood of interest prevailed at Spanish Club meetings. Slides and movies, along with a very interesting hike, added to the club's expeditions. At Christmas, the Club had a gay fiesta at the home of one of its members.

After greeting new members with a Coke party, the Red Cross performed its rewarding duties. During April, a blood donor day was held at Northside, with qualified Vikings turning out to give corpuscles.

Future Business Leaders of America gave members a chance to be part of the business world. A perfume sale touched off the year, and later a banquet was given. "Dress Right Day" brought the members to school wearing appropriate business attire.

The highlight of the year for Future Teachers of America was an invitation from a teachers' sorority to attend a dinner and meeting at Vinton War Memorial.

Directed by Miss Flora, the Spanish Club takes time out for the fun side of learning a foreign language.

Sophomores Support Varsity Pep Rallies

A seaworthy group of navigators, the Sophomores maneuvered through another adventurous expedition. These Viking seamen encountered many new and challenging experiences. Usually considered the "middle mates" they struggled along on the "in between road", not yet upperclassmen, but more confident than the eighth and ninth graders. They worked hard and tackled giant-sized problems, proving that they were qualified Viking crewmen.

Geometry Provided Perplexed Moments

Among the new explorations for Sophomores were the Key Club and Keyettes. After the excitement of filling out the applications and being accepted, sophomore members began to settle down and accept more responsibilities at the weekly meetings.

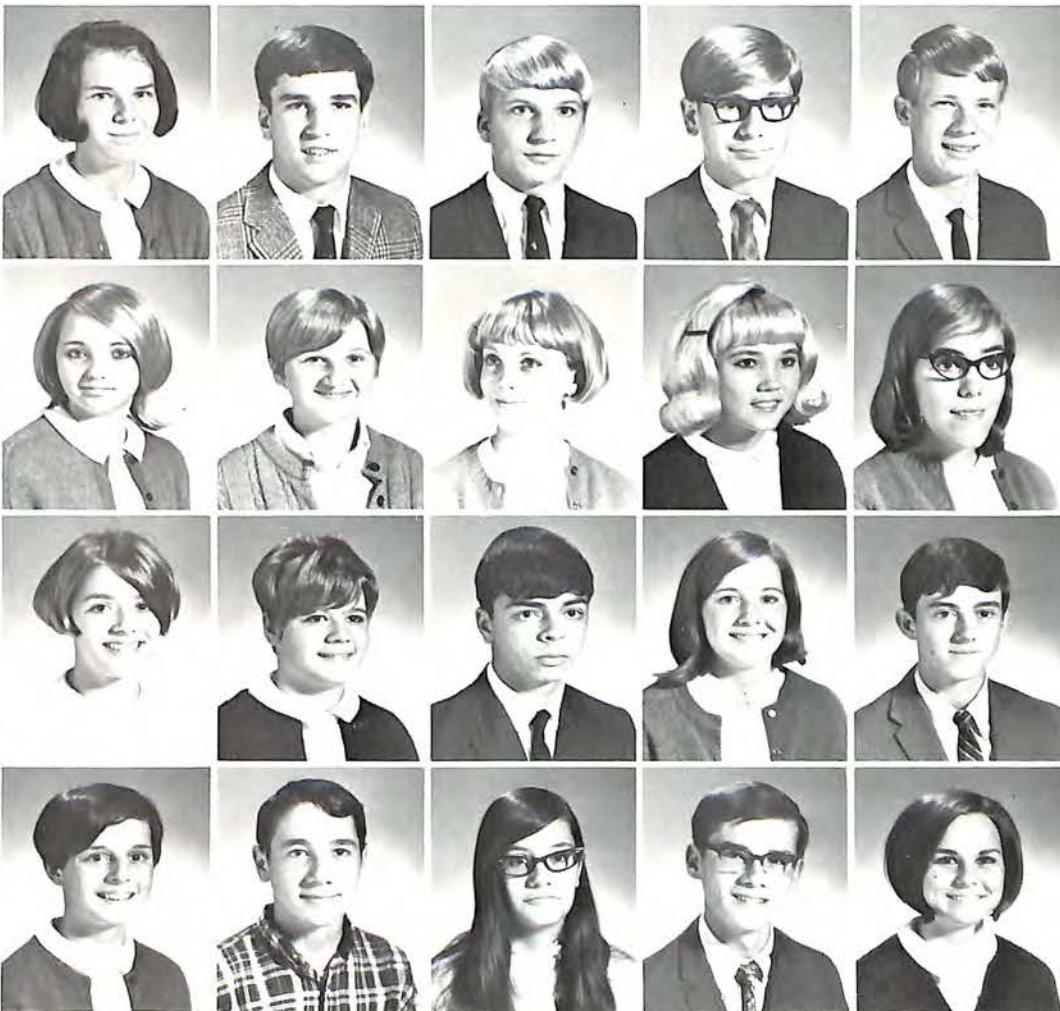

The National Honor Society also came into view for sophomores, especially during the tension-filled tapping assembly in May. About thirteen lucky sophomores gained membership this year.

Although these sea rovers were known for their bravery, biology with its squirming earthworms and living color illustrations often left the sophomores slightly daunted, especially the girls.

Sophomores Sold Big Green Pep Buttons

Varsity sports offered an exciting challenge to many sophomore crewmembers. When not taking part, enthusiastic tenth graders sold big green pep buttons which soon made the slogan, "Sock it to 'em, Go Vikings Go!" a familiarity to all loyal Vikings. Not many Viking fans were found at basketball games without the button. Foresighted sophs hoped to sell enough buttons to partially finance a great prom in 1970.

Sophomores had just grown accustomed to the physical education courses. They had become used to the early morning archery lessons and the 600 yard dash. Even the showers were almost bearable when taken with the thought that this was the last year of gym. Not many sophs forgot the tumbling classes, which really presented headaches, or the wild crab soccer games with their amusing knots of arms and legs.

A Sophomore Crew Takes Responsibility

The Viking chieftains in the sophomore class were faced with new and growing responsibilities. In only one more year, their class would be called upon to produce what must be a great prom. The captain, Kyle Fitzgerald, led his crew through a safe and fairly profitable journey, assisted by vice-president, Dick Oliver. ## Sophomores Look To A Cheerful Future

The Class of '71 came through a long year filled with trying and rewarding moments. Often, disappointment moved across the decks, but the cheerful sophomores always looked to the next day. In June, sophomores looked to the next year, hoping that it would be as fun-filled and rewarding as the last. From the sunny forecast of many rising Juniors, a sure success was in the wind for the Class of 1971.

SOPHOMORE OFFICERS: Dick Oliver – Vice Pres., Debbie Smith – Sec., and Kyle Fitzgerald – Pres. plan for projects.

Pam Milam jumps with the ball for two more points during one of the girls' basketball games.

Land Ahoy! Juniors Sight The Mainland

One hundred thirty-nine days out of port, the Juniors and Seniors sighted the mainland where they would dock in forty days.

There in the mist loomed the mainland, the unique Bali Hai of every crew member aboard the vessel. The goal would be realized by all aboard the ship, yet for each individual member, the ending of the journey held a special significance.

The last forty days aboard the ship were filled with activities. For those in the upper classes, there was hardly time to breathe. Juniors hurriedly put the final touches on the prom, while Seniors received caps and gowns and announcements.

Third Port Of Call

Vikings Are All In The Same Boat Now

The clashing of shoulder pads and the cracking of helmets brought memories of the 1968 Varsity season. Spirit at the Viking games showed that crew members were glad they were all in the same boat.

Time was important in building the Viking team. It took time for Coaches Ken Shelton and Willy Waker to get to know the qualities and capabilities of their players and to lead them to a 5-4-1 season.

The Vikings started the season with a crash as they downed Shawsville 54-0. Then after losing two games and tying one, Northside's Varsity piled up four straight wins. The season ended with two losses to Blue Ridge District teams in two close games.

The sounds of the season ended, but the memory of victory and defeat, the feel of running a successful play lived on in the players' hearts.

Promising J. V.'s Have Winning Year

Experienced and ready to compete in Varsity football, Junior Varsity players coached by Donnie Dyer and Ralph Isbel, led their team to a 7-1 record, with a defeat from Cave Spring in a rain-drenched game.

Led by their outstanding lineman, Roger Bradley, and outstanding back, Dick Oliver, the Junior Vikings rolled over the rest of their opponents.

Only after hard work and practice could a football team be a success. Coach Dyer's team was one, because of excellent conditioning, practice, and the desire to work together as a functioning team. These efforts showed up well in this year's game and promised to play a major part in the season of '70.

Coaching Freshmen Proves Hard Task

Starting and coaching a freshman football team proved to be a straining task. Many boys who turned out for freshman football had never played on an organized team before.

Coach Prunty led his freshman Vikings to a 4-1 Blue Ridge District Record, and a 4-3 overall record. The outstanding freshman back was Tom Mills, and the Best Lineman was Robin Dudley.

When the season was over, both coach and team enjoyed the satisfaction that came from the transformation of a group of unorganized children into a football team which knew the glory of victory and the pain of defeat.

Vikings Look Ahead To Season Of 1970

Only the echo of cheers remained after the Vikings finished their season with a 20-2 record.

The Northside Viking squad, consisting of Bernard Harris, Gene Murphy, Tommy Clayton, Gene Fielder, and Richard Johnson as starters and Roger Bryant, Fred Hutchins, Richard Newton, Mike Ayers, Chip Hudgins, Steve Creasy, Hurley Myrick, and Danny Jarrett as subs, won the Blue Ridge Regular Season Championship. The only loss of the season was to Fleming.

In the Blue Ridge District Tournament, Northside defeated Brookville in the first round, and then downed Liberty in the second round. In the finals of the tournament, Northside faced Cave Spring, whom they had defeated twice during the regular season. However, the Vikings fell to a hard-fought defeat.

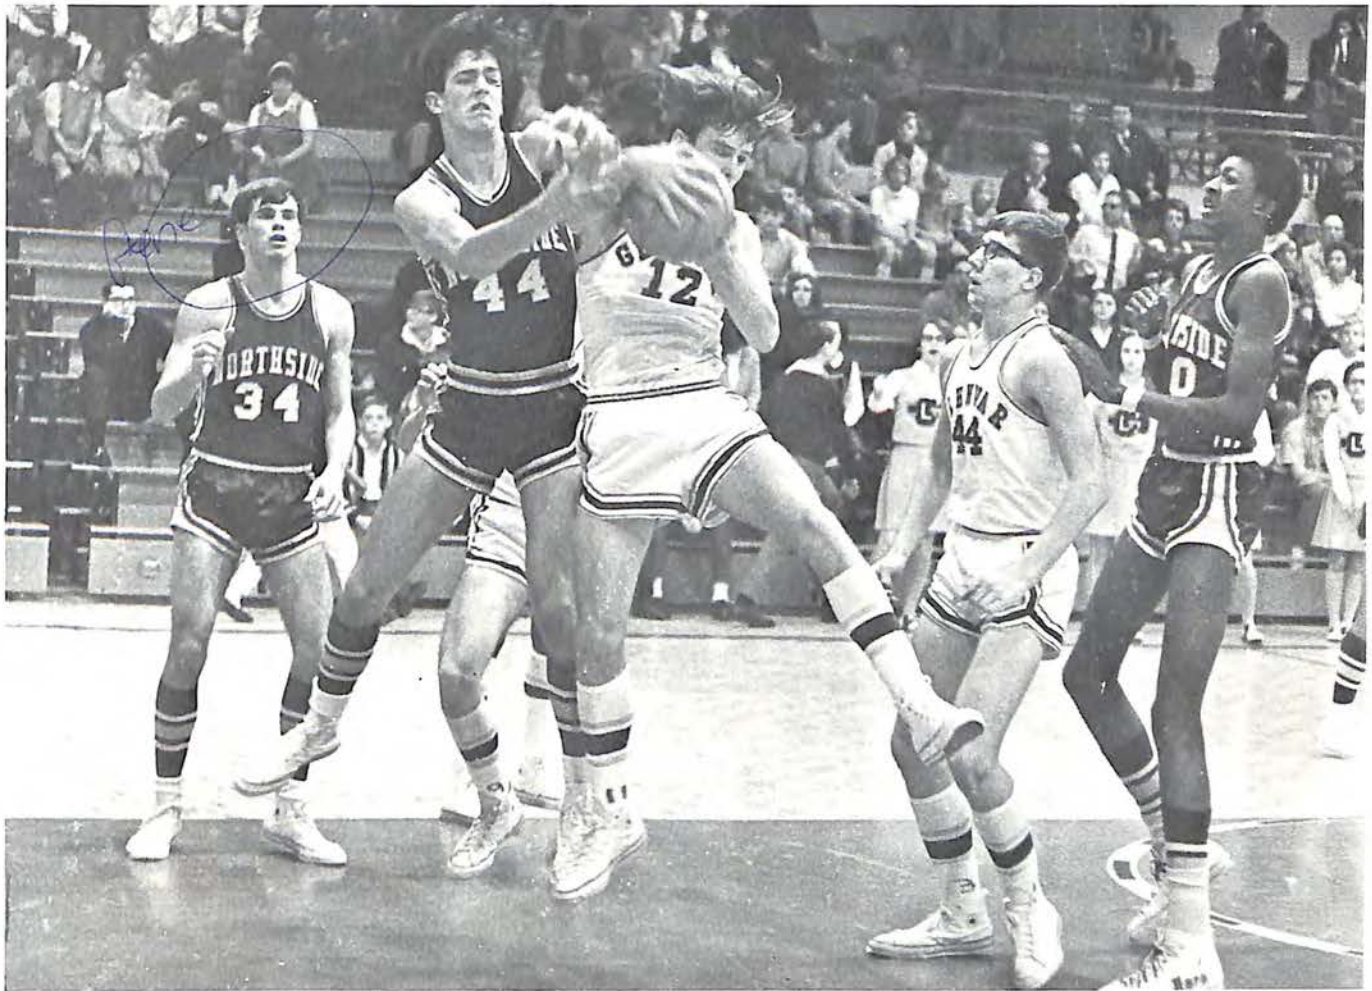

With the 1968-69 basketball season over, the Vikings dreamed of 1970, and better things than a winning record. Returning next year for the season would be Bernard Harris, Gene Fielder, and Roger Bryant, all of whom were outstanding this year.

Basketball Records Raise Viking Spirit

A lot of credit for the regular season championship went to Coach Jim Gallion. This remarkable man successfully made the boys believe they could defeat teams like Cave Spring and Addison. With his guidance and coaching, fans may be sure the Vikings will be a contender for the State title in the 1969-1970 season.

Crowds at Viking games set a new record this year. Attempts were made by several opponents to "flood" gyms and crowd the Vikings out. Although there were many fans from both sides turned away at most of the games, the Vikings' side of the gym was always packed with enthusiastic Northside fans.

J. V. Crewmen Sail A Rewarding Voyage

With an abundance of player material, the "Baby Vikings" began practicing for the season of 1968-69 soon after the Varsity squad.

After a highly successful regular season, with only one defeat from Fleming and one from Byrd, the Northside Viking Junior Varsity squad went on to win the Blue Ridge District 1-B J.V. Championship by defeating the Addison J.V. Bulldogs.

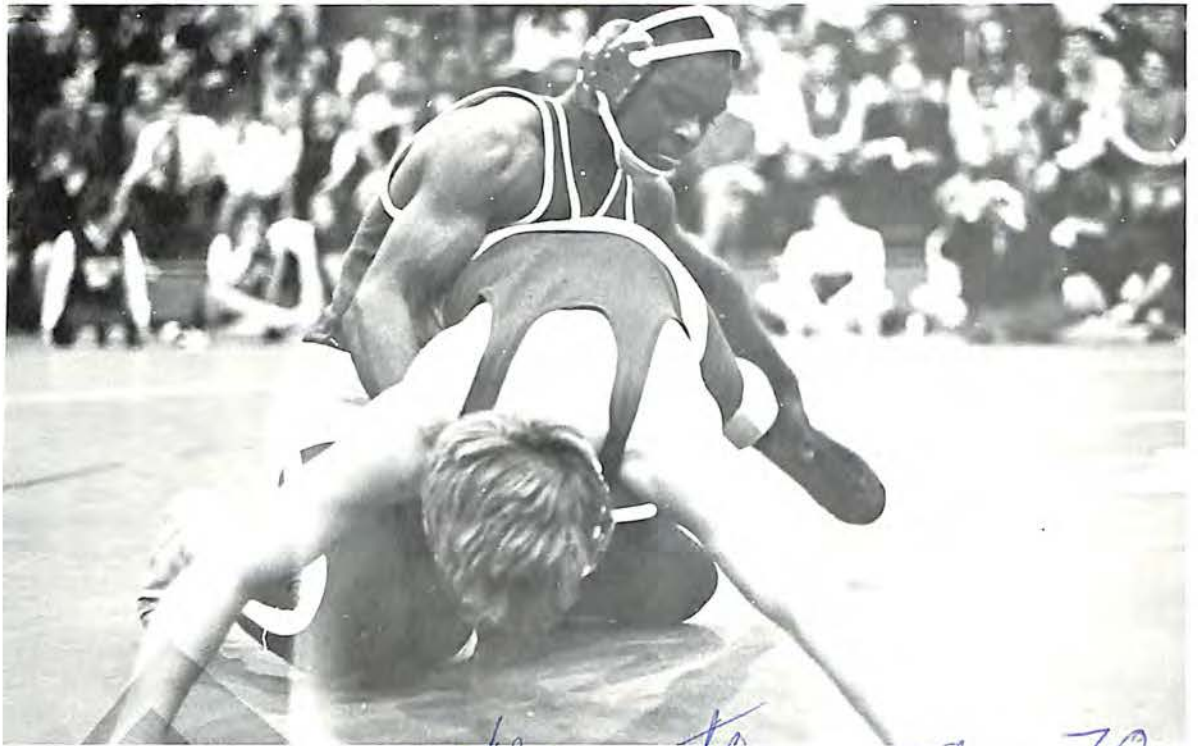

Coached by Donnie Dyer, the J.V. team displayed poise, polish, and brilliant promise. A lot of the boys moved up to Varsity with the end of the season, but many of them remained behind for one more year on the J.V. team.

Whether moving up or staying put, any J.V. player would agree that the season of 1969 was a rewarding high point in the year's journey.

Vikings Control Mats In Rounds At State

Byrd's State Champion wrestler Jerry Henley goes down to defeat by Northside's Mark Reinhardt.

Under the instruction of Coach Ken Shelton and with the aid of assistant coach Gaylord Bower, the powerful Northside Vikings matmen won their second State 1-B Team Championship in three years.

At the Blue Ridge District Tournament, the Vikings outclassed everyone since they had seven District champions. They were: John Lowry, 95 lb.; Mike Paynter, 112 lb.; Tom Bradshaw, 127 lb.; Ricky Schilling, 133 lb.; Allan Journell, 138 lb.; Paulis Johnson, 145 lb.; and Mike Jamison, heavyweight.

Mike Bailey, 103 lb., Gary Davidson, 165 lb., and Jesse Hale, 175 lb. placed second at the tournament. Neil Obenshain at 120 lb. and Roger Robinson at 154 lb. gained third place.

With ten wrestlers at State, the Vikings dominated the mats in the first round, and won the championship before the finals even started.

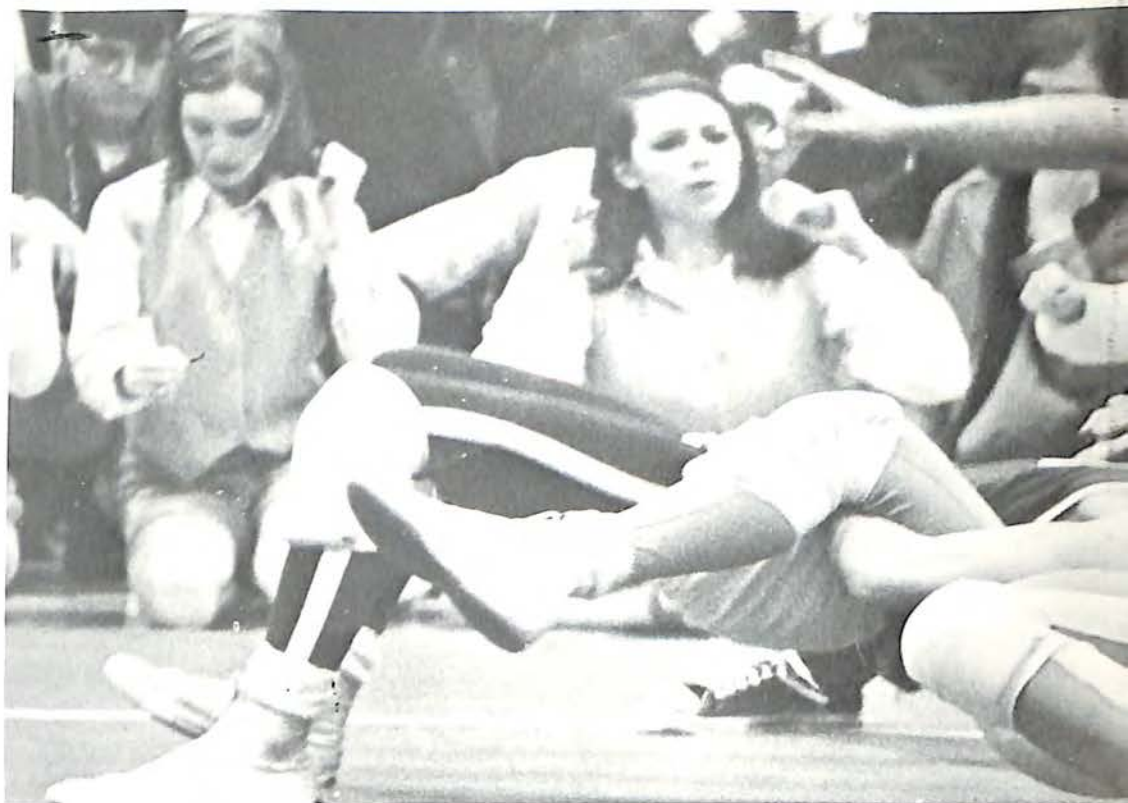

In the finals, John Lowry, Tom Bradshaw, Ricky Schilling, Gary Davidson, and Mike Jamison won their matches and became State Champions. Mike Bailey placed second in State and Allan Journell won third.

In overall points, in the tournament, the Vikings piled up 96, with the closest contenders, Garfield and Pulaski, having only 55 points.

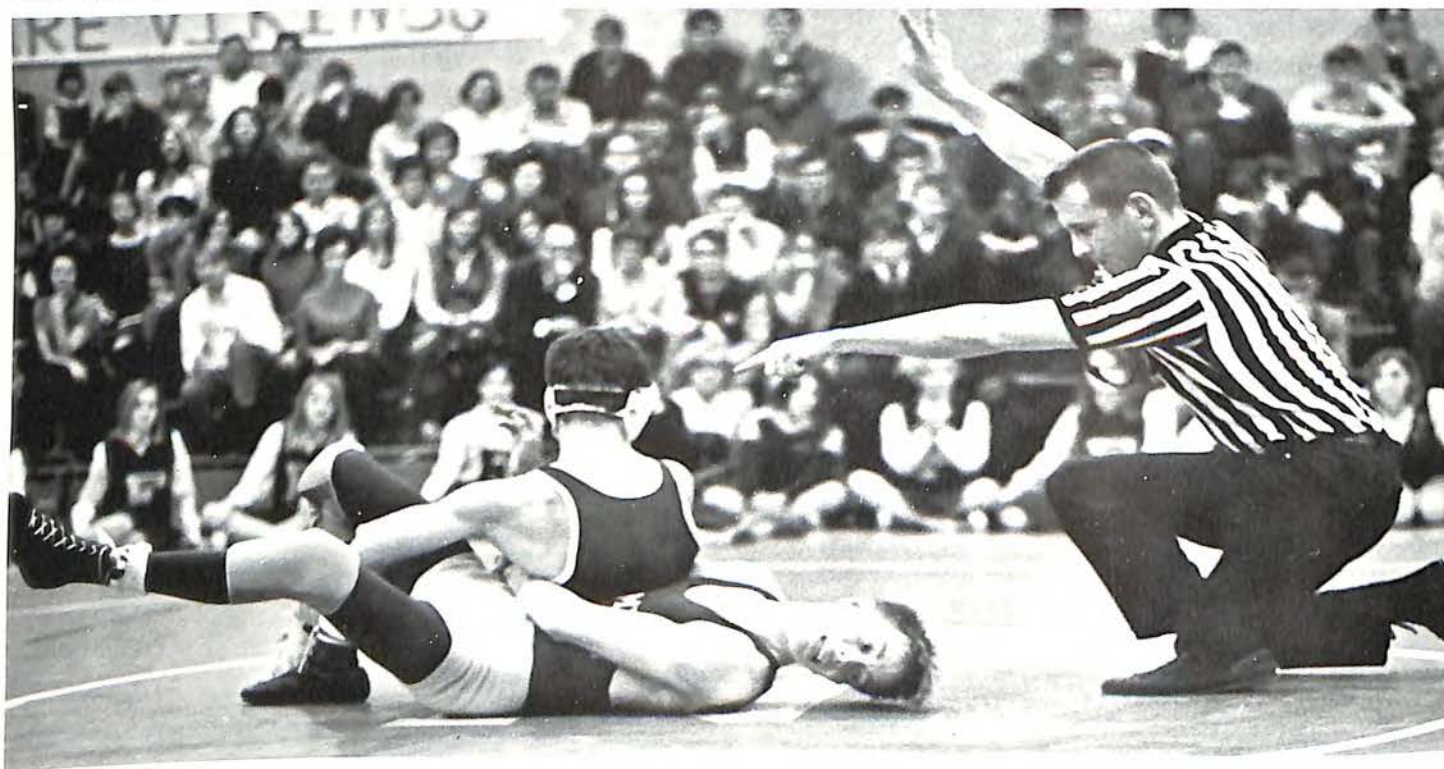

Although Byrd's cheerleaders try to hustle their wrestler onward, Neil Obenshain ruins their efforts by putting his opponent flat on his back.

Mike Paynter gains two points for Northside after escaping a tight hold of a William Fleming wrestler.

Vikings Have A Long Winning Streak Of 46

During the regular season, the Northside team virtually rolled over all of their opponents. The closest score, 31-8, came in a tough match against highly-rated V.S.D.B.

The Vikings' record for the 1968-1969 season was 14 wins and no losses. The fourteenth win, which came in an exciting match against undefeated William Byrd, boosted the Vikings' consecutive winning streak to 46.

Several of the highlights of the year came when Obenshain decisioned Tross, the State Champion from Orange County, and when Reinhardt pinned Henley, the State Champ from William Byrd.

In the 1970 season, the Vikings will have a record high of three returning State Champions.

Between periods of a close match Neil Obenshain glances at the clock to see the time remaining.

Viking J. V.'s Have Undefeated Season

At the wrestling banquet given for the grapplers by the Grapplettes, Captains Mike Paynter, Allan Journell, and Ricky Schilling were honored.

Awards were also made. The "Most Improved" Award went to Gary Davidson and John Lowry. Tom Bradshaw and Ricky Schilling received Sportsmanship recognition, and Mike Jamison was named "Most Outstanding Wrestler," with his record of sixteen pins.

To honor the deserving Coach Shelton, the wrestling team nominated him for the "Coach of the Year" Award.

Coached by Gaylord Bower, the Northside Viking J.V. team went undefeated this season.

"How do I get out of this?" questions Paynter.

Bailey, Journell, Davidson, and Schilling proudly display the 1969 State Wrestling Championship trophy.

9-2 Record Elates Viking Cindermen

One more track season has come and gone, leaving the Northside cindermen with an excellent showing for their school. Led by Coach Willie Waker and Assistant Coach Jim Stewart, the track team has run, jumped, vaulted, hurdled, and thrown their way to an outstanding record of nine wins and two losses in I-B District competition.

In the Blue Ridge District meet, as in the regular season, only Liberty and Cave Spring managed to hand a defeat to the Viking Squad. The team finished the season with one member, Tom Riely, who remained undefeated in the two-mile event in I-B meets.

Coming from the runway, Kyle Fitzgerald soars for a three-point landing to take the triple jump.

The initial year of tennis aboard the ship proved very successful for its young, inexperienced team. Lacking in experience, but not in enthusiasm, the team compiled an overall record of 2-6 in the Blue Ridge District, with victories over Glenvar and Liberty. Most of the matches were so close that the opposing team averaged only 5.2 points while the Vikings averaged 3.2 points.

The roster under Coach Archie Stoots included: Walter Viohl, John Lowry, Mark Thompson, Mike Furman, David Forbes, Richard Smoot, John McCullough, and Ronnie Coleman.

Team Stays Cheerful Through Misfortunes

Bad breaks and costly errors were the stories as the new baseball team ended its second regular season. Led by Seniors Richard Johnson, Gene Murphy, and Dan Zuro, and underclassmen Steve Creasy, Dick Oliver, Kim Anderson, Russ Rumburg, and Steve Withers, the bat men had an outstanding season.

Although only in their second season, the team played in the District tournament with a 5-9 record. Prospects for next year presented a cheerful outlook.

The benchwarmers on Northside's baseball team compose the cheering sections while waiting.

Juniors Show Unity Reaching New Rank

September leaves fluttered to the tune of the Junior Yell as the Class of 1970 faintly detected land on the northern horizon. With three years behind them and only two years left in the Viking voyage, Juniors drew together in a new type of unity. At last they occupied a coveted position on the upper decks of the Viking vessel. Feeling that they had reached the height of success, Juniors boasted of their new rank like old seaworn sailors. Bright weather was the forecast for the continued voyage of the Class of 1970.

Juniors Know Most Of The Basic Skills

Junior schedules began to shift toward a new specialization. The courses for the college-bound crewmembers were designed to stimulate the intellectual curiosity which would become so vital in their voyages with more advanced crews.

Juniors who were more interested in a business career found that having learned most of the basic skills, they could use this year to improve their accuracy and efficiency. Many Juniors found these skills especially useful in getting a summer job.

Meanwhile, other Juniors ventured away from the Viking vessel to explore new fields at the Roanoke County Educational Center. This was an especially useful form of apprenticeship.

Other Juniors combined work and study on the Distributive Education program.

Junior Class Orders Rings In January

After a specially formed committee had diligently studied for hours and hours, the Class of 1970 recieved the distinction of being the first class to order the new school ring from the Herff Jones Company. January days brightened with the fresh excitement of being the first to order a class ring that was distinctly Northside's own. The delivery of the rings in early June meant that the Junior crew would have material proof of their rank to wear proudly throughout the summer months prior to their Senior year.

Juniors Look Past The Far Horizon

The beginning of their eleventh school year set a new mood for most Juniors. After taking SCAT and STEP tests designating aptitude and progress, many Juniors began to look beyond the horizon. College Day in October brought many to grips with college choice and vocational pursuits. In November, PSAT prepared the Junior crew for the stormy College Boards that would come in March and May.

Brainy Juniors Hope For A Scholarship

A few bold and brainy Junior adventurers, hoping for chances of a scholarship, confronted the National Merit Scholarship Tests in November. After completing them, some Juniors wondered if all was not in vain. Thoughts of future college applications and acceptances caused most Junior crewmen to concentrate harder than ever before on their scholastic work.

Seaworthy Juniors Put On Class Play

Fringes of activities rounded out the year for the seaworthy Juniors. Several boys won public attention by excelling in varsity sports, while four Junior girls held positions on the varsity cheerleading squad. The Homecoming, North Star, and Sweetheart Courts offered positions to promising young ladies aboard the vessel.

In the world of acting, the possible emergence of a new star filled the dreams of many as several Juniors appeared on the stage for the first time, many in major roles or positions.

Doughnuts, Dirty Cars Build Junior Funds

Fund raising projects from our Juniors hit Roanoke like a tidal wave. On a crisp fall morning, Juniors canvassed the county, walking and driving from door to door and neighborhood to neighborhood peddling doughnuts early enough to eat for breakfast. Woolco Department Store allowed the enthusiastic class to sponsor a car wash at its auto center. The Juniors who participated swabbed cars to a top-notch shine. Money from these two projects plus the income from the spring musical, "My Fair Lady," insured the already affluent Juniors of a magnificent success.

Juniors Step Up To Commanding Position

As spring approached, a diminutive whirlpool broke the tide of a full year. The last few weeks before the prom on May 17 crested into a high sea of climactic excitement.

With the coming of graduation, Junior Marshals were chosen to act as ushers for baccalaureate and commencement. Finally, with graduation 1969 over, the Class of 1970 took the wheel of the Viking ship, suddenly matured by awareness of their responsibility.

All Ashore Who's Going Ashore Now

The journey ended amid a flurry of apprenticeship exams. Then, as the vessel nosed into the dock and was secured, crew members swarmed off toward the buses which would carry them further inland. Being back on land had a freedom which the confines of a ship did not allow.

For a few, a summer cruise was in store. However, most of the crew would not return to the sea until fall.

Seniors left forever. In the twilight of the final day, Seniors sadly said farewells to childhood friends and places and turned their sails into the dawn of the coming day.

End Of Journey

A Blend Of Moods Create Aura Daily

Although much of the life of a student at Northside varies little from day to day, one can sense the particular moods of each day from snatches of conversation overheard in the hall and from facial expressions. A blend of every Viking's good and bad moods create the aura surrounding every day.

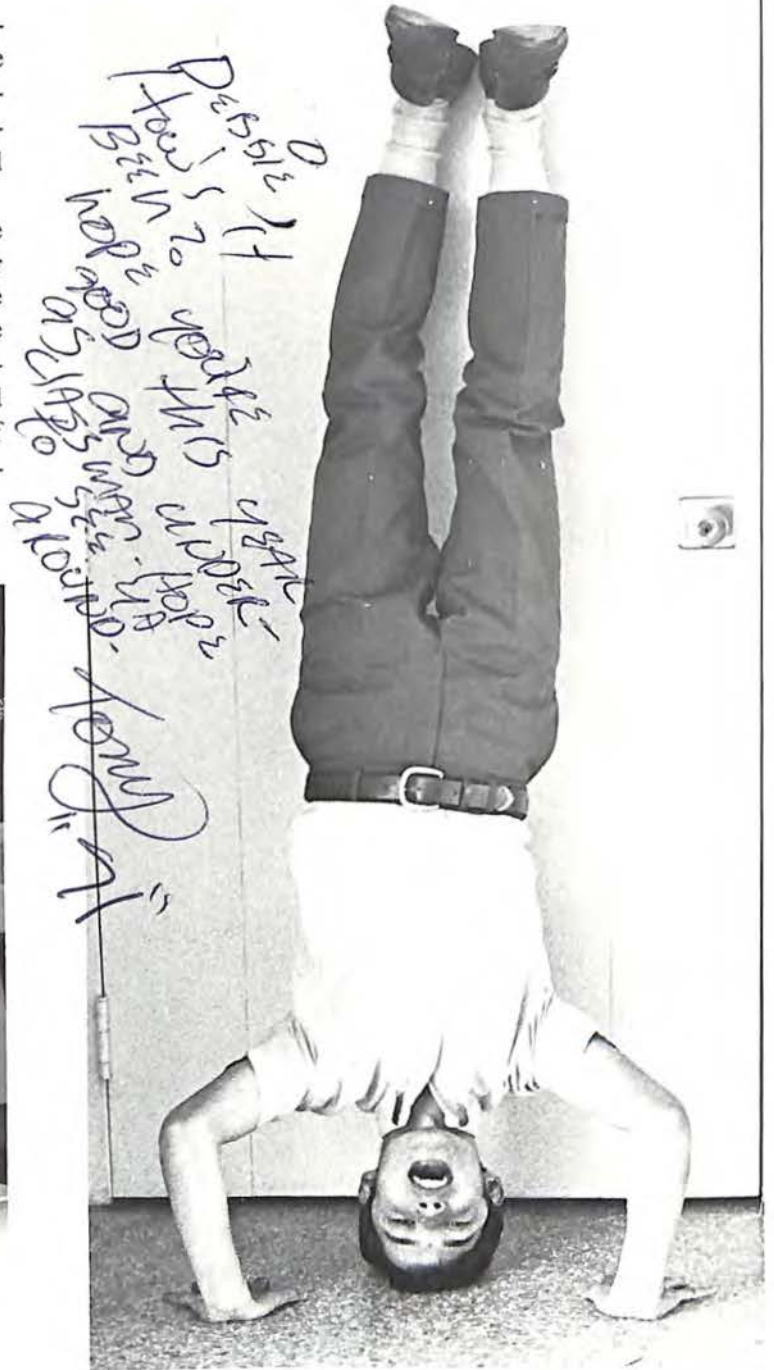

Early in May, the mood of every day became increasingly jubilant with the production of My Fair Lady. Over a hundred people were involved in the production, which merited a command performance on Sunday. The mood reached its height when members of the cast appeared in the elaborate rented costumes for their lunch one day. The peak of happiness came to the cast after receiving four standing ovations.

Halls Appear Altered On Monday Morning

The halls of Northside might have appeared very different to a stranger on Monday mornings. Even the most seaworthy crewmen lacked the regular Viking spring. Greetings were exchanged with bits of the past weekend or the latest happenings. Everything moved at a slower schedule, and a rash of tardy slips occurred. Many Vikings moved through the morning classes in a daze, snatching quick naps during class. The brightest thought that cruised the minds of the Vikings was that there were only four more days til Friday, and none of them could be as bad as Monday.

As hunger pains strike Greg Slusher, he claps his hands begging for another delicious lunch.

Just a picture sends Minnie Bayer to her toes.

Most Vikings Awake At Last On Tuesday

Tuesday usually found most Vikings awake at last, and unaware of all they had missed:

“We had Trig. homework?”

“He didn’t announce a test for today, did he?”

“Thank goodness, only three days til Friday!”

Teachers could sense a change in the classes and students noticed something different about the teachers. Both parties were alert and ready to discuss their subjects.

Eager students battled the charming cuisine of the Tuesday lunch, which varied from salisbury steak only for special occasions.

Junella Scott's glowing face sets the mood for another one of Northside's assemblies.

Paula Taylor and Melanie Basham try to revitalize their pert hairstyles.

To flee the grasping of 'Nard, Mike Paynter takes to the nearest flag pole.

Monday's Blahs Are Wednesday's Turmoils

A brighter sparkle could usually be seen in the eyes of the crew on Wednesday. Virtually indescribable, the sparkle ranged between the sleepy gaze on Monday and the "ready-to-go" look of Friday. Wednesday's sparkle had its roots in many events:

"Hey Suzanne! You'll never guess who finally asked me out for Friday!"

"I passed the biology test! I passed!"

"Only one more day til Friday!"

By sixth period, most students could be seen wearing signs from the conflict with the spaghetti which characterized Wednesday's lunch.

Camilla Hall starts picking leaves off one of N.H.S.'s bushes after cheerleading.

Only One More Day Before It's Friday

Thursday presented an even better mood than Wednesday. Although many Vikings became impatient on Thursday, the stern gaze of the study hall patrol usually quieted them:

"Alright! Let's get it quiet in here!"

"Get rid of that gum, Glenn."

"Psst! Only one more day til Friday!"

Most of the assemblies were scheduled for Thursday, breaking the monotony of The Wait.

Linda Lewis quietly sits under a painting while she reads her magazine before going to class after lunch.

As Rosean Smith dreams,
Mike Morris angrily reproaches
Jenny Weddle for leaving.

Atmosphere Has Air Of Tense Anticipation

"Thank goodness, it's Friday!"

Vikings know that TGIF means a time to unwind. After a week of study, classes, homework, exams, study, tests, quizzes, and more study, any student needs to relieve the pressures.

From the sound of the morning bell for homeroom on Friday, the whole atmosphere at NHS remains charged with an air of anticipation so intense it is almost electrically tangible.

But at the sound of the 3:50 bell, the story changes.

As summer begins to show, daily antics appear as Linda Bocoock hastily picks a tulip.

At various points during the assembly expressions reflect the solemnity of the great occasion.

TGIFs Really A Nice State Of Mind

At the sound of the final bell on Friday, a mass of weary but happy students pour out of the building to head for home. As classes let out, friends gripe about their classes, and the pavement takes a fierce pounding.

Within fifteen minutes, hardly a trace of the fifteen hundred students remains.

That night, many Vikings meet at Lendy's. In warm weather, they stretch out on cars to watch the passers-by. People stare. But no one cares, because TGIF is not just relaxing, it is a state of mind.

Annual Staff Rooms Stay Busy All Year

Tucked away in the book room on B-Hall, a tiny paper-thin partition sections off the Annual Room. Many days, strange noises would waft out of the room above the tireless hammering of the typewriter. Around the fifteenth of every month after February, noises intensified, and many students with worried countenances could be observed running errands.

Under the guiding hands of the Editor, Miss Donna Fitzgerald and the sponsor, Mr. Robert Brill, loyal members again produced a "see-worthy" book.

Membership on the staff meant more than just recording the history of the school to the staff members. It has become a way of life, with the Senior members being sad to leave it and the new crewmen being puzzled at learning to make layouts, write captions, and compose copy so that they could put out the next North Star.

Choir Spends Time Getting Ship-Shape

The melodious chanters of Northside lifted the breeze with their "1-2-3-4-5-6-7-8's" every day during third period. This exercise, a favorite of the new choirmaster, George Seymour, aided in the warming-up of early morning voices.

The choir department attracted over sixty students in grades nine through twelve. This year, a record was set in masculine participation, the choir having thirteen manly voices to its credit.

Much time went into getting plans "ship-shape" for a Christmas concert on December 12. The event sent the audience soaring with Yuletide enthusiasm.

As the year ended, swells of "Going Out of My Head" filled the spring air. The choir busily learned words and notes for a spring concert on May 7.

Viking Band Tries To Boost All Spirit

One could always depend on the Viking Band to be on the scene to boost spirit at the crew's activities. Football games would not have been the same without these musical seamen. They proved their ability at the Southeastern Band Festival in Bristol, Virginia. The long hours of practice and marching paid off when the crew went to Lynchburg and rated high in competition.

Among the performances in which they participated were the Apple Festival and the concert at Washington and Lee University. Northside was proud to see their seamen in the Salem and Roanoke Christmas Parades. Concerts were held during Christmas and also in mid-winter. The Christmas Dance could also be credited to their work and patience.

Although the academic program ended for the Vikings, band members were still going strong. In July, the majorettes attended camp and in August, the band went to camp in Abington.

Other exciting events in the life of the band were the Dogwood Festival and Graduation.

Playing in the halls between classes, Janie Hoer ties a cute bow in Mike Paynter's hair.

Every Senior face was a study in emotion as each girl and boy came to the moving realization that this was the final voyage of familiar seas. The Class of 1969 had come a long way together since that day five years ago when they first sat in the auditorium for the orientation. Knowing that they had come through so much together pulled the Seniors closer to each other and left friendships, joys, disappointments, and especially memories embedded in all their hearts.

In the first days out of port, Seniors anxiously sought positions with more advanced crews. Some looked to colleges for further training; many looked to the business world. But for a few, the future was still uncertain, bordered by the Service, or perhaps a year at work, a time to mature and settle down. For Seniors, the past years had been ones of development. The bewildered and apprehensive freshmen of 1964 had achieved goals which once seemed impossible. They marched from commencement prepared to chance the complexities of the changing world around them.

Senior Class officers Allen Journell, Pam Pitts, Tommy Clayton, and Sherry Elmore discuss future plans.

Seniors Leave Viking Vessel Forever

By April, most of the frantic Senior worries about college and jobs had been resolved, and Senior slump had been compounded by spring fever. As school days neared the magic date, June 7, Seniors sensed the awesome finality of commencement.

Memories cropped up right and left, and every thought of the much awaited day brought an unfamiliar and unexpected ache to hearts of the Class of '69. Even before commencement and the prom, Seniors started remembering all they had been through together. For some, these memories were deeply rooted, springing from as far back as the eighth grade, but for other Seniors, the best memories were the latest ones of antics after play practice, tricks in study hall, or events in the halls or at lunch.

Graduation closed the door on fun and security, while it opened the door to a promising future. Each Senior had made his contribution to NHS, by studying a little longer for a class discussion, or yelling a little louder for the team. As they left the hull of the Viking vessel forever, a special awareness of the contribution remained.

Harry Hambrick courteously hands Sandy Chitwood the books she dropped in her rush to English.

A Sun Settles Upon "A Summer Place"

Suddenly a door opened and sent forth into the evening the sweet fragrance of summertime. From across the room, a breeze wavered, catching the soft scent of the rose. Fresh blankets of lush grass stretched before the entrance to "A Summer Place" where water trickled in a nearby fountain, bees hovered, and a daisy grew . . . Somewhere.

As the sun began to settle on the horizon of the year, that special night of May 17 and the prom, "A Summer Place," transported visitors into beauty and romantic happiness. Mirrors in the Kazim Temple repainted the sea of pastel flowers, bees, long flowing dresses, corsages and bouquets as curls softly bounced to the enthusiastically received music of the Divots and Special Star, Clifford Curry, who held all attention with his soul-inspired songs.

Baccalaureate exposes deep emotion.

Baccalaureate Gives Meaningful Thoughts

As the season of spring reached its crest, the hot days of May flowed swiftly toward the whirlpool of June graduation. At the banquet, "Memories", Seniors enjoyed a detailed recall of life at NHS. The banquet united the Class of '69 one last time for laughter, good food, and fellowship. After the boys gorged themselves with third helpings, a serious tone prevailed in Mrs. Barbara Hargrove's speech. The reading of the Senior prophecies brought amused expressions and embarrassed faces.

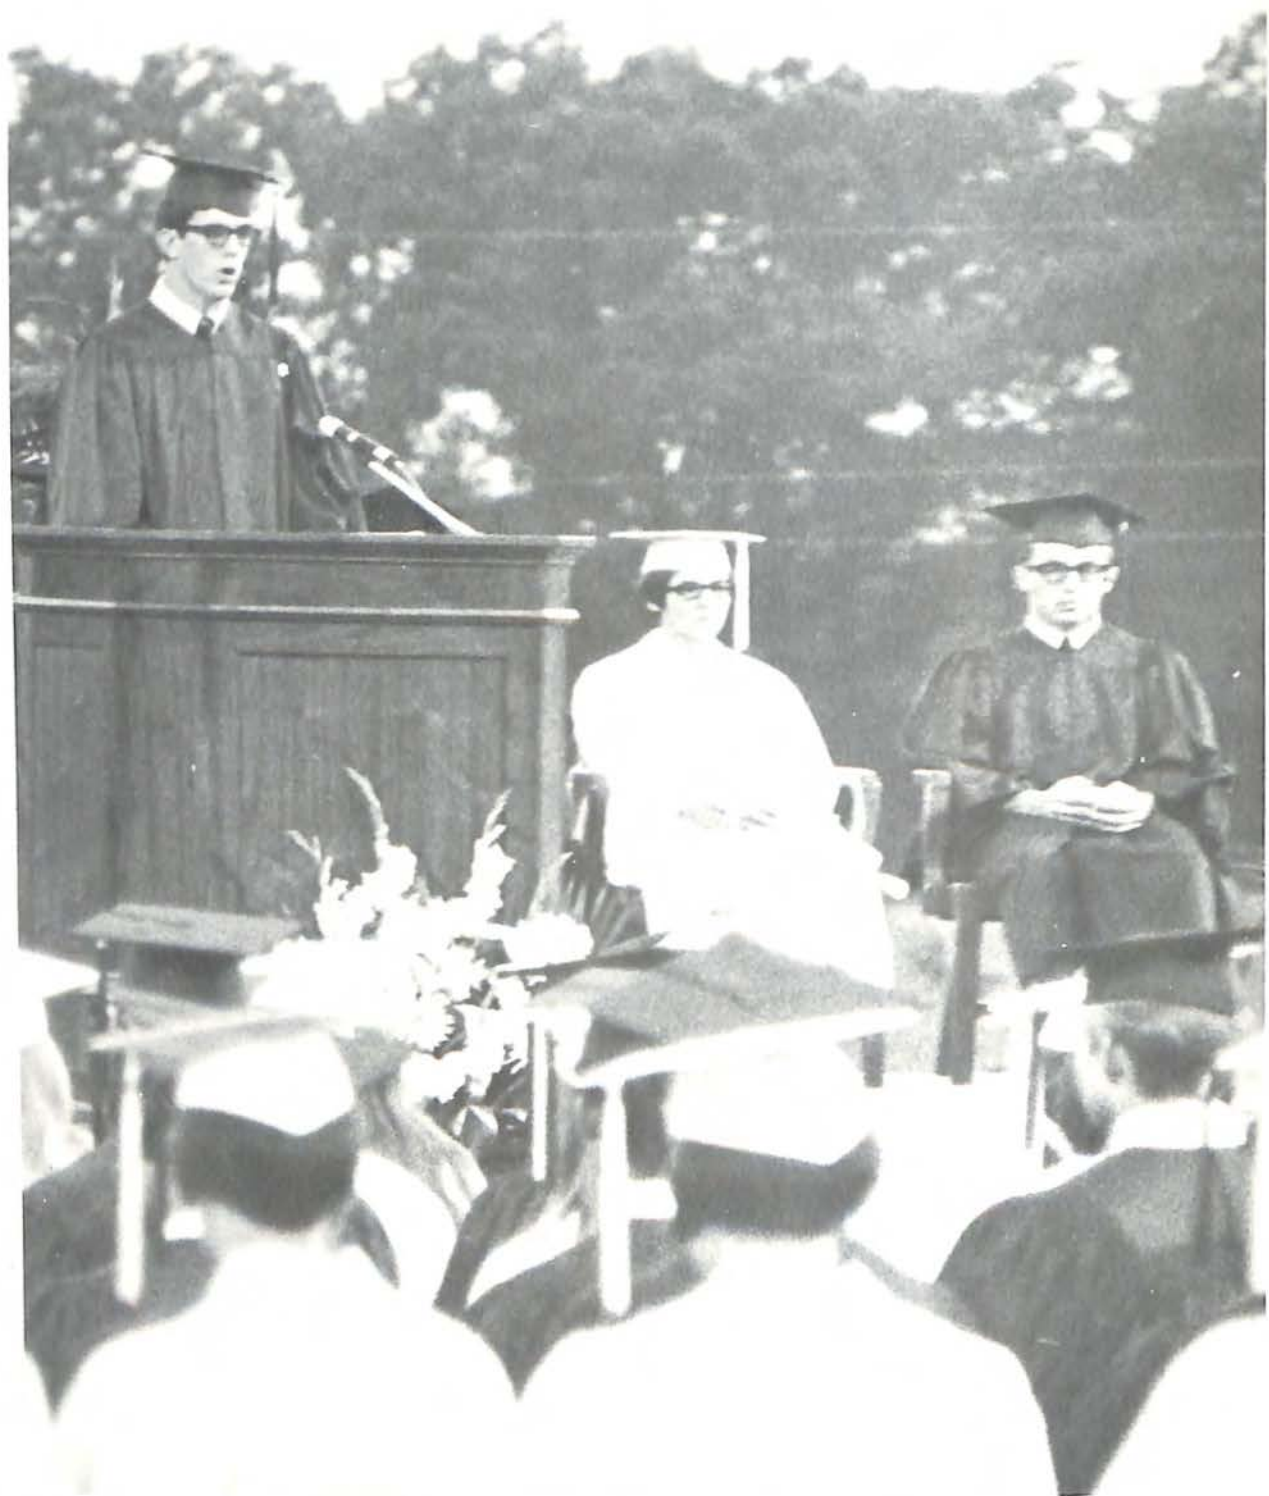

An evening capping ceremony introduced a new Viking tradition. Without practice, the Seniors tasted their first bit of "Pomp and Circumstance" and sat nervously awaiting their turn to be capped.

June 1 meant Baccalaureate. The dignified caps and gowns looked more appropriate on the Class of 1969 as a rainy evening lent solemnity. In a short, inspiring address, Dr. Alvord Beardslee spoke of leadership as a quality to which each individual must be sensitive. With his endeavor, the Class of 1969 firmly stood on the threshold of graduation.

At the Capping Assembly, eleven Honor Graduates wait solemnly while fellow Seniors receive their caps.

As Jean Melton and Allen Journell ready themselves for graduation addresses, Senior Class President Tommy Clayton extends a thoughtful welcome to teachers, parents, and friends.

Mr. Johnston and Mrs. Henderson hold a quiet moment of achievement following a full year.

Graduation Climaxes Voyage For Seniors

To the sedate melody of "Pomp and Circumstance", a green and white sea of Seniors marched to their places for the last time. As a triumphant climax to five long years of study and worry, Seniors received the sought after, planned for, dreamed of diploma. Hidden in its folds, hours of disastrous exams and just as many hours of memorably good times awaited their future contemplation.

Pat Fitzhugh, Tony Payne, Carole Melton, Tommy Clayton, and Allen Journell delivered words of encouragement and expressed the viewpoints of their generation in speeches at the exercise.

Mixed emotions broke out as two hundred twenty Seniors carried away diplomas. Ranging from delirious laughter to hysterical tears, the emotions confirmed the love of life and hope in the Class of 1969.

Accomplishment is felt as the door to the future is opened for the graduates.

Becky Oliver holds a new trophy for the band.

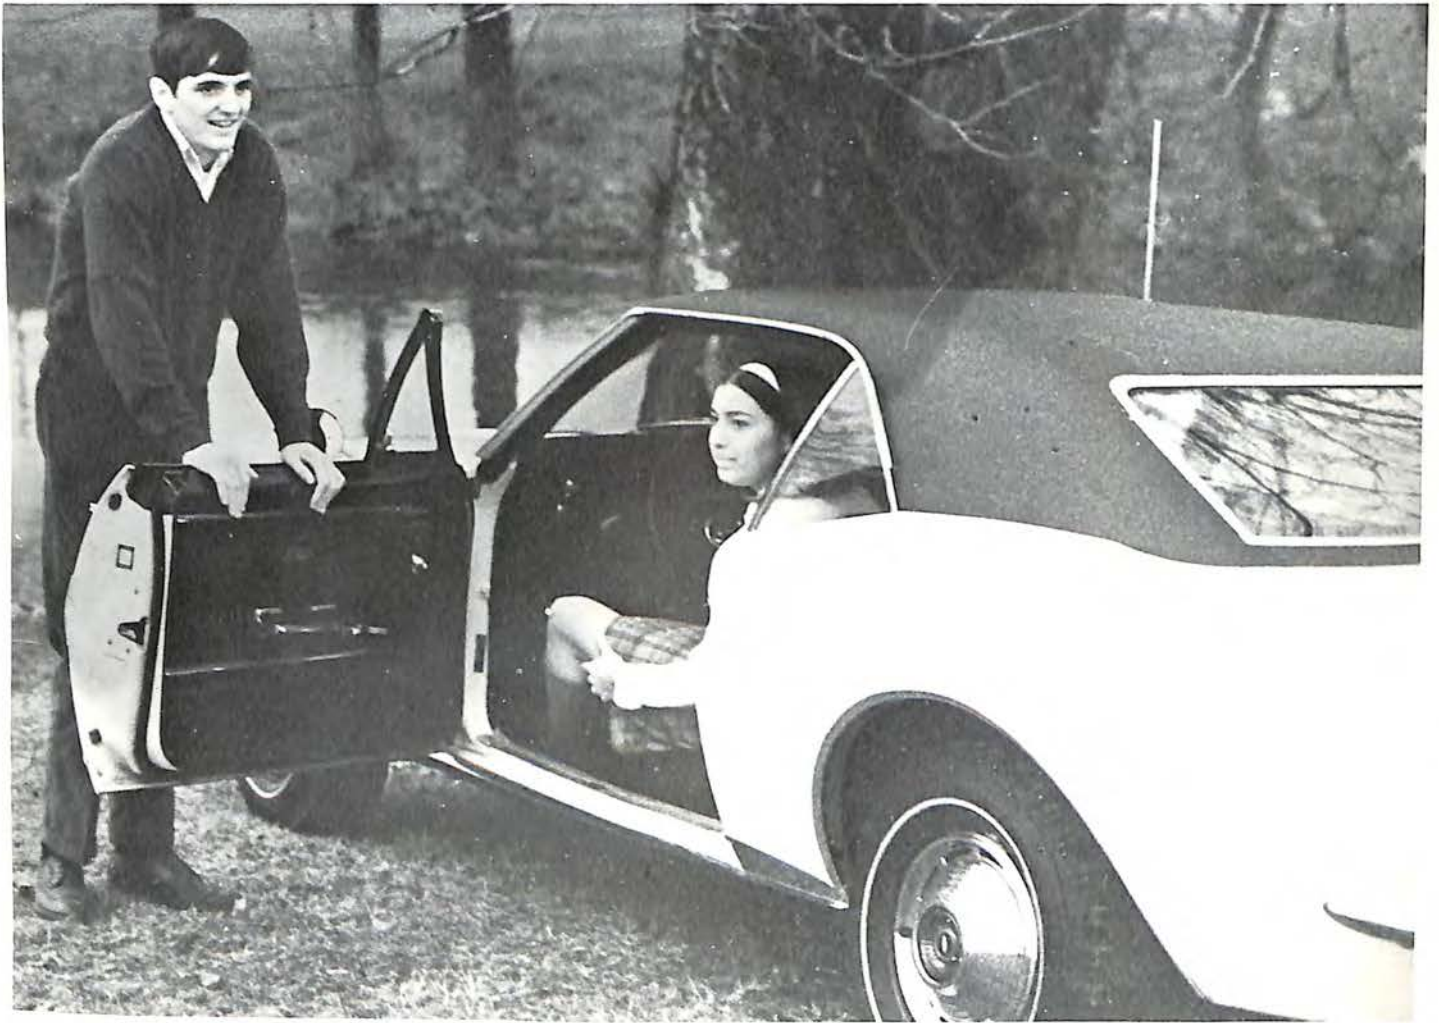

NHHS's boys respond eagerly to Mrs. McCarty's offer of "Brownie Points" to any volunteers.

The newly formulated cheers impress the students at our first spirited pep assembly.

With the end of school swiftly approaching, Wendell Bruce's thoughts wander from Baccalaureate and graduation exercises to examinations.

As the sun rises over the mountain, it symbolizes the beginning of another day in the journey of life.

Though much is taken, much abides; and though
We are not now that strength which in old days
Moved earth and heaven, that which we are, we are—
One equal temper of heroic hearts,
Made weak by time and fate, but strong in will
To strive, to seek, to find, and not to yield.

from ULYSSES

see i got this ... not ...
eight different colours so i got smart and wrote with all eight colours smart isn't it!

so a swell, smart, dumb,

To a really great
Remember that we've great time that we've had and we can say now that all I can say now
is that there are no more words to express my feelings.
Love ya,
