one out of many
 one in heart, in mind, and soul
 we came from many places
 there were many of us
 but, soon we felt we belonged not to a place, but to each other.

our differences
are staggering.

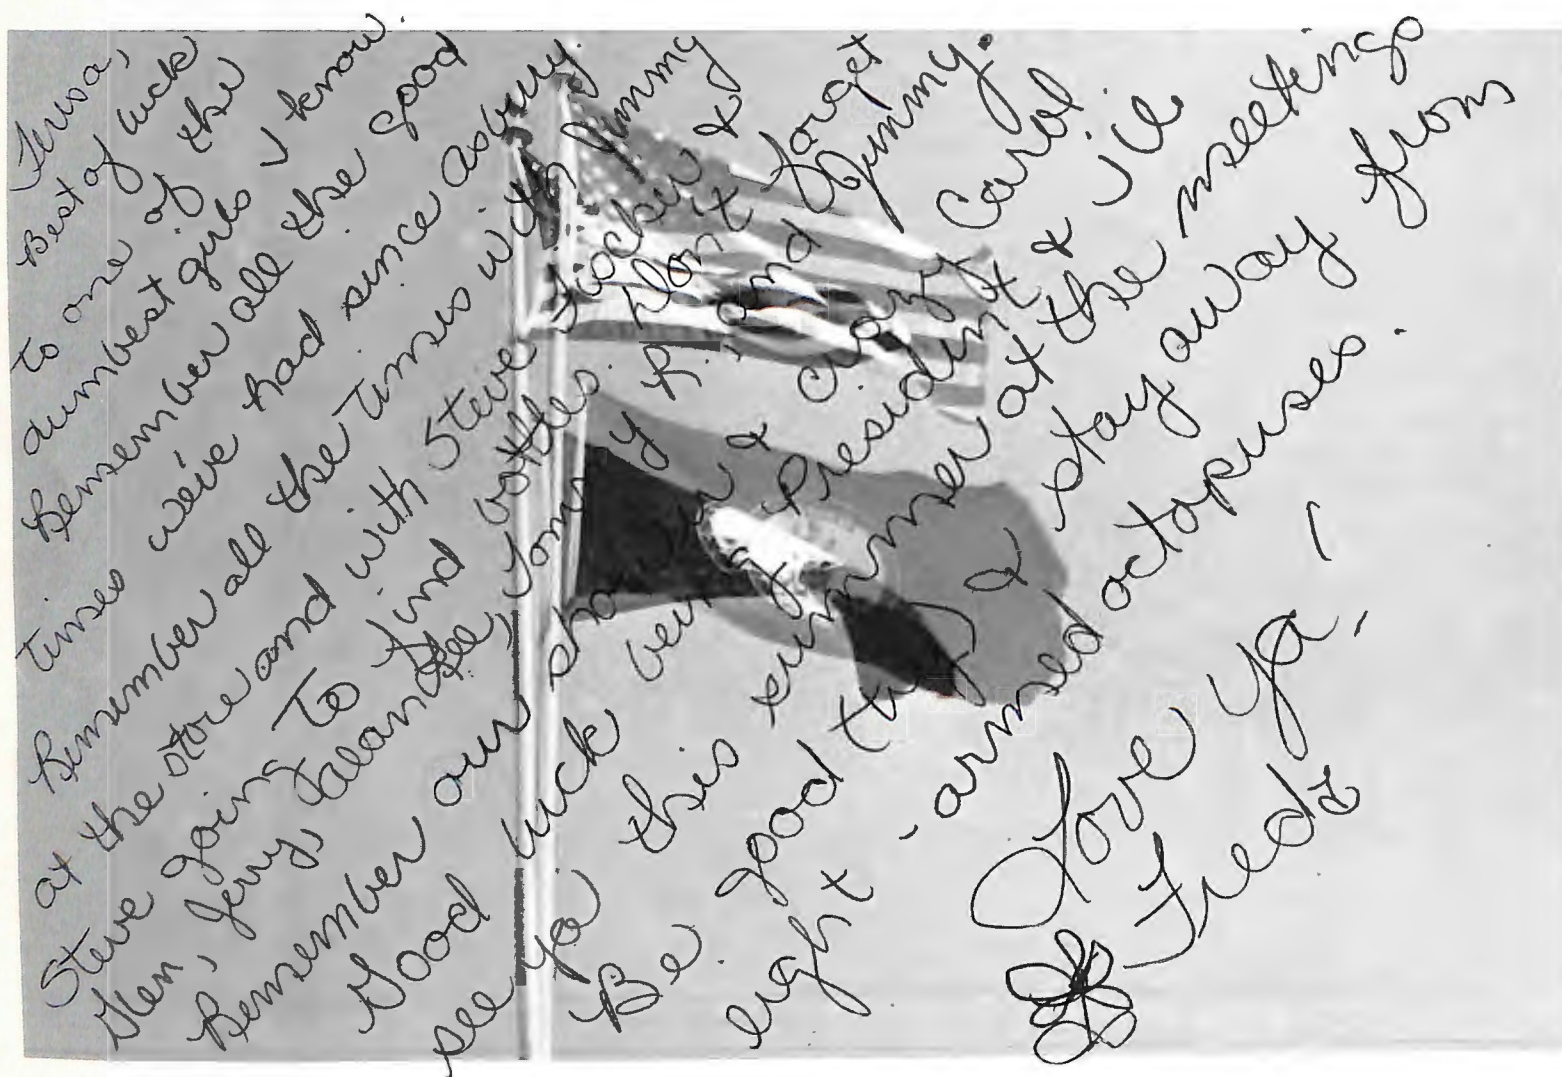

this is how we came together.
shield, 1971.

angela stewart, business manager.

debra willis, editor.

now is the time for coming together. . . .
for a joining of hands

in this sometimes cold, cruel world we can survive only if we join together with one another to make this a "live world." the future is ours and we are the ones who can make it worth living. life is what we make it; it is too precious to play with. life depends on living together as brothers, accepting the good and the bad in each other, and not being defeated. the flag, the symbol of our national unity, is a constant reminder that the success of our school life depends on our unity.

now we have to leave
in great sorrow, in great joy, thinking of our separation
and the many places we will go.
we are the same, yet we are not.
we are the one soon to be divided.

but, let us refrain from these thoughts and turn instead to the joys of our oneness, and if we can think of ourselves,
then we will remember each other.
through defeats, tears, and love
we have all become parts of the whole.

out in the galaxy of life
a new star has been born.
kindled by candles of love lit by our hopes and dreams.

but, this star will not be content merely to exist for a thousand years.
it cannot drift silently through the universe,
for it was not born that way;
a starburst will soon take place.

now we go, glowing sparks of that star,
and in its glow we must live,
for in it we have found the meaning of life.
and by its light we must guide others, because "here on earth god's work must truly be
our own."

we cannot let any flame be extinguished.
if we do, its shadow will surely dim our own.

so let us go into that galaxy
and have good courage to hold our candles high, remembering that by this fire, this glow, this love within us
we are, and through eternity . . . one.

lough emphasizes friendship, cooperation.

unity, "the joy of our oneness," is not spontaneous. like any worthwhile goal, it requires effort—a conscious working toward togetherness—and that goal, once attained, is the mark of maturity and the beginning of a new happiness.

at lord botetourt, mr. james lough has been teacher, friend, and advisor to his students. in his biology classroom, he concentrates on understanding. as sponsor of the pep club, mr. lough emphasizes cooperation and active support of the athletic program. but more important, he has given unselfishly numerous hours to his students, and those hours have been spent in friendship.

the 1970 spring carnival was an attempt to combine the annual achievement day with a giant money-making endeavor for all clubs. carnival day began like any other friday in may, but by noon had evolved into possibly the wildest day in lbhs history. classes were abandoned for the midway, where, by 3 p.m., spectators could dunk a coach, throw darts at teacher pictures, try the cakewalk or their luck at the roulette wheel—not to mention the exotic all-male sideshow. the rains came at night, bringing it all to an early close, but not before everyone had a chance to be a little crazy.

the crowning of myra anne beahm as homecoming queen culminated a week of activities including poster competition, color day, badge day, and a special pep assembly. the football homecoming game was played against the roanoke catholic celtics with the cavaliers coming out on top 40-7. during halftime the court was announced. bobbie lou waid was named maid of honor and myra anne beahm was crowned 1970 football homecoming queen. after the game, the varsity cheerleaders held a victory dance.

as the school year progressed, lord botetourt students put their interests and talents to work. the school was quite ably represented by a team on the wbra-tv quiz program "who knows," which pits local high school teams against each other. in early november, debra willis and richard giannini traveled to the university of virginia for the fall journalism workshop of the virginia high school league. they attended year-book classes and lectures, and were on hand to receive the second-place rating for the 1970 shield.

but always find time for fun

visitors from far and near came to lord botetourt this year, bringing with them new ideas, centuries-old customs, and just plain good advice. five students from langley high school in mc-lean visited the community as part of a course they were taking, and world geography classes spent a day with a young arab who wore his native dress and entertained them with his native music. senior exchange day brought seniors from roanoke valley schools, and school assemblies brought clergymen and businessmen from the community.

"the circle", an english comedy-drama about the lives and loves of a political family, played to small audiences but to hearty applause. the outstanding cast included jimmy southers, quinnie miller, milla ilieff, robin murray, charles reedy, jimmy mcclung, joan king, and robert ferguson. the play was directed by mrs. hedgbeth, and set construction was supervised by mr. nedrow.

the christmas dance, now a tradition at lord botetourt, was sponsored by the future homemakers of america. the fha girls transformed the cafeteria into a christmas wonderland and manned the voting tables as students voted for the snow queen and court. at the dance, pam wimmer, a freshman, was crowned snow queen by coach camper. "frost", a band from roanoke, supplied the music—sometimes loud, but just right to make the 1970 christmas dance a success.

Lord botetourt hosted the 16th annual botetourt county science fair on march 5, 1971, and lbhs students walked away with most of the awards, including the grand prize, won by kirby lambersburger and david jones. their research on the decomposition of iron in water was especially timely with the popular interest in ecology. many weeks and months of work by botetourt students was rewarded as their projects captured honors in all areas of science.

the "free style" blade, the student newspaper of lord botetourt, suffered from budget problems, but printed in mimeograph to successfully meet monthly deadlines. the most notable accomplishment of the blade was initiation of a "soul" page in which the black brothers and sisters aired gripes and calls to unity. "the scarlet letter" page, was devoted to problems and subjects of controversy among youth.

the shield staff began the year with a decision to change the style and purpose of the yearbook. reflecting the personality of school and students was the goal, and a new organization of the book was the method. with emphasis on school life, the unity theme was displayed.

the staff members took steps to educate themselves in new yearbook techniques. debra willis and richard giannini attended a journalism workshop in november and vickie custer and jeanette haymaker attended a workshop in april. both were sponsored by virginia high school league.

the student art chapter is primarily for those students who find art enjoyable or who seek careers in art. all of their activities are oriented toward creative expression and the study of aesthetic surroundings. in the spring, the art club visited the art and architecture departments at vpi and used profits from their candy sales to buy equipment for the art room.

the largest club at lord botetourt, the future homemakers of america is also one of the most active organizations. the girls in home economics classes are eligible for membership. at christmas, the club sponsors the christmas dance, and for weeks before, members carefully watch the "penny jars" fill as students vote for the snow queen. the year is filled with fha activities, ranging from field trips to lectures, which prepare the girls for homemaking chores and joys.

the botetourt chapter of future farmers of america prepares its members for careers in agriculture by stressing the tradition of the american farmer and the advancement of technology. the club competes with other virginia chapters and several botetourt members carry winners' medals both from regional and state competitions.

no aspect of drama is neglected at lord botetourt. the thespians, affiliated with the national thespian society, is composed of students who have worked on a stage production, thereby earning a certain number of points which entitles them to membership. most of the thespian membership worked in some capacity of the senior play.

the pretenders are a local group who are interested in drama and the theatre. they, too, aid in production of plays.

the stage crew, originally a part of the thespians, became an organized club for the first time this year. the crew built the set for the senior play, rewired the sound room, and helped in staging the lady botetourt pageant.

with addition of class councils the structure of the sca was altered this year with the addition of class councils, representatives from each class who acted as problem solvers and co-ordinates for the business of their respective classes. the expanded sca worked efficiently and conscientiously to fulfill students' requests and solve, if possible, their problems. president robin murray fulfilled his campaign pledge to organize a relations committee in order to narrow the gap between administration and students. along with active participation in regional and state sca, the lord botetourt organization was instrumental in deciding the dress code questions. the matter of traditional vs. "no rule" school attire resulted in the relaxed code which allowed slacks for the girls.

cavalier band steps high at bristol

the lord botetourt marching band made its first appearance at the southeastern band festival at bristol this year. one of the few bands to receive a standing ovation on the field, the precision marching of the cavalier band received an "excellent" rating. the members were also proud of their "perfect" rating on a military-type inspection. in addition to the long hours of practice required for the competition, the band made their regular snappy appearances at football games.

the stage band played on numerous occasions and made a television appearance, featuring barbara calloway as vocalist.

the pep club is composed of people who think lord botetourt is great and want to say so. their unbounded enthusiasm spills over at pep assemblies, where they present skits and encourage other students to back athletics. pep members sponsor buses for away games and spend many hours making posters and signs to remind everyone that school spirit is alive and well and yelling.

pep club skits for football included the funeral for a drowner "river rat" and a biology lesson on dead "bees".

athletic clubs promote teamwork, individual sportsmanship

the girls' athletic association is an organization designed to promote participation of girls in organized athletics and to encourage sportsmanship. gaa sponsors the powder puff football game and intramural basketball games. this year the club sponsored intramural volleyball games.

the fellowship of christian athletes, a national organization, was organized at lord botetourt for the first time this year, replacing the varsity club. fca, like its predecessor the varsity club, encourages sportsmanship and competition.

the year is over. there are people who say that unity was a great idea in august but that it didn't materialize. we have differences, but not irreconcilable ones. so, if this wasn't the year it really happened, perhaps we can look back on 1970-71 as the school year that we began to . . .

come together.

To a real sweet
and cute girl,
stay like you are
and you'll go far. Remember our year in Home Ec. Wow!!!
Best Wishes in your Endeavors.
