Getting all decked out for the Homecoming festivities, upper school students gathered for a morning assembly. Events such as Homecoming helped to unify our student body, giving them the opportunity to get to know one another outside of the classroom walls.

Gathered around the pre-Homecoming campfire, Coach Muscaro introduces Chad Coyne, Jeff Summerlin, Ryan Shaver, Aaron Lange, and the rest of the football team to the enthusiastic crowd of students, faculty, and parents. Members of all of the fall sports teams were introduced at the campfire, giving new students and parents the opportunity to meet all of the fall atheletes.

Signaling the beginning of the Homecoming festivities, Headmaster Mr. David Dougherty welcomes the North Cross community to the bonfire. Homecoming is only one of the many planned activities which help to unify all of the many facets of our school. North Cross strives to include all students, parents, and faculty in as many school functions as possible.

Mike Nuckols

Crowded around their lockers, sixth graders Mary-Angela Mull, Anna Williams, and Joe Thielecke compare grades on their first English paper. North Cross students get to know one another well; therefore, everyone is willing to help each other and discuss their grades.

HOW'S IT GOING?

Do you find yourself asking this question to everyone you see around campus? Honestly, this simple everyday question expresses the true character of our community. We have a special unity between students, faculty and administration which creates many personal friendships. Our eagerness to branch out and see how everyone is doing gives our school a special southern charm, a charm of camaraderie, unity and self-worth unequaled by any other school in this area.

HOW'S IT GOING?

Mr. Rick France has the ability to strengthen and enhance the character of each student he has advised or taught. This cannot go unnoticed. He has served as Director of the Middle School and currently is the Assistant Headmaster, Director of the Upper School, and a fourth year French teacher. As a lover of the French language and culture, Mr. France has even shared French skills and knowledge of French wines with many North Cross parents. We cannot thank you enough, Mr. France, for your hard work and inspiration, and we hope your career at North Cross grows even brighter.

Annalyzing the performance of the Boys' Varsity basketball team,, Mr. and Mrs. France are impressed by the game. Mr. and Mrs. France were regular fans at all of the home games.

Giving his weekly pep talk to the Upper School faculty, Mr. France stresses the importance of the test calender. Mr. France was very concearned about the overload of homework and tried to help the studentsany way he could.

Debating on which culinary delight they will have for dinner, Mr. France and and his wife, Sandy, peruse through a French cookbook. Mrs. France is a gourmet cook, while Mr. France is a wine connoisseur, and together they can make a great meal.

From Liberty Day to Founder's Day, the students in all divisions spent the school year not only in the classroom, but competing on the playing fields, volunteering within the community, and taking class trips. Students kept incredibly busy this year participating in out of school activities, but still they managed to keep abreast of their classwork. The versatility of each student is apparent from the total participation in all aspects of student life.

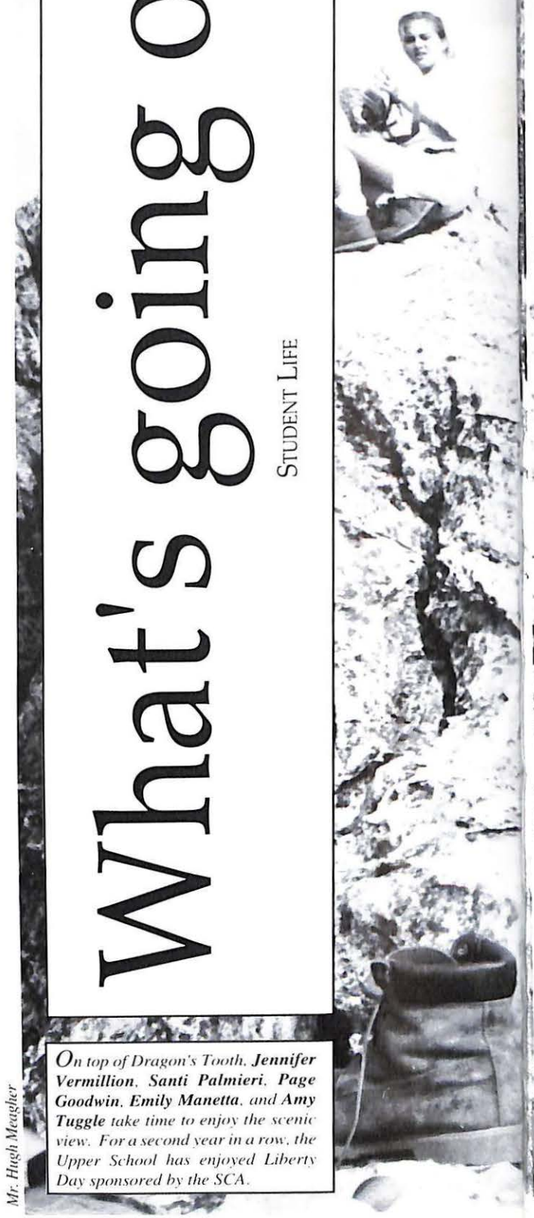

Mike Nuckols

With time to kill, Mary Bartley, Claudia Johnson, Janis Kennedy, and John Logan relax on the football field. When the weather was nice, many Upper School students headed outside to toss a frisbie or just soak up some rays.

Mr. Hugh Meagher

On top of Dragon's Tooth, Jennifer Vermillion, Santi Palmieri, Page Goodwin, Emily Manetta, and Amy Tuggle take time to enjoy the scenic view. For a second year in a row, the Upper School has enjoyed Liberty Day sponsored by the SCA.

Before Mr. Dougherty starts the monthly all-school assembly, Kelsey Greenawalt and Tory Hanabury play a quick game of pat-a-cake. All-school assemblies were great opportunities for the different divisions to unite and become one big family.

Preparing to decorate the Upper School for Homecoming, Nicole Hall has trouble carrying the balloons. The varsity cheerleaders did an exceptional job making the Upper School very festive by hanging balloons and streamers from the ceiling.

Cheering for their favorite Presidential candidate, Lower School students await the beginning of the mock debate. This debate allowed the student body to hear about the "real" candidates' values and opinions.

A Time for Friends and Family

Scenes of Summer

Before going out for the night in Bald Head Island, SC, Janis Kennedy*, Erin McCulley,* Claudia Johnson, Emily Cook, Catey Thielecke, and Emily Kennedy take time out to smile for the camera. The Kennedys were one of the many families to take friends along on their summer vacation.

Sitting on a naval anchor, second grader Matt Nichols and his fourth grade sister, Samantha*, toured the many ships during their trip to Norfolk, VA. They enjoyed seeing the ships that they had learned about during the school year.*

Caty Bradshaw

Lounging around the hotel in Athens, Cheryl Brenner, Melissa Blythe, Richard Castle, Ellen Brenner, and Caro Thomas smile for a photo. Many of the 32 students went out on the town at night, but sometimes the students just stayed in to catch up on lost sleep or play a few games of cards.

All dressed up for the last dinner on the cruise of the Greek islands, a few of the students gathered to pose for a photo. The group agreed that the cruise was the best part of the trip because of the great food, the relaxation time up on deck, and the stops at the various islands.

Caty Bradshaw

Standing on the bridge in Florence, Louis Davidson, Blair Calvert, Melissa Blythe, and Cheryl Brenner planned whether they wanted to spend their afternoon shopping at the straw market or touring the cathedrals. The students had the option of spending an extra afternoon in Rome or taking a standing room only train ride to Florence. The majority of the students chose to take the optional trip and spent the two hours on the train singing old 70's radio tunes and playing the name game.

Caro Thomas

Sitting on the wall surrounding the Acropolis in Athens, Jason Vermillion, Blair Calvert, Christina Nordt, Amanda Trostle, Caty Bradshaw, Melissa Blythe, and Caro Thomas took a break after the early hike up to the summit. While in Athens, the students stayed directly across the street from the Acropolis in an enchanting hotel called The Acropolis View.

Buon Giorno!

A motley group of travelers set out from the Roanoke Regional Airport on June 24th at 8:30 in the morning headed for Italy and Greece. Led by Dr. and Mrs. Grayson, Mr. DeHart, and Mrs. Stevenson, this band had to battle gypsies and Julia, the evil Italian tour guide, in order to find the treasures of Ancient Rome.

Assisted by Franco, the infamous bus driver, they found the Forum, the Colleseum, Vatican City, the Spanish Steps, and the Ara Pacis. On to Greece they sailed by ferry, after spending a relaxing two days in Pompey and Sorrento. In Greece, Sophia led the calvary to the Acropolis, Epidarus, Corinth, and Cape Sounion.

The tourists needed a break from their "vacation" so they lounged on a 3-day cruise ship, stopping at Mykonos, Rhodes, Kousodasi, Turkey, and Patmos.

Homesick, the students even sang the school song accompanied by an accordion player at the Captain's dinner. They partied on land, in the air, and on sea.

Nikki Hale

Listening attentively to the tour guide at Pompeii, Jen Frye, Melissa Blythe, Anne Conway Jennings, and Amanda Trostle found the ancient Roman corner stones to be a comfortable resting spot for their tired legs. The travel agency which planned the trip arranged for the group to meet with different guides at various stops, such as the Vatican, the city of Rome, and the ruins at Pompeii.

Jen Frye

Family Ties

"I think it's great to see her everyday."

Tradition—this word comes to mind when one thinks of the many families here. Perhaps this is one reason we are such a close and caring school. Alex Levicki comments, "I am very glad my brother, Alan, goes to North Cross because I get to spend more time with him." When asked how she felt about her eighth grade sister attending here, junior Karen Harter replied, "I love it. I think it's great to see her every day. She makes school more fun."

Many parents chose to send all of their children here so that their yearly schedules match. Sue Speidel, a sophomore, noted, "I like it because we have the same vacations so we can go places together."

Although it seems most students are pleased with their situations, there are a few exceptions. A sophomore with a sister in the Upper School simply stated, "I do not like it." A senior commented, "It's really not that bad, because I don't have to see her and I don't have to deal with her."

The Stoeckle family, Michael, Mary Margaret, Kathleen, and Chris, spent a week on Edisto, an island in South Carolina. The Stoeckles celebrated the birth of a sister, Elizabeth Anne, in October. Hopefully, in several years, she too will follow in the North Cross tradition.

After several days of vacationing in Oregon, Jesse and Thomas Webster take a minute to relax. Although there is more than a ten year age difference between the brothers, the two remain very close.

The Logan family, Charles, Mary, John, Dandridge, Bill, and Willis, relax after a long day at school. The Logans enjoy seeing their siblings and cousins throughout the school day. Many Logans have attended North Cross over the years.

At Dodger Stadium in Los Angeles, California, A.J. and Jason Esguerra enjoy a baseball game. The Esguerras visited California this summer, and Dodger Stadium was one of the many stops on their trip.

At club, Jay Donato and Karen Harter watch as several members perform skits. Acting out unusual skits is always a highlight of the meetings, giving members an opportunity to ham it up.

Mr. Carter Brothers and his wife, Jen, discuss plans for future club meetings with a Patrick Henry student at the Mill Mountain Coffee House. Young Life provided an opportunity for North Cross students and faculty to mingle with people from several schools around the valley.*

How Can God Interact in Our Everyday Lives?

Young Life

Relaxing with friends, singing songs, and performing skits, the students from schools around the valley gathered on Monday nights to take a break from studying. Young Life meetings were usually held at a student's house where everyone could converse in a relaxed atmosphere.

The Young Life club members enjoyed singing a variety of songs from "Sweet Home Alabama"to"It's Amazing." Club meetings were a time for students to relieve school stress by playing silly child-like games such as surfeiting students' mouths with marshmellows and immitating farm animal noises.

The last portion of the weekly meeting was spent listening to the club leaders, like Mr. Carter Brothers, speak about how students can interact with God in their their everyday lives. The club meeting was always concluded with a group prayer.

Conversing in the hall, Armistead Lemon, Emily Kielkopf, and Erin Waldvogel are showing off the latest styles. Split skirts have become a popular fashion, as have blazers with leggings, a must for every wardrobe. Babydoll dresses are also a new trend.

While studying in the library, Jamie Bell and Monty Smith are still sportin' the fashions. For guys, the trends are solid white shirts, Duck Head pants, Bucks and interesting ties to complete the outfit.

On the way to class, Casey Seawell and Claudia Johnson stop to admire each other's attire. This year, girls have become more daring by wearing guys' clothes and shorter skirts.

Having a sister also means sharing clothes. Janis and Emily Kennedy are both wearing colored jeans, showing a definite trend toward more casual attire. This year the dress codewas expanded, allowing girls to wear any color jeans except blue.

Lesley Dodson

Going over some work, Bradley Blum and Sarah Waybright are showing off their style. A blazer over a mini-skirt is seen throughout the fashion catalogs, and many students love this new style. The dress code for boys keeps most restricted to Duck Head pants and a shirt and tie.

The Day Our School Was Founded

A Birthday Celebration

On the 15th of January, the school celebrated its thirty-first birthday. An assembly was held in the Carter Center to honor the day. Three alumni returned to the school to speak about how their experiences here prepared them for college as well as for life. The three speakers spanned three decades, one from the 70's, one from the 80's, and the third from the 90's. The students agreed that the chosen speakers were very enlightening and were also a change from the normal pattern of all school ceremonies. "I listened to everything that all of the speakers said, and it has made me look at my twelve years at this school in a different light," said Senior Caty Bradshaw.

A dance was held in the Carter Athletic Center on the Saturday night following Founder's Day. The Upper School students hustled to the lobby of the Carter Center to dance to songs like, 'Amie', 'Kryptonite', and 'Come Monday'. The band was well liked by all of the attending students; however, the number of students was a bit scarce for the usual turn out at school dances. Paying for the band and setting up for the night was quite an undertaking for the Freshmen, and even at times they were worried about how many students would come, but fortunately enough students showed up to make the night an event.

The Founder's Day celebration was capped off with a day off from school for that following Monday. This day out of school was a hit for all of the students and made the day even more special.

As the lower school entered the gym, the emotions of the debate rose to an exciting level with many signs made in support for the candidates for the debate. They were very creative by making their own personal signs with pictures they found in magazines.

Saluting the United States flag, Mr. David Dougherty and the newly formed school sponsored Boy Scout troop lead the school in the Pledge of Allegiance to commence the debate. At occasions such as this, students are often called upon to recite the pledge.

Wanting To Know The Issues

Tensions were high, the election was near, and the student body wanted to know the issues. To carry on the school tradition, a mock debate was staged as three senior guys impersonated the candidates. Jason Vermillion, represented George Bush in a strong manner. The questions proposed to Bush/Vermillion were answered with quality information. Bill Clinton was represented by Aaron Lange, who did a wonderful job portraying the Arkansas governor. Carter Teague was Ross Perot, no question about it-the accent, the look, everything-he was wonderful. This debate turned out to be an entertaining event. A mock election was also held to determine who was the winner. Bush/Vermillion was decided winner of the debate by a landslide. But we all know who really won the election-Bill Clinton!

-Chad Covne

Mike Nuckols

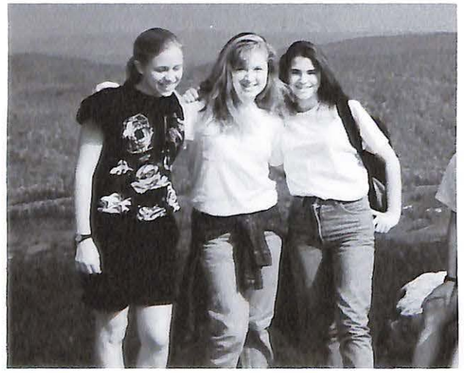

Supporting the Democratic party, Lower School students show their enthusiasm for Bill Clinton. The Presidential debate was held in the Carter Athletic Center gym, where the whole school convened to show spirit for fellow students participating in the event.

A day to bond with classmates and to enjoy the surroundings.

Liberty Day

The SCA worked extraodinarily hard this year to offer trips and activities that were a little off the norm for Liberty Day. The standing tradition for the Upper School students is that one day during the early Fall, the students participate in group activities or trips. These activities and trips help the students to build friendships outside their class and also help the students to realize that education is not limited to just the classroom. One group of students went to the Roanoke Court House then ate lunch at the City Market, another group took an entire day to travel to Charlottesville to see the Film Festival. A group of guys went with Mr. Dickens to Natural Bridge to fish, but ended up getting all wet because the currents were so strong. A group of girls, and Chip Capozzi, went up to Mabry's Mill for the morning, sat on the Parkway overlook for about thirty minutes, and then capped off the trip with a stop for lunch at the Winery. For the more adventurous students, two outdoor hikes were planned, where the nature lovers could climb until their heart's delight. Some students chose to stay on the school campus and either knit and drink tea with Mrs. McGhee and Mrs. Shaver, while others chose to have paint ball wars with each other and Dr. Palmieri in the woods behind the school and on the adjacent fields. Regardless of how the day was spent, a good time was had by all. The only complaint for the day was that we should have more than one Liberty Day each year. The faculty agreed, however, the administration would not be too pleased if they knew the students were spending all their time playing paint ball or eating lunch at the City Market.

-Caty Bradshaw

After climbing to the top of Mackafee's Knob, Sophomores Ryan Jennings, Sara Waybright, and Kate Patterson smile with pride. The three girls were not the first to reach the top, however, they were proud of their climb and were anxious to take a break and enjoy their lunches.

Taking a stroll around the grounds of Mabry's Mill, Sonya Matanovic and Armstead Lemon cannot wait until breakfast. The group of students that went to the Mill stuffed themselves with pancakes, biscuits, and bacon at the diner after the long bus ride on the Parkway.

Standing with the nice lady Parkway Patrole Officer, the students thanked her for jump-starting the broken down bus. The students had just finished their breakfast and tour of Mabry's Mill when Dr. Maycock informed them that the bus would not start.

A top of Mackafee's Knob, Seniors Erin Waldvogel and Emily Kielkopf enjoy the magnificent view. The two girls went on the same hike last year but they enjoyed it so much that they chose to take the same trip this year despite all of the other trips offered.

Ready to catch the ball, Karyn Harter gets pushed aside from opposite team member Ryan Jennings in her own attempt to intercept the pass. This was one intramural event that involved only the girls and gave them a chance to play football, a sport in which they usually do not participate.

Working as a team, William Watkins and Forrest Porterfield move the ball bown the court towards a goal. Not only do the students get to play common sports during intramurals but also the unusual ones, such as crab soccer, where an oversized ball is used and players must stay on their hands and feet the entire game.

Peter Plunkett

Carrying on the tradition with a

Little Friendly Competition

Separated on two sides of the auditorium, the Red and White teams cheered their new team members on as the Freshmen, as well as new students were drafted to a team. This is the ritual the students go through each year to replace the graduated team members with new members. With these additions, the competitions held on Thursdays during activity periods proved to be even better and more exciting than in years past. Carter Teague, elected captain by the white team members, and Ryan Cook, the red team captain proved to both be equally talented leaders throughout the year and could often be found the day before a competition asking students to participate in the events. To carry on tradition, popular competitions such as football, ultimate frisbee, crab soccer, volleyball, the Geography bee, and current events provided opportunities for the teams to gain the needed points to be the final winning team.

Break a Leg!

Exploring the extent of reality and questioning the depths of what we know, this years fall production, The Day Room, challenged its audience to determine for themselves what is real and what is illusion. The first act set in a hospital room, had Jason Vermillion and Chip Capozzi, two seniors with considerable acting experience, resting on hospital beds, while being harassed by escaped mental patients, dressed as doctors, nurses, and other patients.

Everyone worked several hours a night, right up until the opening curtain, making sure everything was perfect. But even with all that practice there were still butterflies in the stomachs of most actors. Despite the plays relatively low attendance, everyone who attended enjoyed it and appreciated the inordinant amount of time spent working.

ONE TO REMEMBER

Imagine your school, painted with the excitement that all the students and faculty feel. Red and white balloons dancing to the cheers as streamers flood the halls, bringing the campus alive. Homecoming; the weeks of preparation brought friends, students, and faculty together. As the football team got ready, so did the whole school. The weekend was kicked off with the annual bonfire where all of the teams were introduced. The big victory against Hargrave was followed by a family banquet. Saturday night was the high school dance where The Convertibles played and everyone had fun dancing and just being together. Willis Logan, a freshman said, "Homecoming was a great experience for all. I liked the whole school atmosphere and especially the music at the dance."

A Year Full of Learning Experiences

Starting off the summer with a new advisor, the yearbook staff was ready to go. Near the end of July, four members of the staff, Chad Coyne, Caty Bradshaw, Heather Houston, and Mike Nuckols, along with advisor, Ms. Carol Eggleston, embarked on a journey to the Gettysburg Yearbook Experience, where they took classes in design, managing the computer, and photography. "It was great--I learned a lot through hands-on experience," remarked Chad Coyne.

And so the five returned to share what they had learned with the rest of the staff. The first meeting was held at the end of the month to organize the sales of advertisements. The summer flew by and suddenly school was in session. The year began with the staff getting to know its new advisor, who had graduated from Wake Forest University, and had previous experience in yearbook from her high school years at Cave Spring High School. Though the year was littered with trivial problems that cannot be unexpected, the staff and Ms. Eggleston learned from each other. Through it all, the yearbook staff was persistent in its pursuit of presenting the book that appears before you.

Being different is all part of the game here. It is obvious by walking down the halls in every division that the students and faculty are all individuals. All students and faculty members are invited to express themselves as they wish. Students struggle to express themselves with in the limits of the dress code, but most manage to keep their own character regardless of the dress restrictions. The students express themselves in other ways also; for example, students act on the stage in Fishburn Theater, play in select soccer on the playing fields or in the CAC, play musical instruments ,or read at Muses at Bay. This freedom allows each and everyone to explore their own talents and share in the talents of their peers. The students get to really know whose who by their personality rather than just by name.

"The most appealing thing about this school is the teachers," said Dr. Jim Palmieri.

Everyone agrees, the teachers at our school are definitely what make it what it is today. From being available before and after school, to helping out with homework, providing review sessions, to caring about each individual student, our teachers are the best. The student-teacher relationships are excellent; in fact, classrooms are almost never disruptive, and it is not unusual to see laughing and joking between the students and the teachers. This also happens to be one of the aspects that is appealing to the teachers. Upper School History teacher

So innocent, so young, and all so sweet. The Lower School years are a time for students to build a strong foundation for the school year to come. In Pre-Kindergarten, youngsters are taught how to interact properly with others. Students in the first through the fourth grades perfect formal handwriting and master mathematical skills. The most academically challenging grade of all is the fifth grade. This is the year during which the students must prepare to take the giant step up to the Middle School and begin to accept great responsibilities.

Caterpillar

A new addition was added to the Pre-Kindergarten room this year - a huge caterpillar.

Winding it's way around the entire Pre-Kindergarten classroom was a big, bright, and colorful caterpillar. The caterpillar crept all along the walls, floor, and even on the ceiling. It was the students' way of counting how many days they had been in school and, more exciting, how many days were left. The caterpillar consisted of circles, squares, and triangles, each one of five different colors. Each day, the students added a new part to the caterpillar, remembering the specific pattern of colors, shapes, and numbers. While this project was fun, it taught the students counting and order.

Singing to the tunes of familiar songs while learning new things.

From the halls of the Lower School could be heard the sounds of children's voices singing their A,B,C's and 1,2,3's. The Kindergarten students learned things by putting the new concept into a song. The song is either a well-known song or one the teachers made up. This is a technique of the Montessori program, which teaches recognition and formation of letters and progresses to blend sounds together. The songs provided a fun way of learning skills.

Theme Fridays

Teachers tried a new creative approach to teaching the first grade curriculum..

This year, the first grade has enjoyed "theme" Fridays, an interdisciplinary approach to the first grade curriculum. Every Friday, first graders do a variety of fun science, social studies, creative writing, reading, art, and many other activities. Some themes include spiders while reading Charlotte's Web , penguins while reading Mr. Popper's Penguins, land and sea animals, the human body, plants, the Roanoke valley, and many, many more. First grade teachers found this approach to prove not only a method of teaching, but also something for the students to look forward to.

"I love second grade!" exclaimed Patrick Lloyd .

Every Friday afternoon, students in Mrs. Strulson's second grade class explored the world of Marvelous Math, a hands-on program that helped the students grasp mathematic concepts. Elizabeth Wetherington commented, "I like Marvelous Math because it has a lot of fun things to do." The activities included counting and adding with tiles and using geometric figures. Mrs. King's class spent the year in a project called "very important persons" or VIPs.This is a program in which students get to know one another better by devoting a bulletin board to a student for a period of two weeks. "I like it because we get to show people at school what we do at home," noted Victoria Lawson.

Nestled in their sleeping bags, the third graders took a day off from school to read .

Equipped with Snoopy pillows and various colors of sleeping bags, the third grade had a read-in all day.

During the read-in the students plopped on the floor and read their favorite books. They also went to different activities like music, lunch, and playtime and then rested on their favorite sleeping bags. After reading, the students watched the movie "Freaky Friday". An Expanded Program

A changing program for a dynamic group of students.

As the fifth graders began to prepare for their graduation to the Middle School, they enjoyed the many privileges of being the "seniors of the Lower School". The students had the freedom of changing classes and walking to their classes alone. They were also allowed to have ice cream every day rather than only on the traditional Friday lunch period.

The fifth grade also went through many changes over the summer to get ready for the rising class by adding a new section to accomodate the students. The science program included a spring trip to Baltimore following their study on oceanography, and the reading program was expanded so that instead of reading just one novel, the students read three. The purpose for changing the curriculum was to help prepare the students for the challenges of the Middle School.

The Middle School years are a time for personal growth towards independence. The journey in growing up takes three pain staking years, but it is all worth it. With the responsibility of getting to class on time, turning in papers, and having their own lockers, the Middle School years are filled with expectations. Each step in the journey takes a different twist- the sixth graders get their own lockers, the seventh graders take a look at today's business world in Project Business, and the eighth graders start writing critical analyses. The three years in the Middle School are more than adaquit preparation for the move to the Upper School.

Making use of their spare time, Bill Pattisall and Mike Scutellaro do some work before an away football game. Playing on the football team takes alot of time and effort, so the eighth grade team members used every spare minute they had to prepare for school.

Molding his clay into a circle, sixth grader Tanner Duus prepares to make a gift for his mother. In art class the students were able to make anything their imagination allowed them. The Middle School students spent the last period of the day doing different activities such as music and art.

Getting a head start on homework, Charles Logan, Ken Tetter, and Natalie Tear work diligently so that they can have some spare time at home. In the Middle School, the classes alternate study hall periods so that they will get used to doing some of their work at school. The students love the free time and most use it well.

Really Sixth Grade

New independence; greater expectations.

No longer were the sixth graders on top. In fact, just entering the Middle School, they found themselves on the bottom. This did not stop them from making the transition a huge success. The increased independence allowed them to move from class to class intermingling with one another at their lockers. "I think sixth grade is a lot better than fifth! They trust us more," proclaimed Robbie Caplan. All in all, the sixth graders thoroughly enjoyed their first year in the Middle School, and soon, they will be at the top once again.

Routine

The eighth grade was a class that did not just sit around, they got things done.

This year's eighth grade class was rarely ever seen sitting. If they were, it was waiting for the next soccer game or their next event in a swim meet to start. The students were always doing something. Many of the students participate in sports, both in and out of school. Upper School

HOW'S IT GOING?

Preparation is the name of the game. Three and a half years of intense training toward one goal- College. Of course the last half of the senior year is the cool down period (senior slump!) But before they slam on the breaks, they must climb into the driver's seat. They take driver's education as Freshmen and get their licences as Sophomores. As Juniors, they gain school freedoms such as independent study hall. Then as Seniors they complete applications, give their senior speeches, and say goodbye. While they are in the Upper School, they really get to know their world, one another, and themselves a little better through their studies in and out of the classroom.

With all eyes on th field, James Scott, John Logan, Eric Mull, and Burke Rucker watch the varsity girls Field hockey game. The Upper School students were very supportive of their fellow classmates, as observed by their attendance at athletic events.

On a sunny Friday afternoon, Seniors Elizabeth Noland, Erin Waldvogel, and Emily Kielkopf watch the football game. Many students watched the games from their cars so that they could get a good seat and tailgate.

Inquiring about her yearbook assignment, Sophomore Sarah Waybright asks Senior editor Caty Bradshaw if her story needs any extra zip. Hal Johnson, a creative writer himself, read the story and offered his oppinion.

Observing the test tube for a sudden change, Ed Machado and Pira Kanithanon hope their chemistry experiment works. For the second year, the Chemistry/Biology class spanning the Sophomore and Junior years has proved to be successful.

After taking a tense A.P. Biology test, Senior Jason Vermillion decides to take a rest in the Commons area. Dr. Palmieri's A.P. Biology class is two periods long every day, therefore only five seniors signed up for the course.

Raising money in a different kind of way.

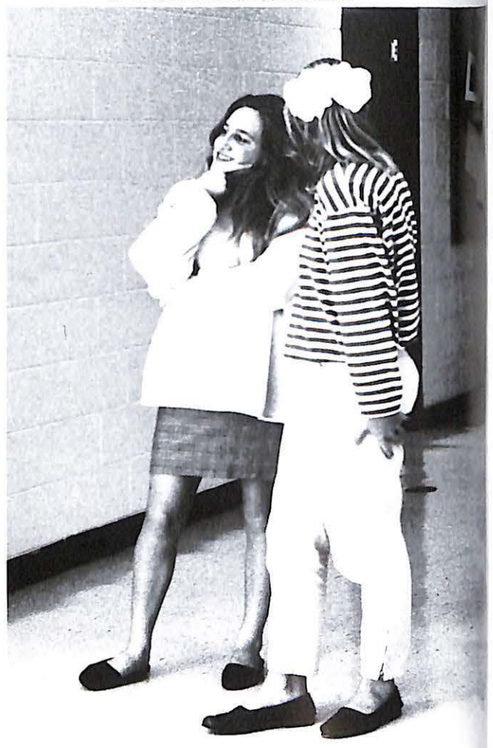

When the Freshmen entered the Upper School they felt a new sense of freedom. With that freedom, they took on a new responsibility.

Each year, the Freshmen sponsored the Founder's Day Dance. In order to raise money, they held bake sales, jeans-days, concession stands, and pizza sales on Fridays during lunch. The money went toward the cost of the band, as well as refreshments and decorations.

Class treasurer Emily Kennedy and president Mary Jennings thought it would be a nice change to have the dance at a location other than the CAC, but that proved to be too costly. The class learned that putting on an event was hard work, and they found the experience to be worthwhile.

Buckle up, lock the doors; the sophomores are on the road.

Every year there comes a time when sophomores jump in their car and start up their engines. "The days of bumming rides and counting on your parents are now gone",many Sophomores with their liscences said. With this privalage, there came a new sense of maturity and responsibility.
One Sophomore said, "I don't like it because it puts a lot of pressure on me, when everyone asks me for rides." Ms.Satterwhite and Mrs.Moore were the teachers responsible for helping to put these students behind the wheel. Thanks to them, the Sophomores gained their freedom all in a plastic card called a driver's license.

After school, Melissa Blythe sets out for the store to get a snack. Melisa got her license in the spring and has enjoyed the freedom to come and go after school.

"What's so great about junior year anyway?"

One might ask themselves this question many times throughout their Junior year. With all of the papers, SAT's, and stresses; one would wonder if anything good could happen in these nine greuling months.

The fact is that there are many good things that happen during Junior year. One is that the Juniors who are on Honor Roll earn the right to have independent study hall. This gives the students the freedom to spend their time wherever they wish.

Another thrill is that the Juniors get to start their college search. Different college representatives visit the Upper School and talk with the students about the various programs offered. This is very beneficial for the students so that they can get an early start on their college selection process.

But probably the best part of the Junior year is knowing that next year, they will be SENIORS!

HOW'S IT GOING?

Goin' Out In Style

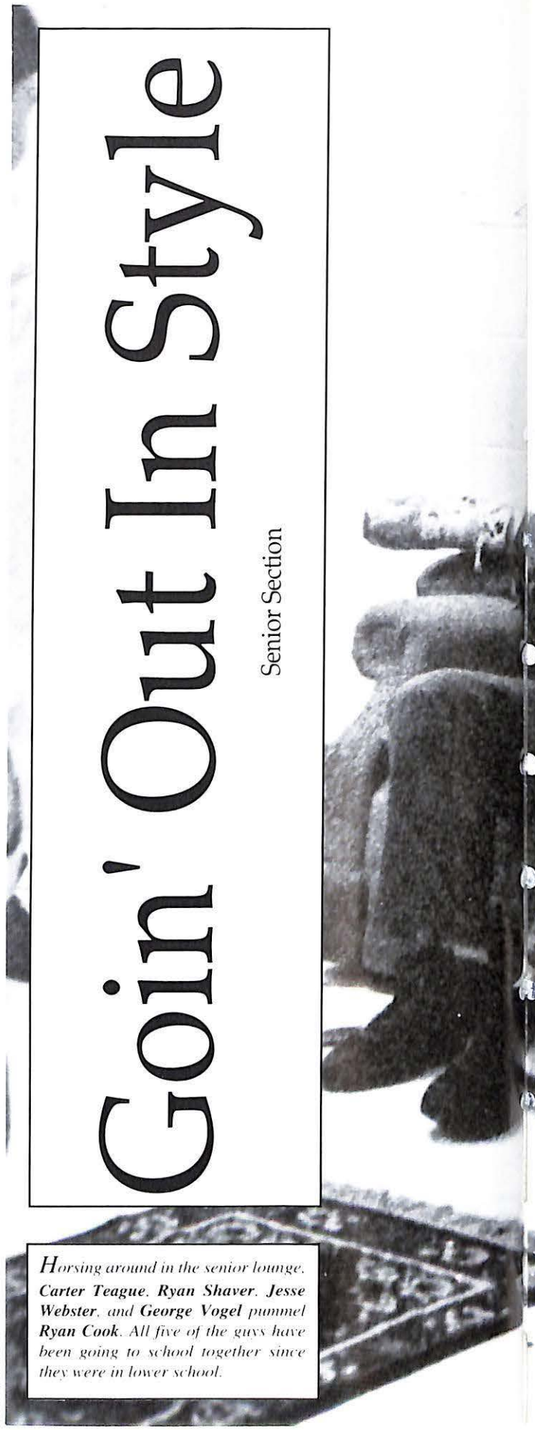

Senior Section

The senior year was filled with many stresses: SATs, leading morning assemblies (or not leading them as the case was most frequently), Government class, senior papers and speeches, team sports, senior lounge clean-up, college applications, and all the other everyday activities. Somehow, the students made it through the stressful fall semester to the somewhat more relaxing winter and spring. During this time, the seniors shared more than responsibilities, they often thought of their fellow classmates by helping each other with homework, labs, foul shorts, lounge clean-up duty,and they even brought in food for the class to enjoy on birthdays, holidays, and during Homecoming. The senior class was able to go out in style, even when the work load increased, and the days until graduation dwindled.

Horsing around in the senior lounge, Carter Teague, Ryan Shaver, Jesse Webster, and George Vogel pummel Ryan Cook. All five of the guys have been going to school together since they were in lower school.

Strumming away at his guitar, John Logan uses his free period to practice his music, while Jay Donato studies for his government quiz. The seniors enjoyed the privilege of independent study hall, during which they could stay in the lounge, in the commons area, outside, or any number of other places on campus.

Caught in the act of play fencing in the hall, Richard Castle and Jason Vermillion act innocent as A.J. Esguerra spectates. Jay Donanto dressed up as a skiier for Halloween, wearing his boots, his skies, his hat and carring his poles. Jason and Richard found other uses for Jay's ski poles.

All wrapped up in the spirit of homecoming, Jesse Webster mummifies Carter Teague in white tissue paper as Erin Waldvogel looks on in amusement. Jesse and Carter both played on the football team and were excited to see that the other seniors were decorating the lounge in preparation for the big game.

Taking a break from one of those active Middle School dances, John Logan, Jeff Summerline, and Jesse Webster listen to Carter Teague tell his infamous stories. The Survival Club members have many memories of past dances, some of those memories fond, and others not so fond.

After twelve years, the Survival Club of '93 has seen it all, from buried time capsules to a peace-preaching lady in front of the White House. The first time they marched down the aisle together they were wearing red and white choir robes singing "Jingle Bells"; this time they will be in black and "Pomp and Circumstance" will be their tune. Those were the days...a rainy day at Busch Gardens, getting in trouble at the hotel in Williamsburg, and a fight at the museum breaking down in front of the Washington Zoo, and a night in the 4-H Center. They never did get to hatch the chickens, explode the volcano, nor visit Baltimore, and they even got jipped on the trip to Washington, but all in all it was a blast from 'Cah-nee-nee' to 'I flog therefore I am.'

Sitting on the stairs in the Middle School, the graduating eigth graders smile because they are not only getting out for summer vacaion, but they will also be moving up to the Upper School the following Fall.

Spending an evening at home during the summer, Caty Bradshaw and Emily Kielkopf have to stop and laugh when they think about how much trouble they used to get into, especially on the seventh grade class trip to Williamsburg. The majority of the class had an "on bus suspension" the morning following their stay in the hotel, for their behavior was "a bit disappointing."

HOW'S IT GOING?

With a top notch academic curriculum, our student body receives a strong education. At each level, different methods are used to suit the needs of the students. In the Lower School, creative approaches are used to give the student a strong foundation in fundamental skills. Middle Schoolers are taught strong study skills and given a background for more advanced studies. Finally, students in the Upper School are given more freedom in academic choices in order to think critically and independently. Our school provides students with a background which well prepares us for the many challenges ahead.

Academics

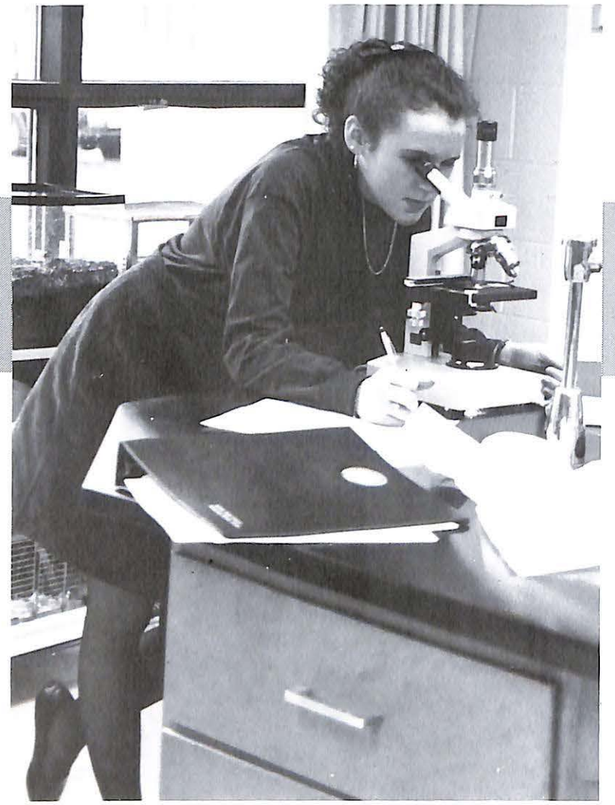

Tired after a long week, seventh period French IV students await the final bell one Friday afternoon. French IV is taken mainly by seniors, and it is taught by Mr. France*.*

Hard at work, first graders illustrate the stories they have written for Mrs. Lang*'s class. Subjects in the Lower School include math, language arts, science, and social studies; and creative approaches are used to teach each class.*

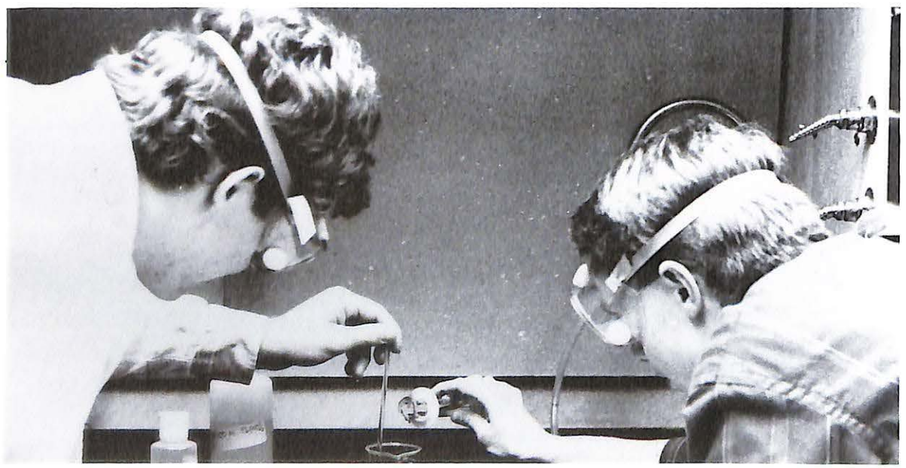

Holding a review class for her Freshmen earth science students, Mrs. Summerlin outlines a chapter for an upcoming test. Mrs. Summerlin is very devoted to her work, offering extra help to her students before and after school.

Reviewing his history notes before a big test, Shane Vinales studies with intent. Middle Schoolers are given the opportunity to have a study hall period for a portion of the year.

Viewing organisms through one of the A.P.Bio microscopes, Caty Bradshaw carefully discerns the different types of organisms found in the Roanoke River. The students sketched the organisms for later study.

Measuring the correct amount of chemicals under the fume hood, George Vogel and Mike Nuckols are in the midst of a lab in A.P. Chemistry. The labs that were done the this class were more complex and thorough than regular chemistry classes' labs.

Carefully taking down every word that Dr. Palmieri says, Jason Vermillion and Nicole Hall jot down a few last words before the bell sounds ending the class. The A.P.Biology class lasts for two class periods every day.

Checking on the tarantula, Nicole Hall makes certain that he has all of the food that he needs for the long weekend. Nicole loves animals, and has decided to become a veterinarian.

All Work and No Play

"It may take time, hard work, and courage but being involved in an Advanced Placement class is worth it", said Erika Young. Since only two AP courses (Biology andChemistry) are offered, the number of students is very low in each class. The low student/ teacher ratio allows the classes to have more of a relaxed atmosphere. "Dr. Palmieri becomes really cool during class and even lets us bring drinks into the lab", commented Jason Vermillion. The involvement between Dr. Palmieri and his students allows them to form close relationships. AP Biology lasts for two periods each day and "sometimes it just seems too long and I doubt that I can bear it any longer", said Caty Bradshaw. An AP Chemistry course is also offered to the students, but only two seniors took the challenge. "Dr. Maycock drills us with kilogram equations and formulas", said George Vogel.

Even though the students sometimes dread their daily AP sessions, in the long run, they each know that all the cramming and hard work will pay off.

It's About Life; Our Life.

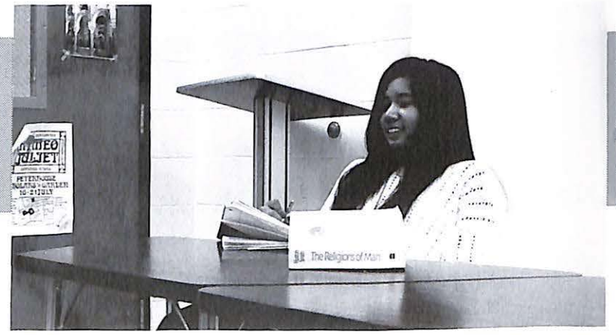

Psychology / Religion and Humanities are two of the most interesting, difficult, and fun classes we have to offer. Open only to Juniors and Seniors, students juggle their schedule to participate in these wonderful classes.

Mrs. Fishwick, one of the students' favorite teachers, has travelled all over the world and teaches both of these classes. Everyone agrees that Religion is a lot of work but still a lot of fun. "It is not just learning about religion, but it is about life, our life," Caty Bradshaw replied when asked what she learns in Psychology/ Religion. Mrs. Fishwick strives to make all of her classes pertain to her students because she wants religion to mean something to them, for she says that religion does not necessarily have to do with God or any gods. She teaches her students to search for their own meaning of religion and not to settle for anyone else's definition. "This class is structured a little differently than any other class I have ever taken," said Emily Kielkopf. "The first week of class, we went outside to breathe." The class took a walk around campus in total silence and concentrated on breathing. The class did various other activities to "get in touch with themselves," such as meditating for fifteen minutes a day for two weeks. Students take the class for many different reasons, such as Ericka Young who said that she is taking the course in order to learn more about God and to better understand the world we live in.

According to Chip Capozzi, the only person brave enough to delve in to Humanities, "Humanities is great because we talk about ideas and do not get bogged down in other stuff; ideas are what make the world go around."

Whether singing to the lyrics of Pearl Jam while typing a poem of the deep blue ocean, or meditating to Mrs. Shaver's stories of fall days hiking among the colorful leaves on the mountaintop, or seeing downtown Roanoke from a writer's viewpoint, the students of Mrs. Shaver's half year writing class never had a dull moment. The students learned not only how to improve their writing, but they also learned to relax and express their inside emotions through writing expression. "Mrs. Shaver did an excellent job of helping us to open up with our artistic and literary abilities," Hal Johnson, a sophomore of the class commented. Following are two poems from the class:

Speak to me in kindness,
Speak to me just the same.
Speak of your carefree
happiness,
And we'll all smile in pain.
Speak to me with etiquette.
Speak to me a smile.
Speak of joy as fearlessness,
and smile all the while.
But don't speak of the truth.
Don't speak of reality.
And don't speak of your worries,
Don't tell me what your fears may be.
Just speak to me in kindness.
Speak to me in vain.
Speak of your loving thoughtlessness,
And we'll all smile in pain.

Students Become Teachers

"Working in groups was very effective because the students learned a lot from each other," Mrs. Strulson a second grade teacher commented. The lower school students had fun while they learned because they were working in groups. The students learned to get along with other students, to cooperate with them and also to learn from their classmates. By working in pairs or groups the students of the lower school had fun with games and other activities. In the second grade, whale reports and dinosaur research were all done in groups. After a unit on counting and using money, the students each brought in ninety - nine cents and toys to sell. With their money and goods, the students learned about counting their money and bartering their goods. In the fifth grade, the students revised papers in an exercise called peer revision. They each correct each others' mistakes and make suggestions to improve their partner's paper. The fifth grade also used this technique in scientific lab reports. When the classes studied electricity, the students made motors and experimented with electrical currents through batteries. The students' skills became more concrete in a shorter amount of time because the students became the teachers. Once they could completely explain a concept, it was evident that they too understood the concept. This technique used by many lower school teachers became very popular among the students in the classroom.

More Than Just Basic

This summer, the Middle School received a wonderful and desparately needed gift from its faculty. With the majority of their profits from Field Day, they purchased fourteen new computers to replace the ten old TRS-80 computers, which were rumored to have been at this school since "the beginning of time."

Desperately needed and long overdue, these Apple-Macintosh computers were greeted well by the students and members of the Middle School. The new computers were greatly appreciated by Middle School computer teacher, Mrs. Elsie Bailey, who commented, "They really help me to teach more than just basic typing skills." With each computer possessing an elaborate keyboard and a mouse, Mrs. Bailey now has a wide range of teaching options open to her. Students have also enjoyed the new computer program; when asked what his favorite part of it is, eighth grader Bill Pattisall replied, "I really like it. We get to learn from working on the computers-it makes it more fun." In addition, seventh grader Glen Patterson noted, "I'm really glad we got new computers. We had been needing them for a long time!"

The computers proved to be a great benefit to all of the Middle School classes.

A Smiling Face With An Iron Fist

The Student Council Association has quite a few new faces, especially the smiling face of Chip Capozzi, the SCA President. Chip gave the SCA a bit of a "face lift" this year by adding many new functions, such as the Open Campus Period. During this time, students can sign-up for various activities such as Muses at Bay, participate in field games, club meetings, or just work on extra homework. Chip also sits in on all of the faculty meetings in order to represent the student body. Janis Kennedy is the SCA Vice-President and along with this title comes the responsibility of running Campus Corner. She offers the Upper School student body a plethera of foods for their snacking enjoyment. Carlyle Stull is the Treasurer,and is in charge of the funds. Carter Teague is the Secretary who oversees the arrangement of Symposium. Carter calls all of the other SCA students to help contact the speakers, and schedule their appearances. The executive officers also help to organize the individual class officers in their fund-raising tactics. They are on hand to share their abundant experience of the ups and downs of money making. All in all, the SCA, under Chip's iron fist, contributes a great deal of time, effort, and patience to their fellow students for the betterment of the entire school.

On Their Way To The Hill

After a four year reign as Headmaster, Mr. Dougherty decided it was time to move on and accept a new postion. "The decision to leave was very difficult, but I just could not resist the offer." said Mr. Dougherty at an Upper School assembly. Mr. and Mrs. Dougherty made the choice to move to Pottstown, PA, so that he could assume the role as Headmaster of The Hill School, a prestigious boys' boarding school. Mrs. Dougherty has chosen to work in the admissions office for her first year at The Hill, however she most likely will not hold off for more than a year or two before she gets back into a math classroom again. Mr. Dougherty has decided as well to wait a year or so before he begins teaching, for he will have a great deal of orientation and work to be done in his first year at the new school. The two will definitely be an asset to any possition in any school, but their presence here will be sorely missed, for both have done so much to change the face of North Cross in just four short years.

Shortly after his arrival, Mr. Dougherty worked to modify the school's academic curriculum, the school's Honor System, and the sense of entire school unity and spirit. He introduced Headmaster's Breakfasts to get parents interested and involved in their children's school life and academic work. Mr. Dougherty held monthly All School Assemblies in the Carter Center for all of the students and faculty from pre-kindergarten through the Senior class. The students sat in groups according to their grade; however, Mr. Dougherty scattered the groupings all around the gym floor so that the students from the different divisions would be seated by students from other divisions. This mixing of the students enabled them to meet students who they would not normally see and also served as inspiration to the younger students. A seemingly simple idea such as this had a great impact on the unity of the entire school.

To add to his list of Headmaster activities and expectations, he added another job, his Senior English class. However, this position seemed to be a great pleasure to him. Mrs. Dougherty has also left her mark on this school, not only as a teacher of both Upper School Algebra II and Pre-Calculus, but she has also left her mark on the tennis court and in the aerobics room. Mrs. Dougherty coached both the Boys' and Girls' varsity tennis teams and taught aerobics after school in the Carter Center to students, faculty, and CAC members. The Doughertys have gone beyond anyone's expectations of a Headmaster and his wife, for they have been so supportive of all of the students, faculty, and parents that they have encountered, whether at All School Assemblies, at athletic events, in the class room, or on the Carter Center running track. The Doughertys have given so much to the school that we must say thank you and that your shoes will be very difficult to fill, for you have set a new standard among Headmasters. Good-bye and good luck in your future endeavors!

Snap, Crackle, Pop...these are three frequent sounds heard by the school atheletic teams. Head, shoulders, knees, and toes were all injured at one time or another during all three seasons. But these small setbacks did not hinder the success of the teams. The varsity football, volleyball, and field hockey teams all won their conference championships with ease. The winter sports were highlighted by the success of the boy's varsity basketball team as well as the individual successes of the swimmers, wrestlers, and all the other basketball players. The spring sports shared in the spot light with outstanding stats and displays of shortsmenship. All of the teams were roused by the sounds of the cheerleaders and the fans, as they told the players to go for the gold.

What was thought to be a growing year turned out for the varsity volleyball team to be a winning season.

The volleyball team started right off with tough matches against five public school teams. After defeating Pulaski, William Fleming, Franklin County, Cave Spring and Patrick Henry, the team had high hopes for the rest of the season. Catholic was the first Conference team played. It also happened to be one of the toughest teams in the Conference. After winning that match, everyone realized that this would be a year to remember. Erin Waldvogel, one of the three co-captains, said, "We didn't have a lot of height or power. There were no stars on this team. We played good defense and really worked hard together." Coach Donna Satterwhite added, "This team was special not because they went without losing, but because it's a great young group of kids that came together and did well." The season finished undefeated with twenty-three wins including fifteen wins against the Conference teams.

SETTING IT UP

A Young Team With Potential

Caty Bradshaw and Emily Cook

They will take all of the experience they gained with them up to the varsity level next year.

The team was young, but the number of players made up for the lack of experience. Most all of the players were new to the team this year, but they built skill through their experience. The players were under the direction of Mrs. Holly Moore and Mrs. Gaylyn Moore. They had a slow start to the season, but then made a come back against Lynchburg Christian Academy and Seven Hills. These two wins gave the team the confidence that they needed to pull together and come out at the end of the season with four more wins. One of the team leaders on and off of the court was eighth grader Shannon Harmon, especially for her excellent net skills. Bette Kaufman was the most consistent server on the team, but the team would never had pulled out any victories had it not been for the setting of Mary Logan and the passing skill of Lisa Baet. The J.V.Volleyball team worked mostly on skill and technique this year, therefore they will be better prepared for their next level of play...the varsity team.

No player could ever forget a season like this; one of young players, a second place trophy, and a top notch coach.

The varsity football team possessed a potent offense, coached by a smashing defense, which allowed the team to win the Virginia Independent Conference championship and finish second in the state. The offense averaged an amazing thirty-five points a game which was the best average a Raider team has had in many years. The defense seemed to make the big plays at the right times which were rarely scored upon.

Various Raiders earned special recognition for their football talents. Chad Coyne (offensive tackle), Brad Carroll (offensive guard), Marcus Cardwell (running back), and Hal Johnson (quarterback) were named to the All-VIC team. Defensively, Aaron Lange and Monty Smith (linebackers), Jason Davis and Ryan Shaver (linemen), Marcus Cardwell (defensive back), and Eric Mull were named to the All-VIC team. Finally, Coach Muscaro was given the great honor of "Coach of the Year" for the Virginia Independent Conference.

Not winning the state championship was a huge disappointment, but as Coach Muscaro and Mr. Dougherty said, "We have a lot to be proud of."

Goalie Training

"Who Wants To Be Our Goalie?"

Sarah Waybright

And a silence fell over the girls who had come out for field hockey.

Absolutely no one wanted to volunteer to put on padding, a helmet, and block shoes, to then stand in a metal goalie box and await the other teams' forward line to try and score on them. The coach, Mrs. Anne Jennings, picked four defensive players to try out the position, hoping that one would emerge to be the teams' full time goalie. The four girls, Brandy Markell, Mary Bartley, Emily Kennedy, and Sarah Waybright decided together that instead of putting the task on one, they would take turns throughout the year. This is what they did, all the way through the tournament game. As Brandy Markell put it, "Since we all decided to be the goalie, it allowed each of us to try out the position, since we were not all too comfortable at playing it full time." Despite the initial struggle of the team to find a goalie, the results left everyone happy, and the team had yet another successful season with a VIC title.

Reaching The Finish Line

Tyson Manthei

The runners dreaded the daily routines, but when the winning came, they knew that all the work had paid off.

Standing at the starting line, scared and nervous, the runners are ready for the gun to go off. This is the start of their long and lengthy journey through rough and rocky terrain. Richard Castle asked himself just before each race, "What am I about to do, and why am I putting myself through this strenuous torture?" He says that there is no concrete reason that he runs, but in his mind he thinks of it as a challenge.

The runners remember the lengthy speeches of Dr. Jim Palmieri about "a mind's role in running" and the dreaded "Loops of Death". These tiring loops covered the perimeter of the practice football fields.

The Cross Country team had to overcome the not only the "Loops of Death," but many injuries as well. Topping the list of injuries, was John Prilliman, who suffered a broken collar bone due to a non-sports related activity. Louis Davidson also was on the injured list with a developed hip injury. Despite all odds, the runners pulled together as a team to make up for their injuries.

Go Red And White!

A Growing Season

Sylvana Sinha

With only four returning cheerleaders, the team knew it had its work cut out.

The football cheerleading season started out in the summer as six girls began practice in early August to be ready for the start of the season. With only four of the six having previous cheerleading experience, the team was hard at work to be ready to cheer at the first home game. However, the team was met with a pleasant surprise when freshman Ellyn Stecker transferred from Cave Spring with two years of cheering behind her. She brought with her new ideas and expertise which added to the charm of the team. This group of seven led the Raiders to a second place in state football. Perhaps the highlight of the season was Homecoming. Co-captain Jennifer Frye commented, "The school really got into it; the Upper School was really decked out--more so than any other year."

Many Seniors wanted to cheer in their last year in the Upper School; nine Seniors and one Junior chose to cheer for the varsity basketball team. Only four girls were returning, so the team really had a lot to learn. Though at first they were worried that the school would be ashamed of them, they realized how much the basketball team needed them. The team as a whole felt that they did not cheer competitively but "just for fun." Caty Bradshaw noted, "We're learning a lot, but we still have a long way to go."

Taking it to the hoop, this years team has had one of the best seasons in recent years.

The Boy's Varsity Basketball team had a slow start due to the lingering football season, but as soon as practice started, the team was off and running. Two of the team's seniors Mike Bryan and Aaron Marley could not wait to get the long awaited season started, but the season proved to be well worth the wait. The bulk of the thirteen man team was the eight Seniors who lead the team on and off the court, however, the team was also stacked with a number of strong underclassmen, like Junior Marcus Cardwell, and Sophomores Monty Smith and Hal Johnson. Marcus was the team's starting ball handler and leading point scorer, for he scored his 1,000th varsity career point only half way through the season. Monty Smith was the team's sixth man and definitely a force on offense. Hal Johnson stunned the crowd and the opposing team with his three point shooting ability, which hardly shadowed his great defensive skills. But the Seniors were the real stars of the team. The team's captains Aaron Marley and Ryan Cook led the team through many tough situations such as the game at Liberty University against LCA. LCA took an early lead in the first quarter, but the Raiders had taken control by half time and lead LCA for the remainder of the game. This victory was only one of the many which demonstrated the team's initiative and endurance . The majority of the games were easily won by the team, such as the acquisition of the first place trophy in the Holiday Tournament held here at school, and the second place victory at the Greensboro Invitational at the forefront of the season. The team goes down in the books as one of the best, not just because of the stats but because of the camaraderie among the players.

Taking Control

Living Up To Years Past

Tripp Bell, Heather Houston, and Sylvana Sinha

It was a year of reconstruction, learning, and gaining experience.

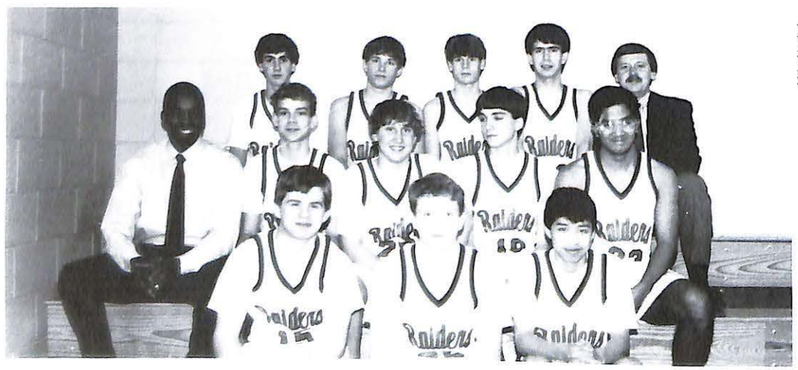

After losing nine of last year's players, everyone knew that it would be hard for this year's team to live up to the success of previous years. However, through practice and the strong advice of coaches David Calvert and Mike "T-Bone" Taylor, the team came through to accomplish a winning season.

The team traveled to Lord Botetourt for its first game after only six days of practice. After this game, the team came to realize what work they had laid out for them. After a second game versus William Byrd, they made use of the Christmas holiday for some extensive practice and returned in January to beat Holy Cross. Brian Whitaker remarked, "We were faced with really tough competition--and we weren't afraid to fight to win." The season continued with the team striving for an ultimate goal of pure success and victory, which was achieved with a run of three wins in four days over conference foes Hargrave Military Academy, Roanoke Valley Christian, and Timberlake Christian School. The tournament took place at Timberlake, where the team found itself faced with the best three schools in the Virginia Independent Conference, where they tied for a third place ranking after a heart-breaking loss to Roanoke Catholic.

Starters included freshman Emily Kennedy, sophomores Emily Cook, Armistead Lemon, Heather Perry, and senior captain Brandy Markell. Although the season started out with a few losses, the girls refused to give in. "We knew we were going to get over it--we had to," remarked sophomore Emily Cook. A win over Virginia Episcopal School late in the season gave the Raiders a chance to regain the confidence that had been lost. This victory was followed by a run of three more. Team Work

Pulling It All Together

Lesley Dodson

With a lot of hard work and effort, this team came together and fought for a winning season.

Once again the JV girls' basketball team, consisting of three ninth graders, six eighth graders, and six seventh graders pulled together as a team to have a strong season. For this year's team, the key word was "team work." The girls showed, or rather proved, this in their game against Roanoke Valley Christian School. The team had scored only 10 points up until the fourth quarter. They were tired and one member of the starting line up was home sick. Yet the girls pulled together and scored 12 points in the final quarter. This amazing 11 point comeback resulted in one more victory to add to the list, proving again that it's not over 'til it's over!

With half the team in the Middle School, the swim team had a great time together.

When practice started in December, the team was anxious for the season to start and to meet their new coach. Some of the swimmers had already swam under coach, Pat Bateman, who also coaches the Carter Athletic Center Marlins. Mr. Bateman turned out to be really fun. He made practices hard, but allowed us to take breaks and play water polo during some practices. The swim team had many more meets than were scheduled for them last year with new additions such as Norfolk Academy, an invitational meet in Radford at Radford University, and a Heritage Invitational.

This year the swim team was very young with seven eighth graders and eight Upper Schoolers. They had a good season for being such a young team. The eighth graders provided many laughs. Such as eighth grader, Scott Lundy, who often finished his warm-up by saying, "Hey, where's my gum?"

Concentrating on her backstroke, Sophomore Ryan Jennings finishes her 200 IM. Even as only a Sophomore, Ryan was a good at all strokes and proved worthy in the 200 IM.

Hit The Mat

Rebuilding Was The Key To This Season

Tripp Bell

When the team started practice in November, they knew that the season had potential.

The wrestling team declared this season a success, although their meet record might not show it. For instance, the team was loaded with youth, boastingtwo Freshmen and four eighth graders. This gave the team high hopes for the future. Coach Ed Dickenson added that the three biggest highlights for him were, "Aaron Lange's continued dominance in his weight class, Philip Ramsey's nearly undefeated record, and Daniel Cho's success on the varsity as an eighth grader." Unfortunately, this season had its low points as well. The team had a few heartbreaking losses, most which were lost by ten points or less. The team also suffered many injuries, such as Philip Ramsey who enjured his arm and was forced to forfit his last three matches. Despite the numerous enjuries, the wrestlers did very well individually, such as Arron Lange who placed first in the VIC tournament, Forrest Porterfield who placed second, and Trey Mangus who placed third for his weight dividion. Over all the Raiders placed fourth in the VIC, "which is great considering that they only had three quarters of the team there, for the others were out due to injury or illness.", said Coach Dickenson.
The team learned a great deal from one another's victories as well as losses. The team focused on working together whether in the hard core two hour practices or at the meets. The teammates valued each other's participation and enthusiasm both on the mat and on the the bench.

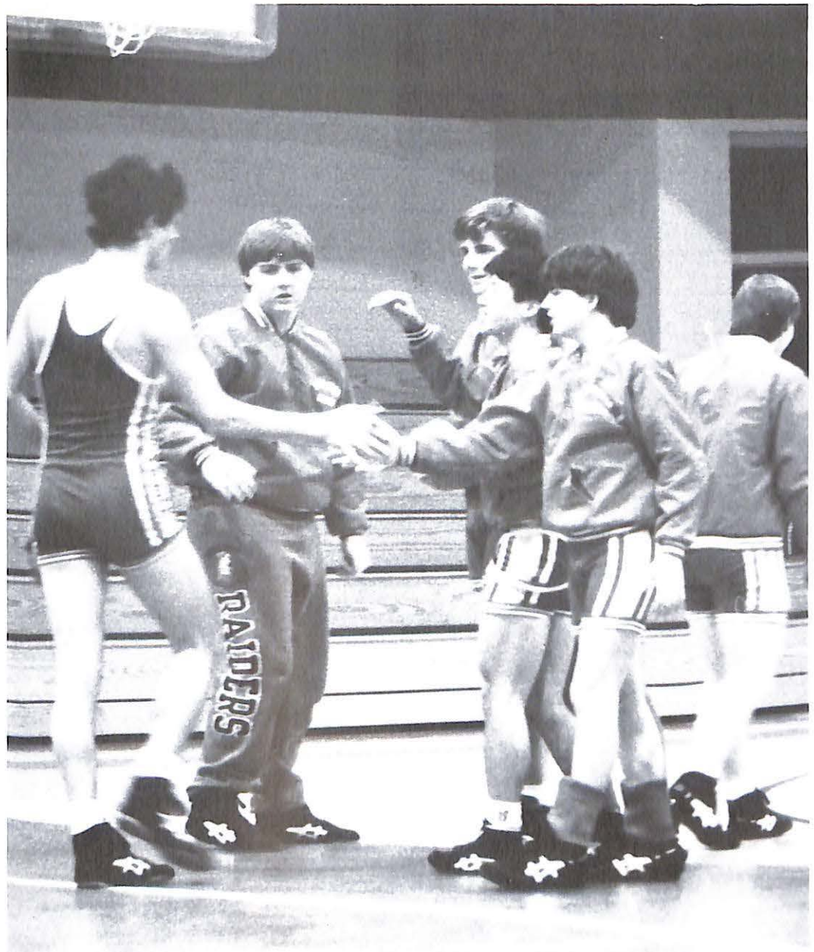

Mike Nuckols

Warming up just before he goes down on the mat, team captain Aaron Lange gets his feet moving quickly. Aaron is one of the team's veterans and has been a role model and teacher to the younger wrestlers.

Lesley Dodson

Mike Nuckols

Meeting Philip Ramsey at the edge of the mat to congratulate him for his effort, his teammates show their support. Regardless of a victory or a loss, the teammates do their best to show the camaraderie that exists on the team.

With a little hard work, the yearbook staff managed to match the Ad sales from the previous year. Many businesses felt advertising in a yearbook was not beneficial, but with a little persuasion the staff members were able to bring in the dough. The staff had hoped to raise more money, but the economic problems bracing the entire U.S. hindered many small businesses. With the $9,000 the staff raised, special extras such as color and graphics were added to the book to enhance its appearance. The staff would like to thank the parents, benefactors, and the businesses that supported our, better late than never yearbook.

Demonstrating the principles of marketing, second graders Julianne Brooks and George Patterson each select an item to purchase. Each student brought in 99 cents and a toy to use for the project.

Supporting the boys' varsity vasketball team, Mr. Meagher introduced his daughter Laura to a few of his students. Mr. Meagher would care for his daughters in the evenings while his wife worked downtown, so he rarely had any time to go to sporting events.

Carrying out the tradition on Red-White Draft, Carter Teague, Mr. Meagher, Mr. Cook, and Ryan Cook direct the freshmen and new students to either the red or white side. Carter and Ryan were the captains of the teams, and this meant they were in charge of which students would participate in each bimonthly event.

Joining in with the JV cheerleaders, varsity senior cheerleaders Nicole Hall, Erin Waldvogel, Elizabeth Noland , and Amy Swann give the cheer a little more volume. The cheerleaders often helped each other with cheers to get the crowd more involved.

The National Honor Society was established to act as a service organization for raising scholarship money. The National Honor Society, under the leadership of Mr. Sally Laughon, continued its usual magazine sale to earn money for scholarships, but they also held a special Yellow Ribbon Jeans Day to earn money for the people of Somalia. The members collected money from the students and faculty and pinned yellow ribbons on their lapels to symbolize the starving people in the far off land.

The Honor Council's main focus was to uphold the Honor Code of the school through education and discipline. The Honor Council members talked frequently with the students in the pre-kindergarten through the Senior class about the importance of the four points of the Honor Code, lying, stealing, cheating, not tolerating those who do so. The council also had three faculty representitives, Mrs. Ann Fishwick, Mr. Hugh Meaghar, and Dr. Jerry Maycock.

The Psychology/Religion class spent two weeks during the second semester studying the eastern religions, thus the class's teacher,* Mrs. Ann Fishwick*, felt that the students would find meditating not only useful to understand the eastern culture but would also help her stressed out Juniors and Seniors. The students found the meditations a bit difficult the first few times, but after a while, they became quite enjoyable and relaxing.*

A Year of Change

Basketball great Larry Bird retired from the Boston Celtics after a thirteen-year career. The thirty-five-year-old was a brilliant passer, pinpoint three-point shooter, and a consummate team player.

Hurricane Andrew was the most expensive natural disaster ever to hit this country. In Florida alone, it left an estimated 180,000 homeless. This storm killed at least forty-one in Florida, ten in Louisiana, and caused twenty-two billion dollars in damage.

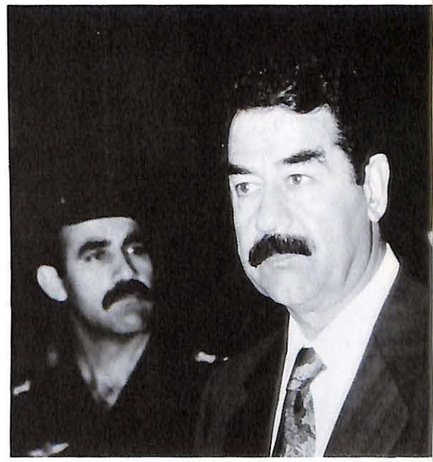

Civil war spread across Yugoslavia, a nation of six republics and two provinces that had been plagued for centuries by ethnic and religious differences. The strongest rivalries were the nine million Serbs and the five million Croatians.

Democrats Bill Clinton and Al Gore captured the spotlight by winning the Presidential election against Republican incumbents George Bush and Dan Quayle. The Clinton/Gore ticket was a huge success because many Americans were tired of Republican domination in Washington.

Saddam Hussein has grown stronger since he was defeated in 1991 in the Gulf war by the United States, and he is again threatening western peace. On January 13, 1992, the Allied Forces launched an air attack against Iraq.

Controversial Times

Barcelona, Spain, hosted the summer Olympics in 1992 and it proved to be a bonanza for the United States. Carl Lewis won four gold medals this time, one for the long jump and one in the four hundred meter relay.

With introspective songs and rousing concerts, Garth Brooks lifted country music to new heights and was voted top entertainer in 1992. The thirty-year-old superstar managed to top both the country and pop charts with his nine million selling album "Ropin' the Wind."

Hurricane Iniki dealt a direct blow to part of the Hawaiian Island in late September. Twenty-foot waves crashed over coastal highways and power lines causing wide spread destruction.

Billionaire, H. Ross Perot entered the presidential race to solve the economic dispair of America's slumping economy. Perot collected 19 milion votes, a record for an Independent cadidate.

When the jury found the police officers involved in the Rodney King beating innocent, three days of rioting hit Los Angeles. When it ended, 52 people were dead, 2,282 were injured, 18,807 were arrested, and the amount of property damage was estimated at 785 million dollars.

The philosopher Kierkegard might have been speaking to our Seniors--or to me--when he said, "Life must be lived forwards, but it can only be understood backwards." Over the last four years--our last here at North Cross-we have lived our lives "fast forward," streaking through our days at a breathless pace, insisting on more new challenges and experiences. Those experiences have been captured, captioned, and ordered for us in this Compass, and now (whenever now is) as we flip lazily and absentmindedly backwards through its pages, recollecting the last nine months of our lives together, they take shape, fit together, make sense. How was it? How was our time together? Great. Thanks for letting me share it with you, and have a great life.

Reaching to pet Mrs. Strudson's puppy, second grader Victoria Lawson helps Mrs. King handle the puppy. Lower schoolers often shared their pets and family with their classmates.

Glancing over the book summary, Leah Greenberg decides whether she should order it. Held in the fall, the book fair was geared toward the Lower and Middle School students.

After attempting a lay-up, senior Mike Bryan is fouled and falls to the floor. A leading scorer on the team, Mike often posed a threat to opposing teams.

GOING?

Gazing out the window of the writing center, graduating Senior Erin Waldvogel reflects back on her thirteen years spent at North Cross and all of the true friends she made. Even though we all must move on, we will always remember the experiences of growing up with North Cross and we will drop by now and then to ask, "How's It Going?"

Colophon

How's It Going, the 1993 Compass of North Cross School was printed by the Herff Jones, Inc. at the Gettysburg, PA printing facility. The book had a press run of 600 copies and was printed on 100# Bordeaux paper with a total of 192 pages. The trim size was 8.5 by 11 inches.

The 1993 Compass was entirely produced by the staff using desktop publishing methods. Hardware used was Macintosh IIsi with 40mg hard disk, 5mg RAM and Apple Personal Laser Writer. Software included Aldus PageMaker 4.01, Herff Jones PageMaster, Microsoft Word 4.0, Aldus FreeHand 2.0, and TypeStyler 2.0. The staff used Herff Jones curriculum series Electronic Yearbook Pages.

The cover was printed using the lithographic offset printing process with a plastic lamination. The colors HJ 350 Forest, HJ 109 Cherry, HJ 206 Canary and HJ 950 Black were printed on a White Litho base material for the cover and VC01 white for the front and rear endsheets. All copy is printed in either Times, Roman, Helvetica, or Palatino type families. All headlines were created on TypeStyler while the cover art, the folios, opening, divider, and closing art were created on FreeHand.

Color photographs were processed and printed at Ewald Clark. Black and White photographs were processed and printed in our own darkroom by Mike Nuckols, Peter Plunkett, Heather Houston, Lesley Dodson, and Chad Coyne. All photography was done by staff members as credit has shown. Portrait photograph was by Vernon Tilley of Holyfield Studios.

The theme of How's It Going? was credited to the 1992 yearbook editor, Missy Blume, who jokingly tossed out the question at a theme brainstorm meeting in early June. The cover design and art was created at the Herff Jones Yearbook Experience in early August by Caty Bradshaw, Chad Coyne, Heather Houston, and Mike Nuckols. Heather Houston and Lesley Dodson both attended the Hollins College Photo/Journalism Workshop in June and learned to take and process Black and White photographs.

The editors of the 1993 Compass, Caty Bradshaw and Chad Coyne, would like to thank those who contributed to the success of The 1993 Compass, How's It Going? Thanks to Ms. Carol Eggleston who, in her first year at North Cross, accepted the seemingly easy responsibility of being the staff's advisor. She ventured up to Gettysburg with a few of the staff members during the summer and eagerly returned in September ready to get started. She stuck with the staff through thick and thin; spending many late nights, weekends, and holidays with the editors working on deadlines or just trying to catch-up. The editors would also like to thank Rick Kranias, the school's Herff Jones representative, without whose vast knowledge, frequent visits, and endless sea of patience, the book would never had made it to the press. The editors would also like to thank Mrs. Sally Laughon for all of her computer assistance throughout the year, especially when the computer contracted a virus two days before a 64 page deadline. Many thanks to 'honorary yearbook member', Nikki Hale, who typed the Index. The editors would like to thank Sylvana Sinha, the Assistant to the Editor, who learned a great deal about the computer, always had her spreads turned in early, came in on week ends to help the editors, and who was more than willing to help any other staff members with their spreads. The editors would like to thank Mike Nuckols, the staff's Photo Editor, who put in some extra hours to make the photos 'perfect' rather than just 'okay'. Finally, the editors would like to acknowledge all of the staff members for their work, effort, and time.
